Chronology of The Parliamentary Debates

The Parliamentary History contains all that can be collected of the Legislative History of this country from the Conquest to the close of the XVIIIth Century (1803), 36 vols. The chief sources whence these Debates are derived are the Constitutional History, 24 vols.; Sir Simonds D'Ewes' Journal; Debates of the Commons in 1620 and 1621; Chandler and Timberland's Debates, 22 vols.; Grey's Debates of the Commons, from 1667 to 1694, 10 vols.; Almons Debates, 24 vols.; Debrett's Debates, 63 vols.; The Hardwicke Papers; Debates in Parliament by Dr. Johnson, &c. &c.

THE PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES commenced with the year 1803, and the contents are set forth in the following Chronological Table:—

Written Ministerial Statements

TREASURY

Investment Trust Companies

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Stephen Timms): The Treasury is today launching a consultation on the regulation of investment trust companies.

This is in response to a recommendation made by the Treasury Committee in its report into split-capital investment trusts in February 2003.

The aim of the consultation is to stimulate discussion about whether there is a need for additional regulation and, if so, possible options for doing so.

Copies of the consultation paper are available from the Library of the House, and the document can also be accessed on the Treasury website at http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Minerals Planning Policy and Good Practice Guidance

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): I am announcing today the publication of a consultation draft of a new policy statement on minerals planning and supporting good practice guidance for England. The draft of minerals policy statement 1 (MPS1) sets out the Government's core policies and principles for minerals planning in England to be applied in the preparation of regional spatial strategies and local development documents and in considering planning applications. The draft good practice guidance provides advice on how these policies and principles might be implemented.

When finally published MPS1, together with the good practice guidance, will replace minerals planning guidance note 1 "General Considerations and the Development Plan System", published in 1996 and equivalent general statements on minerals planning policies in a number of other MPGs. Draft MPS1 and the good practice guidance meet the commitment set out in the 2001 planning Green Paper for shorter, more focused planning policy statements separated from advice on non-policy matters.

Draft MPS1 takes account of relevant legislative changes since 1996 that affect minerals planning. It seeks to ensure that minerals planning and development is undertaken in as sustainable a manner as possible. It contributes to the Government's sustainable development objectives for planning and the creation of sustainable communities, by helping to secure the necessary supplies of materials, particularly for construction, while seeking to minimise the effect of mineral working on local communities and the environment, and by promoting the recycling of suitable materials.

We intend MPS1 to be supported by a number of specialist annexes setting out the appropriate planning policy considerations that need to be applied to individual types of minerals in view of their differing characteristics. A consultation draft on the first group of these, to deal with construction aggregates, brick clays, building stone and onshore oil and gas development, will be issued in the spring of 2005.

Consultation on draft MPS1 and the accompanying good practice guidance will run until 28 February 2005. Copies of the draft consultation papers have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Private Rented Sector (Licensing)

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister has today published for public consultation, a paper on licensing in the private rented sector concerning the implementation of Housing in Multiple Occupation (HMO) licensing.

This paper seeks to explain the Government's proposals for licensing in the private rented sector that have been set in place by the Housing Act, which has just received Royal Assent. In particular, the paper explains the Government's proposals for HMO licensing and sets out proposals for the secondary instruments required to implement these measures.

The powers in the Act and proposed secondary legislation will require local authorities to introduce licensing for HMOs. Licensing will enable local authorities to:

- Ensure that landlords are fit and proper persons or employ agents who are.
- Ensure that the standards of tenancy relations management and property management employed by a landlord or agent are adequate.
- Impose conditions on licenses to achieve improvements in management where necessary.
- Step in and manage properties where landlords refuse to meet the required criteria.
- Protect vulnerable tenants.
- Ensure that HMOs are not occupied by excessive numbers of people.
- Identify high risk HMOs and their landlords, so that health and safety measures under Part 1 of the Act can be targeted on the worst cases.

The paper invites interested parties to comment on how these powers should be implemented in relation to HMO licensing through the necessary secondary legislation.

Copies of the paper are being sent to a wide range of interested parties including local authorities, landlord and tenant organisations and others with an interest in this issue. The closing date for responses is 2 February 2005.

Copies of the paper will also be placed in the Libraries of both Houses and will be available on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website at www.odpm.gov.uk.

HOME DEPARTMENT

National Policing Plan

The Minister for Crime Reduction, Policing and Community Safety (Ms Hazel Blears): I have today placed in the Library of the House a copy of the National Policing Plan 2005–08.

This is the third national policing plan and sets the framework and context for policing in England and Wales for the next three years.The national policing plan sets out the Government's vision of a police service which puts the law abiding citizen at the heart of all it does, while working in partnership to create and maintain safe, secure and confident communities. This will require the creation of a culture for policing which can tackle crime successfully from the local, to the national and international level.

The national policing plan will inform local planning and help to ensure that all communities know what they should expect from their local police force. It builds on the commitments for police reform set out in "Building Communities, Beating Crime: A Better Police Service for the 21st Century" published on 9 November. The national policing plan 2005–08 is available on the website at: www.policereform.gov.uk.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Post Conflict Reconstruction Unit

The Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Hilary Benn): Further to my written statement to the House of 16 September 2005, Official Report, columns 173–174WS, together with the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs and the Secretary of State for Defence, I wish to inform Parliament that a copy of a public consultation document on improving the United Kingdom's contribution to post conflict stabilisation has been placed in the Library. It invites contributions on the establishment of an interdepartmental post conflict reconstruction unit.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Launch of the Electronic Parliamentary Community (ePC)

The Secretary of State for Wales (Mr. Peter Hain): I am pleased to announce today the launch of the electronic parliamentary community (ePC). This network, initiated by my office, establishes, for the first time, the electronic transfer of information between Government and Parliament.

This first phase of ePC provides the mechanism to deliver parliamentary questions from the House of Commons to Government Departments, and the answers to questions and written ministerial statements from Government to the Commons, principally Hansard and the Table Office at this stage.

In future, and subject to further discussion with the House authorities, it is hoped that this system may be extended to cover other information exchanged between Government and Parliament.

This is a ground-breaking system, and I am grateful to the knowledge network (part of the e-Government unit), to parliamentary staff for their work on this project, ensuring its delivery to tight and challenging deadlines and to the National Infrastructure Security Co-ordination Centre (NISCC) for their assistance in establishing the secure connection between Parliament and Government.

Leader of the House of Commons Website

The Leader of the House of Commons (Mr. Peter Hain): I have launched an updated version of the website for the Office of Leader of the House of Commons www.commonsleader.gov.uk.

Users will now be able to see online the Government's Legislative Programme for the forthcoming session of Parliament—the first time that details of bills announced in the Queen's Speech have been published electronically on one site.

To encourage interest in this site, the office will also provide an email alert service which will inform users of changes to the site, particularly those affecting Government business in the House of Commons, i.e. the weekly business statement.

Also included is a historical section setting out the biographical details of individuals who have held the post of Leader of the House of Commons. The cost for site refresh including new functionality was £7,500.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Royal Ulster Constabulary George Cross Foundation

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Paul Murphy): I have today placed before this House a copy of the second annual report of the Royal Ulster Constabulary GC Foundation which was sent to me under Article 8(2) of the Royal Ulster Constabulary GC Foundation Regulations 2002. Copies of the report have been placed in the Library of the House.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Advantage West Midlands (Board Appointments)

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Jacqui Smith): I would like to inform Members of the House that, as part of a rolling programme of appointments, I have decided to appoint three new board members to Advantage West Midlands. The new appointees will take up their positions on the 14 December 2004 and their names are set out below.

The new board members will replace members whose terms of office end in December this year, and they will bring experiences from business, trade unions and local authorities.

Decisions on the appointments have been made following open competition in accordance with the guidelines set down in the Commissioner for Public Appointments' code of practice, and following consultation with key national and regional players.

AWM (New Members)

Sue Prince

Diane Rayner

Gerard Coyne

Yorkshire Forward (Board Appointments)

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Jacqui Smith): I would like to inform Members of the House that, as part of a rolling programme of appointments, I have decided to appoint six new board members to "Yorkshire Forward". The new appointees, including one re-appointee, will take up their positions on the 14 December 2004 and their names are set out below.

The new board members will replace members whose terms of office end in December this year. They will bring experience from business, local authorities and the voluntary sector.

Decisions on the appointments have been made following open competition in accordance with the guidelines set down in the Commissioner for Public Appointments code of practice, and following consultation with key national and regional players.

TRANSPORT

Air Traffic Control (North Atlantic)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Charlotte Atkins): The United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland have now agreed that a northern Oceanic transitional area (NOTA) will be established, in stages from January 2005, in the Shanwick Oceanic airspace to the north-west of Ireland. The Republic of Ireland will provide air traffic control and related services in the NOTA while National Air Traffic Services (NATS) will provide these services in the rest of the Shanwick sector. Regulatory control for the NOTA will also transfer from the Civil Aviation Authority to the Irish Aviation Authority at a date agreed by the regulators.

The agreement paves the way for increasing co-operation and the progression to more integrated operations between NATS and its Irish counterpart, and gives NATS security of tenure in providing Oceanic air traffic control services for the next 25 years.

I have placed a copy of the exchange of letters between the UK and Ireland in the Library of the House.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefit Fraud Inspectorate (Herefordshire Council)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. Chris Pond): On behalf of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, the benefit fraud inspectorate (BFI) good practice review of Herefordshire council was published today and copies of the review have been placed in the Library.

One of the benefit fraud inspectorate's key functions is to improve the effectiveness and security of benefits administration by disseminating good practice. good practice reviews are a new initiative for the inspectorate and are designed to identify practices and procedures that can help other local authorities. The good practice review of Herefordshire council has identified many good practices and I am grateful to the council for its participation.

The review found over 100 good practices covering all areas of performance standards including:

annually assessment of revenues and benefits services against a quality framework, based on an excellence model; good use of management information to identify trends and allocate resources effectively; answering 97 per cent. of telephone calls within 15 seconds and seeing 97 per cent. of customers within 10 minutes of arrival at the office in 2003-04; increasing take-up of housing benefits by a range of campaigns;

reducing the number of days to process changes of circumstances; performing a 10 per cent. check of corporate quality officers' work to ensure accuracy and consistency; supplying landlords with plenty of information to ensure they are fully aware of their roles and responsibilities;

relocating its main customer enquiries office to a building that meets the access requirements of the Disability Discrimination Act; performing good quality fraud investigations that comply with all legal requirements reducing to 14 days the time it takes to send first reminders to debtors.

I recommend the review and recommend that all local authorities read it and consider if they can benefit from the application of any of the good practices identified.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Section 45 Code of Practice

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Mr. Christopher Leslie): The following statement has been made by my right hon. Friend, Baroness Ashton of Upholland, in the other place today.

"The Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs has today laid before Parliament, in accordance with section 45(5) of the Freedom of Information Act 2000, a revised code of practice on the discharge of public authorities' functions under part I of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. This code of practice has been revised after close consultation with the information commissioner's office.

The previous section 45 code of practice was issued in November 2002, and quite rightly incorporated a great deal of best practice information. This information is now contained in the suite of guidance recently issued by the DCA, and in the series of awareness guides issued by the information commissioners' office. This revised code of practice relates to those areas specified by section 45(2)(a)–(e). It provides clear guidance on providing advice and assistance to applicants, transferring requests to other authorities, consulting third parties, the use of confidentiality clauses relating to information disclosure in contracts and the provision of internal complaints procedures in public authorities.

I will keep the section 45 code of practice under review once the Freedom of Information Act has been fully implemented, and shall work closely with the information commissioner to identify those areas where any further guidance is necessary."

Queen's Counsel

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Mr. Christopher Leslie): The following statement has been made by my right hon. and noble learned Friend, the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor, Lord Falconer of Thoroton.

"In May 2004 I told the House that I had asked the legal professions in England & Wales and in Northern Ireland to devise an improved scheme for appointing Queen's Counsel. I am pleased to be able to say the Bar Council and the Law Society in England & Wales have reached agreement on a set of competences against which applicants for the QC rank should be assessed, and on an outline of the process for doing so. I have placed copies of both the competency framework and the outline process in the Library.

Considerable work still needs to be done to refine some of the details and to develop the mechanics of the assessment process. Nonetheless, this is a very encouraging development. I congratulate the professional bodies on what they have achieved so far, and look forward to the introduction of a new and better system.

The Bar Council and Law Society in Northern Ireland are continuing to work on a similar scheme tailored to the requirements of their jurisdiction. They hope to make an announcement soon."

DEFENCE

End-to-End Logistics Implementation: Air Depth Support

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): Following the announcement on the 16 September of my preferred option for future military aircraft support and the end of the trade unions consultation period, I am announcing my decision to implement the preferred option.

This will mean that the support for the tornado GR4 aircraft will be concentrated forward to the main operating base (MOB) at RAF Marham; with the work on Tornado F3 aircraft remaining "as is" with support being carried out at both the MOB and DARA St Athan until the aircraft's out-of-service date. Depth support for Lynx, Chinook and Sea King will be concentrated backwards to DARA Fleetlands.

This decision is based on comprehensive analysis which was carried out on an objective and impartial basis, and offers the best outcome for defence in terms of operational effectiveness and value for money. It does, however, have implications for our military and civilian workforce, as well as for our partners in industry who undertake depth support of military aircraft.

At the time of the announcement, it was made clear that the Ministry of Defence would explore with other Government Departments, including the Welsh Assembly and the Wales Office, alternative options for the viable and economic use of St. Athan after 2009, based on its transformation into an aerospace centre of excellence. Officials from my Department, along with DARA senior management, have already had meetings with Welsh Assembly and Wales Office staff to explore possible options, and have agreed a strategic approach for taking this forward as a matter of urgency.

Implementation of the decision will be taken forward by the chief of defence logistics—as the process owner for defence logistics—and responsible for the programme to deliver the changes to air depth support. Detailed consultation with the trade unions on the implementation of the decision will also begin.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

British Council Art Exhibitions Overseas

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Chris Mullin): The British Council, although not a Government Department, receives a substantial grant-in-aid from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. The council regularly organises or sponsors exhibitions overseas of works of art loaned from national galleries and private collections in the United Kingdom. It provides certain assurances or guarantees in respect of loss or damage while these works are on loan.

In the six months ending on 30 September 2004, the British Council provided such assurances to four national lenders and undertakings to 85 private lenders. The value of the contingent liabilities outstanding on 30 September in respect of private lenders was £6,120,870. No liabilities to national galleries existed at that date.

Iraq: Export Licence Application

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Bill Rammell): Following consultation with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Ministry of Defence, the Department of Trade and Industry recently approved an open individual export licence for a media company to export non-lethal military list goods for the personnel protection of its staff worldwide.

Her Majesty's Government considers it appropriate to grant licences, on a case-by-case basis, for the export of non-lethal military list goods, including protective clothing and armoured vehicles, for the use by media companies and non-governmental organisations working in hostile environments, including embargoed destinations. Future applications will continue to be assessed on a case-by-case basis against this policy decision and the consolidated EU and national arms export licensing criteria, taking into account the circumstances prevailing at the time.

HEALTH

Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority Annual Report

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Miss Melanie Johnson): The 2003–04 annual report of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority was laid before the House today. Copies of the report have been placed in the Library.

National Health Service Estate Maintenance

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. John Hutton): A £17 billion improvement programme is being undertaken to improve the NHS estate. As a result of this investment the amount of the estate dating from before 1948 has halved since 1995. However, because of flaws in the current methodology, backlog maintenance figures do not reflect these improvements. A validation exercise has been undertaken on the 2002–03 backlog maintenance figures, prompted by concerns expressed by the NHS that these figures were both unrealistically high and not being consistently calculated and collected across the NHS.

We have decided to revise the way we measure backlog maintenance to give a more accurate picture of the condition of the NHS estate, to give the NHS a clearer idea of its priorities in improving its buildings, and to allow managers to continue making the improvements that will build even better environments for both patients and staff. It will help the Healthcare Commission more accurately measure NHS performance on the new national standards.

To ensure the estate continues to be maintained and improved, a much more constructive and consistent revised backlog measure, risk adjusted backlog maintenance, has been developed with the NHS. This places greater emphasis on identifying and measuring risk to business continuity and safety to patients, visitors and staff and has a greater focus on the quality of the estate and the remaining life of the building.

Backlog maintenance figures and the estimated risk adjusted figures for 2003–04 have been placed in the Library.

Tackling Health Inequalities

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Miss Melanie Johnson): The Public Health White Paper, "Choosing Health—Making Healthy Choices Easier" set out the importance of ensuring that as the country strives to improve its health a priority must be given to tackling health inequalities so that all groups in society benefit from improvements in public health.

The Government have set public service agreement targets to address geographical inequalities in life expectancy, cancer, heart disease, stroke and related diseases. The targets aim to see faster progress compared to the average in the "fifth of areas with the worst health and deprivation indicators". Achievement of the targets will be assessed on the outcomes for this group in 2010. The local authorities and primary care trusts which are in these areas, the so-called spearhead group, has been published.

The spearhead group is made up of 70 local authorities and 88 primary care trusts, based upon the local authority areas that are in the bottom fifth nationally for three or more of the following five factors:

- Male life expectancy at birth
- Female life expectancy at birth
- Cancer mortality rate in under 75s
- Cardio vascular disease mortality rate in under 75s
- Index of multiple deprivation 2004, local authority summary, average score

The list of local authorities and primary care trusts in the spearhead group is available in the Library.

PRIME MINISTER

Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe/ Assembly of Western European Union

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): I am pleased to announce that my hon. Friend the Member for Erith and Thamesmead (John Austin) and my hon. Friend the Member for Portsmouth North (Syd Rapson BEM) have been appointed full members of the United Kingdom delegation to the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe and the Assembly of Western European Union.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Low Pay Commission (Government Evidence)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Mr. Gerry Sutcliffe): I am pleased to announce that the government submitted their evidence to the Low Pay Commission today. The commission will take this and all the other evidence received into account when preparing their next report, which will be submitted to the government by the end of February 2005.

Copies of the Government's evidence have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and on the Department of Trade and Industry website at: www.dti.gov.uk

Operating and Financial Review

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Jacqui Smith): My Department published a consultation on 5 May 2004 seeking views on draft regulations to implement a new statutory operating and financial review (OFR) and certain provisions of the accounts modernisation directive, requiring an enhanced review of a company's business in the directors' report.

This statement explains how the Government intends to proceed in the light of responses to the consultation document. I am grateful to all those who responded to the consultation. A summary of the responses will be placed on the DTI website next month and in the Libraries of both Houses.

Our OFR proposals have been subject to extensive public consultation over the last four years. In making this statement today I am clear that the OFR will improve the quality, usefulness and relevance of information provided by quoted companies—helping investors, shareholders and other interested parties get a better understanding of a company's operations and its future business prospects.

The OFR represents a real opportunity for business to promote long-term value creation. Improved shareholder engagement will help strengthen corporate performance and boost confidence in UK companies. The OFR is a vital part of the DTI's drive for effective corporate governance, which will benefit investors, business and the economy at large by improving the quality of investment decisions and the allocation of capital.

I have considered consultees' comments carefully with a view to ensuring companies are able to provide full and frank disclosures in a cost effective and efficient way. This will enhance the usefulness of the OFR for both shareholders and other stakeholders. As a result, I am amending some of the earlier proposals to ensure that the regulations achieve the Government's overarching policy objectives.

On coverage for the OFR, I have considered the arguments for both extending the OFR (to large private companies) and for narrowing it (to larger quoted companies only). I have concluded that the draft regulations should stand as drafted. There will be no extension of scope for the OFR and it will apply to quoted companies only.

I have also considered the standard of care required of directors preparing the OFR, as well as the role of auditors. On the first point, I have decided to drop the requirement that auditors give an opinion on whether the directors have used due and careful enquiry in preparing the OFR. This should address concerns that we might be requiring a different legal standard for this type of corporate report.

On the second point, I am simplifying the role of the auditors. I am retaining the requirement that auditors should consider whether the OFR is consistent with the company's accounts, and whether it contains any inconsistencies based on any matters that have come to their attention while conducting the company audit.

This reflects concerns that having auditors review the process would prove difficult and costly, and have the unintended consequence of discouraging full and frank reporting by reducing the OFR into an anodyne box-ticking exercise.

I believe directors can be open and candid with information on the basis that a distinction can be made between those statements made based on good faith judgments, and those made based on objectively verifiable data. Guidance notes will make clear to companies that they may wish to advise members of the need to treat with caution good faith judgments, in particular those relating to future events or prospects. As well, the regulations will make clear that directors will not be required to disclose specific information about impending developments or specific matters in the course of negotiation.

Following the consultation, we believe the objectives and content of the OFR are right. No changes of substance will be made therefore and there will be no extension of content.

Having met the review objective and general requirements of the schedule, directors will then need to consider and include information relating to their environmental, employment, and social and community policies to the extent necessary for shareholders to understand how these are impacting the business and wider community.

With regard to enforcement, I believe the OFR warrants the implementation of a sturdy regime but must be allowed a chance to bed-in. I have therefore decided to delay the FRRP's role in administrative enforcement until one year after the duty to prepare OFRs has kicked in. This means the FRRP will start looking at OFRs prepared for financial years starting on or after 1 April 2006.

I have also addressed potential cost burdens arising from our proposal to make mandatory hard-copy circulation of the OFR. Where shareholders have agreed to receive summary financial statements, there will be no requirement for the full OFR to be sent, and shareholders will be notified of the availability of the OFR on the company website.

In addition, potential duplication of reporting requirements occasioned by the introduction of the EU modernisation directive will be avoided. All companies in a group other than small companies will be required to produce individual directors' reports or, if they are quoted, individual OFRs with the ultimate parent company also producing a group report (but not an individual report). Where the parent is a quoted company, the OFR will be prepared for the group. Small and medium sized companies will be allowed to take full advantage of reporting exemptions under EU accounting directives, including those that that are part of a group.

Finally, on timing, I intend to lay the regulations within the next two months. Given concerns expressed in consultation about the need for adequate preparation time, the date the regulations come into effect will be delayed until financial years beginning on or after 1 April 2005 (and not 1 January 2005), thus giving business three extra months to absorb the new reporting standard and prepare for implementation.

We know the business environment is changing dramatically and at an accelerating pace. Companies are becoming increasingly complex and information needs are changing. This was reflected during the consultation and in the responses from stakeholders: companies, institutional investors, professional bodies, auditors, trades unions and representative organisations.

It is evident that vibrant capital markets rely on interventions and institutions that promote the governance of companies. Corporate governance structures ensure shareholders receive reliable information about the value of companies, while motivating directors and managers to maximise long term value creation. I believe the OFR is a crucial element in the corporate governance agenda, and will contribute to raising the productivity of British companies, helping generate prosperity for all.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Freedom of Information Act 2000

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Mr. Christopher Leslie): Earlier today my right hon. and noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs, Baroness Ashton of Upholland, made a statement in the other place reporting that she has today laid before Parliament, in accordance with section 87(5) of the Freedom of Information Act 2000, the fourth and final report on proposals for bringing fully into force those provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 which have yet to be implemented.

The report details what action has been taken by my Department in the final year before full implementation of the Freedom of Information Act. It also details the actions taken by other departments and public authorities across the public sector in preparation for full implementation of the Freedom of Information Act on 1 January 2005.

A great deal of work has been done in this final year before full implementation and the report contains many examples of best practice in implementation. The Government are confident that the substantial programme of work reflected in this report will enable public authorities to make a success of the Freedom of Information Act and to realise the benefits of greater openness to both Government and the citizen.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Temporary Stop Notices

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): Following the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's review of the planning enforcement system in England we took the opportunity to introduce a new enforcement power—the temporary stop notice—in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act. There was overwhelming support for the introduction of these new provisions from local authorities. I am today announcing a period of consultation with a view to commencing these new powers in spring 2005.

Temporary stop notices provide a new power to local planning authorities and the means to prevent unauthorised development at an early stage without first having to issue an enforcement notice.

The temporary stop notice provides the local authority with a discretionary power to stop a breach of planning control for a limited period of time to enable it to decide whether further enforcement is appropriate and what action should be taken.

The Act provides that temporary stop notices may not be used against dwelling houses. During the passage of the Bill the issue of the treatment of caravans was raised. The Government responded that it would introduce regulations that would mirror the exemption for buildings.

The draft regulations set out the circumstances in which temporary stop notices may not be used. The temporary stop notice may not be used against caravans which are occupied as a sole or main residence on site and their immediate removal won't be required until any follow-up enforcement action is taken. Any further associated works will be subject to the temporary stop notice.

However, in circumstances where the effect of allowing the caravans to remain on the site for even a limited period would cause serious harm to the local amenity that would outweigh the benefit to the occupiers of the caravans, a temporary stop notice can be used immediately. This approach strikes an appropriate balance between the needs of gypsies and travellers and rights of local authorities to take action against unauthorised development in those particular circumstances where this is causing serious and immediate harm.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

State Veterinary Service

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): In July this year my Department published a consultation document, setting out proposals to turn the state veterinary service into an executive agency on 1 April 2005. The consultation followed an earlier review to identify options for improved efficiency and effectiveness in the delivery of veterinary services across the Department.

The consultation has now concluded. Comments and observations were received from a cross section of customers, including veterinary experts, livestock owners and the farming community. These responses have been analysed and have been valuable in helping us to decide on the best way forward for the state veterinary service.

The decision to create an executive agency was generally supported by consultees and I have therefore decided to continue with the programme to launch the new agency on 1 April 2005.

I believe this will help further the aims of the animal health and welfare strategy towards developing a new partnership in which we can make a lasting and continuous improvement in the health and welfare of kept animals while protecting society, the economy and the environment from the effect of animal diseases. We are pledged to working with all customers and stakeholders, listening to their concerns and their counsel and taking their views into account as the agency takes shape.

The move to agency status for the state veterinary service will provide the flexibilities needed to create an organisation focussed on delivery with stronger systems and controls; business management expertise; working in partnership with other delivery bodies on the ground and with policy colleagues in Defra to play its full part in the implementation of the animal health and welfare strategy.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Counter Narcotics

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Bill Rammell): The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) released its Afghanistan opium survey 2004 on 18 November. The survey showed that opium poppy cultivation increased by 64 per cent. from 80,000 hectares in 2003 to 131,000 hectares in 2004 while production rose by 17 per cent. from 3,600 tonnes in 2003 to 4,200 tonnes. The report is available on the UNODC website at www.unodc.org.

The UK uses the UN results and the trends they demonstrate as a reference point for Afghanistan, as we do for the rest of the world. This has been the case since UNODC started its surveys in Afghanistan in the 1993–94 growing season.

The UK recognises that the Afghan Government are working in very difficult circumstances. The security situation remains serious. Drugs are deeply embedded in all levels of society. The establishment of governance, delivery of development aid and the establishment of law and order cannot proceed as quickly as Afghanistan and her partners would like to see. The 2004 UN survey results make clear the scale of the task ahead but the Afghans' strategy and the practical measures they are putting in place remain right.

As lead co-ordinating nation on counter-narcotics in Afghanistan, the UK Government are already taking forward with the Afghans a comprehensive programme that sets the conditions for more visible results in the future. It covers: alternative livelihoods; eradication; criminal justice; law enforcement and information and treatment campaigns to raise awareness and tackle the problems of addiction in Afghanistan itself.

With the Afghan Government and the international community, we recognise that we must and will do more in the coming year across each of the five main pillars of the strategy. By securing wider international support, the UK will increase its support for Afghanistan's national drug control strategy in the coming year.

TRANSPORT

Rail Proposals (Disability Discrimination Bill)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Charlotte Atkins): The Government have today announced that their preferred end date by which all rail vehicles will have to meet the Rail Vehicle Accessibility Regulations 1998 (RVAR) is 2020. It has also announced that it intends to require access improvements to those features which are included in plans when rail vehicles are being refurbished.

The announcement follows the introduction of the Disability Discrimination Bill in the House of Lords on Thursday 25 November. The Bill includes powers to give effect to these measures.

Draft regulations covering these proposals, which apply to England, Scotland and Wales, will be the subject of a public consultation process during the passage of the Bill. Northern Ireland will be holding their own separate consultation process on these issues in due course.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Government Indemnity Scheme

The Minister for the Arts (Estelle Morris): The provision for the Government indemnity scheme is made by the National Heritage Act 1980. The scheme facilitates public access to loans of works of art and other objects for public display made to museums, galleries and other such institutions by private owners and non-national institutions. It does this by indemnifying lenders against loss or damage to their loan. Loans covered by the scheme must be for public benefit. The scheme also covers loans of such objects for study purposes within borrowing institutions where this would contribute materially to the public's understanding or appreciation of the loan. Examples of this are enhancing interpretation or explanation to the public of objects or bringing into the public domain the conclusions of any study.

In the six month period ended 30 September, the following undertakings to indemnify were given under section 16 by the relevant Departments for objects on loan to national and non-national institutions. The Department for Culture, Media and Sport issued 580 undertakings, the Scottish Executive Education Department issued 184 undertakings and the National Assembly for Wales issued 139.

The value of contingent liabilities in respect of undertakings given at any time under section 16 and which remained outstanding as at 30 September for the Department for Culture, Media and Sport are £2,462,963,504. The value of section 16 contingent liabilities as at 30 September for the Scottish Executive Education Department are £755,072,231 and £64,366,311 for the National Assembly for Wales.

The value of non-statutory Government indemnities to cover loans handled by the Government art collection and which remained outstanding as at 30 September are £5,100,000.

The value of non-statutory undertakings given to Her Majesty in respect of loans from the royal collection and which remained outstanding as at 30 September are £162,094,556.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Regional Planning Guidance for the South-East (RPG9)

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister is today publishing the revised chapters on "Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy" (chapter 10) and "Tourism and Related Sports and Recreation (Chapter 14)—regional planning guidance for the south-east (RPG9)." This follows the examination in public into the draft chapters in May 2003, the panel report in March 2004, and the consultation on the Secretary of State's proposed changes that closed on 3 September 2004.

These chapters form an integral part of regional planning guidance (RPG) for the South East and represent a revision to RPG9, as published in March 2001. Following commencement of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Bill (September 2004) this will now form part of the statutory regional spatial strategy (RSS).

Other recent partial reviews are either completed or in their final stages. The Secretary of State has recently published his proposed changes on the Milton Keynes and south midlands sub regional strategy, we are awaiting the panel's report on the examination in public on waste and minerals and we have already published revised versions of the regional transport strategy (RTS) and the Ashford growth area amendments.

Chapter 10 aims to promote a more sustainable pattern of energy use and generation whilst ensuring that development does not harm the region's environment or the quality of life of its people. Chapter 14 sets out policies on tourism, related sports and recreation and forms an additional chapter to RPG9.

The consultation period for the proposed changes to the draft chapters ended on 3 September 2004 with some 90 responses from individuals and organisations. Respondents were broadly supportive of the proposed changes.

In relation to chapter 10, the most significant changes were to policy INF 8 and supporting text to reflect that landscape character assessment should be used where available. In relation to chapter 14 final changes are concerned with textual amendments and further description in sections.

These chapters are integral and clearly identifiable parts of RPG9. It will be reviewed through the development of the spatial strategy for the south-east, resulting in the publication of the regional spatial strategy for the south-east—"the South-East Plan". This work has already begun and a draft is expected in 2005.

Copies of the relevant documents are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): I have today published a consultation paper on proposed secondary legislation and guidance to implement some of the development control provisions in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004. We intend that, after a three month consultation period and consideration of the responses received, the provisions would come into effect in May 2005.

We are preparing to implement the development control provisions in part 4 of the Act in stages. Where the provisions in the Act require secondary legislation we are proposing changes to the general development procedure order. The paper proposes the form and content for economic impact reports for major infrastructure projects. The paper proposes a 21-day period in which statutory consultees must respond to consultation on planning applications. Last year some consultees pointed out the inconsistency between this period and the ability of local planning authorities (LPAS) to determine applications within 14 days. We are now proposing that LPAS should not determine applications until the consultee has responded or after 21 days, whichever is the sooner.

The consultation includes updated guidance on some of the provisions in the Act for which secondary legislation is not required. The guidance refers to the right of appeal for non-determination of a similar repeat application. We will not be introducing the power to decline to determine overlapping application (twin-tracking) until the performance of local authorities in handling planning applications improves.

There is revised draft guidance on the duration of permission and consent. The Act reduces the default period for the commencement of a detailed permission from five to three years. The Government have acknowledged that periods longer than three years might be appropriate in some cases. For most major developments, such as complex regeneration projects, outline rather than detailed applications are likely to be the route to permission. The period for approval of reserved matters after outline permission has been granted will normally remain as three years. The guidance makes clear the need for flexibility on the part of local authorities in their dealings with applicants on the duration of permissions and consents.

There is also draft guidance on consultation with regional planning bodies (RPBs) on certain applications where development would be of major importance for the implementation of the regional spatial strategy or for other types of development on which RPBs specify that they wish to be consulted.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Schools' Capital

The Minister for School Standards (Mr. David Miliband): I am today announcing details of the allocation of schools capital over the spending review period for 2006–07 to 2007–08. Investment in schools is at record levels, and every maintained school and every education authority and diocese in England will benefit from our capital programmes. As well as continued substantial investment in primary schools, we will now drive forward significantly the modernisation of the secondary school estate, further to my statement of 12 February announcing the first wave of authorities to benefit from the Building Schools for the Future programme.

My announcement will support the five-year strategy for educational improvement which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced in July, and continues and increases the largest sustained programme of capital investment in schools which this country has ever seen. From an inadequate base of under £700 million in 1996–97, government support for capital investment in schools has risen to £4.9 billion this year, will be £5.5 billion next year, £5.8 billion in 2006–07 and will reach £6.3 billion by 2007–08. This is a nine-fold increase since this Government came to power. The table at the end of this statement give details of our funding proposals.

Since this Government came to office, we have provided substantial investment for schools—£20 billion up to this year—so that the vast backlog of neglect and repairs which made many schools virtually uninhabitable has been addressed. We have revised and improved our design and environmental guidelines for schools to reflect the standards-driven needs of twenty-first century teaching and learning, and to capture the benefits of ICT development. We have increased expectations on environmental quality, diversity and inclusion. We are placing schools at the centre of their communities, offering extended facilities and regaining the position that they held in earlier years, but lost as their buildings decayed.

We have made very substantial progress in recent years. But much remains to do, to bring all schools up to the standards that we expect for our children. All schools and authorities will benefit from this capital programme, which provides over a further £17 billion investment over the next three years.

Importantly, all schools will continue to get their own direct capital to improve their buildings. This will rise from £800 million in 2005–06 to over £1 billion in 2007–08, when the typical primary school will get over £34,000 and a typical secondary £113,000. This programme will, from 2006–07, include schools' direct funding for improving their ICT equipment, part of the £1.1 billion of ICT investment in 2006–07 and 2007–08.

We will also continue to provide authorities with needs-related funding for their local priorities. £2.2 billion will be allocated by formulae to authorities across 2006–07 and 2007–08 from the modernisation, basic need and schools access Initiative programmes. From this announcement, authorities will have three year certainty on the bulk of their capital funding, and it will as usual be delivered through the single capital pot to enable authorities to plan flexibly to meet their schools' needs.

To ensure that there is flexibility within the overall programme, we aim to increase the funding available to the targeted capital fund, to £500 million a year by 2007–08. This will ensure that we can support authorities which have exceptional capital needs, including exceptional pupil growth through the basic need safety valve.

An equitable share of the capital settlement of over £900 million will also be provided for the needs of schools in the voluntary aided sector in these years.

I am announcing today allocations from the targeted capital fund for 2005–06, of £233 million for a total of 51 local authority projects and 20 projects in voluntary aided schools. These cover a wide range of projects, including accommodation for pupils with special needs, sports facilities, extended schools facilities, modernisation of teaching accommodation, replacement of primary school buildings, and two new voluntary aided schools—one Jewish and one Islamic. I am providing a further £12 million of additional basic need funding where there is exceptional growth in pupil numbers in Haringey, Cambridge, Thurrock, and Milton Keynes.

I am also announcing today the 20 new authorities which will be included in the second and third waves of building schools for the future (BSF), which aims to renew every secondary school in the country. The geographical areas, including 230 schools in total, have been prioritised according to relative educational and social need, as measured by pupils' GCSE attainment and eligibility for free school meals; and the planning and financial requirements of the programme. These allocations bring the total number of authorities included in the programme by 2007–08 to 39 over a quarter of all authorities.

As we made clear in the five year strategy for children and learners published in July, BSF plans will be assessed according to rigorous school improvement criteria and funding will not be released until the Government and local people are satisfied that they meet the full potential for transforming standards. This includes considering academies and other options for new schools in their plans. As we said in the five year strategy, the Government will not stand by and allow local authorities to sustain failure by refusing to engage with Academies where they can meet parental demand for good school places. This policy is already being applied to wave one authorities, where most BSF plans are yet to be approved, and will be applied to all the further waves being announced today.

Further, I am announcing our ambition that, by 2011, all local authorities will either have a major secondary rebuilding project under way through BSF, with at least three of their secondary schools included, or else have the resources to rebuild at least one of their secondary schools in greatest need through the academies programme and the targeted capital fund. By 2016, major rebuilding and remodelling will have started in every local authority in line with BSF plans developed by them. Final allocations for waves four onwards of BSF are of course subject to future public spending decisions and will be confirmed in future spending reviews.

I am allocating over £830 million funding in 2006–07 and 2007–08 to support the development of additional academies to work to our target of having 200 open or in procurement by 2010. I am also providing a further £70 million to reach our target of universal specialism in secondary schools by the end of the period.

My officials will give all authorities an indication of when they may expect to start in the BSF programme so that they can plan confidently and use their other funding efficiently before they get this major investment. We will work with every authority to see how these commitments and their own financial flexibilities through delegated funding and prudential borrowing can be combined to deliver maximum early progress on BSF.

We have decided to allocate schools capital to a new joined-up budget for 16 to 19 provision in schools and colleges. The Learning and Skills Council will also contribute to the combined pot, which it will administer, worth in total £120 million in 2006–07 and £180 million in 2007–08.

Schools which have robust sustainable travel plans put in place will be able to access a further £40 million of devolved formula capital over the period.

I am providing all hon. Members with detailed information on all of today's allocations which affect the local authorities in their constituencies.

Figures in £ million	2005–06	2006–07	2007–08
Schools Devolved Funding	805	1,000	1,050
LEA Delegated funding
Modernisation	602	602	602	Note 1
Basic Need	590	400	400	Note 2
Schools Access Initiative	84	84	84	Note 3
BSF Programme	2,118	2,177	2,240	Note 4
Academies	207	365	467
Other ICT	459	249	284	Note 5
VA Schools	352	444	473
Specialist Schools	56	35	35

Sustainable Transport	20	20	20
Other Programmes	22	9	10
Total	5,515	5,755	6,265

Notes:

1. Modernisation is allocated on pupil numbers and relative building need from survey data.
2. Basic Need is allocated on pupil numbers and projected pupil number growth.
3. Schools Access Initiative is allocated on pupil numbers.
4. Includes £1.2/1.25/1.3 billion of PFI credits.
5. 2006–07 and 2007–08 figures exclude ICT capital delivered directly to schools as devolved funding.

HEALTH

NHS Bureaucracy

The Secretary of State for Health (Dr. John Reid): On 22 July, Official Report, column 61WS, I announced the completion of the review of my Departments arm's length bodies (ALBs). I made it clear then that there is considerable scope to improve efficiency and reduce bureaucracy in the ALB sector and I reiterated the following parameters for the review:

a 50 per cent. reduction in the number of ALBs;

a saving in expenditure by ALBs of £0.5 billion by 2007–08; and a reduction in posts of 25 per cent. in the same period.

Detailed discussions have been held with all interested parties about how to implement these changes. We are now publishing the next steps to be taken in implementing the review of the Department's arm's length bodies, the conclusions of which were published in July in the report "Reconfiguring the Department of Health's Arm's Length Bodies". As well as next steps, reconfiguring the Department of Health's arm's length bodies implementation framework, sets out the principles, processes and timescales by which we will implement the ALB change programme. Copies have been placed in the Library.

The ALB programme is part of a wider programme of change to improve efficiency and cut bureaucracy in the management of the national health service. The objective of all these activities is to reduce the burden on the frontline and free up more resources for the delivery of frontline services to patients and users. This wider programme is to ensure that the increased investment in the NHS—42 per cent. in real terms from 2003–04 to 2007–08—is accompanied by modernisation that cuts out waste.

The ALB change programme itself will deliver a redistribution to the frontline of at least £0.5 billion a year by the end of 2007–08. The number of ALBs will be reduced to 20 from the base year of 2003–04, despite the sector assuming new functions under statutes approved by Parliament. Even with these new functions, which bring new costs, we will be setting the 2005–06 budget for the ALB sector so that it will cost about £100 million a year less to run than in 2003–04. A further £200 million a year will become available for redistribution to the frontline by the end of 2006–07 and again in 2007–08. This will inevitably mean significant changes in the organisation, staffing, financing and governance of the ALB sector. These changes must now be delivered.

One of the changes in the ALB sector is the establishment of a health and social care information centre to coordinate and streamline the collection and dissemination of data to those who use it. This will build on the work done by the Department in reducing demands for information from the NHS frontline. Since March 2003 the Department has reduced the burden of central returns by about 160 person years and this will have risen to 400 person years when we reach April 2005. That means 400 people in the NHS will be freed up for frontline operations through the Department reducing and simplifying its statistical collection. Now it is the turn of the inspectorates, strategic health authorities, primary care trusts, royal colleges and others to follow the Department of Health's example by streamlining their statistical collection through the new health and social care information centre.

Cutting overheads is now a key part of any modern business. That is why we expect substantial reductions in the overheads of the ALB sector. By 2007–08 we expect annual savings in overheads of £35–40 million and significant progress towards that made in ALB plans from 2005–06. This will be achieved by merging bodies, sharing back office services and moving to cheaper locations.

There is a tendency for all organisations to undergo "mission creep" and add functions. The ALB Review is about slimming down the sector to the essentials and to do those essentials more effectively. That is why we are expecting major savings for redistribution to the frontline from those central services in the ALB sector. They will be regrouped into eight key central businesses:

NHS Blood and Transplant

NHS Litigation Authority

Appointments Commission

NHS Institute for Learning, Skills and Innovation

HSC Information Centre

National Programme for IT

NHS Business Services Authority

NHS Purchasing and Supply Authority

In 2005–06 we aim to have in place the boards and executive teams to streamline the business processes of this group of businesses and to reduce their overheads. At the same time, we will see a further dividend from the supply chain excellence programme which is already delivering better value for the local NHS by using the purchasing power of the NHS as a whole more effectively.

In 2005–06 the NHS will benefit from a minimum of £100 million in savings from more efficient procurement led by NHS PASA. By the time we get to 2007–08 we expect that procurement activities led by NHS PASA, together with other supply chain initiatives such as the recently negotiated pharmaceutical price regulation scheme, to be delivering over £800 million savings annually for use by the NHS frontline.

The Government's better regulation task force have shown the way forward in reducing the burden of regulation. Linked to this is the need to systematise more effectively the work of inspectors and reduce the burden they impose on the NHS frontline. The Government have already merged some inspectorates. The ALB review will continue this process and build on the work of the new health inspection concordat. This concordat will reduce the number of inspection days in the NHS, cut the information demands, especially through the new health and social care information centre, using more self-assessment and providing "inspection holidays" for high performing organisations. The budgets of the inspection sector will not be allowed to grow in an uncontrolled way, so that the inspection burden can be better contained than in the past. Full cost recovery will be pursued for independent sector inspection to reduce in stages the burden of their costs falling on the NHS.

Alongside cutting the inspection burden, the Government have abolished the controls assurance standards as a separate set of standards, and reporting to the centre has been stopped. Key elements of the controls assurance standards have been incorporated into the standards for better health which will enable NHS trusts to link assurance on controls directly to NHS objectives. These and other changes announced in the recent Cabinet Office report will cut the NHS burden of collating and reporting information by about 85,000 person days a year, thereby freeing up over 350 staff at the frontline for other work.

There has been much unfair criticism of the Government's use of targets. Targets have helped to save lives. Cancer mortality rates in the under 75s have fallen by 12 per cent. and coronary heart disease mortality rates in the under 75s by over 20 per cent. in less than six years. A specialist sees 99 per cent. of people with suspected cancer within 14 days—compared with only 63 per cent. seven years ago. Targets have reduced waiting times. There are now 300,000 fewer people waiting for inpatient treatment than seven years ago. And their average waiting time then was over 18 months and now it is half this. But the time has now come to reduce the number of national targets from 62 in the last planning round to around 20 for the next three years. And more targets will now be locally determined to reflect local priorities.

"Local" is where the NHS action is and will continue to be. Eight regional offices and 100 health authorities have been replaced by 28 strategic health authorities. The Department of Health's change programme has reduced the size of the centre by 38 per cent. The ALB Review will reduce the staffing of that sector by 25 per cent. But the NHS still needs good managers to run its operations and administrative and clerical staff to support doctors, nurses and other health professionals to do what they are good at—looking after patients. All these changes have not led to a growth in NHS management costs. In 2003–04 management costs were 3.7 per cent. of net NHS expenditure compared with 4.0 per cent. in 1996–97. We will keep those costs under control. The ALB Review will help us to do that by ensuring that the local NHS gets efficient, better value for money from central services, a contained regulatory and inspection system and fewer demands made on it from the centre.

Ministers are determined to secure the changes set out in this framework document within the timescales it proposes. They will be fully supported in that purpose by Sir Nigel Crisp as the accounting officer and his departmental management board, which includes the senior official responsible for seeing through this change management programme successfully.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Electoral Registration

The Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office (Mr. John Spellar): In the Electoral Fraud (Northern Ireland) Act 2002, the Government introduced a range of reforms to electoral law in Northern Ireland. These measures were aimed at addressing widespread concern that the electoral process was vulnerable to fraud. In respect of electoral registration, the Act introduced individual registration in place of the household based system, together with a new series of personal identifiers to enable checking of the register for inaccurate or fraudulent entries. In addition, the life of the register was limited to one year, with all individuals required to register during an annual canvass each autumn. The annual canvass had previously been supplemented by a system of rolling registration, allowing individuals to register at others point during the year, with updated registers published monthly and this continued.

The Government are satisfied that these measures have been extremely successful in substantially improving the accuracy of the electoral register in Northern Ireland. The Electoral Office for Northern Ireland has undertaken a substantial programme of work to make the changes a success. As a result, there are now comprehensive systems in place to check and maintain the integrity of the register.

However, there are concerns across the political spectrum that the requirement on voters to re-register and provide their personal identifiers afresh each year is leading to a downward drift in the overall numbers registered. The chief electoral officer and I share those concerns. The register published on 1 February 2004 following the 2003 annual canvass showed that 1,069,160 people, or approximately 87 per cent. of the eligible population in Northern Ireland, were registered to vote.

The Government are determined to ensure that as many people as possible both secure and use their right to vote. Our goal is an electoral register that is both as accurate and as comprehensive as possible. In the light of that, I can announce today that the Government are committed to moving away from the legal requirement for the register to be completely refreshed each year. This will reduce the burden on the individual citizen. And it will allow resources to be redirected towards targeting those groups where rates of registration are low.

However, the Government are absolutely clear that any reform must also preserve the very high level of accuracy delivered as a result of the 2002 Act. So we will be actively considering what additional security or checking measures might need to be put in place to ensure that this remains the case, to ensure that accuracy can go hand in hand with rising levels of registration.

I have discussed options with the chief electoral officer and begun consultation with the Northern Ireland political parties on a number of ideas. In due course I will also be consulting the Electoral Commission. Any changes will require primary legislation. The Government are committed to introducing legislation once consultation is complete and Parliamentary time allows, and in line with the need to ensure an orderly transition to the new system.

In the meantime, a number of steps have been taken to encourage registration at this year's annual canvass, which closed on 17 November. The chief electoral officer has ensured that electoral registration forms have been more widely available than before, in a range of locations including council offices, housing executive offices, social security offices, libraries, jobcentres and Citizens' Advice Bureaux. Forms were also made available on both the Electoral Office and Electoral Commission websites. I also understand that the Electoral Office for Northern Ireland has also been working closely with the Electoral Commission in a combined publicity and outreach programme aimed particularly at young people, including a programme of school and college visits.

The new register will be published on 1 December. The Government urges all those who have not taken the opportunity to register during the annual canvass period to take the opportunity to register through rolling registration. We will be looking with the chief electoral officer at what additional steps might be taken to encourage people to take up this opportunity.

However, in the light of the concern about falling numbers registered and the local elections due in Northern Ireland next May, the Government have decided that, if parliamentary time allows, we will legislate before then to allow the chief electoral officer to reinstitute the carry forward as a temporary measure. This would permit the CEO to reinstate the names of those individuals registered on 1 September 2004 who have not re-registered during this year's canvass so that they reappear on the first monthly register published after the legislation has been enacted.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

British Energy plc

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Ms Patricia Hewitt): The Government have agreed to a request from British Energy plc to extend the long stop date for completion of the company's restructuring plan beyond 31 January 2005.

In granting this extension, the Government considered their overarching objectives of nuclear safety, security of electricity supplies and value for money for the taxpayer and consulted with the Health and Safety Executive's Nuclear Installations Inspectorate. The Government continue to believe that the company's restructuring plan is the best means of ensuring these objectives. Therefore, in the light of the intermediate milestones set out in British Energy's announcement of 30 November 2004, the Government have agreed, subject to two conditions, to extend the long stop date in the Government restructuring agreement for a period of three months until 30 April 2005.

In the context of meeting its overarching objectives at this time, the Government believe that continuity and stability in the management of British Energy's business in the immediate future is desirable. We have also sought and received assurances from British Energy's management that any measures taken to manage the group's working capital will not adversely affect safety or security of supply. The extension is therefore subject to conditions relating to those two issues.

As I have said previously, contingency plans remain in place to ensure safety and security of supply if the restructuring plan fails for any reason and British Energy decides administration is the only option.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefits (Fines)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. Chris Pond): On 26 April 2004 I announced that, to support the Government's efforts to restore confidence in fines as an effective component of the criminal justice system, we propose to increase the amount of the weekly deduction applied to certain benefits from £2.80 to a maximum of £5 in April 2005.

The implementation date for this measure has now been brought forward to 18 December 2004 in order to introduce this at the earliest possible opportunity. The amended regulations have been laid accordingly.

Written Ministerial Statements

Wednesday 1 December 2004

DEFENCE

Iraq (Multinational Division (South-East))

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): As part of the routine management of UK forces in the multinational division (south-east) (MND(SE)) in Iraq, we intend to conduct a roulement of forces involving the replacement of 40 Commando Royal Marines with the 2nd Battalion the Princess of Wales' Royal Regiment.

The Secretary of State for Defence announced on 17 June 2004, Official Report, column 48, that 40 Commando would deploy to MND(SE) during June and July, both to provide support to Iraqi security forces and to provide the capacity for some other tasks, including the protection of essential infrastructure. The General Officer comanding MND(SE) has concluded that there will be a continuing requirement for these tasks beyond elections in Iraq planned for 30 January. Based on this advice, we have decided that 2nd Battalion the Princess of Wales' Royal Regiment should replace 40 Commando when their six month deployment in Iraq comes to an end in January 2005.

Since 1 November, 2nd Battalion the Princess of Wales' Royal Regiment has been acting as the very high readiness reserve (VHRR), at 10 days' readiness to deploy to Iraq. In January the responsibility for VHRR will pass from 2 Princess of Wales' Royal Regiment to the 1st Battalion the Royal Scots.

The roulement is currently planned to take place from early January 2005, with handover to 2nd Battalion the Princess of Wales' Royal Regiment complete by mid-January. We expect that the number of armed forces personnel in theatre will remain broadly the same as a result of these changes, with the other major UK units currently in Iraq unchanged. These units are as follows:

4 Armoured Brigade Headquarters and Signal Squadron
The Queen's Dragoon Guards
The Royal Dragoon Guards
4th Regiment Royal Artillery
1st Battalion Scots Guards
1st Battalion Welsh Guards
1st Battalion The Duke of Wellington's Regiment
21 Engineer Regiment

I would emphasise that these are routine adjustments to UK forces in MND(SE). We continue to consider, with our partners in the multinational force, the levels and dispositions of forces required in Iraq in the months ahead, to support the sovereign Interim Government of Iraq through the process leading to the election of an Iraqi Transitional Government and assembly in January 2005 and full constitutional elections in December 2005. If we judge that further changes to the UK military contribution in Iraq would be appropriate to support this process, we will of course inform the House at the earliest opportunity. At present, however, no such decision has been made.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Business Rates Revaluation

The Minister for Local and Regional Government (Mr. Nick Raynsford): This statement provides the final details relating to the business rates revaluation that will take effect from 1 April 2005. It confirms the results of the consultations on proposals announced in my written statement of 21 July, Official Report, columns 30–33WS, gives details of the transitional relief scheme and sets out the final small business rate relief scheme. In addition it includes the provisional non-domestic rating multipliers for 2005–06 and adjustments to the thresholds for various reliefs.

The Local Government Act 2003 requires the 2005 revaluation to be accompanied by a transition scheme to lessen the effects of sudden and significant rises in rates bills. The legislation provides that the scheme must be self-financing, so that the costs do not fall on other taxpayers. In July we announced the proposal for a four-year self-financing transitional scheme with the costs of phasing in increases met by phasing down the reductions in liability for others. The scheme seeks to provide an appropriate balance between protecting those who have larger increases in rates bills and allowing those who enjoy a fall in bills to receive the full benefit as quickly as possible.

We consulted on this proposal over the summer and most respondents felt that the proposed scheme struck the right balance. The Valuation Office Agency published the draft rating lists on 1 October and the updated valuations in the draft list have resulted in the transition scheme costing less than we initially estimated. We therefore have been able to reduce the impact of the scheme on those ratepayers that are paying for it.

As a result the caps for properties experiencing increases will be 12.5 per cent., 17.5 per cent., 20 per cent. and 25 per cent. for the four years, and for small properties 5 per cent., 7.5 per cent., 10 per cent. and 15 per cent. Large properties experiencing reductions in rate bills will be capped at the rates of 12.5 per cent., 12.5 per cent., 14 per cent. and 25 per cent. For small properties, the rates are 30 per cent., 30 per cent., 35 per cent. and 60 per cent. These downward caps are significantly more generous than the consultation levels or than any previous transitional scheme. They mean that those expecting decreases in their rates bills will benefit more quickly than under earlier schemes. Also, the effect of the separate capping levels means that small businesses will only be required to make a very small contribution to the scheme.

Government recognises that the current system of business rates places a disproportionate burden on small businesses. The scheme we consulted on over the summer proposed that rate relief should be available at 50 per cent. for single properties with a rateable value up to £5,000, with relief declining in percentage terms on a sliding scale with no relief at a rateable value of £10,000. In addition we proposed a buffer zone so that eligible business properties with rateable values between £10,000 and £15,000 would not have to contribute towards the relief. The scheme is designed to be funded through a supplement on the rates bills of larger businesses.

The feedback from the consultation suggested that the eligibility criteria should be extended, that the buffer zones for London should be amended and various technical changes made to the draft regulations. We will now introduce a scheme where the ratepayer will be eligible for the relief if all their main properties fall within the appropriate threshold, and the other properties are under a rateable value of £2,200. The relief will apply to the main property only. This extends the relief to more ratepayers while not increasing the financial burden on large ratepayers or introducing complex administrative arrangements. In addition we will raise the threshold for the buffer zone in London to £21,500.

In line with the Local Government Act 2003, from 1 April 2005, there will be two multipliers, the small business non-domestic rating multiplier, which is applicable to those that qualify for the small business relief or in the buffer zone, and the non-domestic rating multiplier which includes the supplement to pay for small business relief. The small business non-domestic rating multiplier for 2005–06 is 41.5p per pound of rateable value, and the non-domestic rating multiplier is 42.2p. This means that those paying for the relief will see a 1.6 per cent. increase in rates bills as a result.

In addition we will adjust the thresholds for a variety of rate reliefs in line with the general increase in rateable values. The relief for rural single petrol stations and pubs will increase from £9,000 to £10,500, for other rural single enterprises from £6,000 to £7,000 with discretionary relief from £12,000 to £14,000. Relief for stud farms will increase from £3,000 to £3,500, former agricultural premises from £6,000 to £7,000 and small unoccupied property from £1,900 to £2,200.

Regional Spatial Strategy

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister is publishing today the revised regional spatial strategy for Yorkshire and the Humber to replace RPG12 which was published in 2001.

The revised strategy follows the selective review or RPG12 carried out by the Yorkshire and Humber assembly in 2003, the public examination held in February 2004, and consultation on proposed changes July-September 2004. In response to the proposed changes, around 250 comments were received from 56 people and organisations. Nearly half of the comments were expressions of support.

The revised strategy makes significant improvements and changes to the 2001 version in the following areas:

Transport

RSS now sets out a list of transport investment and management priorities that will help achieve the overall spatial strategy, create sustainable communities and deliver economic growth.

RSS contains public transport accessibility criteria and a strategic transport demand management strategy. These should help ensue that new developments are located where they minimise the need to travel by car and that best use is made of the transport networks in the region.

Climate change

RSS now sets out a clear target to reduce greenhouse gas emissions from the region. It also contains policies to both help achieve this target and to help different parts of the region adapt to the effects of climate change.

Flood risk

RSS provides a clear framework for local authorities and the Environment Agency to address development and flood risk in an integrated, consistent and sustainable manner across the region.

Renewable energy

RSS now sets out targets for developments needed in different parts of the region in order to significantly increase the amount of renewable energy that can be generated.

Waste management

RSS now sets out targets for the amounts of municipal waste to be recycled/composted in different parts of the region and initial guidance on the numbers and locations of different types of waste management facilities that are likely to be needed up to 2016.

Revised RSS will be sent to the Yorkshire and Humber assembly, all of the region's MPs, MEPs and local authorities, and all those that attended the public examination in February 2004. It is available on the Government Office for Yorkshire and The Humber website www.goyh.gov.uk/rpg/.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Higher Education/Courses of National Strategic Importance

The Secretary of State for Education and Skills (Mr. Charles Clarke): I have today asked the Higher Education Funding Council for England to advise me about higher education subjects or courses of national strategic importance, where intervention might be appropriate to strengthen or secure them. I have asked for the council's views on the circumstances when such intervention might be right, and the types of intervention which it believes could be considered.

I have asked the council to consider the following subject areas:

> Arabic and Turkish language studies and other middle eastern area studies, former Soviet Union Caucasus and central Asian area studies—this is mainly for strategic security and inter-cultural awareness reasons, as highlighted by the recent BRISMES report.
> Japanese, Chinese, Mandarin and other far eastern languages and area studies for business and trade purposes, as highlighted by, among others, the UK-Japan 21st century group.
> Science, technology, engineering and mathematics—chiefly for maintaining the UK's excellent science base and ensuring our national productivity.

Vocationally oriented courses of particular interest to employers in industries that are of growing importance to the UK economy; for example, the cultural and creative industries, and e-skills.

Courses relating to recent EU accession countries, especially those in eastern Europe and the Baltic.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Over 30-Months Rule

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): Following the outbreak of BSE in this country measures were introduced to protect consumers and to eradicate BSE from the national herd. Incidences of BSE have declined in the UK in line with scientific projections.

vCJD is a dreadful disease. I and other Ministers pay tribute to the courage of the families who have been tragically affected by it. We consider the protection of the public from this devastating condition to be of paramount importance.

In 1996, when the possible link between BSE and cases of vCJD first became apparent, the then Government decided to ban the feeding of mammalian meat and bone meal to all farmed livestock; to strengthen controls on the removal of specified risk material (SRM); and to introduce the over thirty month (OTM) rule prohibiting the sale for human consumption in the UK of meat from cattle aged over 30 months at slaughter. Studies had suggested that cattle presented a much higher risk to consumers in the year before the onset of clinical disease which occurs at an average age of 5 years. The rule thus excluded higher risk cattle.

One of the main public health control measures is the removal of SRM, which is estimated to remove over 99 per cent. of infectivity in cattle.

This Government have made great efforts to control BSE in cattle. There were 186 clinical cases last year, a reduction of over 99 per cent. since the peak year of 1992 when over 37,000 clinical cases were confirmed, and a significant reduction also since 1996, when over 8,000 BSE clinical cases were confirmed. This reduction is expected to continue and DEFRA and the other Departments involved are continuing to work towards the complete eradication of BSE.

Since 1996, rapid post-mortem tests for BSE have been developed. From January 2001, throughout the EU, it became compulsory to test at slaughter all cattle aged over thirty months sold for human consumption. Other member states, where BSE emerged later, and at lower levels, do not have an OTM rule. Instead they rely on an EU-wide feed ban introduced in January 2001, SRM controls, and BSE testing. However, they have not had the high level of BSE that was present in the UK.

The OTM rule was introduced at a time when BSE posed a significant risk to UK consumers, and it has been one effective component of our wide ranging BSE controls. The risk is now greatly reduced and very low, although no risk can ever be completely eliminated.

In year 2000 the FSA was set up as an independent agency to advise Ministers on issues of food and consumer safety.

In July 2004, that agency advised Ministers that, subject to putting a robust testing regime in place, it would now be acceptable to replace the OTM rule with BSE testing for OTM cattle born after July 1996. The science of vCJD remains highly imprecise, and for this reason it is impossible to be precise about the risks; but the estimates are based on conservative current assumptions. The FSA risk assessment, with valuable input from the independent Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee (SEAC), concluded that it would be consistent on the basis of the risk involved for Government to lift the OTM rule if a robust testing system was in place.

In April 2004 the European Food Safety Authority (EFSA) had already agreed that the United Kingdom's BSE risk status should be reduced from "high" to "moderate", the same as most other EU countries, later this year; that the UK was clearly already moderate risk in respect of cattle born after 31 July 1996; and that for such cattle the OTM rule could be replaced by the same protective measures presently adopted in other moderate risk countries.

UK Government Ministers, the Scottish Executive and the Welsh Assembly Government have agreed today to announce the start of a managed transition towards the lifting of the OTM rule.

It is essential to establish a robust and independently quality-assured testing regime, taking account of the significant recent failures in the existing testing regime. The main public health protection measure—the removal of specified risk material—has been and will continue to be rigorously enforced by the meat hygiene service.

I believe it is responsible for the Government to proceed cautiously. A further process of stakeholder engagement will now take place, which will include key Government advisers, such as the FSA and the chief medical officer.

A final switch-over from the OTM rule to BSE testing will happen only when the Agency has advised Ministers that the testing regime is robust. This change, when introduced, would bring the UK into line with the arrangements which apply throughout the EU, except that UK cattle born before August 1996 would remain permanently excluded from the food chain.

I and other Ministers have also agreed that the Food Standards Agency should be responsible for the on-going audit and review of the testing system. This role in relation to testing will be in addition to the agency's continuing responsibility, as an independent body set up to protect the public's health and consumer interests in relation to food, for monitoring developments and advising Government on the scientific evidence on the food-borne BSE risk to consumers. In advising on the robustness of testing, the agency will be assisted by a group of independent experts which includes experts in food safety and consumer affairs. This group will take into account recent failings in current testing arrangements, including in relation to casualty cattle.

The FSA will be conducting a full public consultation on draft legislation to replace the OTM rule by testing for OTM cattle born after July 1996.

The timing of any changeover would be dependent on the agency advising Ministers that it is satisfied that the testing regime is robust and on other matters such as the outcome of the consultation, amendments to legislation and the recruitment of additional meat hygiene service staff. Testing arrangements are not yet properly quality assured. This is a source of concern and therefore further work is necessary to ensure the testing regime is robust. This is expected to take until the latter half of next year in Great Britain. Given the recent more favourable European Commission report on the testing system in Northern Ireland, I do not rule out earlier change there.

Ministers have also agreed that it would be desirable for the ban on OTM imports to be lifted at the same time as the domestic OTM Rule, and that every effort should be made to accelerate the lifting of the EU restrictions on UK beef exports. Before export restrictions can be eased, there will need to be a further inspection visit from the EU's food and veterinary office to check our BSE controls and our testing arrangements, a proposal from the European Commission to amend EU legislation, and agreement by other EU member states. This is likely to take until late next year.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Côte d'Ivoire

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Bill Rammell): With the support of Her Majesty's Government, the United Nations Security Council on 15 November unanimously adopted resolution 1572 (2004) imposing an arms embargo against Côte d'Ivoire, effective for 13 months, following violations of the cease fire by Government forces. The embargo includes humanitarian exemptions, exemptions for the United Nations operation in Côte d'Ivoire (UNOCI) and the French forces who support them and for States engaged in the evacuation of their nationals or those for whom they have consular responsibility in Côte d'Ivoire. There is also an exemption to allow support for the process of restructuring Ivorian defence and security forces.

Resolution 1572 (2004) also imposes a travel ban and assets freeze against all who constitute a threat to the peace and national reconciliation process in Côte d'Ivoire, which will come into effect on 15 December unless the Security Council decides that the signatories concerned have fully implemented their commitments under the Accra III Agreement and are embarked towards full implementation of the Linas-Marcoussis Agreement. I will inform the House if the travel ban and assets freeze come into force.

Equatorial Guinea

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): My answer to the question from the right hon. Member for Devizes (Mr. Ancram) of 17 November, Official Report, column 1548W, set out what HM Government knew of reports of a planned coup in Equatorial Guinea earlier this year. This statement informs the House more widely of the position. At all times we acted properly, promptly, and entirely in accordance with international law.

The United Kingdom has normal diplomatic relations with the Government of Equatorial Guinea, which is a former Spanish colony. We have no embassy in the country. Our high commissioner in neighbouring Cameroon is accredited as ambassador to Equatorial Guinea and has responsibility for relations with Equatorial Guinea. There is a British community of some hundreds, many involved in the energy sector. We have an honorary consul and a commercial attaché in the capital, Malabo.

The country has in the past suffered political instability. Rumours of upheaval and further instability are common. For example there were reports picked up by BBC monitoring in October 2003 of an imminent planned coup. These appeared not to be accurate; certainly, there was no coup.

On 29 January this year the Foreign Office received an intelligence report of preparations for a possible coup in Equatorial Guinea. The report was the first intelligence we had received. It was not definitive enough for us to conclude that a coup was likely or inevitable. It was passed by another Government to us on the normal condition that it not be passed on. There were, coincidentally, reports on Spanish radio, and in both El Pais and El Mundo on 30 January, making similar suggestions that a coup was being planned in Equatorial Guinea, and reporting that Spanish naval vessels were sailing towards the country.

British newspapers have this week reported that a South African national, Johann Smith, is claiming to have passed to contacts in British intelligence in December 2003 and in January 2004 a note setting out in detail plans for a coup. We have no record of this information being passed to British officials at any time before May 2004.

I received a submission, dated 30 January, from FCO officials on the weekend of 30 January-1 February which summarised both the media and intelligence reports and made recommendations to me. I considered the case and agreed that the FCO should approach an individual formerly connected with a British private military company, mentioned in the report of 29 January, both to attempt to test the veracity of the report, and to make clear that the FCO was firmly opposed to any unconstitutional action such as coups d'etat. A senior Foreign Office official did so within days. The individual concerned claimed no knowledge of the plans.

On 3 February we changed our travel advice to reflect our latest assessment. This reads "visitors should expect . . . isolated incidents of political unrest" in Equatorial Guinea, particularly as "legislative elections are scheduled for the first quarter of 2004".

In anticipation of these elections our ambassador in Yaounde was due to visit Malabo in early February. We instructed him to continue with his planned visit. He found the situation calm. But as a precaution, our consular crisis plan for Equatorial Guinea was reviewed. Given our limited British representation, it had not been recently updated

We did not pass the report of 29 January to the Equatorial Guinea Government. It had been passed to us on the condition that it not be passed on to any third party. But there were two considerations of substance which led us to this judgement in any event. First, because there had been media reports about preparations for a possible coup which the Equatorial Guinea government would already have seen. Second, because it was not definitive enough for us to conclude that a coup was likely or inevitable. Indeed, we went back to the originating government and to another Government which had also received the report to check their belief in the veracity of the report. Their responses gave no certainty. The fact that the rumours were in the public domain suggested in any event that a successful coup was growing less likely.

There have been some suggestions in the press that the British Government were under a legal obligation to act differently. We do not condone or support unconstitutional action including coup d'etat of any kind in other countries. But my understanding is that governments are under no legal obligation to pass on information which they may receive about such possible action.

On 9 March we learned that the Zimbabwean authorities had arrested a number of individuals in Harare, alleged to be on their way to effect a coup in Equatorial Guinea. A number of individuals were also arrested in Malabo in connection with the alleged coup plot. Over the following months, the names of a number of others allegedly involved appeared in the media.

On 28 August the Foreign Office press office was asked by The Observer if the Government knew before March that a coup was going to happen. It replied, correctly, that the FCO did not. As I told the right hon. Member for Devizes on 9 November I had first heard reports of possible coup planning in late January this year. And this I followed up with a fuller account for the House in my answer to the right hon. Member's questions on 17 November.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Closure of Solihull Asylum Screening Unit

The Minister for Citizenship and Immigration (Des Browne): In the Government's view, applications for asylum should be made at the earliest possible opportunity after arrival in this country. Staff at ports of entry are trained to receive such claims when made by arriving passengers. There are also currently three screening units at which applications by people already in the country can be received.

Over the last 18 months, there has been a significant reduction in the number of claims. There is also a case for concentrating expertise in dealing with such cases. The asylum screening unit at Solihull currently deals with fewer than 5 per cent. of asylum applications and I have therefore decided that it should close with effect from 3 December. This change is part of the Government's continuing strategy to tighten up management of the asylum system and to take effective action against abuse of the asylum process.

Our experience in Croydon ASU has shown that by providing a more streamlined and focussed service to asylum applicants those who are genuine can be identified more quickly, whilst those whose claims have no foundation are dealt with more effectively.

Those wishing to seek asylum and already in the country will be able to do so at one of the other screening units at Croydon and Liverpool. Vulnerable applicants, such as unaccompanied children, families, pregnant women and those with medical problems will continue to be able to register their claims at immigration service locations throughout the United Kingdom.

The closure of the Solihull Asylum Screening Unit will free up staff in such a way as to make more effective the reporting arrangements for existing asylum seekers in the West Midlands. Our partners in local government and the voluntary sector have been informed of these changes.

TREASURY

Financial Services and Markets Act 2000

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Stephen Timms): A paper giving details of the outcome of the two-year review of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000, which the former Financial Secretary to the Treasury announced on 4 November 2003, Official Report, column 28WS, is available in the Vote Office and the Library of the House, and is accessible on: www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

National Insurance Contributions 2005–06

The Paymaster General (Dawn Primarolo): I have completed the annual review under section 141 of the Social Security Administration Act 1992. I propose the following changes to take effect from 6 April 2005. These rates and limits will also apply to national insurance contributions in Northern Ireland.

Employers and Employees

In line with the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, the lower earnings limit for primary Class 1 contributions is to be raised to £82 a week. It is set at the level of the basic state pension for a single person from April 2005 and rounded down to the nearest pound.

The primary and secondary thresholds for Class 1 contributions will continue to be aligned with the weekly amount of the income tax personal allowance, which will be increased to £4,895 from April 2005. The primary and secondary thresholds will therefore be increased to £94 a week. This means that no tax or Class 1 contributions will actually be paid on earnings below this level.

The upper earnings limit for primary Class 1 contributions will be raised to £630.

The self-employed

The rate of Class 2 contributions will be raised to £2.10 a week. Self-employed people with earnings below the annual small earnings exception can apply to be exempted from paying Class 2 contributions. This limit will be raised by £130 to £4,345 in line with inflation.

The annual lower profits limit for liability to Class 4 contributions will increase to £4,895 a year (in line with the income tax personal allowance). The upper profits limit will increase by £1,040 to £32,760, to maintain the link with employees' earnings liable to Class 1 contributions.

Class 3

The rate of Class 3 voluntary contributions will be increased by 20 pence to £7.35 a week.

Share fishermen

The special rate of Class 2 contributions for share fishermen, which allows them to build entitlement to contributory Jobseeker's Allowance in addition to the other contributory benefits available to the self-employed, will be increased to £2.75 a week.

Volunteer Development Workers

The special rate of Class 2 contributions for volunteer development workers, which entitles them to the full range of contributory benefits, will be increased by 15 pence to £4.10 in line with the statutory formula of 5 per cent of the primary Class 1 lower earnings limit.

Treasury Grant

I need to ensure that the Fund can maintain a prudent working balance throughout the coming year and, in accordance with section 2 (2) of the Social Security Act 1993, I propose to do so by prescribing that the maximum Treasury Grant which may be made available to the Fund in 2005–06 shall not exceed 2 per cent of the estimated benefit expenditure for that year. Similar provision will be made in respect of the Northern Ireland National Insurance Fund.

I shall be laying a draft re-rating order before Parliament in due course. This will accompany a report by the Government Actuary to myself and my Right Honourable Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which we shall jointly present to Parliament.

The following table sets out the rates, earnings limits and thresholds for National Insurance Contributions proposed for 2005–06.

National insurance contributions, proposed re-rating, April 2005

Item	2005–06
Lower earnings limit, primary Class 1	£82
Upper earnings limit, primary Class 1	£630
Primary threshold	£94
Secondary threshold	£94
Employees' primary Class 1 rate	11% from £94.01 to £630 plus 1% above £630
Employees' contracted-out rebate	1.6%
Married women's reduced rate	4.85% from £94.01 to £630 plus 1% above £630
Employers' secondary Class 1 rate	12.8% on earnings above £94
Employers' contracted-out rebate, salary-related schemes	3.5%
Employers' contracted-out rebate, money-purchase schemes	1.0%
Class 2 rate	£2.10
Class 2 small earnings exception	£4,345
Special Class 2 rate for share fishermen	£2.75
Special Class 2 rate for volunteer development workers	£4.10
Class 3 rate	£7.35

National insurance contributions, proposed re-rating, April 2005

Item	2005–06
Class 4 rate	8% from £4,895 to £32,760 plus 1% above £32,760
Class 4 lower profits limit	£4,895
Class 4 upper profits limit	£32,760

Private Finance Initiative Information

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Paul Boateng): Enclosed below are the latest figures reported by Departments on their Private Finance Initiative (PFI) activities. The submission of this information is in accordance with Departments' obligation to disclose PFI information to Parliament on a biannual basis.

Table 1 shows the estimated private sector investment in public services resulting from signed PFI contracts over the period 2004–05 to 2006–07.

Table 2 shows the estimated total capital value of PFI contracts that are currently at the Preferred Bidder stage of procurement. Tables 1 and 2 are both presented on a departmental basis.

Table 3 shows a forecast of the estimated payments for services flowing from signed PFI projects. It should be noted that procuring authorities only pay when they receive the high quality services specified in PFI contracts. If such services are not received then deductions can be made from anticipated payments. This table is presented in aggregate form and covers the period 2004–05 to 2029–30.

Finance Bill

The Paymaster General (Dawn Primarolo): This Government are determined to ensure that all employers and employees pay the proper amount of tax and NICs on the rewards of employment, however those rewards are delivered. Despite the efforts of successive Governments of all persuasions over several years, we continue to be presented with ever more complex and contrived attempts to avoid paying tax and NICs on rewards from employment, particularly in relation to bonuses in the City.

In the most recent year for which we have figures, well-rewarded individuals receiving bonuses of at least £1.5 billion in total sought to avoid paying their fair share of tax and NICs.

The disclosure rules in Finance Act 2004 have revealed that this kind of avoidance is still rife. Without prompt and decisive action we think there could be up to £2 billion paid this year in bonuses on which the amount of tax and NICs properly due is at risk, as a result of increasing ingenuity and inventiveness of the tax avoidance industry.

We cannot allow avoidance on this scale to continue. It is only right that everyone who should pay tax and NICs, does pay and that they pay their fair share when it is due. The overwhelming majority of employers and employees do pay their fair share. But for too long some employers and employees with the benefit of sophisticated tax advice have sought to avoid their responsibilities and to pass more of a burden onto the rest of us.

Early attempts at avoidance in this area took the form of paying bonuses and salaries in gold bullion, diamonds and fine wines. When these routes were closed, employers started to pay bonuses through shares and share options to reduce the amount of NICs they had to pay, avoid their obligation to operate PAYE, and reduce employees' tax bills. When, in 1998, assets readily convertible into cash were brought within PAYE, and NICs, avoidance schemes moved on to more complex arrangements.

Despite extensive reforms to the tax legislation in 2003, employers and their advisers are continuing to devise and operate ever more contrived avoidance schemes. One such example of which Inland Revenue has learnt involves payment of a bonus to an employee in the form of dividends on shares in a specially constructed company. This avoids tax at 40 per cent. and employer and employee NICs.

The Inland Revenue will be challenging such arrangements in the courts where it is appropriate to do so. We cannot however await the outcome in the courts before taking action. We intend that from today both tax and NICs legislation should achieve our objective of subjecting the rewards of employment to the proper amount of tax and NICs, however the rewards are delivered. Taxpayers who contribute their fair share have a right to expect that others will also do so. We also want to make it plain that to the extent that legislation may still not achieve our objective in the face of continuing avoidance, we will ensure it does.

To that end we will be including legislation in FB 05, effective from today, to close down the avoidance schemes we know about. A technical note explaining what we intend to do in FB 05 will be published today. We will also ensure that NICs is charged on these schemes with effect from today.

However, experience has taught us that we are not always able to anticipate the ingenuity and inventiveness of the avoidance industry. Nor should we have to. Our objective is clear and the time has come to close this activity down permanently.

I am therefore giving notice of our intention to deal with any arrangements that emerge in future designed to frustrate our intention that employers and employees should pay the proper amount of tax and NICs on the rewards of employment. Where we become aware of arrangements which attempt to frustrate this intention we will introduce legislation to close them down, where necessary from today.

This action will not affect employers and employees who organise their affairs in a straightforward and ordinary way—the vast majority. In particular, genuine employee share schemes and share option plans will not be affected. We continue to believe these make an important contribution to the Government's productivity agenda.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

National Non-Domestic Rates (2005–06)

The Minister for Local and Regional Government (Mr. Nick Raynsford): I have today presented the provisional local government finance settlement for 2005–06. Included in the announcement was the distributable amount of national non-domestic rates in England for 2005–06 to be redistributed to local authorities, which will be £18.000 billion.

Notes to the table:

The above calculation involves estimating several figures that are inherently difficult to forecast accurately, such as the gross rate yield and the prior year adjustments. The resulting figure of £18.100 billion has therefore been rounded to £18.000 billion exactly to avoid spurious accuracy.

For 2001–02, 2002–03 and 2003–04, the amounts shown are generally those reported on the outturn (NNDR3) returns, with those for 2003–04 being regarded as provisional in advance of the receipt of audited returns. For 2004–05, the amounts shown are the provisional outturn for the year based upon authorities' provisional contributions to the non-domestic rating pool, as reported on NNDR1 returns. For 2005–06 figures, the estimates are based on:

1. Item 1: The gross rate yield represents the estimated effective total rateable value of non-domestic hereditaments on local rating lists multiplied by the small business non-domestic rating multiplier of 41.5p. The supplement of 0.7p that is also applied to businesses paying for the new small business rate relief is not included, and neither is the small business rate relief included within the reliefs at item l(i). This reflects the fact that the income from the supplement is intended to equal the cost of the relief nationally, resulting in a zero net effect upon the Distributable Amount.
2. Item 1(i)(a): The cost of the transitional reliefs in 2004–05 is estimated to be zero, to reflect the fact the scheme is designed to be self-financing, through phasing in reductions to rate bills.
3. Item 1(i)(b): The empty property relief adjustments include voids and partially occupied hereditaments. The 2005–06 figure includes an allowance to reflect the increase in the gross rate yield.
4. Item 1(i)(c): Charitable rate relief. The 2005–06 figure includes an allowance to reflect the increase in the gross rate yield.
5. Item 1(i)(d): Rural Shops and Post Office relief. Figures include mandatory relief for general stores and post offices under the Local Government and Rating Act 1997. The 2005–06 figure includes an allowance to reflect the increase in the gross rate yield.
6. Item 1(i)(e): Community Amateur Sports Clubs (CASCs). This is mandatory rate relief for sports clubs registered with the Inland Revenue as Community Amateur Sports Clubs under Section 64 of the Local Government Act 2003, which came into effect on 1 April 2004. The 2005–06 figure includes an allowance to reflect the increase in the gross rate yield.
7. Item 1(i)(f): Discretionary relief granted to charities, non-profit making organisations and for other reasons including discretionary relief for village shops and post offices under the Local Government and Rating Act 1997. The 2005–06 figure includes an allowance to reflect the increase in the gross rate yield.
8. Item 1(ii)(a) and (b): The allowances for the costs and losses incurred by authorities in collecting non-domestic rates from ratepayers.
9. Item 1(ii)(c): City Offset—the amount which the City of London is not required to pay into the non-domestic rating pool. It has been set to zero for 2004–05 onwards.
10. Item 1(iii): Net adjustment in respect of appeals and other amendments to the rating list affecting liability for previous years rates settled in that year: comprising repayments and associated interest payments.
11. Item 2: the rateable value of non-domestic hereditaments on the central rating list multiplied by the multiplier, less the net effect of transitional arrangements, and adjusted for appeals and other changes in respect of previous years.
12. Item 3: Almost all properties previously included in the Crown List are included in the local list figures at item 1.
13. Item 4: the contribution from central government to offset the amount of the Secretary of State's estimate of income foregone as a result of transitional arrangements is assumed to be zero for 2005–06, given the self-financing nature of the transitional relief scheme.

Supporting People

The Minister for Local and Regional Government (Mr. Nick Raynsford): The Government are today announcing the allocation to administering authorities of £1.715 billion for the Supporting People programme in 2005–06. These grants are awarded to authorities to enable them to provide housing related services to over 1.2 million vulnerable people in our society.

The Supporting People programme was successfully launched in April 2003. Since then authorities have made good progress in managing the programme but there is work still to do. Findings from an independent review, inspections by the Audit Commission, and other research work have shown that there are considerable opportunities for authorities to make efficiency savings in their programme and that some services are not delivering the quality of support that clients deserve.

We are addressing these concerns by requiring authorities to complete reviews of individual services by April 2006 and ensure that these are value for money, good quality and strategically relevant. In partnership with local stakeholders, authorities are developing five-year strategies for their programmes and these will examine critically the services delivered and focus them on local need and strategic priorities.

Additionally, we are providing help and advice through capacity building programmes, and monitoring and support to authorities and providers. This includes projects to develop and disseminate best practice, a benchmarking programme, web-based support through hub services, and support to authorities struggling with their administration of the programme. We will also continue to work with authorities and providers to ensure that administration of the programme is effective and does not create unnecessary burdens.

As a preventive programme, Supporting People contributes to a range of key Government targets and objectives. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister will be working closely with colleagues across Government to ensure that the Supporting People programme is better integrated with other support packages.

Throughout 2005–06, we will be developing the monitoring arrangements for the programme including measuring performance against three key Supporting People performance indicators. We will use this data to establish baseline performance and will then look to authorities to deliver continued improvement in outcomes over time.

Early next year we will consult on the revised needs based distribution formula which will provide the basis for allocating Supporting People grant in the future. In the long run this could give rise to significant changes in current pattern of allocations between authorities and I recognise this cannot be achieved quickly. We have previously announced that under the Spending Review 2004 settlement the funding for Supporting People in 2006–07 and 2007–08 will be around £1.7 billion. To provide some further assurance to authorities about the pace of change I have decided that no authority should face a reduction of funding of more than 5 per cent. or an increase of more than 10 per cent. in either of these years.

This Government's on-going commitment to the Supporting People programme and our continued support to authorities and other stakeholders in the delivery of the programme will ensure the continued improvement in value for money and better use of resources in 2005–06 and beyond.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is also beginning today a consultation on the grant conditions for Supporting People in 2005–06, which we are proposing to keep broadly the same as 2004–05. The consultation ends on 11 February 2005. We are writing to local authorities to inform them of their allocations.

GLA Grant

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister has today announced the following three-year settlement for the general GLA grant, which is provided by the Government to support the activities of the Mayor of London and Greater London Authority. This settlement reflects the overall 2004 spending review settlement for local government and in particular the requirement to generate efficiency savings of 2.5 per cent. per annum across the public sector. The actual grant will continue to be determined by the Secretary of State annually, in accordance with section 100 of the GLA Act 1999.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Teenage Pregnancy

The Minister for Children Young People and Families (Margaret Hodge): The Independent Advisory Group on Teenage Pregnancy has published its third annual report today, 2 December 2004.

This is a very thorough and considered report which continues to build on the group's previous two annual reports. We commend the Independent Advisory Group for the notable contribution it has made since it was formed. We welcome the advisory group's acknowledgement of the significant progress made to date nationally, regionally and locally on implementing our teenage pregnancy strategy. We recognise that we are at a critical point of this 10-year strategy, the goals of which can only be achieved by sustaining the drive and energy we have demonstrated so far. Our continued commitment to addressing this key inequality and public health issue is signalled by our PSA jointly held with the Department of Health. Reducing teenage pregnancies and supporting young parents is central to our change for children programme with its aim of improving the life chances for all young people. The report contains eight recommendations on potential areas for further action. Each recommendation will receive our full and careful consideration and a detailed Government response will be published by March 2005.

A copy of the Independent Advisory Group's third annual report has been placed in the Library.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Catchment-Sensitive Farming

The Minister for the Environment and Agri-environment (Mr. Elliot Morley): The joint Defra—HM Treasury consultation "Developing Measures to Promote Catchment-Sensitive Farming" sought views on the broad possible approaches and measures (including regulatory, voluntary and economic measures) to reduce diffuse water pollution from agriculture. The consultation, which closed on 9 September 2004, stressed the need for action to further improve water quality and to help meet the requirements of domestic and international targets including the water framework directive. It also suggested that a package of different measures likely to be needed.

Respondents to the consultation expressed a variety of views across the range of possible measures. A detailed analysis of responses is available on the Defra website www.defra.gov.uk/. In brief: there was broad support for the concept of a package of measures; many respondents suggested a potential role for regulation as a means for targeting catchments that are particularly environmentally sensitive or where there is a particular problem from diffuse water pollution from agriculture; views were divided on the use of economic instruments; and voluntary and awareness-raising measures were generally strongly supported. The Government are today publishing a summary of responses to the consultation.

The Government, having carefully considered all consultation responses, have decided to continue to work with stakeholders to promote voluntary action on the ground, to increase awareness and to evaluate the effectiveness of this approach, whilst continuing to refine the evidence base, for example to take into account the potential impacts of CAP reform. The Government will also continue to actively work with stakeholders in 2005 to develop an effective package of measures for tackling diffuse water pollution and will consult further on this in due course.

In developing policy options, we will be mindful of cumulative economic and administrative impacts on farmers and growers. Our aim is to keep any measures as light touch and as closely targeted as possible.

A parallel announcement has been made today by the Chancellor in the Pre-Budget Report.

Defra 2004 Autumn Performance Report

The Minister for Rural Affairs and Local Environmental Quality (Alun Michael): The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs' 2004 Autumn Performance Report (Cm 6396), which highlights progress towards achieving the Department's outstanding Public Service Agreement targets since the publication of the Departmental Report in April, has been published today. Copies have been placed in both Libraries of the House.

HEALTH

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. John Hutton): The next meeting of the Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council will be on 6 and 7 December. Items on the agenda relating to health will be covered on 6 December.

Items for discussion are: a co-ordinated approach to combat HIV/AIDS in the European Union and its neighbourhood; European Commission proposals for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on medicinal products for paediatric use; and the proposal for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on nutrition and health claims made on foods.

I will attend for the United Kingdom.

Health Ministers will have a public debate on HIV/AIDS, where they will be asked to focus on next steps for both European Community and national level action.

This will be followed by a first council discussion of the European Commission proposal on paediatric medicines, which aims to encourage the development of medicines for children. There will be a presentation by the European Commission, followed by interventions from some member states.

There will be an exchange of views on the proposal to regulate health and nutritional claims on food labelling. Discussion will be structured around the Dutch presidency questions on the key issue of nutrient profiling, the proposed method to identify foods or categories of foods which will be permitted to make claims.

Ministers will be asked to adopt the draft council conclusions on a European response to emerging zoonotic diseases. The UK can agree to adopt these conclusions as currently drafted.

Under any other business, the Dutch presidency will report on progress made to establish the council's public health working party meeting on a high official level, which had its first meeting on 23 November 2004.

The European Commission will also present the interim report of the high level group on health care and medical services.

At lunch on 6 December, Health Ministers will also discuss pandemic preparedness planning.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Independent Race Monitor

The Minister for Citizenship and Immigration (Mr. Desmond Browne): My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has today placed in the Library of each House his response to the second annual report produced under section 19E of the Race Relations Act 1976 by Mary Coussey, the Independent Race Monitor, which was placed in the Library of both Houses in July. The Race Monitor has a statutory duty to report to Parliament via the Home Secretary on ministerial authorisations made under section 19D of the Race Relations Act enabling immigration staff to discriminate on the basis of nationality or ethnic or national origin in the exercise of their functions.

Home Office Autumn Performance Report 2004

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. David Blunkett): The Home Office autumn performance report 2004 has been published today by command of Her Majesty. Copies of the report are available in the Vote Office and in the Library. The report is also available on the Home Office website.

The report sets out the progress we have made towards achieving our public service agreement targets.

The report shows we have made significant progress. Crime has fallen dramatically and people's fear is following suit. Police performance is improving and the justice gap is continuing to narrow. Our correctional services are operating effectively, we have expanded drug treatment and asylum is increasingly under control. Our work to increase race equality and community engagement is beginning to show real results: there are now 1.6 million more volunteers than in 2001, and more black and minority ethnic police officers than ever before.

Police Grant (England and Wales)

The Minister for Crime Reduction, Policing and Community Safety (Ms Hazel Blears): I have today placed in the Library a copy of the Home Secretary's proposals for allocation of police grant for England and Wales in 2005–06. The Home Secretary and I intend to implement the proposals subject to consideration of any representations and to the approval of the House.

This Government are continuing to deliver on law and order. Our programme of reform and improvement for the police service in England and Wales over the past four years has been matched by a significant increase in resources for policing. On a like for like basis, expenditure on policing supported by Government grant or spent centrally on services for the police has increased by 39 per cent. or over £3.0 billion between 2000–01 and 2005–06. This substantial increase has helped to both support the reform agenda and deliver the things that we all want to see. Crime is down and there are record numbers of police officers, police staff and community support officers.

We have recently set out our programme for further change. On 9 November we published "Building Communities, Beating Crime: A Better Police Service for the 21st Century". This is an ambitious agenda for sustainable improvement in policing. We are aiming for the spread of neighbourhood policing, with improved responsiveness and customer service; further modernisation of the police workforce to ensure that the service is fully equipped and able to deliver these changes; and greater involvement of communities and citizens in determining how their communities are policed. We are committed to working with the service, police authorities and their partner agencies in delivering safer communities across our country.

The national policing plan for 2005–08 was published on 24 November. This too puts the law abiding citizen at the heart of policing, with the police working in partnership to create and maintain secure and confident communities. Our key priorities are to reduce overall crime; provide a citizen-focused police service; take action with partners to increase sanction detection rates; reduce people's concerns about crime and anti-social behaviour; combat serious and organised crime and counter the increased risk from terrorism.

The police funding settlement will support the priorities outlined in the Plan. The police will receive sufficient resources to enable them to provide an efficient and effective service to the public. We have listened very carefully to the concerns raised by the policing community. The Association of Police Authorities and the Association of Chief Police Officers made available their own surveys of projected cost increases for 2005–06. These have been taken into account in determining Government increases in grant.

Total provision for policing to be supported by grant in 2005–06 will be £11,833 million. Central Government revenue grant funding direct to police forces will increase by 5.1 per cent. This includes an increase of 4.8 per cent. in total formula grant and more than £760 million in specific grants. Taken together with the increase in central funding for police communications, IT and support services, this provides an increase in supported spending of 6.7 per cent. overall.

The overall 6.7 per cent. increase or £746 million includes police formula grants, specific grants, capital related grants, direct Home Office spending and the formula spending on which revenue support grant is based. It also includes counter-terrorism and security, and international and organised crime funding.

For formula grant, the Home Secretary and I have added £194 million in Home Office Police Grant to last year's general police grant provision. There has also been an increase of £156 million in Revenue Support Grant and National Non Domestic Rates from ODPM and the Welsh Assembly. This will give police authorities maximum scope to determine their own spending and help authorities manage down financial pressures next year. This extra money has enabled us to increase police formula grant by 4.8 per cent. in 2005–06.

Last year we took the exceptional decision to provide a broadly standard rate increase in general grants in recognition of the financial pressures on all authorities. This year we will again provide a minimum increase for all police authorities but we have been able to return to a better reflection of the funding formula. The settlement provides a funding floor of 3.75 per cent. This will benefit 26 police authorities who under application of the formula without damping would have received £103.6 million less. Increases for other authorities, above the funding floor, range up to nearly 6.9 per cent. This approach balances financial protection for all police authorities with distribution of additional resources to areas where need is greater. Above-floor increases will help authorities facing rapid population growth and those that have faced ceiling restrictions in the past.

The minimum increase of 3.75 per cent. in general grants is substantially above police pay increases and inflation. Police Authorities, the Association of Chief Police Officers and the Association of Police Authorities have impressed upon me the particular pressures they face in the coming year. I am responding to their concerns with what is one of the highest police settlements in recent years. To help meet those pressures, particularly on police pensions, police grant overall and the floor level include a special 0.25 per cent uplift, around £20m that would not otherwise have been provided. I do not intend to claw back the £20m in future years, but equally we will not take it into account when calculating grant increases in 2006–2007. The effect will be that grant increases in 2006–2007 will be calculated as increases on a baseline from which the 0.25 per cent. uplift has been removed.

Pressures on policing change over time and the way in which we assess police authorities' relative need for grant support has to develop. As the National Policing Plan 2005–08 explains, we are reviewing the formula that underpins police grant, in association with the service.

We are examining the factors that drive demands on the police and will take account of those factors at local level which are known to affect levels of criminality. We will be updating the formula in the light of new data, and we are exploring the possibility of linking performance expectations and resource allocation and the extent to which specific grants can be incorporated in general grant. We are also supporting wider Government consultation on three-year rather than annual grant settlements and collaborating with the Lyons Review of Local Government funding.

The settlement continues to take account of our commitment to improve efficiency and effectiveness in the police service. We expect, for the three years from 2005–06 to 2007–08, the Police Service to deliver efficiency gains of 3 per cent. per annum, half of which are to be cashable gains. Guidance on efficiency plans for 2005–06 has been issued this week.

The Home Office, the Association of Chief Police Officers and the Association of Police Authorities are committed to working in partnership to deliver cumulative year on year improvements in the value for money to deliver the efficiency targets. Future police grant allocations will be considered in the light of police authorities meeting the target for efficiency improvements.

This is an excellent settlement. If police authorities deliver efficiency gains, and exercise judicious financial planning, there is no reason for police authorities to set excessive increases in police precepts on council tax next year. The Government's policy in relation to council tax increases of less than 5 per cent. has been clearly set out by my right hon Friend the Deputy Prime Minister and my hon. Friend the Minister for Local and Regional Government.

In this statement, I want to outline provision for support for the police service in England and Wales.

The police grant settlement

We propose to distribute the settlement as set out below. The table includes funding for both local and central spending.

[1] Figures rounded to £ million.

[3] The £162 million increase represents mainly £65 million for the Bichard agenda; an extra £47 million for Airwave core charges; £23.5 million for Criminal Justice Systems (IT); £15 million for ANPR and £10 million for NAFIS.

[4] Includes provision for NCS/NCIS (£257 million), Serious and Organised Crime Agency (£24 million) and counter terrorism.

Police funding proposals within the Local Government finance system are being announced by the Minister for Local and Regional Government today, and by the Welsh Assembly Government.

Provisional general policing grants (i.e. Home Office Police Grant, Revenue Support Grant and National Non Domestic Rates) for English & Welsh police authorities in 2005–06 compared with 2004–05 are given in Table 2.

Amending Reports

The Amending Report for 2003–04, to take account of changes to ONS population data, was set out in my written statement of 18 November. Amending the settlement requires 10 police authorities to pay back formula grant. We have therefore adjusted 2005–06 grants to ensure that any authority owing money under the Amending Report will be able to pay it back and still be left with at least the floor grant increase over 2004–05. The consultation period on the Amending Report 2003–04 will end on the same date as the consultation on the funding settlement proposals 2005–06 on 11 January 2005.

Welsh police authorities

The Home Secretary has for several years provided additional funding to ensure Welsh police authorities receive at least a minimum increase in grant in line with English authorities. This additional support (£14m) will continue in 2005–2006 and is included in Table 2.

There are to be minor boundary changes affecting South Wales and Dyfed Powys, taking effect from 1 April 2005. These changes are not yet reflected in the figures in Table 2 but will be incorporated into the final Police Grant Report put to the House.

Metropolitan Police funding

Grant for the Metropolitan Police Authority will increase from £1.822 million to £1.928 billion, a cash increase of £106 million or 5.8 per cent. Including an extra £4.2 million from the Amending Report for 2003–04, the cash increase is £110.2 million. As part of general grant, I have increased the formula provision for the Metropolitan Police national and capital city functions by £10 million to £217 million. The Metropolitan Police will receive separately provision for counter-terrorism. The Metropolitan Police will also receive a range of specific grants including London Allowance payments (£34 million) and free officer travel (£3.0 million).

Specific grants for police authorities

In addition to increased general grants, police authorities will continue to receive extra funding through a range of specific grants for particular schemes. Targeted grants were introduced as a direct response to what the police service and the public told us they wanted. Specific grants enable us to target funds to the areas where they are particularly needed. We have again tried to minimise provision for specific grants next year to maximise general grants which may be spent at the discretion of police authorities. Total provision for specific grants in 2005–06 is £766 million.

Specific grants for 2005–06 compared with 2004–05 are set out at Table 3.

The main specific grants are:

Crime Fighting Fund: £277 million will be made available to forces in 2005–06 to continue to support the costs of officers recruited through the Crime Fighting Fund. A further £8 million to cover pay inflation has been included within the general grant uplift. This Fund has been remarkably successful in helping the police service boost its strength which reached a record level of 139,728 in August 2004. Subject to forces maintaining their strength, we will continue to pay for the 9,650 police officers recruited through the scheme by a combination of specific and general grant.

Counter Terrorism: As last year, we will continue to provide additional funding to the Police Service to enable it to respond to the increased threat from international terrorism. We will be providing the Metropolitan Police with some £61 million in 2005–06 for ring-fenced counter terrorism funding. Provincial forces in England and Wales will receive £35 million of revenue and £8 million of capital in 2005–06 for dedicated counter terrorism work. This will be allocated following full consultation with the Association of Chief Police Officers and individual forces. In total the Police Service of England and Wales (including the Metropolitan Police) will receive £96 million of revenue and £8 million of capital to enable it to counter the increased risk from international terrorism.

Basic Command Unit (BCU) funds: £50 million will again be provided for BCUs. These are at the forefront of local policing. The grant is targeted towards forces with BCUs in high crime areas to help reduce crime in partnership with Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships. All forces in England and Wales receive a share of the grant. Next year will be the third year of the Fund. BCU Commanders will have discretion locally to pool their BCU allocations with the new Safer and Stronger Communities Fund if they wish.

Special Priority Payments: The pay and conditions package agreed by the Police Negotiating Board in May 2002 introduced new elements into police pay such as payments for the most experienced officers who can demonstrate a high level of professional competence and extra rewards for officers in the most difficult and demanding posts. For 2005–06 I have again split the allocation. A further £9 million (making £18 million) has been included in general grant. £69 million will be available as a specific grant, an increase of £9 million over the provision for 2004–05.

Community Support Officers (CSOs): CSOs free up police officer time, provide reassurance and have powers to deal with aspects of anti-social behaviour and low level crime. For 2005–06, we have allocated £49.5 million for continuing support of CSOs recruited in the first three rounds from 2002 onwards. In addition to this, I announced on 24 November the introduction of a Neighbourhood Policing Fund which would provide initially £50 million to be spent on additional CSOs to bring us up to our target of 5,500 by 31 March 2005. We have allocated £13 million for the last quarter of this financial year and £37 million for continuation funding in 2005–06.

Rural Policing Fund: £30 million is again provided for the particular needs of the 31 forces with the most widespread populations. There is no change to the formulae underpinning the fund.

Airwave: Specific revenue grant for Airwave locally determined or 'menu' services will be made available to ensure that all forces will have received the sums originally promised when Airwave was first introduced. Payments have been made as Airwave became 'Ready for Service' in each force. Delays in rollout in some areas have meant that some forces have not yet obtained the full amount of originally promised funding. A final £17.3 million will be paid to 26 forces. Forces were notified of their allocations on 20 October.

Street Crime Initiative: This was launched by the Prime Minister in April 2002 and the initiative successfully brought down levels of robbery by 24 per cent. in its first two years. There has been a further 15 per cent. reduction across England and Wales in the first quarter of 2004–05. The aim of the initiative was to bring down levels of robbery which had climbed steeply. We have achieved this aim. Funding was due to cease at the end of 2004–05, however we have retained a residual specific grant in 2005–06 of £6.5 million to ensure that the benefits of the initiative are not lost and that we retain our capability to tackle mobile phone theft and other robbery. This will be allocated to forces with the biggest challenges.

Other specific grants

We will make available funding for the following: 75 per cent. of the cost of the London and South East Allowances (£55 million).

Funding support for the cost of free travel for Metropolitan and City of London officers (£3.2 million).

DNA Expansion Programme. Approximately £46 million grants will be available to continue support for this and the successor Programme, the Forensic Integration, Strategy (FIS). The DNA Expansion Programme has helped to demonstrate the value of the effective use of forensics and FIS will help to build on this.

Police authority capital

The Home Secretary and I intend to allocate provision of capital grant for 2005–06 later this month.

Central spending on policing

Central spending on policing will total £653 million. This includes funding for Airwave core charges, DNA, funding to develop the Bichard agenda, National Strategy for Police Information Systems, Criminal Justice System (IT), Police Information Technology Organisation, Centrex, the Independent Police Complaints Commission, Automatic Number Plate Recognition (ANPR) and National Automated Fingerprint Identification Service (NAFIS).

Serious Organised Crime Agency

We are also establishing the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) under the Serious Organised Crime and Police Bill recently introduced into Parliament. This agency will mean a step change in how we fight and defeat organised crime and the harm that is caused by it. The harm is currently estimated to be at least £20 billion a year to the United Kingdom. It will be a new organisation with a new operation that will bring together the functions of NCS and NCIS, which will be abolished as a result, as well as the serious drug trafficking and organised immigration crime aspects of Customs and the Immigration Service. The costs of these constituencies will transfer into SOCA once it is established in April 2006. The cost met by the Home Office in 2005–06 is estimated at £24 million.

Anti-Social Behaviour

The Home Office is investing £75 million over 3 years to 2005–06, including £25 million next year, to deliver many of the commitments in the 'Together tackling anti-social behaviour' action plan.

Safer and Stronger Communities Fund

The newly created Safer and Stronger Communities Fund will bring together existing Home Office and ODPM funding streams. This Fund will total a minimum of £210 million in 2005–06, the Home Office contributing a minimum of £70 million resource and £20 million capital. The police service, subject to the agreement of other local partners, will be able to draw upon these funds to support local crime reduction initiatives.

Asset Recovery Police Incentivisation scheme

This scheme boosts asset recovery by giving forces a direct stake in the proceeds they generate from the work. The police service will receive one third of the total assets recovered over and above £40 million in 2004–05. This will increase to one half in 2005–06 with the maximum benefit available to the police of £65 million.

Pensions

We are addressing the financial pressures of police pensions. Overall costs have grown steadily in recent years but are expected to increase more sharply in 2005–06 because of historic recruitment patterns. From 2006–07 new arrangements for funding pensions will protect forces from extraordinary fluctuations. For 2005–06 the Home Secretary and I are providing some general relief.

The Government Actuary's Department has used the most recent data from each force to calculate cost projections for 2005–06. These have been used to allocate pensions provision in the general grant formula. For the future, we are reviewing current arrangements to make pensions' costs more predictable and manageable. Police authorities would continue to meet police pensions, funded by employer and employee contributions and topped up by central Government if that were insufficient to meet the audited pensions bill.

Conclusion

We have listened carefully to all stakeholders in determining this settlement. We are continuing to provide the resources the police service need to work effectively and matching reform with investment. The proposals will ensure that all forces in England & Wales receive a fair share of resources. There is a guaranteed minimum increase in general grants for all police authorities but resources are also being targeted to where resources are needed most. The settlement will allow us to maintain record police officer numbers as well as expand the growing number of Community Support Officers, who are reassuring the public and helping to reduce crime and fear of crime.

Reconviction Rates

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Paul Goggins): The Home Office has today published two online national statistics reports on reconviction rates, which are the basis for measuring progress against its 2002 public service agreement target, to reduce reoffending for young offenders and for adult offenders by 5 per cent. by 2005–06.

The results are:

for juveniles, a reduction in reconvictions of 4.5 per cent. for those dealt with in 2001 and 3.6 per cent. for 2002, both as compared to 2000; for adults, a 1.8 per cent. reduction for those starting a community sentence or discharged fromcustody in 2001, compared to 2000.

Both of these are encouraging and demonstrate that we are on course to meet our PSA target.

The juvenile report includes a correction of figures published in 2003 in Home Office Online Report 18/03. That report indicated that 2001 figures showed a 22.5 per cent.reduction in reconvictions compared to 1997. As a result of an internal review of the methodology for calculating these figures, errors were identified and we commissioned an independent peer review, which confirmed the methodology used. The corrected figure for the fall in reconvictions between 1997 and 2001 is 7 per cent. Although lower than the previously published figure, this is nevertheless very significant progress.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Agriculture and Environment Biotechnology Commission

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Ms Patricia Hewitt): A report on the review of the Agriculture and Environment Biotechnology Commission (AEBC) has been published today. The review has been conducted by an independent reviewer,

Dr. Neil Williams, in line with the Cabinet Office guidance for reviewing non-departmental public bodies. Its main recommendation is that the AEBC should be wound up by the end of the current financial year.

I, and ministerial colleagues involved in the funding of the AEBC, are grateful for this report. We accept the advice of the review committee, that the report should be published as soon as possible and with minimal comment from Ministers. We would like to express our thanks and support for work that the AEBC has carried out since its creation four years ago. We acknowledge the dedication of its members. The contribution of its chairman, Professor Malcolm Grant, has been key to everything the commission has so far achieved.

We now intend to consider the recommendations of the independent review very carefully, and aim to reach a decision shortly. We will however ensure that we engage with stakeholders prior to making decisions on the future of the AEBC or a successor body.

I have written to the Chairman of the AEBC asking the commission to continue to carry out their current work programme, but to bear in mind the review's recommendations.

The Science and Technology Committee, the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee and the Environmental Audit Committee have been sent copies of this report. It has also been sent to the Chair, Deputy Chair and Members of the AEBC, learned societies and other stakeholders and I have placed copies in the Libraries of both Houses. An electronic version of the report has been placed on the Office of Science and Technology website at: http://www.ost.gov.uk/policy/bodies/review.htm.

TRANSPORT

Departmental Report 2004

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): I have today published my Department's autumn performance report for 2004. Copies have been laid before Parliament and placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

The report sets out the Department's progress made on our seven public service agreement targets over the last six months since the publication of the annual report in May 2004.

Local Transport Capital Settlement 2005–06

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Charlotte Atkins): Today I am announcing firm allocations for the 116 local highway authorities and six passenger transport authorities in England, outside London, for capital expenditure in 2005–06. This settlement amounts to a £1.62 billion package of funding for local transport. This brings the total investment in local transport projects in the last five years to over £8 billion, a 100 per cent. increase compared to the previous five years. Today's announcement clearly demonstrates the Government's continuing commitment to delivering better local transport.

This year's settlement delivers the final tranche of funding for local transport that the Government committed to in the five year indicative allocations, announced in 2000. As previously stated, Ministers have delivered sustained and predictable funding for each of the five years of the first LTP period (2001–06). This emphasises the Government's continuing commitment to the local transport system as a means of delivering sustained improvements to the transport infrastructure and, thus, to making real improvements to people's lives.

Authorities undertaking approved major schemes are also being given allocations to cover their spending on these schemes in 2005–06. I am approving eight new major local transport schemes:

Watford Interchange Scheme, a package of enhancements to Watford Junction rail station;

Derby Inner Ring Road Maintenance, crucial maintenance works in Derby;

West Midlands Red Routes, the first red routes scheme in the West Midlands conurbation;

Liverpool Edge Lane West, a scheme to improve the Eastern gateway to Liverpool, linked toCapital of Culture plans and a key regeneration area;

Castleford Integrated Transport Scheme: package of integrated transport improvements in akey regeneration area.

Bexhill to Hastings Link Road, a new link road which is a crucial component of theregeneration plan for Hastings.

Sittingbourne Northern Distributor Road, a new road to improve access to Sittingbourne. Itwill support the growth of housing and jobs in the Thames Gateway area;

Portsmouth Copnor Bridge, the urgent replacement of a bridge on a key access route forPortsmouth.

I have also given final funding approval to seven major schemes which have now successfully completed all of the necessary statutory procedures:

Barford Bypass in Warwickshire;

Wolverhampton Centre Access and Interchange;

North West Taunton Package;

A38 Northfield Regeneration Route in Birmingham;

A4146 Stoke Hammond and Linslade Bypass in Buckinghamshire;

Trimelines' Quality Bus Scheme in Coventry;

South Lowestoft Relief Road in Sufffolk.

Details of the 2005–06 allocations have been placed in the Libraries of the House. Right hon. and hon. Members representing English constituencies outside London will receive full details for the local transport plan area covering their constituencies, from their regional government office, by the start of next week.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Occupational Pensions Security

The Minister for Pensions (Malcolm Wicks): Since the financial assistance scheme was announced in May we have made good progress in scoping what is an extremely complex problem, involving hundreds of pension schemes, with differing scheme rules and in different stages of winding up. Following an initial data-gathering exercise, we laid a report before the House in June, setting out an estimate of the numbers affected.

Ministers and officials have since consulted with scheme members, trade unions and industry experts to gather and analyse more data, and explore options for the best way to get assistance to those who need it most.

Obviously, the full extent of the problem can be known only once all potentially eligible schemes have been identified and information obtained on the individuals affected and the extent of their losses.

In September, we launched a second, more detailed data-gathering exercise to identify potentially eligible schemes. It is important that all scheme trustees and actuaries who think their schemes might be eligible respond by 10 December. Data-gathering on the position of individuals will follow.

While we continue to seek industry contributions to the financial assistance scheme, full participation in this exercise is an immediate opportunity for the pensions industry to provide valuable practical help and assistance in kind.

As we have previously said, the scheme will not give everyone all of what they want. Nor will the scheme provide the same assistance levels as the pension protection fund, which provides cover going forward, funded by a levy. The primary objective is to provide significant help to those who have lost the most.

The available funding is set. People who are younger have more time to work and save for a pension to replace one that has been wholly or partially lost. Therefore we are minded to gear assistance levels with reference to the number of years an individual is from their retirement. To further focus resources, we are considering making payments for all individuals at age 65.

The pension protection fund has a benefit cap for those below scheme pension age, and it makes sense that the FAS should also have one, which we intend to set at a lower level.

To minimise bureaucracy and to maximise payments to those facing the most serious losses, Ministers intend that, other assistance criteria aside, the FAS will include only those who will receive at least £10 a week, or equivalent, from the scheme.

Information already gathered makes clear that the vast majority of those that had started winding up with significant funding shortfalls did so after January 1997. We can therefore confirm that members of schemes that commenced winding up from 1 January 1997 will potentially be eligible, subject to the other FAS entry rules. Schemes starting to wind up right through to the introduction of the pension protection fund (6 April 2005) will also be potentially eligible.

Solvent employers have a duty to support their schemes and provide the benefits that members were expecting. So, it is right that the FAS focuses on insolvent employers. Nevertheless, issues concerning the definition of "employer solvency" remain under active consideration.

Those who have lost out due to their scheme winding up underfunded have already seen their expectations for retirement upset once. It is therefore important that the resources available for FAS are deployed in a way that ensures that any new promise made to those eligible will be delivered. This points to providing assistance by means of top-up to the occupational pension that individuals would otherwise receive. Trustees should therefore fulfill their duty to wind up schemes in an expeditious manner, including annuitisation where appropriate. We will consider further the precise means of delivery—options include a top-up pension, a cash lump sum, or purchase of an annuity at age 65.

Early next year we would hope to be in a position to announce what we propose by way of indicative assistance levels to those facing the most urgent difficulties, as well as an indicative list of schemes that are likely to be eligible for assistance if those schemes are subsequently shown to comply with the FAS rules.

The complexity of the issue, the amount of data that has had to be collected, and the level of consultation undertaken, means that the formal regulatory consultation will begin in the spring.

In April we will set up the body to administer the scheme and following the formal consultation we will lay regulations before Parliament, making payments as soon as practicable thereafter.

Merthyr Tydfil County Borough Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. Chris Pond): On behalf of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate (BFI) inspection report on Merthyr Tydfil county borough council was published today and copies of the report have been placed in the Library.

Following the housing Green Paper "Quality and Choice: A Decent Home for All", published in April 2000, the Department for Work and Pensions developed a performance framework for housing benefits. The "Performance Standards for Housing Benefits" allow local authorities to make a comprehensive self-assessment of whether they deliver benefit effectively and securely. They are the standards that the Department for Work and Pensions expects local authorities to aspire to and achieve in time.

In 2002–03, Merthyr Tydfil county borough council administered some £11 million in housing benefits, about 10 per cent. of its gross revenue expenditure.

BFI found that Merthyr Tydfil county borough council was providing a poor benefits service and was not at standard in any of the seven functional areas of performance standards.

BFI reports that there have been some improvements in the benefits service following a critical Corporate Governance Inspection by the Audit Commission in Wales in January 2003. However, significant work remains to be done to deliver an effective and secure benefits service.

The report notes a lack of strategic and operational planning in the benefits service that left it without direction. Insufficient and inaccurate management information and limited reporting arrangements meant that senior management and elected members were unaware of the extent of the problems affecting the service.

BFI found levels of inaccuracy to be 90 per cent. for new claims processing and 75 per cent. for changes of circumstances. The council also had a poor record of recovering overpayments and the absence of management checks and controls meant that performance was not properly monitored.

The council had carried out a number of good quality fraud investigations but had not followed all through to a logical conclusion resulting in only 11 prosecutions between April 2001 and March 2004.

The council recognised the need to improve the service and has asked for help from the BFI's Performance Improvement Action Team.

The report makes recommendations to help the council address weaknesses and to further improve the administration of housing benefit and council tax benefit, as well as counter-fraud activities.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is now considering the report and will be asking the council for its proposals in response to the BFI's findings and recommendations.

Chester-le-Street District Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. Chris Pond): On behalf of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate (BFI) inspection report on Chester-le-Street district council was published today and copies of the report have been placed in the Library.

Following the housing Green Paper "Quality and Choice: A Decent Home for All", published in April 2000, the Department for Work and Pensions developed a performance framework for housing benefits. The performance standards for housing benefits' allow local authorities to make a comprehensive self-assessment of whether they deliver benefit effectively and securely. They are the standards that the Department for Work and Pensions expects local authorities to aspire to and achieve in time.

In 2003–04, Chester-le-Street district council administered some £11 million in housing benefits, about 34 per cent. of its gross revenue expenditure.

In June 2004, BFI carried out an inspection of Chester-le-Street district council and found that the council was not at standard in any of the seven functional areas of performance standards. Overall the council is providing a fair level of service.

The report notes that the council has made progress in addressing some of the weaknesses BFI highlighted in the comprehensive performance assessment that took place in October 2003 when BFI considered the benefits service to be providing a poor performance. It can now demonstrate how the service contributes to the council's corporate aims, it has cleared its claims backlog and is achieving upper quartile performance for claims processing.

However, there are still several issues that the council needs to address. There is no performance monitoring at a corporate level and the benefits service has not developed specific performance measures and targets to facilitate the monitoring of progress towards its objectives. The service's objectives are not prioritised and there is no link between these and individual job descriptions.

The council's high level commitment to provide an effective benefits service is not adequately reflected in its operational planning and staff development. Staff training needs have not been assessed and there is no training programme in place. Job descriptions fail to reflect current duties and consequently, lines of responsibility have become blurred.

The BFI reports that counter-fraud performance has suffered because attention has been focused on claims processing. This has resulted in insufficient resources and a lack of effective counter-fraud measures.

The council has developed a service improvement plan and there is now an effective electronic procedures manual to guide staff. Verification procedures are strictly followed and the council has introduced a claim form based upon the Department's claim form.

The report makes recommendations to help the council address weaknesses and to further improve the administration of housing benefit and council tax benefit, as well as counter-fraud activities.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is now considering the report and will be asking the council for its proposals in response to the BFI's findings and recommendations.

City of York Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. Chris Pond): On behalf of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate (BFI) inspection report on the City of York council was published today and copies of the report have been placed in the Library.

Following the housing Green Paper "Quality and Choice: A Decent Home for All", published in April 2000, the Department for Work and Pensions developed a performance framework for housing benefits. The performance standards for housing benefits allow local authorities to make a comprehensive self-assessment of whether they deliver benefit effectively and securely. They are the standards that the Department for Work and Pensions expects local authorities to aspire to and achieve in time.

In 2003–04, the City of York council administered some £29 million in housing benefits, about 11 per cent. of its gross revenue expenditure.

BFI found that City of York council was providing poor benefits service and was not at standard in any of the seven functional areas of performance standards.

A best value review of its revenues and benefits services had resulted in a revised organisational structure and the implementation of a new benefits IT system in September 2003. City of York council said their difficulties with the implementation were the main cause of a backlog of work building up and this adversely affected its performance. In particular, its performance for processing new claims was very poor, taking an average of 81 days.

The report notes key management disciplines of planning, target setting, monitoring and control, checking and assurance testing were inadequate. Limited management information was obtained but only some was used effectively to manage performance.

BFI reports that the quality of verification of evidence to support claims was of a good standard. However, inadequate management checking meant there was insufficient assurance that the benefits system was secure or that benefit was being paid correctly. The report raises concerns about failures to comply with key legal requirements of housing benefit and council tax benefit legislation.

The council did not keep reliable records of customer complaints and many appeals remained outstanding for long periods.

The benefits service had failed to respond to internal audit recommendations and public accountability was being compromised by inadequate arrangements for reporting audit activity and performance to elected members.

The report notes serious failings in the recovery of overpayments. City of York council was recovering overpayments even though customers had not been advised of the overpayment decisions.

The council's efforts to counter fraud were more positive and it had achieved some impressive results as demonstrated by the full range of sanctions being applied and every case submitted for prosecution had been successful.

The report makes recommendations to help the council address weaknesses and to further improve the administration of housing benefit and council tax benefit, as well as counter-fraud activities.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is now considering the report and will be asking the council for its proposals in response to the BFI's findings and recommendations.

Rutland County Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. Chris Pond): On behalf of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate (BFI) inspection report on Rutland county council was published today and copies of the report have been placed in the Library.

Following the housing Green Paper "Quality and Choice: A Decent Home for All", published in April 2000, the Department for Work and Pensions developed a performance framework for housing benefits. The "Performance Standards for Housing Benefits" allow local authorities to make a comprehensive self-assessment of whether they deliver benefit effectively and securely. They are the standards that the Department for Work and Pensions expects local authorities to aspire to and achieve in time.

In 2002–03, Rutland county council administered some £3.72 million in housing benefits, about 12 per cent. of its gross revenue expenditure.

In June 2004 BFI carried out an inspection of Rutland county council and, although it was performing well in a number of elements of performance standards, it was not at standard in any of the seven functional areas.

BFI found the council to be providing a fair service. There was a strong commitment at all levels within the council to provide an efficient benefits service and a high proportion of customers expressed satisfaction with the service provided.

The report notes that there were some strengths in the council's benefits service including clear and accessible claim forms, clear informative decision letters and effective internal security practices.

The average time taken to process new claims was 19 days against the standard of 36 days and 90 per cent. of new claims were processed within 14 days of receiving all information. Verification of evidence supporting benefit claims was good. However, at the time of BFI's inspection, there was no management checking.

The council identified and calculated benefit overpayments quickly but BFI considered that it needed to improve the accuracy of its management information and use all the recovery methods available to it.

The inspection was prompted by the council's failure to give any priority to countering benefit fraud. In June 2004, the council started to address its responsibilities to fight benefit fraud with the creation of a dedicated counter-fraud team.

BFI reports the council has been receptive to the findings in the report and implemented a number of changes immediately.

The report makes recommendations to help the council address weaknesses and to further improve the administration of housing benefit and council tax benefit, as well as counter-fraud activities.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is now considering the report and will be asking the council for its proposals in response to the BFI's findings and recommendations.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Departmental Strategy

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Mr. David Lammy): My noble Friend the Secretary of State has made the following written ministerial statement:

"I am today publishing DCA'S strategy for the next five years. This explains how we intend to reform and modernise the justice system and constitution so that they are transparent, accountable and responsive to the needs of the public. An overview of the strategy and the detailed strategy itself are both available on the DCA website www.dca.gov.uk/, and I shall also be placing copies in the Libraries of both Houses".

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Fire and Rescue National Framework

The Minister for Local and Regional Government (Mr. Nick Raynsford): Today the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is publishing the 2005–06 fire and rescue national framework.

The Government remain committed to reduce the number of fire deaths and deliberate fires. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's fire public service agreement target commits us to achieving long-term reductions in fire deaths and arson, including in the worst off areas. The Government also recognise the fire and rescue national framework sets out the strategy for meeting the Government's objectives and delivering an improved service that achieves better value for money for the communities it serves.

At the request of fire and rescue authorities we agreed to publish the 2005–06 national framework in time to inform authorities' budget setting processes. The 2005–06 national framework reflects progress that has been made since the publication of the 2004–05 national framework in July 2004 and reflects comments we have received in response to our consultation exercise. We have carefully considered all responses and have reflected them in the national framework where appropriate. The Government's full response to the comments is published on the ODPM website.

The national framework is a forward looking document. Fire and rescue authorities will soon begin the process of comprehensive performance assessment. Fire CPA will provide a robust assessment of progress by the service since publication of the White Paper and a firm basis for further improvement.

The 2005–06 national framework has effect under section 21(6) of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004 as a revision, which appears to the Secretary of State to be significant, of the 2004–05 national framework.

Copies of the 2005–06 national framework will be made available in the Libraries of both Houses.

Regional Spatial Strategy for the East of England

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): On Wednesday this week the East of England Regional Assembly (EERA) will be launching its proposals for revising the Regional Spatial Strategy (RSS) for the East of England. I am today announcing that public consultation on EERA's draft proposals will commence on Wednesday and run until 16 March 2005.

This is the first RSS to come forward under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004. The draft revisions set out EERA's view as to the appropriate spatial development strategy to guide planning and development in the East of England to the year 2021. The RSS sets out EERA's proposals for the development of the region's economy, housing and transport infrastructure. It also encompasses policies and proposals for the environment, town centres, waste, culture, sport and recreation, and mineral extraction.

The RSS will provide the regional framework for the plans and strategies of a range of public, private and voluntary organisations, including the preparation of local authority development plans and local transport plans.

These proposals have been prepared by EERA as the regional planning body in consultation with a wide range of regional and local stakeholders.

In order to allow for the Christmas holiday period, public consultation has been extended from the minimum 12 weeks required by statute to 14 weeks, ending on 16 March 2005. It is open to anybody to make representations on the content of EERA's draft RSS. Public consultation is a key part of our planning reforms and I would urge stakeholders to take the opportunity offered to make their views known. Full details about the consultation document and how to respond are available on EERA's website and at local council offices.

The consultation will lead on to an examination in public (EiP) to debate and test EERA's draft proposals. The EiP is due to start in September 2005. A panel independent of EERA and central government will oversee the EiP process. The panel will, on the basis of the representations received, decide which matters should be discussed and who should be invited to attend.

Following the EiP, the panel will prepare a report of findings and recommendations to the Government on how the draft RSS might be improved. This will be a public report, due in early 2006. The Government will then issue proposed changes to the draft RSS, taking account of the panel's recommendations and representations on any matters not considered at the EiP. The proposed changes are likely to be published for public consultation during summer 2006.

The Secretary of State will then make any final amendments in the light of the responses to the proposed changes consultation, and issue the final RSS for the East of England late in 2006.

Copies of the relevant documents will be available in the Libraries of both Houses and have been provided for all of the region's MPs, MEPs and local authorities.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFAIRS

Sustainable Waste Management

The Minister for the Environment and Agri-environment (Mr. Elliot Morley): My right hon. Friend, the Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill), and I are today publishing four consultation papers on waste strategies and planning which aim to provide a more integrated and effective framework in England for delivering the significant expansion in new waste management facilities needed to meet EU obligations and national policy.

The Government's vision for waste, embodying the principles of sustainable development, is to protect the environment and human health by producing less waste and using it as a resource wherever possible. In particular, this means reducing reliance on landfill. The way we handle waste has to change dramatically. This means a major change in our attitude to waste: manufacturers, consumers, waste managers and central and local government alike. And it means a step change in waste management, including significant new investment in waste plant.

The Government do not underestimate the size of the task. Some waste streams, such as household waste, continue to grow, driven by consumer demand and economic growth. Other waste streams, and treatment routes, are subject to increasingly rigorous controls and standards to reduce their harmfulness. And manufacturers are increasingly required to take responsibility for the treatment or disposal of products at the end of their life.

Central Government have responsibility for setting the policy and legislative framework. Regional planning bodies and local government have responsibility for generating the strategies and plans which guide delivery of those policies through provision of the infrastructure and services needed on the ground. The process depends vitally on long term municipal waste management strategies and development plans which together identify the amount of waste, how it will be managed and the facilities needed, and ensure their adequate and timely provision.

The consultation sets out proposals for a stronger, simpler and more integrated framework for delivering those outcomes. The suite of papers are:

(i) the draft new planning policy statement (PPS) 10: "Planning for Sustainable Waste Management";

(ii) draft guidance on the preparation of municipal waste management strategies;

(iii) proposed changes to waste strategy 2000, underpinning (i) and (ii) above; and

(iv) proposals for the periodic provision of national data and advice on waste arisings, recycling potential and any national capacity needs.

The Government expects all local authorities either to produce or contribute to the development or revision of a municipal waste management strategy. In some areas this is a statutory requirement. The new guidance on municipal waste management strategies replaces the guidance published by the Department of Environment, Transport and the Regions in 2001. It aims to provide greater clarity on the Government's waste management objectives and decision making principles, the role of the strategies and the key requirements for developing and reviewing them. It also emphasises the need for achieving best value through both partnership working with other local authorities and the private and community sectors.

The planning system is pivotal to the adequate and timely provision of the new facilities needed for all types of waste. In revising existing planning guidance, the aim is to provide clarity on what is required regionally and locally to ensure that decisions are made at the most appropriate level and at the right time. The Government expect development plans to be up-to-date and fit for purpose. And waste planning authorities should plan for, and consent, the necessary number and range of facilities to support sustainable waste management.

Both documents will:

underline the need for effective integration of waste strategies and plahning processes andpolicies regionally and locally, with full appraisal of options in their development; provide the framework for setting a long term vision for 15–20 years ahead and a short termdetailed plan of action; provide for regular (annual) monitoring and review, if required; emphasise the need for early and continuous community engagement.

The review of the effectiveness of the existing guidance, which informed the preparation of the consultation papers, included the underpinning decision-making principles set out in waste strategy 2000[1] in response to concerns expressed by a number of stakeholders. The proposed changes to waste strategy 2000 are set out in full in the third consultation paper and are incorporated in the draft planning policy statement PPS10 and draft guidance on municipal waste management strategies.

The key objective of waste policy of moving waste management up the waste hierarchy[2] has not changed.

Municipal waste management strategies and spatial plans must also ensure the delivery of the objectives of proximity of waste disposal laid down in the EU waste framework directive and of self sufficiency. These objectives are now incorporated in the objectives which must be delivered through municipal waste management strategies and development plans. Decisions on planning applications must be in line with the objectives and planning strategy in the relevant development plan. Hitherto proximity and self sufficiency had been set down as stand alone principles in waste strategy 2000. They have also been re-formulated to reflect the obligations on local authorities: to provide a framework in which communities take more responsibility for their own waste (self-sufficiency), and that waste should be disposed of as near as possible to the place of production (proximity).

The role of the best practicable environmental option process in decision-making was also reviewed. The process encapsulates important principles including consultation, option appraisal, assessing long and short term environmental impacts and cost effectiveness. These remain valid and are reflected in EU and UK legislation and its implementation.

In spatial planning, regional spatial strategies and local development documents are now required to have a strategic environmental assessment, while a broader sustainability appraisal—covering additionally social and economic issues—is required by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004. These assessments, combined with the duty to have regard to national Government objectives and guidance in preparing and implementing waste plans, will deliver the principles that underpin the best practical environmental option process. The new planning policy statement 10 does not, therefore, include best practical environmental option.

Similarly, the role that the best practical environmental option played in the development of municipal waste management strategies has been replaced by the requirement for a strategic environmental assessment combined with a thorough evaluation of social and economic factors.

The draft planning policy statement 10 includes a requirement for regional spatial strategies to take account of periodic Government advice on waste arisings and recycling potential and any nationally identified need for waste management facilities. The purpose of central Government advice would be to encourage regional planning bodies to take a consistent approach to forecasting and monitoring waste arisings and the proportion of waste that can realistically be recycled. The fourth consultation paper sets out the possible scope of such advice and the options for drawing it up and disseminating it.

The material in these consultation papers is intended to support delivery of the Government's vision for sustainable waste management by providing a clearer, consistent, and integrated policy framework for local authority municipal waste management strategies and spatial planning.

Not collecting or managing waste is not an option. Everyone has a role to play: manufacturers, waste managers, local communities and the authorities which serve them. These papers aim to help all those involved take their share of responsibility for reducing and managing waste.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Export Licence Application (Bosnia and Herzegovina)

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Denis MacShane): In September 2004 the Government issued a licence for the export of ballistic body armour vests to the Ministry of Security in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Ministry of Security requires the vests for the State Information and Protection Agency (SIPA). SIPA is responsible for, inter alia, diplomatic protection, which includes the British embassy in Sarajevo as well as the mission of EU partners and other allies; tackling organised crime; and investigating war crimes.

An EU arms embargo has been in place against Bosnia and Herzegovina since 1996. The purpose of the embargo was to aid the establishment of peace and stability for the people of the region, taking into account in particular the need to ensure the safety of international troops and civilian personnel deployed. The embargo was amended in 1999 to exclude demining equipment and the transfer of small arms to the police.

We fully support the EU embargo. However, we are, in limited circumstances, prepared to make exemptions where denying an export would frustrate the purposes of the embargo. The UK has been active in encouraging Bosnia and Herzegovina to take greater responsibility for maintaining the rule of law and strengthening civilian policing. I am confident that granting this exception is fully consistent with this responsible approach of supporting the development of civilian policing while respecting the aims of the embargo.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces Chaplains

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Ivor Caplin): The armed forces attach importance to supporting the spiritual development of their personnel and to facilitating, where possible, religious observance. The service chaplaincy services have a long and distinguished record of caring for service personnel. However, existing chaplains are drawn exclusively from Christian denominations, and although they provide valuable moral, pastoral and welfare support to all service personnel, they are not able to provide spiritual support to those of faiths other than Christian.

I have therefore been considering, in close consultation with the faith community representatives on the Ministry of Defence's religious advisory panel, how best we might enhance our provision for the spiritual support of personnel and their families from faith communities other than Christian. This reflects the increasing diversity of service personnel, and our desire to provide an environment which welcomes and encourages people throughout society to join, and stay with, the armed forces.

These consultations have resulted in a decision to recruit civilian chaplains to the armed forces from the Buddhist, Hindu, Muslim and Sikh faiths, which are those, other than Christian, most represented within the armed forces. These chaplains will be MOD civil servants, but will be integrated into the existing service chaplaincy organisations.

Existing longstanding arrangements under which the Jewish community provides an honorary chaplain to the armed forces will continue for the time being, but it is expected that in due course a further civilian chaplain will be recruited to bring the arrangements in line with those for the other faiths.

Advertisements for these four posts will appear in the national press on Thursday 16 December, and in appropriate faith media at the closest convenient date. The relevant faith communities will participate fully in the selection process that will follow in the new year.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Regional Housing Investment

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): I am announcing today the publication of a consultation paper concerning the regional split of funds for housing investment by local authorities and housing associations allocated through regional housing pots.

The sustainable communities plan introduced new arrangements for allocation for mainstream funding to support housing investment. Under these new arrangements allocations are increasingly being directed to address strategic regional priorities based on advice from regional housing boards.

The split of such investment funding between the nine English regions has for many years been allocated on a largely formulaic basis. The paper seeks views on our proposal that the split continues to be made on a formulaic basis, but the formula itself be simplified and linked more directly to the Government's housing objectives and associated public service agreement targets on balancing supply and demand (PSA5) and on decent homes (PSA7).

Consultation will run until 4 February 2005. Copies of the consultation paper have been made available in the Libraries of both Houses and it is available on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website.

HEALTH

SSRIs

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Ms Rosie Winterton): My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Department of Health (Lord Warner) made the following Written Ministerial Statement on 6 December 2004.

Following interest in both Houses about the issues surrounding the safety of selective serotonin re-uptake inhibitors (SSRIs), this statement informs the House of the completion of the United Kingdom review of SSRIs and the publication today of the report. The Committee on Safety of Medicine (CSM) expert working group has now delivered comprehensive advice on the use of these drugs in children, young people and adults following a thorough review of all the evidence available. This gives parents, patients and those who treat depressive illnesses the information they need to make informed decisions about treatment of these potentially devastating conditions.

In 2003 an expert working group of the CSM was set up to consider further the safety of SSRIs, with particular reference to suicidal behaviour and withdrawal reactions. The expert group has examined all the evidence available from a wide range of sources, including a specific objective to listen to the patient viewpoint. The expert group has already reached conclusions on the use of SSRIs in children and the Government have published its findings. This latest report focuses on the use of SSRIs in adults. The work of this group is now complete and a comprehensive account of this work is being published today. In short, it concludes that:

there should be strengthened warnings on coming off SSRIs at the end of a course of treatment and how to minimise the risk of experiencing a withdrawal reaction

there should be specific advice on using the recommended dose of the SSRI because for the majority of SSRIs in depression, clinical trial data do not show an additional benefit above the lowest recommended dose there should be clearer advice on what is known about the risk of suicide and suicidal behaviour—while clinical trial data cannot rule out a modest increase in the risk compared to placebo, there is now good evidence from large population studies that there is no clear increase in the risk of suicide in relation to SSRIs compared to other antidepressants there is no clear evidence of an increased risk of self-harm and suicidal thoughts in young adults of 18 years or over. But individuals mature at different rates and young adults are at a higher background risk of suicidal behaviour than older adults, so as a precautionary measure young adults treated with SSRIs should be closely monitored. The expert group also recommended that in further research on the safety and efficacy of SSRIs young adults should be assessed separately.

The CSM has also recommended that treatment with venlafaxine (Efexor) should only be initiated by specialists and that there should be in place arrangements for ongoing supervision of the patient.

The report includes the key evidence on which the advice of the expert working group is based, including summaries of clinical trials submitted by companies at the MHRA's request. This unusual step demonstrates the MHRA's commitment to being as open as possible in drug regulation.

The report of the expert group is being published alongside guidelines from the National Institute for Clinical Excellence (NICE) on depression and anxiety. In this way, the new advice of CSM can feed directly into clinical practice. Copies of the expert group's report and the NICE guidelines have been placed in the Library.

Communications to patients and prescribers are taking place today and copies of these materials have also been placed in the Library. SSRIs are an important group of medicines, which help patients who suffer depressive illness. The health benefits of SSRIs in adults are still considered to outweigh the risk of adverse drug reactions. Patients currently taking venlafaxine should not stop taking their medicine but should consult their doctor for advice on treatment as should patients taking other SSRIs who are experiencing any side effects or are concerned about their treatment.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Incitement to Religious Hatred

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. David Blunkett): I am pleased to be able to give the Serious Organised Crime and Police Bill its second reading today.

Part IV of the Serious Organised Crime and Police Bill contains provisions to combat the activities of the extremists within our community who stir up hatred against groups targeted because of their religious beliefs, or lack of religious beliefs, as well as those targeted on racial grounds.

Evidence to the House of Lords Select Committee on Religious Offences in 2003 highlighted the need for such protection and we have had ample further examples of that need since. We need to combat the extremists who stir up such hatred so that people can be free to practice their religion without fear. When people hate others because of their race or religious beliefs it is often manifested; this might be in the commission of subsequent crimes motivated by hate, or in abuse, discrimination or prejudice. The reactions vary from person to person, but all hatred has a detrimental effect on both individual victims and society as a whole.

These measures build on the protection already afforded by the existing incitement to racial hatred offences by amending the offences in Part III of the Public Order Act 1986 to also protect people targeted because of their religious beliefs or lack of religious beliefs. They will make it an offence for a person to use words or behaviour or material that they know are threatening, abusive or insulting, and which are intended or likely to stir up hatred against the target of those threats, abuse or insults.

Here are two examples of situations where, taking into account all the circumstances, the prosecuting authorities would consider taking action under the new offence:

In response to an extreme racist organisation widely distributing material setting out a range of insulting and highly inflammatory reasons for hating Islam. Such reasons have included suggesting that Muslims are a threat to British people and liable to molest women and that they should be urgently driven out of Britain.

In response to extremists within a faith community making repeated threatening statements stirring up followers to look for ways to make trouble for unbelievers saying that God would never ever allow unbelievers to be pleased with them and created them to be enemies.

These measures will be applied with equity, protecting people of varied religious beliefs and of none. They will provide a powerful response and a strong deterrent to extreme political and racist individuals and organisations who target people because of their religious beliefs and also to religious extremists who stir up hatred of others because they do not share their religious beliefs.

The Government are committed to the preservation of the right to legitimate freedom of speech and freedom of religion. This includes the right to engage in free and vigorous debate about religion, including the right to criticise religious beliefs and practices. The Government also recognise that proselytism is an integral activity for many faith communities. Such debate, criticism and proselytism can be undertaken without using threatening, abusive or insulting behaviour that is intended or likely to stir up hatred. Expressions of antipathy or dislike of particular religions or their adherents can also be made without crossing the thresholds of the offence. This provision will not restrict but protect people's legitimate freedom to practise their religion without fear.

The provisions do not make any blanket exceptions, for example, for any activity which may be presented as a religious activity or for the recitation of any passage from sacred texts. This is because, although the vast majority of such activities would not meet any part of the thresholds for this offence, in extreme circumstances it is, for example, possible to quote or misquote passages of sacred texts out of context so that they become threatening, abusive or insulting and intended or likely to stir up hatred. Such activities would rightly be caught by the scope of the offence. Nor do the provisions define all the terms of the offence. This is deliberate and will provide the enforcement agencies with the flexibility to ensure that these offences make a full contribution in combating hate-mongering in all its various forms and contexts.

The proposals retain the high thresholds and necessary safeguards contained in the existing incitement to racial hatred provision. The primary safeguards are contained in the offence itself. It has a two-part structure which examines not only the content of the words, behaviour, written material, recordings or programmes, which must be threatening, abusive or insulting, but also examines the effect of the material which must be intended or likely to stir up racial or religious hatred.

"Religious hatred" is defined as "hatred against a group of persons defined by reference to religious belief or lack of religious belief". Accordingly, the offence will capture only those activities which stir up hatred of a group of people defined by their beliefs or lack of religious beliefs. It is not a new blasphemy law and will protect people rather than ideologies.

Hatred is a strong term, relating to an extreme emotion. The offences will not criminalise material that just stirs up ridicule, prejudice, dislike, contempt or anger or which simply causes offence. A further safeguard in the legislation is that a person who does not intend to stir up hatred is not guilty of an offence if they did not know that their words, behaviour, written material, recording or programmes were threatening, abusive or insulting. Furthermore the offences do not apply to anything that takes place in one's own home. All prosecutions require the consent of the Attorney-General, which will prevent the offences being misused through private prosecutions.

Of themselves, the following would not be caught by the offence:

criticising the beliefs, teachings or practices of a religion or its followers; for example by claiming that they are false or harmful;

proselytising one's own religion or urging followers of a different religion to cease practising theirs; for example Christians claiming that Jesus Christ is the way the truth, the life and the only way to God, Muslims exhorting people to submit to the will of Allah, or Atheists claiming that there is no God; telling jokes about religions;

expressing antipathy or dislike of particular religions or their adherents.

Of themselves these activities do not meet the criteria of the offences. However if a person were to use threatening, abusive or insulting words, actions or material with the intent or likely effect that hatred would be stirred up whilst undertaking the actions listed above, then by definition, they could rightly fall into the scope of the offence.

These measures accord with, and will operate in the light of, the guarantees afforded by the European Convention on Human Rights and the Human Rights Act 1998. Under the Human Rights Act any Court in interpreting legislation, including these offences, must do so in a way that is compatible with the rights under the European Convention. With these offences the rights in play are going to be Article 9, the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion, and Article 10, the right to freedom of expression. In interpreting these offences the Court will have to consider both of these rights and, if necessary, balance one against the other. Article 9 states that everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion and that this right includes freedom to change his religion or belief and freedom, either alone or in community with others and in public or private, to manifest his religion or belief, in worship, teaching, practice and observance. It also states that freedom to manifest one's religion or beliefs may be subject to limitations prescribed by law and necessary in the interests of public safety, for the protection of public order and the rights and freedoms of others.

Article 10 of the European Convention states that everyone has the right to freedom of expression and that this includes the freedom to hold opinions and to receive and impart information and ideas. Similarly it also states that the exercise of these freedoms, since it carries with it duties and responsibilities, may be subject to restrictions prescribed by law that are necessary in the interests of public safety, the prevention of disorder or crime and the protection of the reputation or rights of others.

These offences are justifiable, necessary and proportionate measures for the prevention of disorder or crime and the protection of the rights of others; the need for which is reflected in these articles. Indeed because these provisions protect groups from hatred directed against them because of religious belief, they safeguard the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion enshrined in Article 9 of the European Convention on Human Rights.

The Crown Prosecution Service will produce guidance on how these offences will be enforced but it is important that this guidance does not pre-empt the consideration of these proposals by Parliament. There will be consultation on that guidance as it is developed and it will be subject to regular review.

With the support of my colleague, the Attorney-General, I make this statement as a matter of public record, which can be drawn upon in any future decisions taken by all the enforcement agencies, to clarify to all that this new measure will provide protection for those who need it without restricting legitimate freedom of speech and religion.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Nuclear Decommissioning Funding Account

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Ms Patricia Hewitt): I am making this statement as required by section 31(6) of the Energy Act 2004 ("the Act") to coincide with the issuing of the ministerial directions giving the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) its designated responsibilities under the Act. The statement reflects the transitional funding arrangements for the NDA that will be put in place to allow it to get on with its work during the EC Commission investigation into notified state aid to the NDA.

In determining the amounts to be credited to the Nuclear Decommissioning Funding Account ("NDFA") under section 31(4)(c) of the Act, the following policy applies:

Basis upon which determinations for the purposes of section 31(4)(c) are to be made

1. Pending the outcome of the European Commission's investigation announced on 1 December 2004 into the UK Government's establishment of the NDA, the basis on which any determinations for the purposes of section 31(4)(c) are to be made will be to credit to the NDFA such amounts as are sufficient to provide a sound basis for funding the NDA's activities consistent with:

(a) the requirement that no new state resources shall be made available to the NDA for operating, cleaning up or decommissioning in respect of any of the economic activities of the NDA which are the subject of the Commission's investigation; and

(b) the requirement that no advantage shall be conferred on BNFL or its successor companies pending the outcome of the Commission's investigation, and in particular that the net asset position of BNFL and the group of companies of which it forms part must not be improved.

2. The amount of any determination for the purposes of section 31(4)(c) in relation to any financial year shall be the sum of the following elements:

(a) an amount equal to the value of any assets taken out of BNFL's existing resources comprising the nuclear liabilities investment portfolio ("NLIP") by way of any nuclear transfer scheme which takes effect under section 42 of the Act during that financial year;

(b) in respect of the NDA's responsibilities in relation to sites operated by UKAEA as at the date of this statement, and nuclear liabilities for which responsibility is, as at the date of this statement, accepted by UKAEA, such amount as is appropriate within the Department of Trade and Industry's relevant expenditure limit;

(c) in respect of the NDA's responsibilities in relation to nuclear liabilities for which responsibility was formerly accepted by the Ministry of Defence but is, as at the date of this statement, accepted by the Department of Trade and Industry, such amount as is appropriate within the Department of Trade and Industry's relevant expenditure limit.

3. To the extent that the assets referred to in paragraph 2(a) above do not comprise cash, their value is to be determined as at the date upon which the transfer scheme whereby they are transferred takes effect.

The minimum credit balance of the NDFA

4. For the purposes of section 31(7)(b) of the Act, the minimum credit balance of the NDFA shall be £1.

5. The basis on which this determination has been made is that the sums to be comprised in the determination in any financial year in accordance with paragraph 2 above (combined with any other amounts credited under section 31(4)(a), (c) or (d)) are expected to be sufficient to fund the NDA's activities during the financial year in question, but no more. It is intended that grants made under section 22(1) of the Act will be subject to conditions under section 22(2) which will restrict the use of sums drawn against the credits referred to in paragraphs 2(b) and (c) above to the matters respectively referred to in those paragraphs. To the extent that I conclude that further funding can and should be made available to the NDA in any given year (pending the outcome of the Commission's investigation) other than in respect of the matters referred to in paragraphs 2(b) and (c), further amounts will (if appropriate) be transferred from the NLIP and any determination which has been made under section 31(4)(c) of the Act will be revised such that corresponding credits will be made to the NDFA. Amounts equal to these credits will then be remitted to the NDA by way of grant under section 22(1) of the Act.

6. The figure of £1 will allow the maximum amount to be remitted to the NDA by way of grant under section 22(1) of the Act while still leaving a credit balance in the account.

Interpretation

7. In this statement, unless the context otherwise requires, expressions defined in the Act have the meanings given to them by the Act.

8. In addition, the following expressions have the following meanings:

economic activities means the provision of services hitherto undertaken by companies in the BNFL group that might in principle have been provided by a private sector entity, given the existence of a commercial market place and the potential for profit making. NDA's responsibilities in relation to "economic activities" will include responsibilities in respect of economic nuclear liabilities; economic nuclear liabilities means those nuclear liabilities which exist or may come into existence in respect of sites operated as at the date of thisstatement by companies in the BNFL group, excluding those nuclear liabilities referred to in paragraphs 2(b) and (c) above.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Social Security Benefits Uprating

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Alan Johnson): The proposed rates of benefit for 2005 are set out in the table below. The annual uprating of benefits will take place for state pension and most other benefits in the first full week of the tax year. In 2005, this will be the week beginning 11 April. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland proposes to introduce similar changes for Northern Ireland.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces Pay Review Body

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): I am pleased to announce that my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence has appointed Mrs. Alison Gallico, Professor Derek Leslie and retired Air Vice Marshall Ian Stewart, for a three-year term of office as members of the armed forces pay review body, commencing March 2005. These appointments have been conducted in accordance with the guidance of the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): Today, I am pleased to announce that I have set the following performance targets for 2004-05 for the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science.

Delivery of Outputs

Fulfil commitments on time, within budget and to agreed standards of quality.

Overall delivery of milestones to exceed 90 per cent.

Customer Focus

Provide a high standard of services to the satisfaction of customers.

Increase the customer satisfaction survey overall score to 82 per cent.

Strong Science

Enhance scientific capability and reputation.

Achieve high standard of excellence based on indicators of scientific andtechnical quality.

Financial

Recover the full cost of our services and invest for the future.

100 per cent. cost recovery

Efficient, Cost Effective Operation

Operate with simple, reliable and effective processes.

Income growth to be at least 2 per cent. higher than support cost growth.

Investment in People

Respect and help the agency's people to develop.

Increase the annual staff survey satisfaction score to 64 per cent.

Five-year Strategy

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): I am publishing today the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs five-year strategy, "Delivering the Essentials of Life". Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and are available from the Defra web site at: www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/5year-strategy/index.htm/.

Defra was created to integrate farming, rural and environment policy across the board. It already has a substantial track record of achievement. The new strategy shows how we plan to move forward in the priority areas of environmental leadership at all levels, caring for rural communities and delivering a sustainable future for farming.

This strategy sets out concrete measures to accelerate Britain's transformation from environmental laggard to environmental leader. The environment starts on our doorstep. Our Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Bill contains new powers to tackle the blight of litter, fly-tipping, graffiti and abandoned cars. We want to help make it easier for business and families to be green. Our new partnership with supermarkets will increase recycling by hundreds of thousands of tonnes. It sets out plans to tackle climate change through action to make our schools, our homes and our workplaces more energy-efficient and to help businesses save money by saving energy.

Defra was created to care for rural communities. We know that the priority issue for those who want to live or work in rural areas is the lack of affordable rural housing. So we are changing the planning guidance to make it easier to build affordable rural homes where they are needed.

We are already embarked in a partnership with farming for a sustainable future. The single farm payment and whole farm approach will create "one form, one date and one face from Government"—and is part of our promise to cut red tape.

Achieving this vision will mean Defra becoming a different kind of Department—focused on the successful achievement of clear outcomes, and with strengthened capacity for delivery. By March 2008 the core Department will be some 60 per cent. smaller than when Defra was created, a reduction from the 8,000 people in the core department when Defra was formed in 2001, to around 3,200 in 2008.

Taken together this sets out a prospectus to deliver real improvements across the wide range of our responsibilities.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Constitution for Europe

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): I will today lay before the House Command Paper 6429, containing the final text of the EU constitutional treaty signed by Heads of State and Government in Rome on 29 October. Copies will be placed in the Library of the House and the Vote Office. The final treaty can also be accessed on the FCO website: www.fco.gov.uk/.

An explanatory memorandum will be laid with the Command Paper. The White Papers (September 2003 Cm 5934 and September 2004 Cm 6309) give further information about the Government's negotiations on the text, and explanation of its contents.

TRANSPORT

Local Transport Plans and Accessibility Planning

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Charlotte Atkins): Today I am announcing the publication of new "Guidance on Local Transport Plans", and on "Accessibility Planning in Local Transport Plans". Most English local transport authorities outside London are required, by the Transport Act 2000, to prepare local transport plans in accordance with this statutory guidance. The guidance requires provisional local transport plans by July 2005 and final versions by March 2006.

The new guidance on local transport plans describes how the Government expect those authorities to plan and deliver better transport from 2006 to 2011. It aims to transform the vital public service of local transport planning, ensuring this service not only delivers solutions to local transport problems, but also delivers a range of other opportunities to people, and improves their wider quality of life. Most local authorities are required, in particular, to plan better access to employment and services for people at risk of social exclusion. This is the subject of the accompanying detailed guidance on accessibility planning.

As part of the Government's commitment to sustained investment in better local transport, I am also setting out, in the form of provisional planning guidelines for local highway maintenance and integrated transport, our intention to provide sustained and stable investment for smaller local authority transport schemes and maintenance schemes. These provisional planning guidelines, amounting to £6.5 billion over the period 2006–11, will help authorities to develop ambitious and realistic new local transport plans.

I have placed copies of the new guidance in the Libraries of both Houses.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Sickness Absence

The Minister for Work (Jane Kennedy): In the spending review 2004 announcement my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer asked the former Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, my right hon. Friend the Member for Oxford, East (Mr. Smith) to undertake a review of long term sickness absence management in the public sector. He also asked the Minister for the Cabinet Office and the Cabinet Secretary to review the current arrangements for the self certification of short-term absence in the civil service.

Many of the issues around managing attendance affect both long and short-term sickness absence. The two strands of work have therefore been brought together in a single review, produced jointly by the ministerial task force for health, safety and productivity and the Cabinet Office, following consultation with stakeholders. I have today placed a copy of the review in the Library.

We found evidence that good practice exists in a number of areas, but that previous initiatives to reduce sickness absence had failed to deliver their objectives. We have concluded that the main areas for further action are the need to:

- secure sustained commitment from managers at the top level;
- deliver the right data and systems to support better attendance management; and
- provide leadership and support for line managers;
- ensure regular and supportive contact for those who are absent due to sickness.

In combination, these are the factors that we identified in public and in private sector case studies as being central to successful absence management. We will also pilot a range of more specific ideas for managing short and long-term absence.

The taskforce will continue to have a role in making sure that the recommendations are implemented. The taskforce will draw up a delivery plan and monitor its implementation.

CABINET OFFICE

Civil Contingencies Act

The Minister for the Cabinet Office (Ruth Kelly): I am today launching the public consultation on the regulations and guidance in support of the Civil Contingencies Act 2004, which received Royal Assent on 18 November.

The Act and accompanying non-legislative measures will deliver a single framework for civil protection in the UK, modernising outdated legislation to meet the challenges of the 21st century.

The purpose of the public consultation is to consider the suitability and content of the underpinning regulations and guidance for practitioners and is in accordance with the Government's commitment to launch the consultation shortly after Royal Assent.

Copies of the consultation document, the draft regulations and guidance will be placed in the Library of the House. They can also be viewed on the UK resilience website www.ukresilience.info/home.htm.

The consultation period will run until 3 March and is being carried out in accordance with the Cabinet Office code of practice on consultation. The final regulations and guidance will be drawn up in light of the responses to the consultation.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Electoral Commission Reports

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Mr. Christopher Leslie): My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister and I are jointly publishing today the Government response to the Electoral Commission's report "Voting for change".

In its report "Voting for change: An electoral law modernisation programme", the Electoral Commission has made a range of proposals and recommendations for electoral reform to address the needs of the voter and make elections more accessible, to protect the integrity of the democratic process, and to modernise electoral registers. The Commission advocates the modernisation of registers, which would involve the introduction of individual registration building blocks on which safe and secure arrangements for voting away from polling stations could be delivered.

Our response welcomes many of the Electoral Commission's recommendations and sets out our priorities for change. These are focussed on three key outcomes: engaging more people in the political process; building public confidence in the electoral system; and delivering electoral services in a way that is more efficient and more responsive to the needs of the voter.

We are committed to maintaining the security and integrity of the electoral process and to enhancing its openness and transparency. We will ensure that any innovative methods of voting that are introduced will be as secure, if not more secure, than the traditional methods. Specifically we are proposing, when parliamentary time allows:

To introduce measures to make ballot papers more secure.

To establish new offences around electoral fraud and personation.

To provide for clear English guidance to accompany postal ballot papers and for guidance tokey statutory forms to be available in different languages and alternative formats for those who need them.

To give greater access to observers at polling stations and at other stages of the electoralprocess, such as the count.

We are sympathetic to the principles of individual registration and appreciate the benefits that it might bring, but are concerned about maintaining a simple and clear system, and comprehensive registers. We are therefore considering the options to support voting away from polling stations with an approach that preserves the completeness and integrity of electoral registers.

We hope that the publication of this response will substantially move forward the modernisation agenda for elections.

Copies of this Government response to the Electoral Commission's report will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

DEFENCE

Royal Air Force Manpower Drawdown

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence informed the House in his statement on 21 July 2004, Official Report, column 348, that changes in the force structure of the RAF and the achievement of planned organisational efficiencies would lead to a reduced RAF trained manpower requirement of around 41,000 by 2008. I can now inform the House that the RAF has completed initial work on how this reduction will be achieved, while maintaining a satisfactory balance of personnel with the skills and experience levels throughout the service to enable the delivery of operational capability in a more flexible, deployable and responsive way.

The RAF will achieve the required reduction, from a current regular trained strength of around 48,900, through a balanced strategy of normal outflow, reduced recruitment and a targeted redundancy programme. The service is therefore reducing its recruitment targets by some 4,000 (to around 6,000 in total) over the next three financial years and has identified a need for some 2,750 redundancies over the same period. Redundancy will be effected by a compulsory scheme, for which applications will be invited. It is hoped that as many of the redundancies as possible will be applicants but, in order to ensure the long-term balance of ability and experience across the RAF, it may not be possible to accept all applications received, in which case, it may be necessary to select some non-applicants.

Applications for the first 450 redundancies are being invited today and those selected will leave the service by 31 March 2006. Details of the remaining redundancies (approximately 2,300), which are expected to be managed in two further phases, will be notified to RAF personnel when further work is complete.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Planning (Telecommunication Developments)

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): I am seeking to place a renewed emphasis on the importance of both the local planning authority and network operators participating in the annual rollout discussion process described in the code of best practice on mobile phone network development. The importance of this was recognised in planning policy guidance note 8 telecommunications (revised) (PPG8) and the code of practice and has recently been emphasised by the all-party group on mobile phones (apMobile) in their report into planning procedures. The report recognised the benefits of local planning authorities and operators working with the local community to review annual roll out plans and to develop local strategies for telecommunication developments.

The Government believes that information sharing and negotiation at this early stage could greatly reduce the levels of concern and conflict when specific applications are submitted in line with the agreed local plan or strategy. Therefore, it is desirable that in their local development frameworks, local planning authorities consider how they plan to manage the developments needed to meet the growing demand for communication services. Where appropriate, authorities may need to consider developing a suitable policy basis for communication developments in their local development documents. Such policies must of course be in accordance with the national policy as set out in planning policy guidance note 8 telecommunications (revised).

I am also reiterating the importance of effective pre-application discussions, especially in the absence of an agreed communications plan or strategy. It is of course open to local planning authorities to charge for such discussions under section 93 of the Local Government Act 2003, if they consider it necessary or appropriate.

The code of best practice sets out the traffic light model which is designed to help network operators and their representatives to identify issues that might arise should a site be selected for a telecommunication development and to help the preparation of consultation strategies to address such issues. It is important that the rating under the traffic light model is discussed with the local planning authority. In red and amber rated areas this discussion should include consideration of the optional elements of the consultation strategy that will be undertaken by the applicant. In accordance with the code of best practice, it is reasonable for the local planning authority to expect evidence of the consultation undertaken should be provided as part of the supplementary information sent with an application.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has commissioned a study by the University of Reading and Arup to assess the impact that the code of best practice has had since its introduction and how local authorities have implemented the code and how the public perceives its operation. The mobile network operators have also commissioned the second independent review of their 10 commitments which will demonstrate in a quantitative way how their operations and procedures align with the requirements of the code. This will provide the Government with evidence on whether the code has been effective and whether there are any areas of weakness that need to be addressed. Informed by this evidence the Government will consider whether changes to the code are appropriate.

Finally, in respect of the Court of Appeal case, First Secretary of State v T-Mobile and others on 12 November, the court dismissed an appeal by the First Secretary of State against the decision of Sir Richard Tucker in relation to an application by T-Mobile for a shared mast in Harrogate. In essence the issue before the Court of Appeal was whether the judge in the High Court had dealt correctly with the extent to which public fears about the health risks arising from masts was material, when the development in question had the benefit of an ICNIRP certificate. Sir Richard had held that the inspector had misconstrued PPG8 when dealing with this issue in his decision letter.

The Court of Appeal gave consideration to the policy guidance in PPG8. Taking into account that advice, the court found the FSS' policy to mean that in cases where an ICNIRP certificate exists, only in exceptional circumstances would it be legitimate for a local planning authority to take public fears about health risks into account. They agreed with Sir Richard that the inspector had misconstrued this advice, and his decision was therefore flawed. We will be carefully reviewing the transcript of the judgment of Lord Justices Pill, Mummery and Laws before deciding what action may need to be taken in the light of this judgement.

Officials in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister will be writing to all local planning authorities and licensed communications code system operators drawing their attention to this statement.

Candidates' Elections Expenses (City of London) Order 2005

The Minister for Local and Regional Government (Mr. Nick Raynsford): The following draft statutory instrument, on which we are seeking the approval of both houses has now been laid before Parliament:

> The Representation of the People (Variation of Limits of Candidates' Elections Expenses) (City of London) Order 2005

Subject to parliamentary approval, the order would give effect to the Government's proposal to increase the maximum limits of candidates' election expenses for the City of London ward elections and elections by liverymen in common hall in line with changes in the value of money since the limits were last set in March 1997.

We have also placed in the House Library a summary of the responses, including those from the Electoral Commission and other key stakeholders, we received from a consultation on the draft instrument.

Electoral Commission

The Minister for Local and Regional Government (Mr. Nick Raynsford): My right hon. Friends the Deputy Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs are jointly publishing today the Government response to the Electoral Commission's report "Delivering Democracy?".

In its report, the commission sets out its evaluation of the electoral pilots in June 2004. It found that:

- the elections were successfully delivered;
- there was no evidence that all-postal voting lead to an increase in fraud;
- a majority of more than 2:1 were either very or fairly satisfied with the all-postal votingarrangement in their pilot area.

The commission also found that voters wanted have choice about the way they vote. This is consistent with the Government's long term goal of multi-channel elections, including voters having the options of electronic, postal voting and voting in person.

We are not, however, persuaded by the commission's arguments that all-postal voting should not be pursued at UK elections. These are not supported by the outcome of the June elections, where turnout was substantially higher in the pilot regions and a large majority found the all-postal method acceptable. Furthermore, the turnout achieved in the north-east regional referendum underlined the value of all-postal voting in increasing participation.

In its report, the commission proposes the development of a new model of voting. We welcome the opportunity to contribute to this work and will have regard to the progress of this work when assessing any new proposals for all-postal voting.

The Electoral Commission also indicated that it would not support pilots in May 2005 (or any at all until the new model is in use). We have decided not to issue a prospectus inviting applications for pilots in the county council elections in May 2005. It remains, however, open, at any time, to local authorities to apply to run all-postal pilots. The Government remain committed to a programme of electoral pilots in 2006 and subsequent years, including e-voting pilots.

We hope that the publication of this response will substantially move forward the modernisation agenda for elections.

Copies of this Government response to The Electoral Commission's report will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Higher Education (Loans and Grants)

The Minister of State for Lifelong Learning, Further and Higher Education (Dr. Kim Howells): The level of support available to students in the academic year 2005–06 will be 2.5 per cent. higher than for 2004–05, in line with forecast price increases. I am placing two memoranda in the Library giving details of the new loan, grant and fee rates for 2005–06. Those rates set out in memorandum 1 will be incorporated in the Education (Student Support) Regulations 2005, which will cover support for eligible students under the current arrangements. Those set out in memorandum 2 will be incorporated in the Education (Mandatory Awards) Amendment Regulations 2005 and the Education (Student Loans) Amendment Regulations 2005, which will cover the very small number of students who in 2005–06 will still be receiving awards and loans under the pre-1998 arrangements. These regulations will all be laid before Parliament in due course.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agricultural Waste Regulations

The Minister for the Environment and Agri-environment (Mr. Elliot Morley): The Government is today publishing for consultation the draft Waste Management (England and Wales) Regulations 2005. The main purposes of the draft regulations, and the associated draft commencement order, are (a) to repeal the exclusion in section 75(7)(c) of the Environmental Protection Act 1990; and (b) to apply to agricultural waste, and to non-mineral waste from mines and quarries, the national controls that are already in place to comply with the waste framework directive (75/442/EEC as amended by 91/156/EEC and Commission decision 96/350/EC) and the landfill directive (1999/31/EC).

The exclusion in section 75(7)(c) of the 1990 Act is the subject of infraction proceedings and the European Commission has applied to the European Court of Justice for a declaration that it contravenes the waste framework directive. The exclusion is also the subject of infraction on the landfill directive. The Government has accepted that the exclusion contravenes the directives and has given a commitment to repeal it and to introduce, after consultation, the regulations necessary:

- to apply the existing waste management controls which the UK has in place to transpose the requirements of the directives;
- to waste which is at present excluded from the definition of "controlled waste" under section 75(7)(c) of the 1990 Act; and
- which is not excluded from control under the directives by article 2 of the waste framework directive.

The main subject of the draft regulations is agricultural waste. At present, most agricultural waste is disposed of on-farm in an unregulated way—by open burning, by burial or by disposal in "farm dumps". The objective of the draft regulations is to ensure that agricultural waste is managed and recovered or disposed of in ways which protect the environment and human health. The controls will be enforced by the Environment Agency, as the "competent authority" in England and Wales, in ways which are proportionate to the risk to the environment and human health. The existing controls have applied to all other sectors of industry and types of waste since May 1994 in the case of the waste framework directive; and since June 2002 in the case of the landfill directive.

The Government proposes to make the regulations under section 2 of the Pollution Prevention and Control Act 1999 and the consultation is being carried out in compliance with section 2(4) of the Act. The draft regulations fulfil the commitments made by the Government in the Action Plan For Farming which is available on my Department's website at http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/agendtwo/strategy/action.htm; and they have been developed in consultation with the Agricultural Waste Stakeholders' Forum whose membership and terms of reference are available at www.defra.gov.uk/environment/waste/agforum/index.htm.

The draft regulations are being published for a 14-week consultation period with responses being invited by 18 March 2005. The consultation paper includes a partial regulatory impact assessment. A summary of the consultation paper, with a pull-out questionnaire, is being sent to 162,000 farmers and growers in England and Wales. Both the consultation paper and the summary are available on my Department's website at http://www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/default.asp.

The Government has agreed to provide up to £1 million over 2005–2008 from the business resource efficiency and waste (BREW) programme to help improve the sustainability of agricultural waste management following the application of the directives' controls to the agricultural industry.

The draft regulations also contain some related or consequential amendments to existing regulations. The main such amendments are:

(a) To ensure continuing compliance with the waste framework directive following the repeal of the animal waste directive (90/667/EEC) and the introduction of the EU Animal By-Products Regulation ((EC) No. 1774/2002) which lays down health rules concerning animal by-products not intended for human consumption. The proposed amendments apply to animal by-products which are waste within the meaning of article l(a) of the waste framework directive and are not excluded from the directive's scope under article 2; and

(b) To repeal regulation 15 of the Waste Management Licensing Regulations 1994 and to amend the Groundwater Regulations 1998 to bring waste management licensing into line with other types of "authorisations" for the purposes of complying with the groundwater directive (80/68/EEC).

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Bosnia and Herzegovina: Export Licence Application

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Denis MacShane): On 30 November 2004 the Government issued a licence for the export of training ammunition to the security department of the US embassy in Bosnia and Herzegovina. Training ammunition is non-lethal, allowing for practice shooting without risk of serious injury. In this case, the equipment was for training purposes in support of the day-to-day protection of embassy personnel.

An EU arms embargo has been in place against Bosnia and Herzegovina since 1996. The purpose of the embargo is to aid the establishment of peace and stability for the people of the region, taking into account the need to ensure the safety of international troops and civilian personnel deployed.

We fully support the EU embargo. However, in limited circumstances, we are prepared to make exemptions where denying an export would frustrate the purposes of the embargo. I am confident that granting an exemption to allow for the protection of diplomatic personnel is consistent with the embargo's aim of establishing peace and stability in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

HEALTH

Continuing Care

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): Today I am commissioning the development of a national consistent approach to assessment for fully funded national health service continuing care and announce the publication of the independent report on continuing care entitled "Continuing Health Care: Review, Revision and Restitution".

I would like to acknowledge the work during 2003–04 carried out in bringing together more than 95 health authority criteria into the legally compliant 28 strategic health authority (SHA) criteria which exist today. Having achieved this objective and significantly improved arrangements for assessing new cases, and having made good progress with the retrospective review of cases where people have been wrongly denied funding in the past, it is now practical to move forward and improve the system further.

The Department will work with the SHAs to build on all the good work done so far. Learning from good practice, we will produce a national approach to continuing care to improve consistency and ease of understanding. We want to help to achieve these aims. This does not constitute a break from past practice. As I have said before all the current criteria are fair and legal. It will however make the process easier to understand for practitioners and patients alike.

Shipman Inquiry

The Secretary of State for Health (Dr. John Reid): The fifth report of the Shipman inquiry, "Safeguarding Patients: Lessons from the Past—Proposals for the Future", Cm 6394, was published today, together with the Government's response to the inquiry's fourth report, "The Regulation of Controlled Drugs in the Community", Cm 6249. This follows the publication of reports on the extent of Harold Shipman's criminal activities; on the 1998 investigation by the Greater Manchester police; and on death certification and the coroner system. The inquiry is now working on a supplementary report to the first of those reports and hopes to publish this final element of its work early in the new year.

The Government express their profound thanks to Dame Janet Smith and her team for the care and attention that has gone into the preparation of each of her reports. We also reiterate our sympathy to the relatives and friends of Shipman's victims and express our thanks to them for their valuable contribution to the inquiry's work.

The Inquiry's Fourth Report

The inquiry's fourth report, published on 14 July 2004, analyses the means by which Harold Shipman was able to obtain his lethal armoury of controlled drugs and finds weaknesses both in current systems of control and in the ways in which those controls were operated. The report recommends strengthening current arrangements in four main areas. First, it recommends a new integrated, multiprofessional inspectorate to inspect the management of controlled drugs in national health service primary care to replace the existing uncoordinated arrangements for inspection. Secondly, it recommends restrictions on the right of general practitioners to prescribe controlled drugs in certain circumstances, for example prescribing for oneself or one's immediate family or prescribing beyond the requirements of one's normal clinical practice. Thirdly, it recommends auditing the prescribing of controlled drugs in primary care and the movement of supplies of controlled drugs in the community. Fourthly it recommends, better information to patients on the special legal status of the controlled drugs that are prescribed for them.

The Government fully accept the need to improve current arrangements for the management of controlled drugs, and to do so in a way that does not hinder patients from accessing the treatment they need. We fully accept the great majority of the inquiry's recommendations and for the remainder we propose to achieve the same recommended ends by alternative action. Dame Janet Smith has seen our proposals, and is pleased that we have accepted the principles underlying her report, and that we intend to follow up her recommendations with rigorous action.

We will also follow through the implications of the inquiry's recommendations for other health care settings, including hospital care, the private sector, and care homes. Our proposals are set out in "Safer Management of Controlled Drugs—The Government's Response to the Fourth Report of the Shipman Inquiry", Cm 6434, which is published today.

We will make it clear that responsibility for the proper management of controlled drugs is an integral part of the clinical governance responsibility of all NHS and private sector health care organisations. We will develop improved arrangements for the inspection of controlled drugs that strengthen, rather than detract from, this proper local responsibility.

We will ensure that prescribing of controlled drugs—which in future will include prescribing by health care professionals other than doctors and dentists—takes place in the context of a general framework of good prescribing practice backed by clinical governance frameworks and appropriate professional regulatory sanctions.

We will also capture information on all prescribing and requisitioning of controlled drugs, including private prescribing, and provide analyses of prescribing patterns by prescriber and by patient for those operating the local controls. Information systems will be set up that will enable a full audit trail for the movement of controlled drugs into the community.

We will also ensure that patients receive appropriate information about controlled drugs in the context of an informed discussion with the health professionals involved in their care, and against a background of information about the safe handling of prescription medicines more generally.

Finally, we will support all these actions through improved education and continuous professional development for healthcare professionals dealing with controlled drugs.

The Inquiry's Fifth Report

In her fifth report, Dame Janet makes recommendations in the following areas: handling patients' complaints and whistleblowing concerns; the development of clinical governance in primary care; the availability of information about GPs; professional regulation of doctors and the role of the General Medical Council.

We have been working hard with the medical profession and others over the period since the conviction of Harold Shipman to strengthen the systems, rules and regulations that govern the medical profession and we are pleased that Dame Janet recognises the progress that has been made.

Dame Janet also welcomes the changes made to date in the NHS complaints procedure and in the increasing amount of information available about doctors' performance. She recognises the progress that has been made in developing systems for handling poor performance and aberrant conduct and the importance of continuing to develop clinical governance in primary care. Her recommendations build on all this work but also reflect her continuing concerns that, in some areas, there has been insufficient change to safeguard patients appropriately.

Dame Janet has made some very significant recommendations that would have a major impact on service delivery. We will need to study them carefully and discuss them with a wide range of stakeholders and interested parties. We also want to consider them alongside recommendations made in the recent inquiry reports into the activities of Clifford Ayling, Cm 6298, and Richard Neale, Cm 6315 both published on 9 September 2004.

Dame Janet has also made significant recommendations concerning the constitution and operation of the General Medical Council. We have recently made changes to the constitution of the General Medical Council to ensure a far greater voice for patient interests. We will consider carefully the recommendations Dame Janet makes for further reform, and the implications of her recommendations for other regulatory bodies in health and social care. Changes to the General Medical Council's disciplinary procedures have also recently been made and came into force only last month. We will consider carefully with the General Medical Council the recommendations in the report for further changes to these procedures.

The scale of Shipman's crimes was unprecedented and his activities were totally abhorrent. No sanctions will stop conduct like that of Shipman so our energies must be focused on prevention and early identification of problems. Standards of behaviour must be high and action against those who fail to maintain those standards must be timely, firm and fair.

In welcoming the inquiry's previous reports, my right hon. Friends the Home Secretary and the then Secretary of State for Health emphasised the need to learn lessons from the mistakes of the past. All of Dame Janet's reports have provided us with an expert and detailed analysis of where systems failed. We are determined to ensure that all reasonable measures are taken to provide the safeguards that are needed and that the public rightly expect.

HOME DEPARTMENT

United States and United Kingdom Science and Technology Agreement

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. David Blunkett): As part of the continuing commitment to prepare and protect the UK, I have signed a memorandum of agreement with the US for co-operation in science and technology for critical infrastructure protection and other homeland security matters.

The agreement establishes a framework for co-operation in science and technology and formalises the UK's strong relationship with the US in scientific research and development. This includes: sharing scientific knowledge; increasing the exchange of information and personnel with expertise in these areas; and taking advantage of each country's respective research, development, testing and evaluation capacities.

The agreement represents the continuing commitment by the UK and the US to share knowledge, expertise and research in addition to development, testing and evaluation capabilities that will help us find the best technologies and tools to prepare and protect our citizens.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Regional Development Strategy for Northern Ireland 2025

The Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office (Mr. John Spellar): Earlier today I placed in the Libraries copies of the annual report on the implementation of the Regional Development Strategy for Northern Ireland 2025 (RDS) covering the period 2003–04.

Implementation of the RDS is not simply a process for the Department for Regional Development. It is a shared process involving a wide variety of public and private organisations, businesses, voluntary and community organisations and individuals. Annual reporting on the implementation of the RDS involves assessment of progress being made against a number of critical threshold indicators (CTIs), and each of the strategic planning guidelines (SPGs) contained within the strategy.

The RDS sets out a regional brownfield target of 60 per cent. by 2010 for towns with populations of more than 5,000. Recent information provided by the Department of the Environment shows a fall from almost 88 per cent. in 2001–02 to 81 per cent. in the period 2002–03.

Progress is also measured against each of the SPGs. This information is published annually in the monitoring report and is available on the Department's website. With only three years monitoring it is not possible to draw any significant conclusions on the data collected so far.

During 2003 and 2004, the Department engaged with a wide range of stakeholders in the public and private sectors and in the community. A series of four sub-regional seminars were held in the north-west, the south-east, the west rural and the north-east. The aim was to identify the development needs of sub-regions, and to examine the potential of the RDS to provide a framework through which these needs could be addressed.

The Planning (Amendment) (Northern Ireland) Order 2003 requires the Department to examine emerging development plans for "general conformity" with the RDS. In March 2004, the Department received the draft Magherafelt area plan for consideration and a statement of general conformity was issued in the same month.

The annual report comments on the RDS commitment to a five-year review, a focused assessment of the strategy to be carried out in the period 2005–06. The purpose of this focused assessment is to consider any aspects of the RDS where in-course adjustments to strategic guidance would be important prior to a major review at the 10-year point. Work has already commenced on a review of regional housing figures and I expect to make an announcement on this shortly. The focused assessment process will provide the opportunity for consultation on the outcome of this housing work.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Alan Johnson): I am pleased to announce the publication of the department for Work and Pensions autumn performance report. The report is intended to supplement the Department's annual report published in April 2004 (Cm 6221).

The report provides the latest account of how the Department is performing against its public service agreement targets. Copies have been placed in the Library.

Written Ministerial Statements

Monday 13 December 2004

CABINET OFFICE

Autumn Performance Report

The Minister for the Cabinet Office (Ruth Kelly): I have today published the Cabinet Office 2004 autumn performance report (Cm 6414). Copies of the report have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

TREASURY

Public Service Pensions

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Paul Boateng): Legislation governing public service pensions requires public service pensions to be increased annually by the same percentage as additional pensions, state earnings-related pension and state second pension. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions announced on 6 December 2004, Official Report, column 906 that benefits such as additional pensions will be increased by 3.1 per cent., in line with the annual increase in the retail prices index up to September 2004. Public service pensions will therefore be increased by 3.1 per cent. from 11 April 2005, except those which have been in payment for less than a year, which will receive a pro-rata increase.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Burnside Farm Video

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): I would like to set out the record of events surrounding the video taken on Burnside Farm in February 2001, following the point of order raised by the hon. Member for South-East Cambridgeshire (Mr. Paice), on 18 November 2004, Official Report, column 1469, about a video made at Burnside Farm.

The video in question was recorded by Northumberland county council on 24 and 27 February 2001 following the discovery of foot and mouth on Burnside Farm. Defra (then MAFF) officials were aware of the video being made, as they were present on the farm on those two dates.

The video was used in evidence by Northumberland county council against Robert Waugh, the occupier of the farm, at his trial in May 2002. Defra officials, who gave evidence at the trial, saw the video as part of the court proceedings. Northumberland county council say they did not release the video before the trial because of sub-judice rules.

The video was made widely available to the media immediately after the trial and extracts from it were shown on the television news. Lord Whitty and Elliot Morley, both Ministers in Defra at the time, recall seeing extracts from the video on the news at that time.

We have a record of a Defra official seeing the video again on 2 October 2002, at the offices of Northumberland county council, during preparations for the trial of Mr Scurr, the haulier, who had an association with Burnside Farm. The Defra official had already seen the video at Robert Waugh's trial and had requested a copy of it then.

He made a further request after the October viewing and was sent a copy of the video on 18 February 2003.

Officials at the Institute for Animal Health, Pirbright, who had been involved in the epidemiological investigation into the FMD outbreak, had obtained a copy of the video from Northumberland county council for training purposes after the Waugh trial. A Defra official saw the video at Pirbright in October 2002 and subsequently asked Northumberland county council for a copy. This was sent to him at the beginning of February 2003.

As a result of correspondence received by Defra in September this year and the recent media and parliamentary interest in the video, Defra officials, who were unaware that copies had already been sent to two Defra officials separately in February 2003, asked Northumberland county council for copies of the video. These were received in Newcastle animal health divisional office on 1 October.

This was the basis of my answer on 9 November 2004, Official Report, column 576W. The letter from Lord Whitty of 17 November to the Countess of Mar, referred to in the hon. Member for South-East Cambridgeshire's point of order, was based on the information that was discovered subsequently that two Defra officials had in fact received copies of the video in February 2003. As soon as this information was brought to my attention, my reply of 9 November was corrected in the pursuant answer tabled on 18 November 2004, Official Report, column 2000W.

So, the suggestion of a cover up of the video is not supported by the facts. The video was made by and was the property of Northumberland county council. The council made the video for use in evidence against the occupier of the farm, Mr Waugh, at his trial. The video was first put in the public domain by Northumberland county council in May 2002 and it was shown widely in the television news media at that time.

The suggestion has been made that the video shows a dog pulling at a sheep carcase, which, it is claimed, casts doubt on the epidemiological evidence about the origin of the outbreak presented to the lessons to be learned inquiry, chaired by Dr Anderson. This is also not borne out by the facts. I am advised that it is not possible to identify with certainty the material in question. That is why the eye-witness evidence, collected meticulously by Defra, IAH and local authority officials who were actually present on the farm at the time should be considered paramount. This was the evidence presented to the Anderson inquiry, augmented by interviews conducted by Dr Anderson himself. It is worth recalling that Mr Waugh was prosecuted for leaving part of a dead pig lying on his premises. No sheep carcases were found anywhere on the farm. Furthermore, no clear evidence of infection has been found anywhere in the UK earlier than that at Burnside Farm.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Intermediate Level Radioactive Waste Substitution

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Ms Patricia Hewitt): The Government's updated policy on the substitution of intermediate level radioactive wastes has been published today. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The statement is also available on the DTI website at www.dti.gov.uk/.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employer Task Force on Pensions Report

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Alan Johnson): I am today pleased to publish the Employer Task Force on Pensions report. I would like to thank Sir Peter Davis (Chair), Dr. David Alien (Vice Chair) and the task force members for their work on this important issue.

The Employer Task Force on Pensions was set up with a specific remit to increase and extend occupational and private pension provision. The task force's members represented a wide range of businesses. There was also trade union representation.

The Task Force's report sets out a clear and comprehensive recommendation to help reinvigorate employer pension provision. It is supported by a good practice guide that contains an important source of practical information for employers. The task force have also published, in partnership with the Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development a good practice guide on communications.

The report sets out the task force's view on the measures those involved in the pension partnership need to take to re-invigorate voluntary savings. This is an important contribution to the debate over the future pensions challenge.

The report also makes clear that we need to do more to encourage individual understanding and to make pensions more user-friendly, so more people will take up and value the help that their employer provides. We are pleased that the task force has welcomed measures to increase awareness through the work of the Informed Choice Programme and FSA Financial Capability Strategy.

The report also makes clear that individuals must take responsibility for themselves and value the help that their employer provides. We are pleased that the Task Force has welcomed measures to increase awareness through the work of the Informed Choice Programme and FSA Financial Capability Strategy.

The Employer Task Force has also made recommendations for the Government. We will consider these alongside the work of the Pensions Commission. But, where we can make more rapid progress we will.

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury has already announced forthcoming deregulatory changes to the financial promotion regime [under the Financial Services and Marketing Act 2000 (FSMA)] so that employers who make a contribution to an employer-based group personal pension scheme or stakeholder pension scheme can promote the scheme to their staff. The Employer Task Force has welcomed this announcement.

The Employer Task Force has also raised concerns about the availability of long-term assets to back annuities and has welcomed a recent Government announcement instructing the UK Debt Management Office to consult the market on the possible introduction of ultra-long (circa 50-year maturity) gilts, possibly in annuity format.

The Employer Task Force's work on good practice provides excellent examples of what employers are already doing to promote their pensions and provides a valuable tool for other employers. We will therefore be acting on the task force recommendation that the Government set up a website drawing together all the work that has been done in this area.

We also recognise that small employers face specific issues. We welcome the task force's recommendation to improve access to pension information for small business through a web portal. Next year we will be testing and evaluating improved information services to support small employers.

TREASURY

Exploitation of Tax Rules

The Paymaster General (Dawn Primarolo): Legislation to prevent companies bringing forward tax relief for losses prior to transition to international accounting standards is to be included in the Finance Bill 2005. The legislation applies to losses arising on transactions that are designed to accelerate relief that would otherwise be deferred. The changes will have effect from today.

A copy of today's Inland Revenue news release giving the relevant background to this measure has been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses and is accessible on the Inland Revenue's website at: http://www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Supreme Court Building

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Mr. Christopher Leslie): The following statement has been made by my noble Friend the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor

"The location and the setting for the UK Supreme Court should be a reflection of its importance and its place at the apex of the justice system, and the heart of the constitution. Providing the Supreme Court with its own building provides a physical demonstration of the separation between the judiciary and the legislature. Establishing the Supreme Court in the Palace of Westminster would be entirely inappropriate.

Following an extensive search and evaluation of potential sites in central London, I am today announcing that Middlesex Guildhall is my preferred option for housing the Supreme Court.

There are three key reasons for this decision:

its location on Parliament Square will mean that the judiciary, the legislature, the executive and the Church are each represented on the four sides of the square enhancing its position atthe heart of our capital;

it is able to provide all the key design requirements of a modern Supreme Court and therefore represents a significant improvement on the Law Lords' current accommodation; and it will deliver this much improved accommodation at a reasonable cost, demonstrating good value for money.

At this stage, I should stress that Middlesex Guildhall is my preferred option. As the detailed designs are developed, I will need to remain satisfied that they fully meet the operational requirements of a modern Supreme Court. This will, of course, require the normal planning approvals and my officials are consulting with English Heritage and Westminster city council on the development of the designs. The Law Lords have continuing reservations as to the suitability of this building to house the Supreme Court of the United Kingdom. I will continue to consult with them closely on the issues.

The Design Proposals

The building for the new Supreme Court needs to meet the statement of requirements that was agreed with Lord Bingham of Cornhill in August 2003 and subsequently developed in discussion with the Law Lords' Supreme Court Sub-Committee, chaired by Lord Nicholls of Birkenhead. The headline requirement is for a building that measures at least 3,500 square metres, including sufficient space to enable co-location with the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council (currently based in Downing Street).

My view is that Middlesex Guildhall meets the statement of requirements and would enable much better facilities to be provided than the current arrangements. The proposals for this self-contained and dedicated building include:

three large hearing rooms, measuring between 143 and 190 square metres. This compares with 94 square metres for House of Lords Committee Room One; greatly improved public access: we will ensure that both UK citizens and visitors from overseas have the opportunity to see the Supreme Court of the United Kingdom at work. The hearing rooms will provide approximately twice the number of public seats currently available in the Appellate Committee;

an education suite enabling information to be disseminated on the Supreme Court and providing the possibility of a live feed from the hearing rooms; improved infrastructure, including better IT;

accommodation for the staff of the Supreme Court and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. This includes space for additional research assistants and secretarial staff. This will enable greater support to be provided to the Supreme Court justices and improve case management;

14 large en-suite judicial chambers; and a world-class law library with an area of approximately 250 square metres. Considerable additional space for library records and less used materials will be available in the basement.

We are developing these plans for the building in close consultation with the Law Lords, English Heritage and Westminster city council. We would of course need to apply for planning permission in the usual way. The city council is not in a position to accept the principle or the detail of the building scheme at this stage.

Delivering the Proposals

Providing the right building for the Supreme Court has financial implications. The cost of establishing the Supreme Court at Middlesex Guildhall will be approximately £30 million in current terms. This £30 million estimate contains two elements: base costs and optimism bias. The base costs are construction costs and statutory fees of £15 million; £2 million professional fees; and £3 million VAT. Those figures are then inflated by 50 per cent. optimism bias in accordance with HM Treasury guidance on financial appraisal and evaluation (the green book). The optimism bias is applied to building projects as a contingency to cover risks, unforeseen issues and changing project specifications.

But I also need to ensure that the criminal justice system is not adversely affected by the selection of Middlesex Guildhall. I have therefore considered a number of options for providing additional courtrooms and I am confident that the Middlesex work can be decanted while sustaining criminal justice performance. I will be discussing these decant plans in detail with the judiciary and criminal justice partners over the next few months. Provision of the additional courtrooms will cost a further £15 million in current terms (including optimism bias).

The approximate annual cash running costs following establishment of the Supreme Court would be £8.8 million (£8.4 million relating to the Supreme Court; the remainder being the ongoing costs from courtroom reprovision). This figure includes £2.1 million judicial remuneration; £1.1 million staff salaries; £1.0 million administrative costs; £0.4 million utilities and rates; and £3.8 million building costs (including capital charge/lease costs and building maintenance costs).

It is not entirely straightforward to separate the administrative costs of the Appellate Committee from the generality of expenditure in the House of Lords, but the approximate annual cost to the public purse of the current arrangements are just over £3.2 million per annum. This figure includes judicial and staff remuneration, and general administrative costs. The table below compares the current and estimated running costs.

Costs (£m)

	Appellate Committee Costs 2002–03	Supreme Court Estimated Costs
Judicial Salaries	2.1	2.1
Staff Salaries	0.6	1.1
Admin	0.4	1.0
Utilities and Rates	0.1	0.4
Building Costs		3.8
TOTAL	3.2	8.4

This is a complex project which will require delivery in two key stages: the provision of additional courtrooms needs to be completed before refurbishment work can begin on Middlesex Guildhall itself. While I need to be satisfied that both stages are completed to a high standard, my aim is to establish the Supreme Court as soon as practicable. I would therefore hope that the court's first sitting would be in 2008.

The Supreme Court would not be established until the building was ready for operation.

The Search and Evaluation Process

The search for the Supreme Court has involved:

reviewing the DCA estate in London;

considering any suitable properties on the Greater London Magistrates' Court Authority estate; advice from the Office of Government Commerce on availability of property on the wide Government estate in London; contacting 17 Whitehall Departments to determine whether any of their buildings would be suitable; and commissioning professional agents to search commercially available property.

The search generated a long-list of 48 properties, five of which merited further consideration after closer scrutiny against a number of criteria (size, operational efficiency, adaptability, suitability). After a full Treasury green book appraisal of these five options, two properties—Middlesex Guildhall and the new wing of Somerset House—remained under active consideration.

In order to finalise the evaluation of the two options, more work was undertaken to identify how the current layouts could be adapted in order to meet the specific requirements of the Supreme Court (including engagement with the Law Lords, English Heritage and Westminster city council).

Of these two strong options, my decision that Middlesex Guildhall should be the preferred option was based on the three key reasons set out above: its location on Parliament Square; its fit with the Supreme Court requirements; and its value for money."

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Government Funding for Sport (2005–06 to 2007–08)

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Tessa Jowell): Today, I am pleased to announce the allocation of Government funding for sport through my Department for the next three financial years.

In 2005–06 funding for sport from the Exchequer will be £126.208 million, in 2006–07 it will be £149.708 million, and I am also making an indicative allocation of £155.163 million in 2007–08.

The total breaks down over the three-year cycle as follows:

2006–07—£149.708 million
2007–08—£155.163 million

In that time Sport England will receive:

2005–06—£88.916 million
2006–07—£88.916 million
2007–08—£88.916 million

UK Sport will receive:

2005–06—£29.566 million
2006–07—£29.566 million
2007–08—£29.566 million

The Football Licensing Authority will receive:

2005–06—£1.264 million
2007–08—£1.264 million

An allocation has been made within the settlement for other sport initiatives, including a possible National Sports Foundation. Exactly how this funding is to be divided has yet to be determined but in general terms it will be used to support development in terms of volunteering, participation, facilities and the identification and nurture of talented athletes. Lord Carter is to publish his report in February.

This settlement represents a good result for sport. Overall, it will release over £431million for sport between 2005–06 and 2007–08 from the Exchequer, and will see annual funding rise 31 per cent. from some £118 million in 2004–05 to over £155 million in 2007–08. This will enable us both to strengthen the grass roots of sport, with a renewed emphasis on school and community sport, while also enabling us to identify and nurture a new generation of sporting champions as we build up to the Beijing Olympics in 2008 and the possibility of a London Olympics in 2012.

I believe that this extra support will enable us to continue to progress towards our shared goal of creating an active and successful sporting nation.

The Under-Secretary of State for Education and Skills, my hon. Friend the Member for Enfield, Southgate (Mr. Twigg), has also made a statement today, on behalf of the Prime Minister and me, announcing another great boost for school sport.

Of the £431 million announced for sport in this statement, approximately £133.5 million will be used to support the aims and objectives set out in the statement made by the Under-Secretary of State for Education and Skills.

DEFENCE

Iraq

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Ivor Caplin): I am announcing today that we will shortly begin mobilising approximately 900 reservists to replace the existing reservists serving in support of operations in Iraq. These reservists will be beginning their deployments from April 2005 onwards.

We currently have some 750 Army reservists carrying out a range of activities including medical support, force protection duties and providing individual reinforcements to units. We anticipate that most of these tasks will continue, but the forthcoming replacement of the regular field hospital with one staffed by reservists, along with the number of individual reinforcements required by regular units will slightly increase the total reserves requirement. These changes mean that the number of Army reservists in theatre will be about 1,000 in May 2005, before reducing over the following months.

We aim to issue the call-out notices in phases following this announcement and plan on giving reserve personnel 28 days' notice of call-up (a minimum of 21 days). Mobilisation will be followed by a period of individual, pre-deployment and collective training, integration into receiving units, and then a short period of pre-deployment leave. The majority of those called-out can expect a deployed tour of six months and a total period of mobilisation, including post-tour leave, of about nine months, though for a few it may be slightly longer.

Between now and March we aim to identify those reservists who are believed to be fit and available for deployment. As is customary, to ensure that we successfully mobilise the required number, we will need to issue a greater number of call-out notices than the actual requirement.

This further call-up is fully consistent with the Government's stated policy of employing the reserves as an integral component of the armed forces.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

School Sport

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Education and Skills (Mr. Stephen Twigg): The Prime Minister, the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport and I are today announcing another boost for school sport.

In 2002 the Government launched the first ever comprehensive national physical education (PE), school sport and club links strategy with an investment of £459 million for delivery between 2003 and 2006. The aim—a public service agreement (PSA) target shared by the Departments for Education and Skills and for Culture, Media and Sport—is to:

> Enhance the take up of sporting opportunities by five to 16 year olds by increasing the percentage of school children who spend a minimum of two hours each week on high quality PE and school sport, within and beyond the curriculum, from 25 per cent. in 2002 to 75 per cent. by 2006 and to 85 per cent. by 2008, and to at least 75 per cent. in each school sport partnership by 2008.

Spearheading action is the creation of a national network of at least 400 specialist sports colleges and school sport partnerships. There are now 291 colleges—including four academies with a sports focus and 54 per cent. of schools in England are within one of the 313 school sport partnerships, benefiting 3.5 million pupils in over 12,000 schools. All schools will be within a school sport partnership by 2006.

We are well on the way to delivering the PSA target. The 2003–04 survey of school sport partnerships found that 62 per cent. of pupils were spending two hours in a typical week on high quality PE and school sport. It also showed a 16 percentage point difference in take up of the two hour entitlement between pupils in the longest established partnerships and those newer to the programme. The results of the survey were published on 29 April and copies of the report—"The Impact of School Sport Partnerships"—are available in the Libraries of both Houses and at www.teachernet.gov.uk/pe.

This is good progress, but we want to do more. By 2010 our ambition is for all children to be offered at least four hours of sport every week, comprising at least two hours high quality PE and sport at school and the opportunity for at least a further two to three hours beyond the school day (delivered by a range of school, community and club providers). A further £519 million has been allocated—combined funding from the Departments for Education and Skills and for Culture, Media and Sport—to continue work on the national strategy from 2006–07 to 2007–08 to take us towards this ambition. That means in the five years up to 2008, including £686 million of dedicated lottery funding, Government investment in PE and school sport will have totalled over £1.5 billion.

Many of our 2012 Olympic and Paralympic medal winners are at school today. We are determined to make the pathway from playground to podium a reality for these young people. As part of the additional investment, new competition managers will be put in place to work with school sport partnerships. These managers will strengthen the ladder of sporting opportunity by creating a competition structure across all ages, ranging from school based festivals to national competitions, this will give all children the chance to play competitive sport—whatever their age or ability. Our ultimate aim is to have one in each of our school sport partnerships by 2010.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport is today announcing the allocation of Government funding for sport over the next three financial years. This money, together with the measures we have announced today, represents the best ever deal for sport in schools and will help us to achieve our goal of becoming a nation of sporting excellence.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Mutual Defence Agreement

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Denis MacShane): The Amendment to the 1958 Agreement between the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Government of the United States of America for Co-operation on the Uses of Atomic Energy for Mutual Defence Purposes (Cm 6261), which was laid before the House on 21 June 2004, entered into force on 9 December 2004. The Amendment extends the application of Article III (bis) of the Agreement for a further 10 years, until 2014.

HEALTH

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for Health (Dr. John Reid): Today I announce the publication of the Department of Health's 2004 autumn performance report (Cm 6417). Copies have been placed in the Library. It shows the progress my Department has made towards achieving its public service agreement targets.

The autumn performance report shows that there have been significant further improvements in access to services. The number of national health service patients waiting longer than 13 weeks for an outpatient appointment has fallen from 160,745 to 77,503 over the past year. In addition, the number of people waiting more than six months for an inpatient appointment fell from 163,230 to 69,638. During October 2004, 96.4 per cent. of all accident and emergency attenders were admitted, transferred or discharged within four hours of arrival. It is now possible to offer over 99 per cent. of patients a general practitioner appointment within two working days or a primary care professional appointment within one working day.

Patient satisfaction is increasing; the 2003–04 patient survey results showed that 98 per cent. of patients rated the care they received from ambulance trusts as excellent, very good or good, and the number of adult inpatients rating their care as excellent has increased by four percentage points since 2001–02.

Premature death rates from heart disease amongst people under 75 have fallen by 27.1 per cent. since the baseline of 1995–97; premature deaths from cancer have fallen by 12.2 per cent. over the same period. Suicide rates in England are now at their lowest level on record.

These are just some of the recent achievements of the NHS. These improvements have been made in a demanding year through the hard work, skills and passion of hundreds of thousands of staff in the NHS and its partner organisations, and the increased funding the Government are investing in the NHS.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Designated Register Offices

The Minister for Citizenship and Immigration (Des Browne): The measures designed to stop "sham marriages" contained in sections 19–25 of the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants etc) Act 2004 will be introduced on 1 February 2005.

We will be designating 76 register offices in England and Wales under section 19(2) of the Act. These will be the register offices that everyone subject to immigration control will have to attend with their prospective spouse to give notice of marriage. A list of the offices can be found below.

Every registration office in Scotland and Northern Ireland will be a designated register office for this purpose.

From the same date, any person subject to immigration control will not be able to give notice of intention to marry unless:

- they have an entry clearance granted expressly for the purpose of marriage in the UK;
- or they have the written permission of the Secretary of State to marry in the UK—this will take the form of acertificate of approval which can be obtained from the Immigration and Nationality Department;
- or they fall within a class of persons specified by the Secretary of State.

Further details about the certificate of approval and the class of persons who will be exempt from these provisions will be available shortly.

Oversight Commissioner's Report

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Ian Pearson): I have today laid before the House a copy of the oversight commissioner's Third Statutory Report for the year 2004 which is being published today, in accordance with Section 68(4)(a) of the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 2000.

This is the third report compiled by Al Hutchinson as oversight commissioner and the twelfth in the series of oversight reports published since 2001.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Regional Development Agencies' Output Levels

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Jacqui Smith): I have published the reported mid year tier three outputs for April to September 2004 for England's regional development agencies (RDAs). The RDAs have advised that they are broadly on track to achieve the annual targets set for 2004-05 in their corporate plans.

The figures cover the creation and safeguarding of jobs, the amount of brownfield land brought back into use, the number of businesses added to the regional economies, the number of learning opportunities created and the amount of private sector investment attracted benefiting deprived areas, all as a result of RDA activity.

Copies of the mid-year output results have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and the results have also been placed on the DTI website at www.dti.gov.uk/rda/info/.

Age Discrimination: Treatment of Retirement Age

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Ms Patricia Hewitt): Today my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions and I are announcing how we will be implementing the age discrimination strand of the European Employment Directive (Council Directive 2000/78/EC) in relation to retirement age.

The Government have made it clear that we are strongly committed to tackling unjustified age discrimination in employment and vocational training. We believe that employees, and potential employees, must be judged on the talents and skills they bring to the workplace, and not on assumptions or stereotyped views based on their age, or apparent age. During the last few years, we have turned the tide on a trend that was seeing people drop out of the labour market before state pension age, and we have also seen increasing numbers working beyond this age. These are welcome developments that must continue.

This country cannot afford to squander the skills and experience workers of any age have to offer, and demographic changes mean that employers who cut themselves off from a proportion of the skills pool on the basis of prejudice will lose out. We want to give individuals more choices about how long they work and when they retire. We have made these points in the pensions Green Paper "Simplicity, Security and Choice: Working and Saving for Retirement" (December 2002) and in the "Age Matters" consultation document on implementing the age discrimination strand of the directive (published in 2003), and elsewhere. Our age positive campaign has been working towards this since 1997, and increasingly employers themselves are realising the benefits of an age diverse workforce.

Arrangements are already in place, or will soon be in place, that facilitate more flexible approaches to retirement. With the abolition of the earnings rule in October 1989, the link between retirement and entitlement to the state pension was removed, and so people can continue working beyond state pension age and still receive their state pension. Individuals can also choose to continue working and defer their state pension, and the recent Pensions Act contains more generous options for deferral, to be introduced by 2005, including for the first time, the option of taking a lump sum. In April 2006, tax rules preventing people from drawing their occupational pension while continuing to work for the same employer will be abolished.

The age discrimination strand of the employment directive is due to be implemented by autumn 2006 and is an important part of this process. It will protect individuals against unfair discrimination when looking for work or in employment terms such as promotion arrangements, just because they are considered too young or too old.

The treatment of retirement age is an important aspect of the implementation of this legislation. We have consulted widely on this issue, both formally and informally, and have listened to a range of strongly held views. We have carefully balanced the arguments on all sides, and have decided that the legislation, which will come into force in autumn 2006, will provide for a national default retirement age of 65 and a right for employees to request working beyond the set retirement age. The decision to have a national default retirement age will be reviewed after five years.

In setting the default age, we have taken careful note of a number of representations we received in the course of consultations which made it clear that significant numbers of employers use a set retirement age as a necessary part of their workforce planning. While an increasing number of employers are able to organise their business around the best practice of having no set retirement age for all or particular groups of their workforce, some nevertheless still rely on it heavily.

Furthermore, our consultations have demonstrated that if all employers only had the option of individually justified retirement ages at the time the legislation was introduced, this could risk adverse consequences for occupational pension schemes and other work related benefits. Some employers would instead simply reduce or remove benefits they offer to employees to offset the increase in costs.

Until now, companies have been able to set the age at which their employees retire without any need to justify their choice. So employees may have had to retire at age 60 or even younger, whether or not they wished to continue working. Currently only 30 per cent. of people are in employment by the age of 65 and a major part of the response to the ageing society will be for more people to choose to work to that age.

Following the implementation of this decision, employers will only be able to set their own retirement age for all or some of their workforce below 65 where they can objectively justify this. They would be subject to challenge and would have to show that it was appropriate and necessary to do so.

The default age is not a compulsory retirement age. Employees will be able to work beyond that age wherever they and their employers agree. Indeed, the Government welcome such agreement, and through the right to request is actively encouraging it.

This decision on retirement age has no direct implications for occupational or state pension arrangements. The Government have emphasised that it has no plans to change the state pension age once it has been equalised for men and women at 65, and we shall continue to provide for pension schemes to set normal retirement ages if they need to.

The default age will be accompanied by a right for employees who want to continue to work beyond the default age or their employer's own justified retirement age to have their request considered seriously by their employer. This right will follow the model of the right to request flexible working for parents with young children, where it has been successful in changing the culture towards more family friendly working. This policy will ensure that employers listen to employees who want to keep working and think about whether they can agree. In doing so, it will help promote a culture change including on workforce plannin, and the design of employee benefits, and move towards a position where fixed retirement ages are relied on only where they can be objectively justified by the employer.

We will monitor the impact of the default age from the outset. Five years from implementation we will subject to formal review the question of whether this remains appropriate. The review will be firmly grounded in evidence, and amongst other things it will look at relevant data on trends in life expectancy; the number of individuals working beyond 65; and the impact of the regulations on business, including the evolution of business practice with respect to the degree of reliance on retirement ages for workforce planning. If at the point of the review the evidence suggested that we no longer needed the default retirement age at 65, we would abolish it.

In reaching this decision, we have taken into account the responses to age matters consultation. An analysis of those responses is available on the DTI website at: www.dti.gov.uk/er/equality/age. We have also undertaken extensive consultation with key stakeholders.

We shall consult in summer 2005 on draft regulations covering the full rights against discrimination on grounds of age in employment and vocational training.

This will include details of the provisions on retirement age as well as how we propose to tackle the whole range of issues around age discrimination in recruitment, employment and vocational training. Subject to that consultation and the approval of Parliament, we will bring the legislation into force on 1 October 2006.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Clementi Report

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Mr. David Lammy): The Government warmly welcomes Sir David Clementi's report on the future regulation of legal services in England and Wales. Sir David and his team deserve our thanks for all their work over the past 18 months.

I established Sir David's review to consider the regulation of legal services with the clear objective of improving the service to the consumer. The provision of legal services must include safeguarding the public's right to independent legal advice, and ensuring the quality and professionalism of the legal professions. Reform will be judged by the benefits it delivers for the consumer.

People expect value for money and services that are delivered in ways which better suit their needs. They also expect proper redress if something goes wrong as a result of poor service. The legal professions are no exception. Whether we are buying a house or getting advice about our rights, the way in which lawyers, legal executives and those who advise on legal issues work, how they are regulated and what the processes are for complaining about their work potentially affects us all.

The Government broadly accept the main recommendations of Sir David's important report and the arguments for change which he sets out. We want to ensure proportionate and appropriate regulation and separate handling of consumer redress. We will want to work closely on the details of his report with all of those involved, especially those representing the legal professions and consumer interests, to take forward this report and deliver reform quickly. We will be careful to ensure as small a bureaucracy as possible.

We strongly support the objectives set out in Sir David's report: maintaining the rule of law, providing access to justice, ensuring protection for consumers, promoting competition, encouraging a strong and effective legal profession and increasing public understanding. To achieve those objectives, Sir David's principal recommendations are the creation of a new oversight regulator with significant powers, the separation of the representative and regulatory functions of the professional bodies, the creation of a single new complaints body and steps to enable the creation of legal disciplinary practices (LDPs). These changes could see non-lawyers for the first time not only as managers of legal practices, but also as owners of and investors in LDPs.

I am sure that the legal professional bodies will engage positively with us. The Government's overriding aim is to preserve the best of the current system while moving forward for the benefit of consumers. While there are challenges in the report, we have worked together successfully on a number of issues, including the establishment of a new interim system for the appointment of Queen's Counsel. I am confident that we will continue to do so on the issues arising from Sir David's report.

The Government will publish a White Paper on Sir David's proposals as soon as possible next year, to be followed by legislation as soon as parliamentary time allows.

Today, in response to Sir David's report we can affirm our commitment to putting in place a regulatory framework that ensures a better deal for consumers through increased competition, innovation and transparency, and safeguards the independence of the legal professions—including independence from Government—in providing high quality advice. Sir David's report provides a clear basis for achieving these aims and the Government are committed to taking this forward as a matter of paramount importance.

British-Irish Council Summit

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Mr. Christopher Leslie): My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister led the UK delegation to the sixth summit of the British-Irish Council and was accompanied by the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs, Lord Falconer; the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland; and the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

The Council noted the ongoing engagement between the British and Irish Governments and the parties in Northern Ireland and looked forward to the restoration of the devolved institutions, established under the Good Friday agreement, as soon as possible.

The main issue for discussion was Tourism, and the Council has agreed a programme to take forward joint working in this area. I have placed a copy of the communiqué in the Commons Library.

DEFENCE

Deaths at Princess Royal Barracks, Deepcut (Independent Review)

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): The deaths of four soldiers at Princess Royal Barracks, Deepcut between 1995 and 2002 have been the subject of detailed scrutiny and much public comment for some time. Recent press reporting has further raised public interest in these distressing events.

I told the House on 30 November 2004 that I was satisfied that the Ministry of Defence's response to public concern over the four deaths at Princess Royal Barracks was adequate and comprehensive but that I nevertheless accepted the case for a further review by a fully independent figure. I am now in a position to set out the details of that review.

The review will be conducted by Nicholas Blake QC and will begin shortly. I expect Mr Blake to complete his report in the first half of next year. Mr. Blake is a distinguished human rights lawyer with wide experience of civil liberties and criminal justice. His report will be published in full, along with my response to it.

The terms of reference for the review are as follows:

> "Urgently to review the circumstances surrounding the deaths of four soldiers at PrincessRoyalBarracks, Deepcut between 1995 and 2002 in light of available material and anyrepresentationsthat might be made in this regard, and to produce a report."

In commissioning this review I am well aware that its scope and nature may not satisfy all those, members of this House included, who have been calling for a formal public inquiry into some or all non-combat deaths in the armed forces or for a public inquiry into the deaths at Deepcut. These are very different demands. By concentrating on the circumstances of the four deaths at the army base at Deepcut this review will focus on the issue at the heart of current public concern. The review will have the full co-operation of the Ministry of Defence and, I am pleased to say, Surrey police. A review can analyse issues much more quickly than a public inquiry and would not interfere with other current investigations or proceedings. My expectation is that the rigour and independence of the review will produce value to all parties concerned. It is the right way to proceed and I would urge all those who may be sceptical of what the review can achieve to suspend their criticism and to lend it their full support.

It is of the highest importance that a balanced and authoritative account of the circumstances surrounding the deaths should be put into the public domain, to sustain public confidence in military training. The consistently outstanding performance of the young men and women of the armed forces, often only recently out of initial training, is testament to the quality of that training system.

Typhoon Tranche 2 Contract

The Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): I am delighted to announce that the contracts for the second Tranche of Typhoon multi-role combat aircraft have now been signed by the general manager of the NATO Eurofighter and Tornado management agency, on behalf of the four partner nations, and by the chief executives of the project's co-ordinating industrial consortia, Eurofighter GmbH and Eurojet Turbo GmbH. This is excellent news for both the Royal Air Force and for United Kingdom industry and represents the achievement of another major milestone for the Typhoon project.

This order builds upon the success of the introduction into service of Tranche 1 Typhoon aircraft, which are demonstrating outstanding performance in operation with the RAF. The Tranche 2 contracts will provide the RAF with an additional 89 aircraft at a value in cash terms of around £4.3 billion. The contracts form part of what is thought to be the largest defence order ever placed in Europe, reflecting the successful and continuing co-operation between the four partner nations and European industry.

Typhoon will be an outstandingly capable, state-of-the-art aircraft which will form a cornerstone of the RAF's future capability. The aircraft will have the flexibility to contribute across a wide range of operations delivering air superiority and precision ground attack capabilities.

The order will provide major benefits across the United Kingdom and, at the peak of manufacture, industry expect it to create or sustain some 16,000 jobs with defence manufacturers, many in areas of high-technology, and a significant number in supporting industries across the economy more widely.

Typhoon will be a world-beating aircraft and this major investment will provide the RAF with the capability to respond to the challenges and threats we face now and in the future.

Project Aquatrine Package C

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Ivor Caplin): I am pleased to announce that the Ministry of Defence has awarded a contract for project Aquatrine, package C, to Coast to Coast Water Ltd. (C2C), a consortium comprising Severn Trent Water plc and Costain. This contract covers the operation and maintenance of the Department's water and wastewater assets and infrastructure in the north and east of England.

The contract forms one of three such packages of project Aquatrine, a 25-year arrangement worth £2.3 billion across three packages that cover the MOD's estate in Great Britain. The project is one of the Government's most significant public-private partnership (PPP) projects, and will enable the transfer of environmental risk to those in the private sector who are best placed to manage it. This will enable the MOD to focus on its core activities.

Following a pre-commencement period, Coast to Coast Water Ltd. will commence services in March 2005.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Three-Year Revenue and Capital Settlements

The Minister for Local and Regional Government (Mr. Nick Raynsford): The Government introduced three-year settlements for central Government Departments in the comprehensive spending review in 1998. For the full benefits of three-year plans to feed through into improved public service delivery, it is important that they are cascaded from Departments to executive agencies and other budget holders.

We are today issuing a consultation document seeking views on the Government's proposals for the implementation of three-year revenue and capital settlements for local government in England. It fulfils a commitment in the Government's 2004 spending review to consult on these proposals with local government and other stakeholders with a view to agreeing local authority finance settlements for 2006–07 and 2007–08 during 2005.

It is proposed that authorities will be given three-year allocations of grant, which will be reviewed every two years in line with the Government's own spending reviews. This will apply to grant distributed through the general formula as well as to specific grants and capital grants, unless there are overriding reasons why this is not desirable or possible

The distribution of grant will therefore need to be fixed three years in advance. This can be done either by using the same formulae and data for each of the three years or by making forward projections of at least some of the data. The paper consults on the Government's proposals for doing this.

In order to maintain the stability of the new system, it is proposed that functional changes should be planned around the spending review cycle, so that resource reallocations do not disrupt the planning certainty that authorities have been given.

Three-year revenue and capital allocations provide certainty of income, but the real world does not remain static. Account also needs to be taken of major changes such as council tax revaluation that are foreseen, but which do not necessarily fit a three-year cycle.

Since authorities will have a sound basis on which to plan their budgets, they should also be able to give council tax payers and central government greater certainty about future budgets and the impact on council tax levels. The paper explores ways of achieving this.

Copies of the consultation paper are available in both Libraries of the House and are available on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website www.odpm.gov.uk. The consultation period ends on 11 March 2005.

Planning Delivery Grant 2005–06

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): Today I am launching a consultation on the allocation criteria for £170 million of planning delivery grant (PDG) in 2005–06. The consultation paper will enable local authorities to calculate a high proportion of their grant entitlement, subject to any changes which may result from the outcome of the consultation. I am also launching a further consultation on increases to planning fees.

Planning delivery grant is aimed at providing additional resources to local planning authorities to support fundamental changes we want to see in the system to help deliver sustainable communities. The main principle underlying design of the grant is to reward performance in a range of planning activities.

For 2005–06, the total amount of grant available will be £170 million. Later in this statement I will outline how proposed further planning fee increases will bring additional resource to authorities for planning.

For 2005–06 and for the two subsequent SR04 years, we propose to allocate PDG on the basis of a 75/25 per cent. split between resource and capital, in line with the expectation that LPAs should use PDG to continue to invest in systems that will improve the efficiency and delivery of their planning services. The split is based on the level of PDG that was identified by research into the 2003–04 grant as spent on IT and capital improvements.

The consultation document, which shall go to all planning authorities in England, sets out proposals for rewarding planning performance improvement in the following areas: development control, development plans, enterprise areas, delivery of housing in areas of high and low demand, and provision of a quality service through e-planning.

Authorities and stakeholders are invited to comment on the criteria for awarding the grant, which, as in 2004–05, have been devised to reward good performance and to incentivise further improvements. The package also includes measures to assist regional planning bodies, the planning inspectorate, and the Greater London Authority in their support for local authorities in bringing about planning reform. A small element of the grant has been top-sliced to support national initiatives such as the planning advisory service, and the scheme of postgraduate planning bursaries.

I will carry forward mechanisms for withholding grant where there are concerns about the reliability of data, and also to sharpen the abatement of grant where the rate of appeals upheld against the authority's decision to refuse far exceeds the national average, to make sure that the grant rewards quality decision-making on applications as well as timeliness. Once again, there will be no minimum allocation.

I am very aware that authorities need as much information as possible at this time of year to help them with their budget setting arrangements. For that reason, I am taking the step of including in the consultation actual intended allocation amounts where the statistics to make these are centrally available, and where they are not, I will give sufficient information to authorities to enable them either to work out the remainder of the allocation, or to provide them with an indicative range or a minimum amount. Using this information, authorities should be able to reach good estimates of their possible allocations for next year.

The consultation will end on 27 January 2005. Allocations of grant will be made in February 2005.

Today I am also launching a further consultation on increases to planning fees. The initial consultation, which ended on 9 December, proposed fee increases totalling £30 million for next year, but the measures on which I now wish to consult would raise fees to provide £68 million in total. So the total average increase in fees would be 39 per cent. not 17 per cent. as previously consulted on. This would give authorities an important opportunity to help meet the costs of delivering their planning services.

It has become clear from the consultation already in progress that many respondents do not think the proposed increases are sufficient to enable them to carry out their planning functions. Developers have indicated that they would be prepared to see fee increases where they could be ensured of a quality service. I want to be able to give authorities the proper resources to provide the services the community needs. Once again, the proposed increases will be spread proportionately—the fees for householder applications will rise from £110 to £135, while the maximum fee for a major development will rise from £11,000 to £50,000.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Diplomatic Representation

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): In December 2003, in the White Paper: "UK International Priorities: a Strategy for the FCO" (Cm 6052), I set out the Government's international priorities for the next 5–10 years and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's strategy for delivering them in a world of new challenges, opportunities and threats.

On the basis of that strategy and the outcome of the 2004 spending round, we have been completing a reorganisation of the FCO in London and considering changes to our overseas network in order to align our resources more effectively to our priorities.

This statement concerns changes to the overseas network, aimed at enhancing our effectiveness in representing British interests abroad, and helping to deliver an efficient service on behalf of the British taxpayer.

Context

The FCO's overseas network currently comprises:

153 sovereign posts (embassies and high commissions) staffed by UK-based diplomats and local staff;

70 subordinate posts (consulates general and consulates) reporting to an embassy or high commission;

10 missions to international organisations and conferences such as the UN, the EU and NATO; and resident governors in nine of the 14 overseas territories.

Since 1997 we have made a series of changes in the overseas network to respond to changing priorities. UK-based staff numbers have grown by 9 per cent. from about 5,600 in 1997 to about 6,100 now. We have opened 18 new sovereign and subordinate posts with UK-based staff since 1997, along with 13 locally staffed posts. Some 10 posts have been closed over the same period (excluding the announcements in this statement). By comparison France, with a network of almost identical size to our own, has since 2000 opened nine new posts and closed three. Germany today has 11 fewer posts than in 1997.

In the past three years the UK has opened major new missions in Baghdad, Basra, Kabul and Pyongyang (North Korea) in response to changing needs.

This statement sets out some further changes to our overseas network. As with changes in the past, they reflect changing demands and challenges, and the need better to align our resources with our priorities, to maximise efficiency, and to ensure that the UK has a cost-effective and flexible network of overseas representation.

Sovereign Posts

We intend to close eight sovereign Posts with UK-based staff, and one locally staffed post (Tarawa, Kiribati). Details are set out in the following table:

Post	Planned change
Asia Pacific
Port Vila (Vanuatu)	Close. Appoint Honorary Consul. Cover from Suva (Fiji)
Nuku'alofa (Tonga)	Close. Cover from Suva (Fiji)
Dili (East Timor)	Close. Appoint Honorary Consul. Cover from Jakarta. (Indonesia)
Tarawa (Kiribati) (currently a locally staffed post)	Close. Cover from Suva (Fiji)
Americas
Asuncion (Paraguay)	Close. Appoint Honorary Consul. Cover from Buenos Aires (Argentina)
Nassau (Bahamas)	Close. Appoint Honorary Consul with additional local staff support for consular work. Cover from Kingston (Jamaica)
Africa
Maseru (Lesotho)	Close. Appoint Honorary Consul. Cover from Pretoria (South Africa)
Mbabane (Swaziland)	Close. Appoint Honorary Consul. Cover from Pretoria (South Africa).
Antananarivo (Madagascar)	Close. Appoint Honorary Consul. cover from Port Louis (Mauritius)

All these cover arrangements are subject to confirmation and agreement with the host governments concerned.

Separately, in Europe, there is no question of closing down our embassy to the Holy See. However, we have concluded that we will be able to maintain our interests if we widen the pool of potential candidates as ambassador to beyond the FCO when we look for a successor to the present incumbent next summer.

Subordinate Posts

We also plan to streamline UK representation in subordinate posts (primarily in OECD countries) in line with UK Trade and Investment's (UKTI) new approach to trade promotion in developed countries (see below), while expanding our honorary consul network worldwide. Experience for example in our posts in Italy has shown that fully localised posts are able to deliver services in a cost-efficient, professional and effective way under the strategic direction of the superintending embassy; and our plans extend that model elsewhere. We expect political work to be carried out mainly in capitals, except in large, federal countries like the USA.

We propose moving to locally engaged staff only in eleven posts. And we plan to close ten subordinate posts altogether. Changes are set out in the following table, together with details of how the network in each country will look after these changes have been made.

Country	Planned change	Network after change
Australia
Brisbane	Localise. Cover from Sydney.	UK based: Canberra, Sydney, Melbourne.
Perth	Localise. Cover from Sydney.	Local: Brisbane, Perth, Adelaide.

Douala	Close. Cover from Yaounde.	UK Based: Yaounde.

In Aden, we will retain the services of our local consul, but move from the existing consulate to smaller premises with a view to establishing an honorary consulate.

UK Trade and Investment

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has worked closely with UKTI in formulating these proposals. UKTI is focusing its overseas resources where its commercial teams can make the most impact. This includes strengthening our work to attract inward investment to the UK, and reinforcing support for British businesses in important emerging markets, like China, where government support makes a real difference to business, and where very strong economic growth means enormous opportunities. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer's recent announcement of the establishment of an Asia task force will build on this strategy.

To provide the resources for these new activities, UKTI has decided to take a number of steps better to match resources to demand. Commercial services in a number of smaller markets are being re-organised. In the UK's smallest overseas markets, UKTI services themselves in FCO posts covering these markets will be withdrawn, although support and advice from UKTI's website and from its teams in London will still be available. And, importantly, political support and lobbying by ambassadors and high commissioners in support of British business in these markets will continue to be available everywhere.

Timing and Savings

We plan to have implemented all these changes before the end of 2006. The main savings from the package will be in staff and running costs, including rentals. There will be some one-off costs, including for redundancy. But once these have been met, overall savings should amount to around £6 million per annum as a contribution to the FCO's overall efficiency target of £86 million. (A further £0.5 million of savings are part of our efficiency plan for the 2002 spending review). There will be some revenue from asset sales, although these will take time to realise.

The savings made will help to underpin higher-priority work in line with the FCO's strategic priorities, including on counter proliferation, counter terrorism, energy and climate change. Some of the savings will also be redeployed to strategic priority work within certain regions where we are closing posts. In Africa, for instance, we plan to create new jobs to cover these issues across the region, with a new post in Nairobi to help support our work on climate change, one in Nigeria to cover energy, and one in Pretoria to cover regional issues more generally as well as covering Maseru and Mbabane.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Caroline Flint): This statement should be read in conjunction with one which I made on 17 December 2003, Official Report, column 137WS announcing changes in the way in which the Home Office handles certain types of project licence applications made under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986.

The changes concerned licence applications referred for advice to the Animal Procedures Committee (APC). The statement was to the effect that some of the applications already referred would continue to go to the APC, others would not.

At that time I said that further consideration was to be given to the question of which additional categories of applications might be referred. That consideration has now been completed, leading to more recommendations by the APC for them to see applications likely to raise particular public or societal concerns. I have accepted these recommendations.

In summary the following are the types of project licence applications which are either currently referred to the APC, as explained in my previous statement, or which will be additionally referred from 1 January 2005 (asterisked):

- any involving the proposed use of wild-caught, non-human primates;
- any involving the proposed use of cats, dogs, equidae or non-human primates in protocols of substantial severity* (applications to use non-human primates in this category are already referred);
- any for projects with a substantial severity banding, or major animal welfare or ethical implications, involving (a) xenotransplantation of whole organs, (b) chronic pain models, (c) study of the central nervous system;*
- applications of any kind raising novel or contentious issues, or giving rise to serious societal concerns.

Both the APC and the Home Office are concerned that the new referral arrangements do not unduly delay processing of the applications concerned. Steps have been taken to that end, and the arrangements will be kept under review.

Written Ministerial Statements

Thursday 16 December 2004

CABINET OFFICE

Public Bodies

The Minister for the Cabinet Office (Mr. David Miliband): I have today published "Delivering Diversity in Public Appointments 2004", which explains what each central Government Department is doing to increase diversity on the boards of their public bodies.

The report contains action plans for each department as well as details of progress to date. It also includes targets to increase the proportion of appointments held by women, people from minority ethnic backgrounds and disabled people to be achieved by 2007.

The Government are keen to ensure that its commitments to public appointments are met. The first is that selection should be made on merit, using fair and open procedures that ensure the best available candidate is appointed to each post.

The second is a commitment to improving diversity in public appointments. There is real value in boards broadly reflecting the community they serve and I firmly believe that more diverse boards lead to more effective decision making.

Overall progress has been made in the representation of people from minority ethnic backgrounds and disabled people, however the overall figures for women have dropped slightly, thus emphasising the need to continue to promote our diversity objectives and continue our outreach work.

The report can be found on the Internet at www.publicappointments.gov.uk. Copies of the report have also been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Ministerial and Royal Air Travel

The Minister for the Cabinet Office (Mr. David Miliband): I am today announcing a review of the current arrangements for the provision of air travel for the Royal Family, Government Ministers and accompanying senior officials, taking into account safety, reliability, security and value for money, and to make recommendations for improvement. The review will be headed by sir Peter Gershon and is expected to report in the second half of 2005.

TREASURY

Home Finance Schemes

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Stephen Timms): The Treasury has today published the Government's response to the consultation on the definition of home reversion type arrangements for inclusion in the scope of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000, which closed on 28 September 2004. Copies are available in the vote Office and the Library of the House, and are accessible on the Treasury website at: www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Family Proceedings Cases

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Mr. Christopher Leslie): I have today placed in the Libraries of both Houses a consultation paper on the disclosure of information in family proceedings cases involving children. The text is also available on the Department's website at: http://www.dca.gov.uk/consult/confr.htm

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Export of Works of Art Committee

The Minister for the Arts (Estelle Morris): The fiftieth report of the Reviewing Committee on the Export of Works of Art for 2003–04 will be published later today. The reviewing committee provides independent advice to the Secretary of State on whether cultural objects that are the subject of applications for export licences are of outstanding national importance. During the period covered by the report, following recommendations from the reviewing committee, temporary bars were placed on the export of nine items, including paintings, drawings, furniture, silverware and archives. Of these, seven items, valued at £6.8 million, were purchased and remain in the UK. The report contains the reviewing committee's comments on policy matters relating to the operation of the export control and the protection of cultural objects, and details of each case considered during the period 1 July 2003 to 30 April 2004.

Copies of the report will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The review will also be available on the DCMS website http://www.culture.gov.uk

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Planning Inspectorate

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill: The Government set out its programme for the reform of the planning system in England in "Sustainable Communities—Delivering Through Planning" (July 2002). The principal aims of the reform are to produce a faster, fairer system that allows for greater public involvement. The legislative changes required, including those for the reform of the development plan system, were enacted in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004.

This is against a background of a continued rise in planning applications submitted to local authorities as a result of economic growth. As the number of planning applications has increased, so has the number of planning appeals submitted to the Planning Inspectorate—indeed the percentage rise in the number of appeals received is greater than the corresponding percentage increase in applications (because refusal rates are also rising). The number of appeals received by the Planning Inspectorate has increased by over 50 per cent. in the past three years.

This increase coupled with the doubling of the number of Inspectors required to carry out inquiries into local plans this year has resulted in a deterioration in the Planning Inspectorate's overall performance in the amount of time take to determine planning appeals.

To restore performance, I have made available an extra £1 million this year to fund taking on additional Inspectors and providing them with the support they need. I am looking carefully at resource needs next year and will provide extra resources if necessary. The Inspectorate has formed a taskforce dedicated to clearing the backlog of appeals and is looking to see significant progress by next spring.

I want sustained improvement. The Inspectorate is committed to boosting productivity and delivering a more effective service to its customers. In order to achieve this, the Inspectorate has set up an independently chaired Productivity Board. The Inspectorate is also restructuring itself to give greater focus to operational delivery and improved services to its customers. The restructuring of the Inspectorate is expected to be completed in March 2005.

I also intend to extend the period for submitting planning appeals from three to six months, which will have the effect of reversing the change which was introduced in September last year. When these changes were introduced, it was anticipated that the reduction in the appeal period would give greater certainty to all parties as to whether or not an appeal was to be lodged. However, there has been widespread criticism that the period of three months is insufficient for negotiations between the prospective appellant and the LPA. There is a strong perception that the reduction in the appeal period has led to applicants submitting appeals without first making any attempt to negotiate an amended application with the LPA and that this may have contributed to the rise in appeal numbers. There is a strong lobby from the planning community and from developers alike that the period in which to appeal should be restored to 6 months in order to allow longer to negotiate following a refusal. I am persuaded by these arguments. The change will require an amendment to the Town and Country Planning (General Development Procedure) Order 1995 to reverse the effect of the Town and Country Planning (General Development Procedure) (England) (Amendment) Order 2003 (SI 2003 no. 2047). I propose to lay the necessary Order before the Christmas recess. It will come into effect from mid January.

This will restore the opportunity for local planning authorities and appellants to enter into post decision negotiations and thus avoid unnecessary appeals.

Given the current pressures on the Planning Inspectorate, I intend to delay the introduction of dual jurisdiction. The powers for this are contained in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act and will apply where an applicant appeals to the Secretary of State on the grounds that the LPA has not determined a planning application within the prescribed eight-week period. Under dual jurisdiction the LPA will have an additional period of time to issue its decision, even though an appeal has been lodged. While it is anticipated that this initiative will eventually lead to a reduction in the appeal workload, the time is not right to make this change with the present backlog of appeals.

I am also taking the opportunity to extend the statutory period for local authorities to determine major applications from eight to thirteen weeks. The present arrangements allow for parties to appeal after eight weeks where the LPA has not issued a decision. This conflicts with the period of thirteen weeks which is given under best value targets to determine major applications. This change will bring greater clarity to the appeal system and give LPA's significantly longer to determine major applications. This should also help to reduce the number of appeals against major applications.

This package of measures will assist in tackling the backlog of appeals in the Planning Inspectorate and demonstrates the Government's commitment to providing a speedier, more responsive planning system which will support the right development in the right place and contribute to sustainable communities.

Renewable Energy

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has today published a companion guide to PPS22 on renewable energy. The companion guide offers good practice advice on a range of issues, including how to frame policies for renewable energy in development plans.

Planning policy statement 22, published in August 2004, was an important step towards facilitating the delivery of more renewable energy developments and thereby meeting this Government's commitments in respect of global warming and climate changes. It sets out the Government's national planning policies for all types of renewable energy development. The companion guide offers practical advice as to how these polices can be implemented on the ground. It is intended to assist planners, regional and local decision-makers and other stakeholders in understanding the often complex issues associated with the different technologies and their application in different environments and is relevant to all local planning authorities in England.

The guide addresses the actions required at the local and regional level, with regard to both strategic forward planning and development control and includes a chapter of each of these planning policy issues. It also sets out the factors that make a 'good' renewable energy application, how best to assess cumulative landscape and visual effect and how to deal with community involvement. Case studies are used to illustrate key points and to demonstrate how specific issues can be addressed. A technical annex to the guide includes specific advice on the range of renewable energy technologies covered by PPS22.

Copies of the companion guide will be made available in the Libraries of both Houses and it will also be available on the web site of the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister.

DEFENCE

Race Equality Scheme

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Ivor Caplin): In accordance with undertakings in its race equality scheme, the Ministry of Defence has produced a second progress report, a copy of which is being placed today in the Library of the House. The report builds on and relates back to the first report, issued in January 2004, and describes the progress made across the Department and by the armed forces. It emphasises our determination to maintain the standards we have achieved to date and to continue to review our policies and procedures.

Our record for managing and retaining ethnic minority personnel is good. The outcome of staff attitude surveys and the low level of race-related complaints indicate a continuing improvement in the race equality climate.

However, there is still much more work to do as the report acknowledges. The Ministry of Defence is committed to meeting the aspirations set out in the race equality scheme.

FOREIGN AND COMMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

G8 Global Partnership

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Denis MacShane): Members will wish to be aware of the publication on 16 December of the second annual report by the Government of the United Kingdom's contribution to the against the spread of weapons and materials of mass destruction. The second report details the progress made in the past 12 months in destroying and securing the former Soviet Union's legacies of WMD and associated materials and infrastructure.

The UK pledged $750 million to the global partnership at the Kananaskis G8 summit in 2002. Since then the FCO, DTI, and MoD in close co-operation with the Russian Federation, other countries of the Former Soviet Union, Central and Eastern Europe and other funding partners, have developed a wide portfolio of programmes and made considerable progress on implementing projects on the ground which help to tackle these issues. In 2005 the UK in its capacity as G8 president intends to take forward the work of the global partnership under the theme of "Pledges to Progress", focussing on effective project implementation.

The international community faces immense challenges in tackling the legacy of cold war weapons of mass destruction left in the former Soviet Union. The cold war WMD programmes in the FSU have created a significant non-proliferation and environmental threat to us all. This work represents the UK's largest non-proliferation programme and, as the report indicates, we have made significant progress over the last 12 months in collaboration both with other donors nations and our partners in the FSU.

Copies of the report are available in the Library of the House. Further reports will be published annually setting out the progress achieved in the work being undertaken by the United Kingdom.

Public Diplomacy Review

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): As part of spending review 2004, I agreed with my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary to undertake a review of the effectiveness of our public diplomacy work. Lord Carter of Coles has agreed to lead this review. He will be supported by a small team based within the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and an advisory panel of experts. The review is due to start immediately and Lord Carter of Coles will report his findings by summer 2005. The terms of reference are as follows:

> To examine the effectiveness of current Public Diplomacy activities in delivering outcomeswhich contribute to the achievement of HMG objectives.
> To take stock of progress in implementing the Wilton Review (2002) through the work of thePD Strategy Board.
> To consider the scope for improving PD activities, both in London and overseas, tomaximise their effectiveness and value for money.
> And to that end to consider the scope for increased joint PD activity and enhanced co-ordination taking account of experience with the PD Campaigns Fund and the PD ChallengeFund.
> To make recommendations as appropriate.

The review team will undertake a short consultation exercise. If hon. Members would like to feed in comments they should send them to Public Diplomacy Review team, Room WHS52, FCO, King Charles Street, London SW1A 2AH.

HEALTH

NHS Professionals (Accounts 2003–04)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. John Hutton): The annual accounts and accompanying comptroller and auditor general report of NHS Professionals for 2003–04 has today been laid before the House of Commons pursuant to section 98(1C) of the National Health Service Act 1977. Copies have been placed in the Library.

Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. John Hutton): The annual report and accounts for Monitor (whose statutory name is Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts), HC 104, were laid before Parliament today. Copies are available in the Library.

Obesity

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Miss Melanie Johnson): The Government's response to the Health Committee's report of Session 2003–04 on obesity, Cm 6438, has been published today. Copies have been placed in the Library.

HOME DEPARTMENT

International Exercise

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Charles Clarke): Further to the commitment my predecessor, the right hon. Member for Sheffield, Brightside (Mr. Blunkett), gave to the House in July 2003 that we would be taking part in a major UK US exercise in 2005 as part of the Home Office's national exercise programme, and as a result of close co-operation with the US on joint crisis management issues, I would now like to provide the House with an update on developments.

Exercise 'Atlantic Blue' is due to take place in April 2005 and is designed to test simultaneous responses to internationally linked terrorist incidents, focusing on how we communicate across international borders at a strategic level.

The Metropolitan Police Service is the host force for the UK working closely with the Home Office and other Government Departments and London agencies on planning and delivery. For obvious reasons we will not be discussing the scenario before the exercise takes place.

Exercise play in the US will be live while in the UK it will be a notional command post exercise (CPX) only. We have agreed this is the best way for us to focus entirely on strategic-level communication issues, rather than on the management of live play at an operational level, which is regularly rehearsed around the UK.

The UK programme of exercises is among the best in the world and a vital part of our work in resilience and contingency planning. This exercise provides us with an invaluable opportunity to enhance our domestic exercise programme by working with our US counterparts in order to test our capability to respond to the specific challenges of an international terrorist incident.

The exercise has been planned as a result of discussions between my predecessor and Cabinet colleagues, and the Department for Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge and his colleagues, to promote a co-ordinated approach to counter-terrorism and homeland security issues.

In order to develop the work of Atlantic Blue we are keen to pursue our involvement in future exercises with the US, both in terms of tabletop and live exercises which enable us to further develop our preparedness and resilience.

I would like to reiterate that we are holding this exercise as part of sensible contingency planning with the aim of developing our joint preparedness and resilience in the event of a terrorist incident. It in no way reflects a change in the level of threat to the UK.

Prisoners (Alcohol Strategy)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Paul Goggins): I am today announcing the launch of the prisons' alcohol strategy for prisoners.

In line with the national alcohol harm reduction strategy for England published in March, this year, The Prison Service has developed a comprehensive alcohol strategy for prisoners based on extensive consultation with key stakeholders and a range of experts including Alcohol Concern.

The strategy complements both the existing prisons drug strategy and the wider programme of resettlement activity. It will provide a framework for addressing prisoners' alcohol problems. The strategy balances treatment and support with supply reduction measures and provides prisons with a benchmark to formulate their own response to alcohol misuse at a local level. The focus is to improve consistency and build on good practice in the delivery of treatment from within existing resources and in establishing a robust framework to test prisoners for alcohol.

The strategy will be supported by a treatment good practice guide, which will include a model treatment framework, developed in line with the National Treatment Agency's models of care.

Alcohol is a problem for a significant number of those entering prison. Prisons already have in place a range of initiatives to target those with an alcohol problem. The management of the symptoms of withdrawal from alcohol forms an important element of the revised standard for clinical services for substance misusers. Detoxification is available on reception in all local and remand prisons. Some prisons run alcohol awareness courses and Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) run groups in around 50 per cent. of prisons. Additionally, general offending behaviour programmes address the underlying criminogenic factors which occur in alcohol-related crime. For those prisoners whose alcohol misuse is part of poly-drug use, counselling, assessment, referral, advice and throughcare services are available — a low level intervention that creates a care plan based on the specific needs of individual prisoners and offers support through group work and one-to-one counselling. The alcohol strategy will enable prisons to build on their good work.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Youth Justice

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Paul Goggins): I am pleased to announce that I am today laying before Parliament the Government's response to the Audit Commission report, "Youth justice 2004: a review of the reformed youth justice system".

Reform of the youth justice system has been a key priority for the Government. The Audit Commission's report takes stock of the difference our reforms have made. We warmly welcome their conclusion that the new system is a considerable improvement on the old one.

The Audit Commission also identified some key areas for improvement. The Government response outlines what we are doing to:

- focus courts on more serious and persistent offenders;
- improve what happens in court;
- make sentencing more cost-effective;
- meet the wider needs of offenders; and prevent children offending in the first place.

At the same time as the Audit Commission report, the National Audit Office published its own report into youth justice, "Youth offending: the delivery of community and custodial sentences". This area was subsequently examined by the House of Commons Committee of Public Accounts and the Government's response to the Committee's report is also being published today by the Financial Secretary to the Treasury.

House of Lords Judgment on A & Others and The Secretary of State for the Home Department

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Charles Clarke): The House of Lords has today handed down the judgment in this difficult and complex case. A committee of nine Law Lords has spent the last 11 weeks considering the issues and, within the short time available since the judgment was handed down, it is not possible to give a detailed response to all the points raised by the judgment. However, given its importance I believe it necessary to make this statement to the House as soon as possible.

This appeal is about the compatibility of our domestic law with the ECHR. The Law Lords have upheld the appeal by those detained under the Anti Terrorism Crime and Security Act and we need to study the judgment carefully, not least because the Court of Appeal had unanimously endorsed our view that these provisions were compatible with our obligations under the ECHR. It is ultimately for Parliament to decide whether and how we should amend the law. The Part 4 provisions will remain in force until Parliament agrees the future of the law. Accordingly I will not be revoking the certificates or releasing the detainees, whom I have reason to believe are a significant threat to our security, a judgment upheld by the Special Immigration Appeals Commission, chaired by a High Court judge.

My primary role as Home Secretary is to protect national security and to ensure the safety and security of this country. In doing so, I need to consider how we balance the rights of individuals against those of society: how we ensure safety and security within a democracy without undermining the values that are at the very heart of it.

Derogation is not something that any Government enters into lightly and the powers have been used sparingly as promised Parliament during the passage of the Act. To date 16 individuals have been certified and detained under the part 4 powers and another individual has been certified but is currently detained under other powers. Of these 12 remain in detention. Two have chosen to leave the country as those detained under the part 4 powers are free to do at anytime. Those certified have a right of appeal to the Special Immigration Appeals Commission (SIAC) which is a superior court of record, chaired by a High Court Judge.

Those who have been certified and detained under the Part 4 powers are detained because they have been certified as a threat to our security. This considered assessment is supported by the Security Service and has been tested through a superior court of record with full access to all the relevant security and intelligence information.

The need for the Part 4 powers and the derogation are kept under frequent review. In addition to regular threat assessments the Home Secretary regularly meets the Director General of the Security Service, and it is their advice that informs the Home Secretary's decision on the continuing public emergency threatening the life of the nation.

I will be asking Parliament to renew this legislation in the new year but in the meantime we will be studying the judgment carefully to see whether it is possible to modify our legislation to address the concerns raised by the House of Lords.

Metropolitan Police Fund Account

The Minister for Crime Reduction, Policing and Community Safety (Ms Hazel Blears): I have today laid copies of the Metropolitan Police Fund Account for 2000–01 in the Libraries of both Houses.

TRANSPORT

Manchester Metrolink

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): In July this year I told Parliament that because of excessive cost increases I would have to withdraw funding for the phase III extensions to Manchester Metrolink.

Looking at the proposals, it has become increasingly clear there are real and persistent problems with the costs of the extensions. The public sector funding requirement has almost tripled since we first approved the project. Nevertheless, I have decided to commit over half a billion pounds, the sum previously agreed to fund phase III, to Manchester's transport network. Manchester will also be able to bid for additional funds from the new transport innovation fund. It is now up to the transport authority to come forward with proposals for how this funding is used.

Looking at the history of the Metrolink proposals shows the problems it has had with huge increases in public funding requirements:

> In July 2000 public sector funding was approved with an up front budget of £282 million, for three lines: to Oldham and Rochdale, Ashton and the airport; plus some upgrading of the existing system.
> In December 2002, this budget had to be increased to £520 million (including £60 million local contribution). We made clear that there would be no more money from the Department. The Manchester authorities accepted they would meet the costs of any further increases.
> In December 2003, GMPTE returned to ask us for still more money, but for a reduced project. The three new lines were reduced to two and a half, with the line to the airport replaced with a shorter spur to East Didsbury.

The public sector funding requirement was going up and up—partly because of private sector, pessimism about light rail, and partly because of failings in the original cost estimates. There was no guarantee that costs would not continue to rise. This led to my decision last July to withdraw funding for this project, and to ask GMPTE to work with us to look at alternatives that would benefit Manchester, but at a better price.

Following this decision, a working group was set up with GMPTE and chaired by Tony McNulty. Its purpose was to see whether light rail could be made affordable in Manchester and to consider alternatives. I also appointed my own financial and technical consultants.

The potential cost to taxpayers of the proposed extensions is now clearer:

> GMPTE confirm that at least £600 million public sector up front funding would be needed to build just two lines—Oldham-Rochdale and Ashton. Our judgement is that there is a strong chance that costs would be even higher.

GMPTE told Tony McNulty on 7 December that about £900 million of up front funding would be needed for delivery of the original three lines over the next 10 years—a tripling since the original approval. There is no guarantee this would not increase further.

In the light of this, I have considered the options for the way forward. GMPTE want me to agree to their continuing with their current procurement for the three lines. That would mean committing to upfront public sector funding of £900 million, when only four years ago we capped the figure at £282 million. I cannot do that. No Government could ignore these huge increases—a three-fold increase in just four years. And accepting this price would consume too much of the money that will be available for transport including in the north-west in future years. In addition, a scheme for substantially less than three lines would need a new procurement or risk legal challenge. I have therefore told GMPTE that the current procurement should not be revived.

Nor can I agree to GMPTE's alternative of starting a new procurement to enable construction of the three lines to be phased over a longer period. This would not address the fundamental problem of cost escalation.

I am however confirming that the £520 million budget is still available for Manchester, subject to GMPTE developing a satisfactory plan for these areas. This represents a major investment in Manchester, enabling a package of measures to address the transport problems in these parts of the city, which may include light rail improvements.

We have already provided some £170 million of the £520 million. Around £80 million was for GMPTE to buy the concession for the operation of Metrolink. This has continuing value to generate revenue for GMPTE and give them greater control over the tram network. The rest has been for advance works and buying land, some of which may still be required for the package that GMPTE now develop.

GMPTE are able to supplement this budget, both from their own resources and by bidding for funding from government through the transport innovation fund. The TIF is available for authorities which propose innovative and coherent schemes to tackle congestion and encourage modal shift which could act as exemplars for others facing similar challenges. This provides a real opportunity for Manchester to look at its transport policy across the piece and develop a bold integrated package.

The budget I am committing today provides the opportunity for a major transport investment package for these areas of Manchester. It is now up to the Manchester authorities to make the most of this opportunity, and to come forward with proposals that will deliver the transport improvements that these areas need.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Jobseeker's Allowance

The Minister for Work (Jane Kennedy): On 2 December, the Chancellor announced in his pre-Budget report that we will be looking at a number of ways of improving the efficiency and effectiveness of the jobseeker's allowance regime.

Today I am announcing details of pilot measures and the locations selected to undertake pilot activity from January through to July 2005.

These measures are intended to speed up entry into employment by improving our understanding of conditionally, increasing commitment to personal job search activity and enabling more effective review of progression.

Our pilots include:

a revised jobseeker's agreement, which we will test in all pilot districts, for completion by the claimant, focussed upon job search steps and including a record of personal job search activity for ongoing review;

a revised work focused interview, focusing upon an explanation of conditionality and job matching, based upon the self-completed jobseeker's agreement;

a virtual segmentation tool to test whether we can reliably predict the likely speed of individuals gaining employment; and three innovative approaches to the fortnightly job search review; fortnightly telephone contact with random call-in (random call-in means that individuals can be called into the jobcentre for a face to face review of their job search), random call-in for the first three signing events, and random call-in for the first six signing events.

Pilot activity will be accompanied by a thorough evaluation programme. To test the effectiveness of the new signing regimes we will be applying a random assignment approach which means that about half of all claimants will experience the standard regime.

Pilot areas are:

Telephone Signing with Random Call-in Highlands, Islands and Clyde Coast (except Clydebank)

The Marches

South East London

Random Call-in for 13 Weeks

Forth Valley and Fife

Birmingham and Solihull

Highlands, Islands and Clyde Coast (just Clydebank)

Random Call-in for First 3 Signing Events

Bucks/Berks/Oxon

Gateshead and South Tyneside

Cornwall and Devon (just Cornwall)

Screening Tool

Cardiff and Vale

London North

East Glasgow

Disability Discrimination Bill

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Maria Eagle): We have published today a consultation document Disability Discrimination Bill: Consultation on private clubs; premises; the definition of disability and the questions procedure (Cm 6402). Copies have been placed in the Library.

This document sets out our detailed proposals for using regulation-making powers in the Disability Discrimination Bill, which had its Second Reading in the House of Lords on 6 December, in respect of the Bill's duties on: private clubs; landlords and managers of rented premises; the extension of the definition of disability; and the extension of the questions procedure.

The proposals do not vary the main duties, but clarify and define the detail of key concepts which will ensure the main duties can be properly met.

The main duties in the Bill would:

i. bring within scope of Part 3 of the Disability Discrimination Act (which deals with access to goods, services, facilities and premises) private clubs with 25 or more members;

ii. extend the duty of reasonable adjustment, apart from in respect of physical features, to those who let or manage rented premises;

iii. extend the definition of disability to people with cancer, HIV and multiple sclerosis effectively from the point of diagnosis; and

iv. extend to Part 3 of the DDA a procedure for asking and answering questions about alleged discrimination which is similar to that in Part 2 (which covers employment and occupation) of the Act.

The consultation document, which is also available in a range of accessible formats, seeks views form interested parties by 18 March 2005. The results will be used in the development of draft regulations and, where appropriate, of Disability Rights Commission statutory codes of practice.

We committed to consult on measures concerning private clubs when the draft Disability Discrimination Bill was published in December 2003, and on private clubs and the other measures listed above during pre-legislative scrutiny of the draft Bill.

The consultation document will help to ensure there is full and open debate during the Bill's progress on our plans for using regulation-making powers in the Bill. We have already consulted on using the Bill's regulation-making powers in respect of its duties on public bodies in the consultation document "Delivering Equality for Disabled People". Copies of that document are available in the Library.

Monday 20 December 2004

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species

The Minister for the Environment (Mr. Elliot Morley): A total of 151 countries attended the 13th conference of CITES parties, which was held in Bangkok, Thailand over the period 2–14 October.

The conference agenda covered 65 different topics, including 27 proposed resolutions, 48 draft decisions and 50 different proposals to amend the species listed in the CITES appendices. I attended the conference during its second week where, amongst other things, I spoke against Japan's proposal to downlist the Minke whale to appendix II of CITES. I am pleased say that was eventually soundly defeated and that this magnificent species will continue to be fully protected from commercial trade. I was also pleased to be able to announce that the UK would be providing an additional £110,000 to help fund various projects, including workshops on enforcement, lions and Asian big cats.

Other successful outcomes included increased protection for the Irrawaddy dolphin, great white shark, ramin, humphead wrasse, sulphur-crested cockatoo and the Chinese yew. Our proposed resolutions seeking to address the problems relating to the conservation of great apes and the unsustainable trade in bushmeat were also adopted with some minor amendments, as were the EU proposals for achieving greater synergy with CBD. Details of all the decisions taken at COP13 have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Prior to the conference I was aware of considerable public concern about proposals submitted in relation to trade in lions, ivory and rhino and leopard hunting trophies.

On the lion, the range states were not convinced that the biological data were sufficient to justify a total ban on commercial trade and Kenya was eventually persuaded to withdraw this proposal. However the range states did agree to hold a number of regional workshops to look at the management of Africa's lion populations and I was pleased to be able to announce that the UK would be providing £30,000 to help fund these.

On the question of trade in ivory, Kenya's revised proposal for a six-year moratorium was withdrawn while the EU's compromise alternative, which provided for a suitable "testing period", was rejected. The parties also rejected Namibia's proposal for an annual quota of 2,000 kilos of ivory, although they did agree an amended proposal to allow non-commercial trade in traditional native jewellery made from worked ivory (known as ekipas). The UK would have preferred to defer this latter proposal to the next conference, to allow Namibia and the other range states time to agree a comprehensive arrangement for regulating the trade in ivory. However, there was no consensus within the EU for this approach and the member states therefore had to abstain on this vote.

The parties did agree an action plan for investigating the global trade in ivory, which will focus in particular on the domestic markets in Africa and South East Asia where the demand for ivory is strongest. The parties also endorsed the decisions taken at COP12 with respect to the proposed one-off sales of ivory by Botswana, Namibia and South Africa. This means that these sales can only go ahead once the CITES Standing Committee has confirmed that the strict conditions attached to that agreement have been met. These provide for strict controls over the potential market for this ivory, including the development of a unique monitoring system for any worked ivory that is produced. They also require close monitoring of the illegal killing of elephants using baseline data which are now being gathered on current population and poaching levels. The UK will of course be pressing the Standing Committee to ensure that these conditions are met in full before any sales are allowed.

On the question of black rhino hunting trophies, Namibia and South Africa argued that their populations were increasing and that they should be granted an annual quota of five males (about 0.5 per cent. of the total population). This is needed to enable them to deal with problem animals and to provide an incentive for private landowners to allow these animals on their land as the populations expand beyond the limits that can reasonably be managed within the national park areas. These proposals were eventually agreed by consensus, subject to a requirement that such trophies be individually marked. The parties were also satisfied that the leopard populations in these countries were healthy and causing problems in some farmland areas. It was therefore agreed by consensus to increase the hunting quota for Namibia from 100 to 250 specimens, and that for South Africa from 75 to 150.

Overall this was a very successful conference for the UK, in which most of our strategic goals were achieved. We played a prominent role in the main and side events and had the honour of being elected to chair the difficult discussions in Committee II (one of the two decision-making committees which dealt with most of the business of the conference). We also played a very prominent role in lobbying in support of common EU objectives. Our role in helping to broker deals on the more complex issues was widely recognised by all parties, who frequently looked to the UK for leadership and guidance.

The UK's standing at the conference was very high and I am very grateful for all the long hours of hard work put in by all the members of the UK delegation to achieve this. A lot of good work has been done and I am sure we have laid the foundations for even greater success when the parties meet again in the Netherlands in 2007.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Global Opportunities Fund

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): I will today lay before Parliament the Foreign and Commonwealth Office annual report on the global opportunities fund (GOF) 2003–04. This is the first such report which covers the financial year (FY) 2003–04.

Copies will be placed in the Library of the House. Additional copies can also be obtained from the Vote Office. A copy will also be available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website: www.fco.gov.uk/gof.

I launched the GOF in May 2003 to focus the FCO's programme spending more closely on our priorities; and to bring greater professionalism to our programme and project management work. It has made an impressive start. This report provides an overview of the GOF programmes and describes project activity. It also contains a section on lessons learned and a forward look to the current FY.

HEALTH

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. John Hutton): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council met on 6 and 7 December. Items on the agenda relating to health were covered on 6 December. Items for discussion were: a co-ordinated approach to combat HIV/AIDS in the European Union and its neighbourhood; European Commission proposals for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on medicinal products for paediatric use; and the proposal for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on nutrition and health claims made on foods. I represented the United Kingdom.

Ministers welcomed the European Commission's approach, as set out in its working paper "A Co-ordinated Approach to Combat HIV/AIDS in the EU and its Neighbourhood", but agreed that further work would be needed at all levels. The UK called on the European Commission to provide a clearer picture of where EU resources were currently targeted on HIV/AIDS and an analysis of how effective these investments had been. The UK stressed the need for the EU to work closely with the global fund. The UK also stressed its commitment to working with member states to develop a vaccine following the announcement in the UK on World AIDS Day (1 December) on exploring the use of advance purchase agreements to create the right financial incentives for pharmaceutical companies to invest in research.

The Council discussed, for the first time, the European Commission proposed regulation on paediatric medicines. The European Commission presented the proposal, setting out the principal objective of improving the health of the children of Europe by increasing the development of medicines for use in children. The UK did not intervene.

The Council had its first discussion of the Commission's proposal to harmonise rules for labelling foodstuffs with health and nutrition claims. The Council's exchange of views was structured around presidency questions focused on the key issue of nutrient profiles, the proposed method of determining whether claims should be allowed. The UK's position was that the impact on business had to be proportionate to the objectives, and that full stakeholder consultations on the details of implementation would be needed.

Ministers adopted Council conclusions on a European response to emerging zoonotic diseases without any discussion.

HOME DEPARTMENT

European Community Association Agreement with Turkey

The Minister for Citizenship and Immigration (Mr. Desmond Browne): Further to my right hon. Friend the then Home Secretary's statement on 17 June about Ken Sutton's report on allegations about the handling of applications under the European Community association agreements (ECAA), work has continued on next steps. This work includes putting in place procedures and guidance for the agreement with Turkey, consistent with Mr. Sutton's recommendation that full account is taken of experience in handling applications under other association agreements. In order to ensure that all applications are considered robustly and consistently, applications under the European association agreement with Turkey have not been considered whilst this work has been continuing.

Following the Court of Appeal judgement in Dari and Tum v. Secretary of State for the Home Department and the recent reference of the case to the European Court of Justice, procedures and guidance will be put in place to manage applications made at port under this association agreement. Guidance will be published on the Immigration and Nationality Directorate website shortly. Applications for entry clearance will continue to be considered under the current rules. In country applications will continue to be held while new guidance is prepared plus operating procedures developed.

It is now our intention to begin consideration of applications for leave to enter at ports from 5 January 2005 and to resume a service for application made for leave to remain promptly once procedures are in place.

A further announcement will be made in due course.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Priorities and Budget 2005–08

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Ian Pearson): Following consultation on the Government's draft priorities and budget for Northern Ireland which was launched on 12 October 2004, I am today setting out the Government's priorities and spending plans for the Northern Ireland Departments for the period 2005–06 to 2007–08.

When devolution was suspended in Northern Ireland we pledged that we would work tirelessly to bring about an early restoration of devolved Government. We have and will continue to strive to bring this about so that the issues and plans set out in the priorities and budget can become the responsibility of Ministers accountable to a Northern Ireland Assembly. However, until then we are determined to continue to deliver on our plans to address the challenges facing Northern Ireland and ensure the delivery of better public services.

The resources underlying these priorities and budget proposals were largely determined by the outcome of the national spending review 2004 (SR 2004), as announced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 12 July 2004. These resources have been supplemented by forecast local rates revenue and the use of the borrowing power available under the reinvestment and reform initiative over the next three years. This is a substantial allocation and provides for continuing real growth in public expenditure by Northern Ireland departments, reaching in excess of £9 billion by 2007–08.

The priorities and budget which we are publishing today sets out the Government's priorities for Northern Ireland and how we plan to use the resources available to us to pursue these over the next three years. In reaching final decisions on resource allocations my Ministerial colleagues and I have listened carefully to the issues raised and concerns expressed during the consultation of the draft proposals, and where it has been possible we have taken action to address these concerns.

These plans will continue to build on the progress made by the former Northern Ireland Executive under devolution and continued by the Northern Ireland ministerial team since devolution was suspended. Our vision for the future of Northern Ireland is for a peaceful, inclusive, prosperous, stable and fair society, firmly founded on the achievement of reconciliation, tolerance, and mutual trust and the protection and vindication of human rights for all. Our key objective therefore is to develop a strong economy and a society that is fair for all. In pursuing this objective we must ensure that all available resources are used to the best possible effect. That is why this budget will ensure that investment is matched with reform, and steps will be taken to improve public sector performance and efficiency, ensuring that increased resources have maximum impact on the delivery of key front line services.

The three key themes and associated objectives underpinning these plans are:

> Economic competitiveness—to make Northern Ireland a more competitive and productive region.
> Building equality and community cohesion—to increase opportunity for all and ensure stronger communities.
> Better public services—to ensure excellent and efficient public services for all.

In order to meet these objectives we have set ourselves targets across a number of important priority areas, where the proposed outcomes are intended to deliver the changes needed to ensure the achievement of our vision for Northern Ireland. The ministerial team will concentrate on these targets, monitoring them closely to ensure that they improve policy making and provide better public services for the people of Northern Ireland.

For economic competitiveness, we have set targets of reducing the productivity gap with the rest of the UK; increasing the proportion of the working age population who are economically active; and by July 2007 opening up the electricity market to all consumers. These and other actions will help generate the conditions to enable the economy to become more competitive at national and international levels.

We want to encourage increased expenditure on research and development, to optimise the exploitation of Northern Ireland's world class telecommunications structure and achieve a competitive, sustainable and reliable energy market to improve competitiveness and stimulate enterprise. Through Invest NI we will provide support for companies to become more competitive through the development of their capabilities.

We also recognise the importance of workforce skills as a driver for economic change and growth. Increasing productivity and competitiveness, improving public services and addressing social disadvantage will all require a substantial increase in the overall skills of the workforce. One of our top priorities, therefore, is to improve the level of skills and qualifications in Northern Ireland, and we will do this by reforming key elements of the vocational education and training system.

In building equality and community cohesion, we are committed to building on our strong legislative and public policy frameworks to progress our goal of a more equal and inclusive society with strong, cohesive communities in which differences are accepted, respected and celebrated. We will continue to ensure that equality considerations are mainstreamed into policy development. Through promoting social inclusion (PSI) initiatives we will continue to support joint working across Departments, in partnership with statutory agencies and voluntary and community organisations to promote a more inclusive society.

Tackling poverty and disadvantage remain key priorities and we will build on new targeting social need by bringing forward a new anti-poverty strategy. We want to combat poverty by supporting people to move from welfare to work and increase benefit uptake through targeting vulnerable groups. We are also determined to reduce the number of households living in poverty through co-ordinated policy and action across the social security, health and education sectors. Through the implementation of the neighbourhood renewal strategy we aim to narrow the gap between those living in the most deprived neighbourhoods and the rest of Northern Ireland. Support for victims and survivors remains a priority and as Northern Ireland emerges from conflict it is important that we pay particular attention to the citizens of tomorrow. To this end, a 10-year strategy for children and young people will be taken forward and we will continue to support the Office of the Commissioner for Children and Young People.

Investment in health remains a top priority for the Government in Northern Ireland. The budget provides for a rise of 23 per cent. in current spending on health over the next three years. This will enable investment in priority services such as renal, cancer and other critical care areas and will provide for enhancement to community, primary and intermediate care services, services for the elderly and those with mental illnesses.

We need to ensure that the major increases in funding for the health and social care sectors that have taken place since 1997 are used to deliver the best possible care and treatment, and improve the overall health of the population. It is in this context that an independent review of health service delivery in Northern Ireland has been commissioned. The review will be led by Professor John Appleby of the Kings Fund and will examine the effectiveness and efficiency of health service delivery. The review will report initial findings to Ministers in April 2005 with the final report scheduled for publication by summer 2005.

Current spending on Education will increase by 11 per cent. over the budget period and capital investment will increase by 62 per cent. A high quality education system remains a key priority for the Government and these expenditure allocations will allow us to take forward a programme of education reform that will change and improve substantially what children learn, how they learn, and the environment within which they learn. These reforms will produce significant benefits for children, for society and for the economy. They will also allow us to maintain a focus on improving literacy and numeracy standards, particularly among disadvantaged pupils, and continue to address the requirements of children with special educational needs.

The priorities and budget also provides for an unprecedented growth in capital investment in Northern Ireland's public service infrastructure, with levels of investment planned to grow to over £1.2 billion a year in each of the next three years. The reinvestment and reform initiative (RRI), launched in May 2002, remains a key enabler of the major improvements required to Northern Ireland's infrastructure, particularly in the major public services of health, education, roads, public transport, water and sewerage. The Strategic Investment Board was established in 2003 to help drive forward the reinvestment and reform initiative by improving expertise in procurement and spearhead the development of public private partnerships. Major investment programmes do of course take several years to deliver which means we need to plan several years ahead to ensure we allocate investment funds effectively. That is why the Strategic Investment Board has drawn up a longer term 10-year draft Investment Strategy for Northern Ireland which is also being published today for consultation.

In seeking to deliver better public services a key focus of these plans is on efficiency and the reallocation of resources released through efficiency improvements to priority front line services. These plans include targets for the public sector to deliver efficiency gains of 2.5 per cent. each year over the next three years, at least half of which will release resources for reallocation to priority front line services. As a part of this, the administration costs of civil service departments are being held flat at 2005–06 levels over the next three years and civil service numbers will reduce by 2,300 across all departments. We also plan shortly to publish proposals flowing from the review of public administration with a view to reaching final decisions in the summer of 2005 and implementation by 2008–09. The review will contribute to the more effective delivery of public services and efficiency savings arising from its implementation will be in addition to those in current plans.

This priorities and budget builds on the substantial real growth in public expenditure that has occurred in recent years and will continue for the next three years. From 2002–03 to the end of this budget period expenditure by Northern Ireland departments will have grown by a third in cash terms—or by 20 per cent. in real terms. Infrastructure investment is planned to grow by 30 per cent. next year alone, and this extra investment will be sustained in the years after that. The challenge now is to deliver the better services and modern infrastructure that people want and Northern Ireland needs to enhance its competitiveness and to build a fairer society.

I have placed copies of the "Northern Ireland priorities and budget 2005–08" document in the Library.

Criminal Injuries Compensation Appeals Panel Northern Ireland

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Paul Murphy): I have today received from the Criminal Injuries Compensation Appeals Panel Northern Ireland copies of the corporate plan for the period 2004–07 and the business plan for the financial year 2004–05. The corporate plan outlines the panel's aims, objectives and responsibilities for the period 2004 to 2007 and the business plan its targets and objectives in the financial year 2004–05. Copies of the plans have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

SOLICITOR GENERAL

Pre-Trial Interviews with Witnesses

The Solicitor-General (Harriet Harman): My right hon. Friend the Attorney-General has made the following Ministerial Statement:

The report setting out my conclusions on the issue whether in principle prosecutors should be able to interview witnesses in criminal trials has been published today. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

In reaching those conclusions I have been informed by the results of a public consultation, conducted on my behalf by the Crown Prosecution Service, and by the views expressed to me by senior members of the judiciary.

In England and Wales prosecutors are not entitled to interview witnesses before trial, even when they are key witnesses whose credibility may be critical to whether a prosecution should go ahead or not. If my vision of the CPS as a world-class prosecuting service, admired and respected, and seen by all as a champion for victims and justice is to be realised, this must change.

The public rightly expects prosecutors to prosecute criminal offences, robustly, promptly and fairly and to bring to trial only those against whom there is an adequate and properly prepared case (and whose prosecution is justified in the public interest) and that prosecutors have confidence in the reliability of the evidence. Logic dictates that this expectation can only be met if prosecutors are able to interview witnesses about their evidence before trial.

I have therefore concluded, for the reasons set out in the report that the position ought to change so that prosecutors should have the ability in the future to interview witnesses, subject to safeguards including a code of practice and appropriate training.

I believe that the changes recommended will strengthen the prosecution process and contribute to putting victims and witnesses at the heart of criminal justice and more at ease with the criminal justice process.

The Director of Public Prosecutions fully supports the conclusions that I have reached. The report sets out my proposals for implementation of these conclusions through a working group to consider best how to pilot these proposals and further discussions with the professional bodies.

I am grateful to all those who contributed their time and expertise by responding to the consultation paper.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Parliamentary Questions

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Mr. Christopher Leslie): Access rights to information held by public authorities under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 come into force on 1 January 2005.

The following guidance sets out procedures for dealing with complaints about the handling of requests for information. This guidance makes clear that there should be no inconsistencies between the provision of information in answer to parliamentary questions and information given to citizens under the Freedom of Information Act.

Where a member is dissatisfied with the answer to a parliamentary question there are well-established parliamentary routes Members may follow such as: tabling further questions; seeking to raise the issues on the Adjournment; or a complaint to the Public Administration Committee, that may seek to follow up the issue with Ministers.

Alternatively Members may write to the appropriate Minister expressing their concern and setting out the information they are seeking. Such correspondence shall be treated by departments as a new request for information requiring a full internal review and fresh decision. The request will attract all the provisions and appeal mechanisms afforded by the Freedom of Information Act, including if necessary an appeal to the Information Commissioner.

Any investigation by the Information Commissioner will therefore be related to the correspondence to the Minister and not extend to the answer to the parliamentary question or to any other parliamentary proceedings which are protected by parliamentary privilege. In addition the Cabinet Office plans to issue revised guidance to officials on drafting answers to parliamentary questions taking account of the Freedom of Information Act.

DEFENCE

Baton Rounds (Northern Ireland)

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): On 23 October 2002, I placed in the Library of the House details of the guidelines on the rules of engagement for the use of plastic baton rounds in Northern Ireland by the armed forces. We did this as an exceptional measure aimed at building confidence in Northern Ireland following a request from the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission.

The guidelines were updated in the light of a recommendation made by the independent assessor of military complaints procedures and placed in the Library of the House on 15 May 2003.

The guidance has been further updated to take account of lessons learned from training and operations and as part of our commitment to review baton round guidance in consultation with the Association of Chief Police Officers. A copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Ronald Maddison

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Ivor Caplin): I wrote yesterday to the solicitors acting for the Maddison family apologising for the fact that Ministry of Supply employees at the Chemical Defence Experimental Establishment at Porton Down Wiltshire proceeded with a test involving Ronald George Maddison on 6 May 1953, which led to his death. This was undertaken notwithstanding the fact that an identical test on 4 May 1953 resulted in an adverse blood test result in one serviceman.

The Ministry of Defence has not received a formal claim for compensation from the next of kin of Mr. Maddison. However, any claim for compensation from his family would be considered favourably on the basis of the negligence referred to above.

The Ministry of Defence intends to challenge, by way of judicial review, the inquest verdict of unlawful killing.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Gypsy Sites

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): I am announcing today the publication for consultation of the new planning Circular "Planning for Gypsy and Traveller Sites". The new Circular will replace DoE Circular 1/94 "Gypsy Sites and Planning".

The advice in the Circular covers the procedures to be followed in ensuring that the planning system recognises, protects and facilitates the traditional lifestyle of Gypsies and Travellers by identifying and making provision in developments plans for their land and accommodation requirements.

It is the Government's intention that the accommodation needs of Gypsy and Traveller communities should be part of the mainstream of the plan-led system. The guidance contained in the Circular should result in a greater proportion of this need being provided for on sites allocated in development plans, providing greater certainty both for Gypsies and Travellers and local residents and reducing the need for local authorities to enter into lengthy and expensive enforcement actions against unauthorised sites.

The new Circular also updates the definition of Gypsies and Travellers to reflect the fact that many stop travelling permanently or temporarily because of health reasons or caring responsibilities but still want to maintain their traditional lifestyle.

The consultation will run until 18 March 2005. Copies of the consultation documents have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and are available to download from the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website.

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Keith Hill): I am today announcing the details of the successful bids under the second round of the Gypsy Site Refurbishment Grant for 2004–05. Under the first round, £4.82 million was allocated in April of this year, with a further £2.54 million now being paid in the second round.

The existing network of over 300 local authority authorised sites represents a valuable resource for Gypsies and Travellers. With the aid of this grant, local authorities are able to ensure that Gypsies and Travellers have access to high quality accommodation and that the networks of sites continues to meet the needs of the Gypsy and Traveller community into the future. The successful bids are:

The City of Bradford Metropolitan District Council (£10,425 for the Mary Street site).

East Cambridgeshire District Council (£42,700 for the First Drove site).

Herefordshire Council (£300,000 for the Graftons site).

Manchester City Council (£1,157,250 for the Fairholme site).

Shropshire County Council (£63,525 for the Craven Arms site).

The London Borough of Southwark (£820,875 for the Springtide and Burnhill site).

West Sussex County Council (£141,900 for the Horsgate site).

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Children Act Report

The Minister for Children, Young People and Families (Margaret Hodge): I have today placed copies of the Children Act report for 2003 in the Libraries of both Houses. This statutory requirement, as part of the Children Act 1989 (s83(6)), is met each year by drawing together information relating to research, statistics and inspection findings, which are consolidated to create a report.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Biological Weapons Convention

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Denis MacShane): Members will wish to be aware of the outcome of the recent discussions in Geneva on the two subjects set for discussion by states party to the biological and toxin weapons convention (BTWC) in 2004. States party were mandated to discuss and promote common understanding and effective action on strengthening national and international efforts and existing mechanisms for the surveillance, detection, diagnosis and combating of infectious diseases affecting humans, animals and plants; and on promoting common understanding and effective action on the effects of cases of alleged use of biological or toxin weapons or suspicious outbreaks of disease.

On the concluding day of the meeting of states party to the BTWC, which took place from 6–10 December, there was agreement by consensus on a politically binding report where, inter alia, states party recognised the international aspect of these subjects and their relevance to the object and purpose of the BTWC, and agreed on the value of the following actions:

supporting the existing networks of relevant international organisations for the surveillance, detection, diagnosis and combating of infectious diseases and acting to strengthen the World Health Organisation(WHO), Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO) and World Organisation for Animal Health (OIE) programmes, within their mandates, for the continued development and strengthening of, and research into, rapid, effective and reliable activities for the surveillance, detection, diagnosis and combating of infectious diseases, including in cases of emergencies of international concern; improving, wherever possible, national and regional disease surveillance capabilities, and, if in a position to do so, assisting and encouraging, with the necessary agreement, other states party to do the same; working to improve communication on disease surveillance, including with the WHO, FAO and OIE, and among states party; continuing to develop their own national capacities for response, investigation and mitigation, in cooperation with the relevant international and regional organisations, and, if in a position to do so, assisting and encouraging, with the necessary agreement, other states party to do the same;

the sixth review conference in 2006 considering, inter alia, the further development of current procedures for the provision of assistance, by those in a position to do so, to states party in cases of alleged use of biological weapons or suspicious outbreaks of disease.

The preceding meeting of experts held in Geneva in July had prepared the way for this political decision making. At this earlier meeting, levels of attendance and participation were excellent with 87 states party contributing to international discussion and sharing of expertise on these subjects. For the United Kingdom, experts from across Whitehall made nine presentations which were well received.

That so many other states party sent experts from capitals and took an active part is an indication to us that delegations recognised both the importance of the two subjects and also the value of the work programme more generally in contributing to strengthening the BTWC. The success of the July meeting was reinforced at the December meeting of states party where states party, in their national statements, welcomed the substantial exchange of information.

The United Kingdom was grateful to the chair, Mr. Peter Goosen of South Africa, for the efforts he made to achieve consensus on a report that reflected the commonality of views and approaches that were demonstrated at the meetings. We believe that this has again demonstrated to the wider arms control community that the intersessional process has value.

The continued success of this process is particularly important to the UK as we look ahead to 2005 and our own chairmanship of the meetings of states party. Ambassador John Freeman, UK permanent representative to the conference on disarmament, was elected on the final day of this year's meeting as the chair. The subject for consideration will be "the content, promulgation, and adoption of codes of conduct for scientists". UK national preparations for this began in 2003. We have held a series of seminars with representatives of academia, NGOs and industry to seek their views and to assist in developing our ideas for next year. Ambassador Freeman wrote to states party on the final day of the 2004 meeting with some initial thoughts on the work ahead. The UK will continue to work co-operatively both nationally and internationally through 2005.

I will keep the House informed of developments and outcomes in 2005.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

EU Code of Conduct on Arms Exports

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): During my oral answer to the right hon. and learned Member for Devizes (Mr. Ancram) on 14 December 2004, Official Report, column 1515, I said the following: "Following an initiative by my predecessor, my right hon. Friend the Member for Livingston (Mr. Cook), we now have a legally enforceable EU code of conduct on arms sales". I would like to clarify this statement. The code of conduct, as incorporated into the consolidated EU and national arms export licensing criteria, serves as binding statutory guidance to the Government in our assessment of applications for strategic export licences under section 9(5) of the Export Control Act. The Government is therefore required to have regard to the criteria set out in the Code when assessing such applications. Export licensing decisions may be subject to judicial review, including on the basis of failure to have proper regard to such criteria. However, the code of conduct is not per se directly legally enforceable before the UK or European courts.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Passports

The Minister for Citizenship and Immigration (Mr. Desmond Browne): I have decided that the process of establishing the identity of passport applicants needs to be strengthened by introducing a requirement for some applicants to attend a passport office in person. The UK Passport Service has commenced work on the practical arrangements, including the acquisition of some 70 new premises, and expects to be able to introduce the requirement from late 2006. Adults who have not previously held a British passport in their own name will then be required to attend for a short meeting before a passport can be issued. This will be combined with enhanced checking of the information applicants provide.

This is part of a programme of improvements being developed by the UKPS to meet current and future needs for the security of passports as documents of identity. The programme will counter the misuse of passports in connection with illegal immigration, organised crime and terrorism. It will give individuals better protection from identity theft.

The UK is one of only a few western countries that does not currently require personal attendance before issuing a passport. The ability to send applications by post allows fraudsters to apply in false or stolen identities without fear of arrest and to make multiple applications in the hope of getting one through. It allows the possibility of passports being applied for with the photographs of people who are outside the UK and seeking to enter illegally. With the enhancements to the security of the passport document itself that biometric technology will bring, I have decided it is time to make equivalent enhancements to the process of establishing identity before issuing passports.

The requirement may in future be extended to other types of passport applications. This will certainly be the case if enrolment of fingerprints or iris images becomes necessary for passports or for identity cards. The process and infrastructure that UKPS is developing will therefore have the ability also to act as a building block for a future ID card enrolment network and system.

Kent Acts Report

The Minister for Crime Reduction, Policing and Community Safety (Ms Hazel Blears): The Kent Acts report has been published today by command of Her Majesty. Copies of the report are available in the Vote Office and in the Library.

The report highlights how the implementation of the Kent County Council Act 2001 and the Medway Council Act 2001 (the Kent Acts) in Kent has contributed to overall falls in acquisitive crime in the county and asserts that national legislation would, if enacted, have benefits.

Further consultation will be undertaken in the new year to fully investigate the case for national legislation.

Budd Report

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Charles Clarke): Sir Alan Budd has today delivered the report of his investigation into the handling by the Home Office of the application for indefinite leave to remain submitted by Leoncia Casalme in April 2003.

I welcome the report and thank Sir Alan and his team for their hard work in producing it so quickly. I particularly welcome his statement that he received full co-operation from the previous Home Secretary, my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Brightside (Mr. Blunkett) and Home Office officials and that he does not believe that there was any attempt to destroy, conceal or withhold documents or information that was relevant to the inquiry.

The report sets out in detail how this case was handled and we need to learn from it. What went wrong here is that a case in which a Minister turned out to have a personal interest was dealt with, without that interest being clearly recorded. I have therefore asked the Permanent Secretary to ensure there are clear and formal rules for handling and recording all cases that are drawn to Ministers' attention.

My right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Brightside took full responsibility for this matter and resigned last week. I believe on the basis of this authoritative report the matter should now be closed.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

National Physical Laboratory

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Ms Patricia Hewitt): In 1998 the DTI entered into a PFI arrangement with the contractor, Laser (Teddington II) Limited (Laser), to build and subsequently maintain new science facilities at the National Physical Laboratory at Teddington.

During construction of the facilities, Laser encountered a number of technical difficulties that significantly delayed completion and increased costs to a level that threatened the project's viability. In July this year Laser approached the Department with a proposal that an agreed termination of the PFI project represented the best available option for resolving these difficulties.

DTI has now agreed with Laser and their lenders to the termination of the PFI project on the following basis. The Department has made a termination payment of £75 million, based upon the principles of the termination provisions of the project agreement. This means that full ownership of, and responsibility for, the new facilities, which have an insurance value of £120 million, have been transferred back to the DTI.

Following this termination payment, net liabilities of £73 million on DTI's balance sheet will be extinguished and the Department will make significant cash savings from fees that would otherwise have been made in payment for the new facilities between now and 2023.

This is an example of how the risk transfer principles of PFI arrangements can operate, with appropriate risks being ultimately transferred to the private sector to the benefit of the taxpayer.

DTI intends, wherever possible, to put to competitive tender the construction work needed to complete the facilities. DTI has also exercised its right to step into, in place of Laser, the support services management agreement, made between Laser and Serco Limited for the provision by Serco of support services at the site, thereby ensuring uninterrupted provision of these services.

The DTI is confident that these arrangements will enable the outstanding work on the new facilities to be completed so that NPL can continue to deliver world-class science and vital support for innovation, consistent with value for money for the taxpayer.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Occupational Pensions (Directive 2003/41/EC)

The Minister for Pensions (Malcolm Wicks): We have today placed in the Library copies of the transposition note setting out how the UK Government are implementing the provisions of directive 2003/41/EC, which concerns the activities and supervision of institutions for occupational retirement provision.

Although the Pensions Act 2004 is the principal legislative vehicle for fulfilling this obligation, there will also be some limited use of the regulation-making provisions of the European Communities Act 1972.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Answers

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199657]

Hilary Benn: The Department for International Development (DFID) makes every effort to answer all questions substantively before Prorogation, however, this is not always possible. Where this was the case, hon. Members were issued with a response that followed parliamentary guidelines to notify them of this. Where hon. Members did not receive a substantive response they have the option to re-table the question in this session.

During the last Parliamentary Session of 2003–04, there were 2,296 written parliamentary questions tabled to DFID, of which, 13 questions could not be answered substantively in the time available before Prorogation.

Millennium Development Goals

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress is being made on each of the eight Millennium Development Goals (MDG) on the basis of existing funding levels; and when each MDG will be met (a) including China and (b) excluding China. [199599]

Hilary Benn: The latest edition of DFID's annual publication 'Statistics in International Development' which is available in the House of Commons Library, summarises progress towards the MDGs. Globally, progress has been most noticeable in reducing income poverty and that the goal of promoting gender equality has also seen notable improvement. The water and sanitation targets for MDG 7 have also moved in the right direction. The prospects are less good for the goals related to universal primary education, improving child and maternal health and combatting HIV/AIDS, malaria and other diseases, though some countries have seen substantial improvements in these areas, showing what can be done with the right policies and targeted resources. Goal 8 highlights action required by developed countries and progress is being made, although further effort is still needed.

The UK has recently completed a report which sets out its own contributions towards meeting the MDGs, this will be published early in 2005.

The UN has recently produced a chart showing progress towards selected indicators related to the MDGs by region. Although this represents the most thorough assessment currently available, it does not provide an analysis excluding China. The most recent UN progress report on the Millennium Development goals (October 2004) can be accessed via http://millenniumindicators.un.org.

Water/Sanitation Projects

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's policy is on instituting sector budget support for water and sanitation in cases where main partner governments do not prioritise water and sanitation in their poverty reduction strategies; and if he will make a statement. [200113]

Mr. Thomas: In our dialogue with our partner governments, we regularly discuss the priority placed on water and sanitation in their poverty reduction strategies.

Whether DFID will consider, along with other donors, to provide sector budget support in a particular country will depend on the specific situation in that country.

Demonstration (Cabinet Office)

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office (1) if she will make a statement on the anti-war demonstration held inside the Cabinet Office on 23 November; how many demonstrators entered the building; at what time they (a) entered and (b) were removed; and what security status was in force at the time; [200265]

(2) what period of time elapsed before the intruders in the Cabinet Office on 23 November were challenged. [200266]

Ruth Kelly: On Tuesday 23 November at approximately 1.15 pm a security officer stopped a member of the public who was attempting to enter the Cabinet Office at 70 Whitehall without a pass. While the officer was dealing with this person, who was agitated, three further persons were able to gain entry. These individuals gained access to an office inside the building where they were, within a few minutes, stopped and challenged by security guards who had pursued them. The police were called, and they arrested, and removed all four protestors from the building at 1.30 pm.

The security status at the time was black special.

Identity Passes

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office whether identity passes are required to be worn within the Cabinet Office building. [200267]

Ruth Kelly: Yes.

PRIME MINISTER

Casinos

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list meetings he has attended with representatives of casino operators from outside the UK in the last 12 months, broken down by (a) location and (b) purpose; and if he will make a statement. [200372]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Bath (Mr. Foster) on 10 November 2004, Official Report, columns 691–92W.

Climate Change

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister (1) if he will make a statement on his recent discussions in Washington with President Bush on climate change; and what progress was made; [200692]

(2) if he will make an assessment of the degree to which (a) President Bush and (b) the US Administration believe that climate change is happening. [200750]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Ealing, Southall (Mr. Khabra) at Prime Minister's questions on 17 November 2004, Official Report, column 1350.

Departmental Press Briefings

Llew Smith: To ask the Prime Minister whether (a) Ministers and (b) departmental officials briefed reporters for (i) The Sun and (ii) Daily Mail in respect of information used in articles published on 23 November on alleged terrorist plots to attack targets at Heathrow and Canary Wharf in London. [199633]

The Prime Minister: All contacts with the media are conducted in accordance with the Ministerial Code, the Civil Service Code, the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers and Guidance on the Work of the Government Information Service.

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Prime Minister whether his Office's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199692]

The Prime Minister: Recent work on the Downing Street website was part of an on-going commitment to ensure that the website is fully compliant with World Wide Web Consortium's guidelines. Further work is planned to ensure that the entire site meets the highest possible standards of accessibility.

Iraq

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Prime Minister what reports he received during 2002 from the International Atomic Energy Agency concerning Iraq's weapons of mass destruction. [200148]

The Prime Minister: Under United Nations Security Council Resolution 1051, the IAEA was tasked with submitting reports to the UN Security Council every six months on the status of its investigations into Iraq's nuclear weapons programmes. Reports were produced on 10 April 2002 and 16 October 2002 although there were no in-country inspection activities until November 2002 as a result of the refusal of the Iraqi Government to allow entry by the inspection teams. Following the resumption of inspections after UNSCR 1441 the IAEA presented an interim report on progress together with an interim assessment of Iraq's Declaration to the Security Council on 19 December 2002.

Adam Price: To ask the Prime Minister on what date he was made aware of the July 2003 withdrawal by the intelligence services of the reports on Iraq's weapons. [200037]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 21 July 2004, Official Report, column 285W.

Llew Smith: To ask the Prime Minister when he read the final report of the Iraq Survey Group. [199662]

The Prime Minister: I read the report when it was published on 6 October 2004.

President Chirac

Tony Baldry: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what discussions he has had with President Chirac on the Commission for Africa; [199598]

(2) what discussions he has had with President Chirac on the International Financing Facility. [199600]

The Prime Minister: I discussed a wide range of issues with President Chirac during the UK-France summit held in London on 18 November 2004, including the Commission for Africa and the International Financing Facility.

I also refer the hon. Member to the Communique and Declaration on Africa, which is available on the Foreign Office website, and to the press conference I held with President Chirac, which is available on the No. 10 website.

HEALTH

Health Service Deficits (South-west)

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the financial deficits for the financial year ended 31 March were for (a) the Peninsula strategic health authority, (b) Plymouth Primary Care Trust, (c) South Hams and West Devon Primary Care Trust, (d) Plymouth Hospital NHS Healthcare Trust and (e) Devon Partnership Trust; and what the anticipated financial deficit of each of them is in the year to 31 March 2005. [199728]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is shown in the table.

	Surplus/(deficit)
	Outturn 2003–04	Forecast outturn 2004–05
South West Peninsula Strategic Health Authority (SHA)	10,220	0
Plymouth Primary Care Trust (PCT)	0	0
South Hams and West Devon PCT	545	0
Plymouth Hospitals National Health Service Trust	(7,753)	0
Devon Partnership NHS Trust	93	0

The forecast outturn for 2004–05 is based on the latest information published by the South West Peninsula SHA.

In-patient Accommodation

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on progress in ending mixed-sex wards in Hampshire; and if he will list hospital premises where inpatient accommodation does not comply with the standards set by his Department. [200271]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has set three objectives to support the delivery of single-sex accommodation, designed to deliver single-sex sleeping accommodation, segregated bathroom and washing facilities and to safeguard the mentally ill. The objectives apply to all national health service organisations providing inpatient accommodation.

All inpatient hospital accommodation provided within Hampshire is fully compliant with the standards which we have set.

Nurses

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what targets his Department has set for nurse numbers in each of the next 10 years, expressed as a (a) headcount and (b) whole-time-equivalent figure. [199923]

Mr. Hutton: The NHS Plan set a target for an extra 20,000 nurses by 2004, over a 1999 baseline, the Government's Manifesto made a further commitment for 20,000 nurses by 2005, over a 2000 baseline, and "Delivering the NHS Plan" set an expectation for increasing the qualified nursing workforce by 35,000 by 2008 over 2001 levels.

These targets and expectations are on a headcount basis, and all have been met and exceeded. The table shows the increases against the targets and expectations.

	NHS Plan	Manifesto	Delivering the NHS Plan
Target/expectation	20,000 by 2004	20,000 by 2005	35,000 by 2008
Change	1999–2003	2000–2003	2001–2003
Headcount	56,722	50,407	35,978
Whole-time equivalents	43,552	37,905	27,558

Sources:
Department of Health non-medical workforce census
Department of Health general and personal medical services statistics

There has been a further headcount increase of 10,000 between September 2003 and March 2004.

There are no additional targets for increasing the nursing workforce, though we expect further annual increases. It is for local national health service organisations to determine the number of nurses needed locally.

Oxleas NHS Trust

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will meet (a) the Chief Executive of Oxleas NHS Trust and (b) the hon. Member for Erith and Thamesmead to discuss the matters raised by the hon. Member for Erith and Thamesmead in his letter of 13 October; [199605]

(2) what discussions he has had with the (a) South East London Strategic Health Authority and (b) Private Finance Unit regarding Oxleas NHS Trust on the matters raised with him by the hon. Members for Erith and Thamesmead and Bexleyheath and Crayford (Mr. Nigel Beard) on 14 July. [199606]

Mr. Hutton: Departmental officials have been in touch with South East London Strategic Health Authority about this matter.

I met with my hon. Friend the Member for Erith and Thamesmead and the hon. Member for Bexley Heath and Crayford earlier in the year and wrote to both of them regarding Oxleas earlier this month. I have no immediate plans for a further meeting.

Peninsula Strategic Health Authority

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the budget of the Peninsula Strategic Health Authority is for the current financial year. [199727]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The budget figure for the South West Peninsula Strategic Health Authority for the financial year 2004–05 is £4.563 million.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Ahmadiyya Community

Sue Doughty: Affairs what representations he has received regarding attacks by anti-Ahmadiyya agitators upon Ahmadis in Bangladesh; what representations he (a) has made and (b) is making to the Government of Bangladesh regarding the protection of the Ahmadiyya community in Bangladesh; and if he will make a statement. [200436]

Mr. Alexander: We have received many representations on this subject from interested NGOs,including the Ahmadiyya Muslim Association UK and hon. Members of this House. We share their concerns about attacks and organised incitement against the Ahmadiyya community. We have both bilaterally and together with EU colleagues, regularly raised issues of religious persecution and intolerance with the Bangladeshi authorities urging them to ensure that minorities, not least the Ahmadiyyas, are suitably protected, that every reported crime is promptly and fully investigated, that the perpetrators of crimes against religious minorities are brought to justice and that firm action is taken against incitement. We shall continue to do so.

Sue Doughty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairswhat representations he (a) has made and (b) is making to the Government of Pakistan regarding the protection of the Ahmadiyya community in Pakistan, particularly with regard to the blasphemy laws in that country; and if he will make a statement. [200437]

Mr. Alexander: The British Government takes a serious and very concerned view of all cases of religious intolerance and persecution.

We have raised our concerns, bilaterally and together with our EU colleagues, about religious persecution and the blasphemy laws with the Pakistani Government on a number of occasions. The EU has called upon the Pakistani authorities to take all possible measures to reform the Blasphemy Laws; to strengthen institutional and legal safeguards while these laws remain in force; and to make the abuse of these laws an offence. The EU urged the Government of Pakistan to continue its efforts to bring the perpetrators of crimes against religious minorities to justice, and to ensure that every reported crime is promptly and fully investigated.

We will continue to monitor the situation in Pakistan and will make representations to the Pakistani Government when this is called for.

Anti-Semitic Broadcasts

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action he has taken to tackle anti-semitic broadcasts from Middle East countries. [199741]

Mr. Rammell: Her Majesty's Government deplores anti-semitism in any form. It is not our policy to seek to control broadcasts in other countries. But we look to all governments to promote the right to freedom of religion and the enjoyment of all human rights without distinction on the basis of race or religion. We engage closely with the Arab media in the UK and in the region, including funding for training programmes to help them improve standards. The EU tabled a resolution at this years UN Commission on Human Rights which urges all states, in conformity with international human rights standards, to take action to combat intolerance and intimidation based on religion or belief.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the effect anti-semitic broadcasts in Arab media have had on prospects for a resolution of the Arab-Israeli conflict. [199742]

Mr. Rammell: We deplore anti-semitism wherever it occurs, as we deplore racism and xenophobia in any form. We have consistently called on all parties in the Middle East to do everything within their power to desist from incitement and to curb extremism. We expect all media outlets to broadcast in a responsible and objective manner. We have not made any specific assessment of the effect anti-semitic broadcasts in the Arab media on prospects for a resolution of the Arab-Israel conflict.

Arab Media

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the influence of Arab media on extremist Islamic movements in the UK. [199743]

Mr. Rammell: The Arab media represents a wide spectrum of views, including those of modernisation and reform. We have not undertaken a measure of its impact. We expect all media outlets to broadcast in a responsible and objective manner. We engage closely with the Arab media in the UK and in the region, including funding for training programmes to help them improve standards. Where Arab media groups operate within the UK, they must operate within UK law. Possible offences of inciting racial hatred or violence under the Public Order Act can be referred to the police.

EU Constitution

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list those areas of competence that will remain exclusive to the United Kingdom if the proposed EU Constitution is adopted. [199800]

Mr. MacShane: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave to the hon. Member for Epsom and Ewell (Chris Grayling) on 1 July 2004, Official Report, column 429W.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200179]

Mr. MacShane: Following the commitment made to Parliament by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 4 May 2004, Official Report, column 1456W, we are aiming to publish by the end of the year a comparative analysis of the EU Constitution with existing EU treaty provisions. This document will address points (a), (b) and (c). In addition, with regard to point (b), I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for New Forest East (Dr. Lewis) on 5 July 2004, Official Report, columns 592–93W which sets out moves from unanimity to QMV in the EU Constitution. With regard to point (e), I refer the hon. Member to the statement on the Charter of Fundamental Rights made by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on 9 September 2004, Official Report, columns 133–36WS. With regard to points (d) and (f), the EU Constitution will not in itself determine the quantity of EU legislation, or any costs associated with its implementation. The introduction of a rigorous subsidiarity mechanism involving national parliaments should provide a check on new legislation and help focus it better when it is necessary. For more detail on the subsidiarity mechanism and the Government's position on the treaty as a whole I refer the hon. Member to the White Paper on the treaty establishing a Constitution for Europe which the Foreign Secretary published on 9 September (Cm 6309).

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which parts of the text of the Constitutional Treaty for the EU are additional to provisions contained in treaties already ratified; and in which treaties those parts of the text which do not introduce new provisions were originally contained. [200447]

Mr. MacShane: Following the commitment made to Parliament by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 4 May 2004, Official Report, column 1456W, we are aiming to publish by the end of the year a comparative analysis of the EU Constitution with existing EU treaty provisions. This document will compare each article of the new treaty to the existing treaties, identify which provisions are new, highlight moves to QMV and co-decision and extension of competence.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary Session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199644]

Mr. Straw: Seven. Of the seven, five were tabled shortly before the end of the parliamentary Session.

Spain

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Spanish authorities over (a) the remarks of the Spanish coach and (b) events at the matches during the recent international football matches in Spain. [199596]

Mr. MacShane: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with the Spanish authorities about the remarks of the Spanish football coach, but he discussed the incidents at the Spain v. England football match with his Spanish counterpart, Sr Miguel Angel Moratinos, the day after the game.

Sr Moratinos condemned the racist chanting that we witnessed that evening, and agreed that such behaviour cannot be tolerated anywhere in society. I spoke to my Spanish counterpart, Sr Navarro, the morning after the match along similar lines, and expressed our outrage at the chanting.

Vietnam

Mr. Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) if he will make a statement on his Department's efforts to open up the Vietnamese economy to (a) domestic and (b) international trade; [199563]

(2) if he will make a statement on his Department's plans to assist Vietnam in becoming a market-based economy. [199564]

Mr. Alexander: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and Department for International Development (DfID) have adopted a joint approach to assist Vietnam in becoming a market-based economy, and in developing its domestic and international trade.

Key to this is a common position on Vietnam's accession to the World Trade Organisation (WTO), in particular an insistence on accession on terms that benefits all Vietnamese people, particularly its poor. The European Commission (which negotiates on behalf of EU member states on WTO accession) has been encouraged by the British Government to recognise, in the negotiation process, Vietnam's low income country status.

In terms of developing Vietnam's domestic economy, DFID is working with the World Bank to support reform of state-owned enterprises (SOE). Activities focus on the restructuring of three general corporations to reduce state direct investment, and encouraging the private sector to play a stronger role. This area of reform is crucial to free-up government resources for social service provision and poverty reduction. DFID further supported the revision of key investment and enterprise laws to create a level playing field for business, and to reduce state intervention in company decision-making and the allocation of resources.

In the longer term, DFID, in partnership with the Asian Development Bank, is helping the Government of Vietnam to identify and develop policies to make the transition to a market-based economy work in favour of the poor, through improving their access to land and other natural resources, through increased opportunities for employment and income generation, and through linking up the domestic markets within which they supply labour to global markets, for example those that supply supermarkets. For further information on this intervention I refer my hon. Friend to the Making Markets Work Better for the Poor website: www.markets4poor.org.

TREASURY

Building Societies

Sir Archy Kirkwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints were lodged against building societies in the most recent period for which figures are available. [199592]

Mr. Timms: The Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) does not publish figures on complaints against individual firms.

The FOS's Annual Review 2003–04 indicated that it had resolved a total of 76,704 complaints in the year ending 31 March, 13 per cent. of which were concerning Banks and Building Societies.

Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Economic Secretary will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 25 October (PO Ref: 5/10798/2004). [200324]

Dawn Primarolo: I have done so.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 5 October (PO Ref: A/01567/2004). [200326]

Dawn Primarolo: I have done so.

Dentistry

Mr. Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, if he will commission research on the advantages and disadvantages of giving tax relief to cover the cost of private dental insurance for patients of dentists who have opted out of the NHS and where there is no alternative NHS dentist with an open list in the local primary care trust area. [200146]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government have no plans to commission research on tax relief for expenditure on private dental insurance.

EU Accounts

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what action he proposes to take if the EU Court of Auditors refuses to approve the EU accounts in its next annual report. [200304]

Mr. Timms: The Government are already discussing with the Commission and the European Court of Auditors how the annual Statement of Assurance may be improved to give a better assessment of progress. The Government also consider that it is important to continue to take an active role in promoting best practice in financial management and control in the Commission and in member states.

European Union

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the UK's net contribution to the EU budget was over the last 10 years for which figures are available. [199813]

Mr. Timms: The UK's net contributions to the EC budget for the financial years 1994–95 to 2003–04 are set out as follows:

	£ million
1994–95	1,641
1995–96	3,852
1996–97	2,293
1997–98	2,567
1998–99	4,111
1999–2000	3,325
2000–01	4,318
2001–02	1,477
2002–03	3,080

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what duty of care his Department has to ensure that the UK contribution to the EU budget is used for appropriate purposes. [200302]

Mr. Timms: The Treasury takes the lead in negotiating EC annual and multi-annual budgets, as well as agreeing funding for new spending programmes, in line with UK priorities. The Treasury also leads in monitoring and reviewing the implementation of effective financial controls in the Commission and in member states to enable the budget to be spent appropriately and in accordance with the rules.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the level of fraud in the use of the EU budget in (a) the last year, (b) the last five years and (c) the last 10 years. [199809]

Mr. Timms: Member States are required to report irregularities detected in the own resources, agriculture and structural funds budget sectors to the European Commission and the European Anti-Fraud Office. These figures are reported each year in the Commission's annual "Fight against Fraud" report. Reported irregularities may include suspected fraud cases, but the Commission does not identify the extent of fraud. Most irregularities are not fraud but genuine errors where the money paid out is usually recovered.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what questions his Department has put to (a) the European Commission and (b) the European Court of Auditors during the last year regarding the Commission's accounting practices. [199811]

Mr. Timms: Treasury officials have taken the opportunity to question the Commission on a quarterly basis at the Council's Budget Committee and on other occasions with particular reference to its progress with the implementation of new accounting procedures. They have been assured that progress is on target for the implementation of full accruals accounting with effect from January 2005. There has been no formal discussion with the European Court of Auditors on this issue.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations his Department has made, since August 2002, to (a) the European Commission and (b) the EU Court of Auditors to ensure that UK funds have not been used inappropriately by EU institutions. [199812]

Mr. Timms: Treasury officials played a major role in shaping the new Financial Regulation which now includes rules to govern the accountability of EU officials and requires the setting of "SMART" objectives (and the evaluation of their achievement) for all Community spending to ensure that the budget is spent appropriately. It also required the Commission to modernise its accounting practices. Officials continue to maintain close contact with the Commission and may assist in resolving specific UK issues. But while we maintain informal contact with the European Court of Auditors (ECA) on these issues, the ECA is prohibited under the treaty from taking instructions from any government.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department has raised concerns about the rate of turnover in senior accounting staff in the European Commission in the last three years. [199808]

Mr. Timms: This is a matter for the European Commission.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether it is his Department's policy to encourage the European Commission to adopt double-entry book-keeping. [199810]

Mr. Timms: Article 134 of the Financial Regulation, which came into effect on 1 January 2003, requires the European Commission to use double entry book keeping.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the implications for the competitiveness of Eurozone countries of the strengthening of the euro against the US dollar. [199804]

Mr. Timms: Based on all relevant factors, the Government will publish on 2 December their assessment of macro-economic prospects for the euro area in the 2004 pre-Budget report.

Financial Ombudsman

Sir Archy Kirkwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints were received by the Financial Ombudsman Service in the latest period for which figures are available; how many of those cases were investigated; and in what proportion of cases investigated the complaint was upheld. [199591]

Mr. Timms: In the financial year ending 31 March 2004, the Financial Ombudsman Service received a total of 97,901 cases and resolved 76,704 cases. This data and breakdown was published in June 2004 by the Financial Ombudsman Service in their annual review and report and financial statements, 1 April 2003 to 31 March 2004.

Sir Archy Kirkwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to increase the (a) powers and (b) penalties available to the Financial Services Ombudsman to deal with building societies who provide inadequate services to those seeking mortgages. [199593]

Mr. Timms: The Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 established the Financial Ombudsman Service as an independent organisation to help resolve individual disputes between consumers and financial firms.The Financial Ombudsman Service has no powers to impose penalties against financial firms. This role is fulfilled by the Financial Services Authority, which may impose sanctions on firms, including building societies, which breach its rules.

The Financial Services Authority assumed responsibility for regulating first charge mortgages, including advising and arranging on mortgages, on 31 October 2004.

General Insurance Regulation

Mr. Spring: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many advertisements for the new regime for General Insurance Regulation were placed in the national press by the Financial Services Authority in each month of 2004. [199545]

Mr. Timms: The FSA ran two advertising campaigns advertising the new regime for General Insurance regulation in 2004. The first campaign, between late May and July, consisted of 15 advertisements in the national press and nine advertisements in selected trade press. The second campaign in October consisted of a total of 48 advertisements, in the national press.

Inheritance Tax

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the extent to which (a) the public and (b) banks and building societies have been made aware of the recent agreement negotiated by him for the release of sufficient assets of deceased individuals to pay inheritance tax on their estates in order to permit probate to be granted; and if he will make a statement on the steps taken to publicise that agreement. [200272]

Dawn Primarolo: The Direct Payment Scheme was introduced on 31 March 2003 in order to help streamline the process for paying inheritance tax. The Inland Revenue worked closely on the design with the British Bankers' Association (BBA) and the Building Societies' Association (BSA) to produce a straightforward process. The scheme allows participating financial institutions to transfer funds belonging to a deceased person directly to the Revenue and eliminates the need for administrators to obtain funds from outside the estate in order to secure probate.

Members of the BBA and the BSA were given details of the scheme before it was launched. It was announced by press release and on the Inland Revenue website. Everyone dealing with a deceased person's estate who will need to pay IHT liabilities is given full details of the scheme and how to use it in the guidance notes they receive with their IHT return form. Callers to the Probate and IHT help line are also given guidance on the scheme when discussing payment of IHT. Information on the scheme is still available on the Revenue website at; http://www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk/howtopay/iht-direct-pay-scheme.htm.

Since the scheme was introduced there has been a steady increase in take up, with approximately 4,000 payments a year made through this route.

The Inland Revenue monitor the scheme closely and have invited feedback and have stayed in contact with the BBA and the BSA.

International Cricket Conference Headquarters

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received on taxation issues affecting the proposed International Cricket Conference Headquarters in London. [200363]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government have received a number of representations from a variety of organisations regarding taxation issues affecting International Sports Federations such as the International Cricket Council.

Mortgages

Sir Archy Kirkwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what further steps he proposes to take to protect the financial interests of those applying for mortgages in the UK. [199590]

Mr. Timms: The Financial Services Authority assumed responsibility for regulating first charge mortgages, including advising and arranging on mortgages, on 31 October 2004. The FSA will review how the new regime is functioning in due course.

The Government intend to bring forward legislation to bring Home Reversion schemes under FSA regulation as soon the Parliamentary timetable allows.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what plans he has to regulate shared appreciation mortgages. [200214]

Mr. Timms: The Financial Services Authority assumed responsibility for regulating first charge mortgages, including advising on and arranging such mortgages, on 31 October 2004. The regime incorporates shared appreciation mortgages.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, to how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199643]

John Healey: One, which first appeared on the day before prorogation.

Petrol/Diesel (Duty)

Tom Cox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue his Department has received from the duty paid on petrol and diesel oils in each of the last three years. [200314]

John Healey: Historic petrol and diesel fuel duty revenue figures are published by HM Customs and Excise in the Hydrocarbon Oils Bulletin, a copy of which is available on the UK Trade information website (www.uktradeinfo.com).

Post-16 Statistics

Mr. Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, how many 16 and 17 year olds are not in employment, full-time education or training. [200159]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Steve Webb dated 29 November 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about employment. (200159)

The latest estimate from the Labour Force Survey is that, in the three months ending in September 2004, a total of 198,000 (seasonally adjusted) 16 and 17 years olds in the United Kingdom were not in employment (including Government training schemes) or in full-time education.

These estimates from the LFS, as with any statistical sample survey, are subject to sampling variability.

Staff Numbers

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff there were in his Department in each year since 1997. [200185]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 8 July 2004 to the hon. Member for North Norfolk (Norman Lamb), Official Report, column 811W.

Tax Credits

Brian Cotter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in the constituency of Weston-Super-Mare are in receipt of (a) child tax credit and (b) working tax credit. [199770]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the reply the Economic Secretary gave on 18 November 2004, Official Report, column 1712W to the Member for Newcastle-under-Lyme (Paul Farrelly).

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to the letter of 26 August from a constituent of the hon. Member for Vale of York regarding child tax credit. [199835]

Dawn Primarolo: The hon. Member's letter to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions was passed to the Inland Revenue, who replied to the hon. Member on 17 November.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what the average length of time to process (a) a child tax credit and (b) a working tax credit application is. [199836]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to my right hon. Friend the Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) on 18 November 2004, Official Report, Column 1510–1511W.

Tobacco Smuggling and Fraud

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what estimate he has made of the proportion of tobacco products consumed in the UK which had evaded duty through (a) smuggling and (b) fraud in each of the last five years. [199470]

John Healey: HM Customs and Excise do not separately estimate the proportion of illicit tobacco products which evade duty through (a) smuggling and (b) fraud. However, the latest combined smuggling and fraud estimates, for cigarettes and hand rolling tobacco, are available in HM Customs and Excise's paper "Measuring and Tackling Indirect Tax Losses", published alongside the pre-Budget report in December 2003, a copy of which is available in the House of Commons Library.

Treasury Audit

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the European Commission to undertake a treasury audit. [200303]

Mr. Timms: The European Commission has no reason to audit the Treasury as it has no direct responsibility for the management of EC funds.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Beekeeping

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to maintain the regulation of (a) Varroasis and (b) European Foul Brood in beekeeping.[199527

Alun Michael: The Department has no plans to maintain a statutory enforcement role for the control of varroasis. Since the disease is now endemic we plan to remove it from the list of notifiable bee diseases in 2005.

In the case of European foul brood, we are working towards delisting this as a notifiable disease by the end of 2007–08. This will be subject to making satisfactory progress with trials of the 'shook swarm' technique, which the National Bee Unit is currently evaluating.

Refrigerator Recycling

Mr. Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Environment Agency report auditing the refrigerator recycling scheme was published; and if she will make a statement. [199947]

Mr. Morley: The results of an audit of refrigerator and freezer treatment facilities have been discussed with the site operators and the Environment Agency expects to publish the key findings shortly.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if she will make a statement. [199624]

Mr. Caborn: Our main website complies with all of the Consortium's Priority 1 checkpoints, most of Priority 2 and some of Priority 3. The RNIB has undertaken an audit to assess accessibility of our main website. We will work with the RNIB to address the outstanding issues over the next six months.

Football (Racism)

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has made to the Spanish authorities over (a) the remarks of the Spanish coach and (b) the actions of the crowd at the recent international football matches in Spain. [199595]

Mr. Caborn: None. However, I wrote to the Spanish Minister of Sport last week about the incidents of racism at the England games in Spain last week. The Football Association has also written to the Spanish Football Association.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assistance she has given to (a) the Football Association and (b) the Kick It Out campaign over the issue of racism in football. [199597]

Mr. Caborn: The Government fully supports the initiatives undertaken by football, including the campaign Kick it Out and the charity Show Racism the Red Card, to help eradicate racism in the sport. Through the Football Foundation, the Government (with its funding partners the FA and FA Premier League) provides £155,000 to the Kick it Out campaign, and £161,000 to Show Racism the Red Card.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with the Football Association on the sanctions available to (a) international referees, (b) participating teams and (c) international coaches or managers when faced with racism at international matches. [199601]

Mr. Caborn: None. There is no place for racism in sport—nor in modern society and I believe the strongest action should be taken, at the highest level, to ensure its eradiation from the game. I have written to the UEFA and FIFA expressing these points and I await their reply.

Gideon Hoffman

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether Gideon Hoffman is an employee of her Department; and if she will make a statement. [199726]

Mr. Caborn: Gideon Hoffman is a permanent employee of Her Majesty's Treasury on loan to the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

Licensed Premises

Mr. Beggs: What assessment she has made of whether additional policing costs arise from the extension and late opening of premises for the sale of alcohol. [199879]

Mr. Caborn: The reforms associated with the Licensing Act 2003 apply only to England and Wales. The regulatory impact assessment presented to Parliament when the Licensing Bill entered the House of Commons in March 2003 indicated that there should no additional costs to the police in terms of enforcing licensing law generated by the reforms. The reforms should however generate administrative savings for the police. The police are currently involved administratively in an average of 1.6 million licensing processes annually in England and Wales across the six existing licensing regimes that are merged into a single regime by the 2003 Act. The number of administrative processes in which the police are involved is expected to reduce to fewer than 200,000 annually once the Act becomes fully operational. The saving to the police in respect of administrative activity is estimated to be £45 million over a period of three years, which can be redeployed to frontline police work.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session her Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199651]

Mr. Caborn: Seven written questions did not receive a substantive answer at the end of the 2003–04 parliamentary session. Four of these questions were amongst 36 written questions tabled to DCMS in the week prior to prorogation.

At all times DCMS Ministers make every effort to answer written questions substantively before prorogation. However, this is not always possible. Where right honourable and hon. Members did not receive a substantive response it is open to them to re-table their question this session.

Satellite TV

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what controls are in place to ensure foreign satellite TV channels available in the UK are not broadcasting material which breaches UK laws on incitement to (a) racial hatred and (b) violence. [199744]

Estelle Morris: The regulation of such stations is principally a matter for their country of origin. Under the Television without Frontiers Directive, member states of the European Union are required to ensure that broadcasts do not contain any incitement to hatred on grounds of race, sex, religion or nationality. The Directive also provides that broadcasts from another member state which manifestly, seriously and gravely infringe that requirement can be restricted.

The Broadcasting Act 1990 provides a power for the Secretary of State to proscribe a foreign satellite TV service if it has been notified to her by Ofcom. Ofcom may notify a service on the grounds that it repeatedly broadcasts material which offends against good taste and decency, or which is likely to encourage or incite to crime or to lead to disorder or to be offensive to public feeling. This can include services which incite racial hatred or violence.

Proscription means that it is an offence for anyone in the United Kingdom to perform certain acts connected with the service, including advertising it, advertising on it, supplying decoding equipment designed or adapted to be used primarily for receiving it, and supplying equipment or other goods in connection with its operation. The Secretary of State may proscribe a foreign satellite TV service only if that is compatible with the international obligations of the UK.

School Sports

Sandra Gidley: what assessment she has made of girls' attitude to sport in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools. [199962]

Mr. Caborn: There has been a number of previous reports over the years on the attitudes of young women towards sport. Sport England commissioned the University of Oxford to examine, systematically, UK published and unpublished qualitative research studies on children and adults' reasons for participation and non-participation in sport. They also reviewed attitudinal questions in recent UK published quantitative surveys on sport and physical activity. The report of this review "Understanding participation in sport and physical activity amongst children and adults" will be published in January 2005.

Some evidence from the draft report shows that school age girls do want to do sport and be physically active. There is also the need to offer them a choice of activities and on dress, as well as the ability to work in single sex groups.

Sport Spending

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of the proportion of sports spending which benefits girls. [199961]

Mr. Caborn: At present, we do not have specific figures on the proportion of sports spending which benefits girls. However, over the past 10 years, about £2 billion of Lottery funding has been invested in sport and physical activity, and it is an imperative that each initiative, programme or scheme must demonstrate how women and girls will be specifically addressed.

Sport England is responsible for delivering the Government's sporting objectives in England. It is committed to creating opportunities for people to start in sport, stay in sport and succeed in sport.

Specific posts aimed at girl and women sports development across England have been funded through Sport England's Active Communities Development Fund.

Awards for All, another of Sport England's funding programmes, has targeted specific girl and women only groups in order to increase their grassroots participation in sport.

The Sport Action Zones have specifically targeted women and girl issues in sport. In addition, Sport England established "Girl Sport"—a programme that addresses dropout rates in sport by girls.

The Women's Sports Foundation's main source of funding is from Sport England, receiving £200,000 a year. The WSF is the UK's leading organisation dedicated to improving and promoting opportunities for women and girls in sport and physical activity.

The Government is investing £459 million into the national strategy for PE and School Sport which aims to increase the percentage of school children in England who spend a minimum of two hours each week on high quality PE and school sport within and beyond the curriculum to 75 per cent. by 2006 and to 85 per cent. by 2008. This will have an impact on all children.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Fisheries Conservancy Board

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions the (a) Chief and (b) Deputy Chief Executive of the Fisheries Conservancy Board carried out unassisted patrols in a FCB vessel in each of the last three years. [199859]

Angela Smith: The Chief Executive and Deputy Chief Executive carried out no unassisted patrols in either 2002 or 2003. A total of nine unassisted patrols were carried out in 2004.

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many prosecutions have been recommended by bailiffs of the Fisheries Conservancy Board in each of the last three years; and how many prosecutions have resulted. [199860]

Angela Smith: The number of prosecutions recommended by Fisheries Conservation Officers of the Fisheries Conservancy Board, the number of prosecutions taken forward by the board, and the number of successful prosecutions in each of the last three years are as follows:

	2001	2002	2003
Number of prosecutions recommended by Fisheries Conservation Officers	284	184	587
Number of prosecutions taken forward by the Fisheries Conservancy Board	280	178	586
Number of successful prosecutions	277	144	564

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions a Fisheries Conservancy Board vessel has been in the sole control of the (a) chief and (b) deputy chief executive without the designated skipper in each of the last three years; and if he will publish the log report of each such patrol. [199888]

Angela Smith: The chief executive and deputy chief executive have been in the sole control of a Fisheries Conservancy Board vessel on 10 occasions without the designated skipper. Both officers are qualified to skipper the board's north coast fisheries protection vessel.

The Fisheries Conservancy Board does not publish log reports that support its fisheries enforcement activities.

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions the (a) chief and (b) deputy chief executive of the Fisheries Conservancy Board, accompanied by other FCB officials, carried out patrols on an FCB vessel in each of the last three years; and which areas were patrolled. [199889]

Angela Smith: The chief executive and deputy chief executive did not carry out any patrols accompanied by other FCB officials in 2002 or 2003. These officers undertook five patrols of the north Antrim coast with other FCB officials in 2004. The deputy chief executive also undertook a further patrol of the north Antrim coast, and one patrol of Lough Neagh, accompanied by FCB officials other than the chief executive in 2004.

Irish Republic (President)

Mr. Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make representations to the Government of the Irish Republic to change the title of the President of that country to a title which specifically excludes Northern Ireland. [200081]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The title of the said office is defined by the Irish Constitution and is therefore a matter for the Irish Government and people of the Republic of Ireland.

Larne-Belfast Rail Link

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the future development of the Larne-Belfast rail link. [199846]

Mr. Spellar: There are no plans at this stage to invest further on the section of the Belfast to Larne line between Belfast and Bleach Green which is in good condition following recent upgrades. A project to relay the section of the line between Bleach Green to Whitehead has been approved by the Department and work is scheduled to commence in the spring of 2005 and be completed by December 2005. The remainder of the line from Whitehead to Larne forms part of the lesser used part of the railways network and I am currently considering future investment on these lines as part of the 2004 Spending Review taking account of the recent public consultation on this matter.

MOT Certificate

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, on how many occasions in each year since 2000 the lack of an MOT certificate has been detected, broken down by district command unit. [200912]

Mr. Pearson: This information is not held in the format requested. These figures could only be compiled at disproportionate expense.

Priority Treatment (Ex-service Personnel)

David Burnside: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland for what reasons the Department of Health and Social Services does not provide the level of priority treatment for ex-servicemen and women provided elsewhere in the UK. [199552]

Angela Smith: Guidance was issued by the Department of Social Security in 1972 on hospital treatment for ex-servicemen and women which applied to England, Wales and Scotland, but did not apply in Northern Ireland. No equivalent guidance has been issued in Northern Ireland, although boards and trusts here have been asked by the Department to ensure that a safe and effective service is provided and that patients are treated according to their clinical priority.

Residential Accommodation (Care Costs)

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in residential accommodation on a voluntary financing basis have been paid in full during the 12 week disregard period by each Health and Social Services Trust in Northern Ireland. [200353]

Angela Smith: The information requested by the hon. Gentleman could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Tax Discs

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, on how many occasions in each year since 2000 the non-display of vehicle tax discs has been detected, broken down by district command unit. [200911]

Mr. Pearson: This information is not held in the format requested. These figures could only be compiled at disproportionate expense.

Traffic Wardens

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, if he will rescind the decision to change the role of traffic wardens in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [200352]

Mr. Pearson: The Police Service of Northern Ireland has taken the decision to withdraw from the enforcement of parking and waiting restrictions in order to concentrate resources on areas of greater policing priority.

As a result, the Roads Service of the Department for Regional Development, following public consultation in 2003, intends to introduce new primary legislation which will decriminalise parking offences and allow the responsibility for the enforcement of on-street parking restrictions to pass from the PSNI to DRD. It is expected that the legislation will be in place by mid-2005, with an operational scheme on the ground in mid-2006.

All existing Traffic Wardens and Senior Traffic Wardens will transfer with the function. Transfers will be in accordance with the provisions of the Transfer of Undertaking (Protection of Employment) Regulations 1981 and Cabinet Office guidelines, which protect the rights of employees when a transfer of function occurs.

Training Courses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by his Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98; [200388]

(2) what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200408]

Mr. Pearson: The information sought by the hon. Member is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

DEFENCE

Galileo Project

17. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had on the military implications of the Galileo Project. [199370]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Southend, West (Mr. Amess).

Iraq

18. Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the security situation in Iraq. [199371]

Mr. Hoon: The security situation in Iraq remains difficult with determined fanatics and terrorists opposing the building of a new, democratic, stable and secure Iraq. Iraqi security forces supported by the multinational force-Iraq, continue to conduct operations against this insurgency. The aim is to create the conditions within which Iraqi elections can take place in a safe and secure environment next January.

Regimental Structure

19. Sir Archy Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the proposed new regimental structure for the Army. [199372]

Mr. Hoon: The Army is restructuring in order to ensure it is better prepared for the challenges of the 21st century. The new structure will ensure that the Army is more resilient, robust and focused to deliver operations at brigade level while retaining its core ethos of being a war-fighting Army able to conduct large scale operations alongside our allies.

As part of this work the infantry will reorganise in order to accommodate both the ending of the arms plot and the consequence of reducing the number of infantry battalions by four. The decision to cease the arms plot means that the infantry must reorganise on the basis of regiments of two or more battalions. This is because in the future infantry battalions will be fixed by role and, largely, by location and it will be necessary to move individuals between battalions for experience, variety and development. Multi-battalion regiments will allow this movement, enabling us to deliver the real advantages of ending the arms plot in terms of operational capability and family stability, while still preserving the benefits and traditions of a regimental system.

The Black Watch

21. Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date he expects the amalgamation of the Black Watch with other Scottish regiments to take place. [199374]

Mr. Hoon: The infantry will need to reorganise on the basis of multi-battalion regiments. No decisions have been taken on exactly how this will be implemented within each infantry division, and the consequent impact on individual infantry battalions. Nor have any decisions been made on the timing of implementation of the changes.

Arctic Convoy Veterans

22. Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he has taken to recognise the service of Arctic Convoy veterans. [199375]

Mr. Caplin: As we approach the 60th anniversary of the end of the Second World War the whole House will I am sure agree that we owe all veterans, including those who served in the Arctic Convoys, our greatest respect and thanks for that service.

However and specifically, service on the convoys to Northern Russia during the Second World War has already been recognised by the award of the Atlantic Star. The qualifying criteria for the medal, are published in Command Paper 6633 in May 1945 and Command Paper 6833 in June 1946 and are indeed quite specific.

International Terrorism

23. James Purnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what action the Ministry is taking with (a) EU and (b) NATO allies to combat the threat of international terrorism. [199377]

Mr. Hoon: The Government are involved in a large number of counter terrorism initiatives with our EU and NATO partners, across the spectrum of civilian and military activity. The majority of these fall in areas which lie beyond the responsibilities of the Ministry of Defence. The issue is regularly discussed at all levels including in my own meetings with EU and NATO counterparts.

There is a significant role for armed forces in helping to tackle the underlying causes of terrorism through stabilisation and peace keeping operations. Both NATO and the EU are making a vital contribution to international peace and security through operations in countries where terrorism might flourish.

Battalion Regiments

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the single battalion regiments that are to be merged into two, three or more battalion regiments will retain their (a) old regiment names in some form, (b) individual uniforms, (c) traditions and (d) recruiting areas when downgraded into a battalion under the new regimental structure. [200014]

Mr. Ingram: The Army is currently working on the detail of the future infantry structure and an announcement will be made before the Christmas Recess. Where possible, the history, traditions, and names of famous regiments will be incorporated into the new structure, and the linkages with traditional recruiting areas maintained.

British Defence Exports

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what recent steps he has taken to promote British defence exports on the international market. [199369]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence provides a high standard of support to legitimate defence exports. The Defence Ministerial team plays a full part in this work. Last year we helped United Kingdom defence industry to win orders worth nearly £5 billion, including the sale of Hawk to India worth £800 million.

Deputy Supreme Allied Commander Europe

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who appoints the Deputy Supreme Allied Commander Europe. [200020]

Mr. Hoon: NATO Allies have agreed that the post of Deputy Supreme Allied Commander Europe will be permanently filled by a United Kingdom incumbent. The appointment of the incumbent to the post is approved by the Supreme Allied Commander Europe, the Secretary of State for Defence, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, and Her Majesty The Queen.

Electoral Registration

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British service personnel were registered as entitled to vote (a) in 2001 and (b) on the latest date for which figures are available. [199533]

Mr. Caplin: Information is no longer held on the number of Service personnel registered to vote.

Ministerial Speech

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, if he will place in the Library a copy of his recent speech at the University of Nottingham. [199664]

Mr. Hoon: I did not use a prepared text for my discussion with students at the University of Nottingham on 12 November 2004.

Naval Shipbuilding

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry regarding the maintenance of a strategic capacity for naval shipbuilding in the UK. [199364]

Mr. Hoon: Building on the solid base established by the Defence Industrial Policy we remain fully committed to maintaining a strategic capacity and capability for naval shipbuilding and ship repair in the United Kingdom. MOD and DTI officials and senior representatives from the shipbuilding industry have regular, positive and constructive meetings to discuss the current and future programme.

VJ Day Anniversary

Mr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what discussions he and his ministerial colleagues have had with (a) the armed forces and (b) veterans on arrangements for commemorations of the 60th anniversary of VJ Day. [199373]

Mr. Caplin: I announced on 27 September that there will be Government-supported ceremonies at the Cenotaph on Sunday 8 May to mark the 60th anniversary of VE Day and on Sunday 21 August to mark VJ Day. Both the Burma Star Association and the Royal British Legion have welcomed our support for these ceremonies, which are, of course, in addition to the events to commemorate the 60th anniversary of the end of the Second World War on 10 July next year which I announced the House on 1 March 2004.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Claims Direct

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs if he will publish correspondence sent by Mr. Peter Ross to the Lord Chancellor's Department in January 2000, relating to Claims Direct. [199748]

Mr. Lammy: Mr. Ross did write to the Lord Chancellor's Department in January 2000 about Claims Direct, however we regret that in spite of extensive searches of our departmental records we cannot locate the actual correspondence requested.

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what meetings were held between 1997 and 2003 between representatives of Claims Direct and (a) the Lord Chancellor's Department and (b) the Department for Constitutional Affairs; and what was discussed at each such meeting. [199747]

Mr. Lammy: The information available from our records is that officials attended meetings with representatives of Claims Direct on three occasions between 1999 and 2000 to discuss the implementation of the Access to Justice Act 1999 in respect of conditional fees and after the event insurance. Officials met with representatives of Claims Direct on one occasion in 2002 to discuss a number of matters relating to the operation of the personal injury market.

Independent Appellate Authority Hearing

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs when the Independent Appellate Authority will set a date for a hearing for Flordeliza Moody, the wife of a constituent of the hon. Member for Sittingbourne and Sheppey. [199528]

Mr. Lammy: The appeal papers for Ms Flordeliza Moody, a national of the Philippines, are currently with the Immigration and Nationality Directorate (IND) of the Home Office. Officials from IND have confirmed that the appeal bundle will be forwarded to the Immigration Appellate Authority (IAA) by Monday 29 November 2004. The IAA will list the appeal for a full hearing and the confirmation of this hearing date will be promulgated to the appellant and her UK representative.

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what meetings were held by Ministers in (a) the Department and (b) its predecessor Department with (i) Mr. Colin Poole and (ii) Mr. Tony Sullman, directors of Claims Direct, to discuss the work of Claims Direct. [199754]

Mr. Lammy: None.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs for how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199656]

Mr. Leslie: None.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Gas Disconnections

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the protection afforded to vulnerable consumers at risk of disconnection by their suppliers under provisions for entry under a Justice's Warrant in the Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954, as amended by the Gas Act 1995 and the Utilities Act 2000; and if she will make a statement. [199585]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954, as amended, includes extensive warrants procedures that a supplier must follow if it wishes to enter premises to disconnect any customer. These procedures are under the jurisdiction of the courts. In addition, the arrangements set out in the Energy Retail Association's September 2004 report, "Protecting Vulnerable Customers from Disconnection", which have been put in place by the gas and electricity suppliers, should ensure that, as far as possible, vulnerable customers are not disconnected.

Radioactive Contamination

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what reports she has received from the UK Atomic Energy Authority in respect of the recent incidences of plutonium contamination of operators at the pulsed column laboratory at the UKAEA Nuclear Installation at Dounreay; and if she will make a statement. [199636]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department has been informed of the potential intake of radioactive material by operators at the pulsed column laboratory at Dounreay. The regulators, Health and Safety Executive's Nuclear Inspectorate, are aware and are monitoring the situation. The contamination was discovered through what are called "routine nose-blow checks". Biological monitoring of fifteen operators is currently being undertaken , which will take a number of weeks to complete. The initial four results from biological monitoring have shown doses of less than 4 per cent. of the annual limit for radiation workers. As a precaution the building where the operators were working has been closed, pending further investigation.

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will estimate the volume of radioactively contaminated soil within the perimeter fence at the Hunterston A nuclear power plant; what the identity of the contamination is; what its average activity is per cubic metre; what the source of the contamination was; when (a) the operator and (b) her Department first learned about the contamination; whether information on volumes of contaminated soil is to be included in the 2004 edition of the National Radioactive Waste Inventory; what plans have been made for the removal of the contaminated material; and what the estimated cost is for dealing with the contamination. [199661]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The estimated volume of land that could potentially have been impacted by historical operations dating back to the 1970's at Hunterston A is around 81,000 cubic metres. This is the figure quoted in the draft Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) plan recently published for consultation and also forms part of the Life Cycle Base Line for Hunterston A.

Radioactively contaminated land at Hunterston A is mainly a result of the station's operational phase that ceased in 1990. Some of the contamination came from the on-site open-air cooling ponds through wind blown contamination within the site. Some were caused by spills from effluent lines within the site boundary and steps were taken at the time to prevent a recurrence.

As part of the decommissioning strategy for Hunterston A, an extensive programme of work is currently taking place to better quantify the volume and levels of radioactively contaminated land and their significance and to evaluate and formulate options for the future management of this land. Until this work is completed, it is not possible to estimate the costs involved.

The current (2001) Radioactive Waste Inventory contains relevant information and I am advised by the site operator that the 2004 Inventory is expected to contain similar information.

Renewables Obligation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if, in her review of the Renewables Obligation, she will take account of the impact on renewable obligation certificate trading of companies that have defaulted on their payments because of (a) insolvency and (b) other factors; and what additional (i) incentives and (ii) sanctions are being considered to make the scheme more effective. [199411]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: A separate consultation on the Renewables Obligation Order 2005 is addressing, among other things, the impact on renewable obligation certificate trading of companies that default on their payments to the Renewables Obligation buy-out fund. The consultation paper includes a number of proposals to make the scheme more effective including surcharges on late payments and mutualisation in the case of defaults. Mutualisation in this context refers to other suppliers making additional payments to make good the shortfall caused by a defaulting supplier. These additional payments would then be recycled to suppliers who met their share of the obligation through renewable obligation certificates, in the same way as the main buy-out fund.

This consultation, which precedes the main Review of the Renewables Obligation, closes on 1 December. Amendments are planned to take effect from 1 April 2005.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will publish the submissions made (a) to her in advance of her review of the Renewables Obligation and (b) to that review. [199412]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: This has already been done. Following the consultation on the Terms of Reference for the Review of the Renewables Obligation, which was conducted in August/September 2004, the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry published a full version of responses received. These can be accessed at: www.dti.gov.uk/energy/renewables/policy/terms_of_reference.shtml.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State intends to publish the responses to all subsequent consultations in the same way, except where an organisation has requested confidentiality, in line with Government guidance on good practice in relation to consultations.

TRANSPORT

Aircraft Noise

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance his Department has given to local authorities with regard to the impact of aircraft noise on growth areas. [200477]

Charlotte Atkins: Government guidance on the impact of aircraft noise is provided for English local authorities in the planning guidance note PPG 24-Planning and Noise.

Exeter/Barnstaple Railway

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the future of the Exeter to Barnstaple railway line. [199828]

Mr. McNulty: The Exeter to Barnstaple route is currently part of the Wessex Trains franchise, which, when it expires in 2006, will form part of the new Greater Western franchise. Under the Strategic Rail Authority's Community Rail Development Strategy, published on 22 November, the line is proposed to be designated as a Community Rail line. The Strategy aims to increase the number of passengers using rural rail lines.

Pedestrian Deaths

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many pedestrian deaths in road accidents there were where the pedestrian had over 100 mgs of alcohol per 100 mls of blood in each of the last six years; and what percentage of all pedestrian road accident deaths in (a) England and (b) each region this represents in each case. [199920]

Mr. Jamieson: The estimated percentage of pedestrian fatalities in Great Britain who had blood alcohol levels over 100 mg/100 mls are shown in the following table, for the last six years for which data is available. These are published annually in "Road Casualties Great Britain: Annual Report". Estimates are not available for England or by region.

Percentage of pedestrian fatalities with blood/alcohol 100mgs/ml

	Percentage
1997	35
1998	35
1999	37
2000	33
2001	38
2002	40

Rail Crossings (South-west)

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) projects and (b) proposals there are in the South West for (i) bridge and (ii) tunnel rail crossings. [200093]

Charlotte Atkins: There are two provisionally approved local authority projects and one Highways Agency project that include rail bridges. A further two projects are currently awaiting ministerial decisions. There are no projects that include tunnel rail crossings.

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road crossings with automatic gates over high speed tracks there are in (a) the South West region and (b) Somerset. [200094]

Mr. McNulty: This is an operational matter for Network Rail. Network Rail will write to the hon. Member.

Rail Services

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he plans to announce his decision on (a) the Integrated Kent Rail Franchise, (b) the CTRL domestic service pattern to East, South and North Kent and (c) placing orders for the new rolling stock for the CTRL domestic services. [199719]

Mr. McNulty: Four bidders have pre-qualified for the Integrated Kent Franchise competition and an initial Invitation to Tender was issued on 5 January 2004. The final Invitation to Tender is being finalised and the SRA intends to issue this to bidders before the end of the year. A stakeholder briefing setting out the future service pattern for Kent services will be published at the same time. Hitachi was announced as preferred manufacturer on 27 October this year and is working with industry partners to finalise technical issues. Rolling stock contracts should be signed early in 2005.

Seaford Route

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, if he will make a statement on the impact of the Seaford noise preferential route on the proposed housing development at Imberhome in East Grinstead. [200480]

Charlotte Atkins: The Seaford noise preferential route (NPR) from Gatwick Airport is stipulated by the Secretary of State by Notice under s.78 of the Civil Aviation Act 1982. When it is allocated to the operators of aircraft departing towards the east, they are required to turn on a heading between East Grinstead and Crawley Down towards the navigational beacon at Seaford.

Adherence to the NPR is assessed on the basis of a 'swathe', 1.5 km to each side of the centre-line of the route. Aircraft which have reached an altitude of 4,000 ft may be 'vectored' by air traffic controllers onto a different heading without being deemed to have deviated from the NPR.

It is for interested parties to assess the relevance of the Seaford route, and of airport operations and noise controls generally, to any planning process, having due regard to planning guidance.

Silk Mills Crossing

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of how many cars used the Silk Mills train crossing in Taunton over the high speed train line from London to the South West each day on average in the last period for which figures are available. [200202]

Mr. McNulty: This is an operational matter for Network Rail. Network Rail will write to the hon. Member.

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what dates for heavy engineering works to the tracks at the Silk Mills crossing in Taunton have been made available to the Somerset Highways Authority for putting a bridge over the crossing into place. [200204]

Mr. McNulty: This is an operational matter for Network Rail. Network Rail will write to the hon. Member.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Education Funding

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the reason is for the difference between the figure given for per pupil funding in the answer to the hon. Member for Mid-Worcestershire of 9 November 2004, Official Report, column 591W, in the last Session of Parliament, and that which appears on his Department's website at www.dfes.gov.uk/pns/pnattach/20030079/4.htm. [200105]

Mr. Miliband: Figures given in the press notice of 2 May 2003 (to which the hon. Member refers) contained forecasts of some grants. In particular, demand-led grants such as Teachers' Threshold Payments and Performance Pay grants are distributed throughout the year, and School Standards Grant allocations were still being finalised at this stage, and are subject to revision during the year as figures are audited.

In addition, the figures used in the answer on 9 November included the pensions transfers to Education Formula Spending made in 2003–04 and 2004–05. The series published on 2 May 2003 excluded the extra money transferred at this time for comparability with previous years.

Faith Schools

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on Government policy on faith schools. [200147]

Mr. Miliband: The Government believes parents should have a range of schools to choose from, including faith schools. We welcome more faith schools in the maintained sector where they have the support of parents and the local community. Decisions about the establishment of new faith schools are made at local level by the School Organisation Committee for the local authority concerned or by the Schools Adjudicator if the Committee cannot reach a unanimous decision.

Where an LEA holds a competition to establish an additional secondary school, faith promoters, along with others, may bring forward proposals to set up a particular type of school. The Secretary of State will make the decision based on the merits of the proposals and taking into account local views.

Key Stage 2 Results

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils attained Level 4 at Key Stage 2 in each subject tested in 2003–04, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [199914]

Mr. Miliband: The Key Stage 2 data for 2004 has not yet been analysed to parliamentary constituency level. This will be available shortly after the Primary School Achievement and Attainment Tables are published on 2 December 2004 and will be placed in the Library. For years prior to 2004, the information requested has already been placed in the Library.

National Healthy School Standard

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the total cost to public funds of the National Healthy School Standard has been in each year since 1999; and what funding he expects it to receive in each year until 2009. [199461]

Mr. Twigg: The National Healthy School Standard (NHSS) has been jointly funded by the Department for Education and Skills and the Department of Health since 1999. The following table shows the funding allocated to the NHSS from both Departments since 1999. Information on any additional support from local NHSS programmes or from local education authorities is not held centrally.

£ million

Year (allocations)	From the Department of Health	From the Department for Education and Skills	Total
1999–2000	2	2	4
2001–02	5.8	2	7.8
2002–03	5.5	2	7.5
2003–04	5.5	2	7.5
2004–05	5.5	2	7.5

The DfES and Department of Health are committed to continued funding of the programme and the exact levels are still under discussion.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills to how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199653]

Mr. Stephen Twigg: Of the 4,791 questions answered by this Department in the 2003–04 session, 18 did not receive a substantive reply. Ministers make every effort to answer questions substantively before Prorogation, but this is not always possible, especially with questions that are tabled in the last week before the House rises. Where right hon. and hon. Members did not receive a substantive response it is open to them to re-table their question this session.

Personalised Learning

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the Barnet pilot scheme for personalised learning. [199491]

Mr. Miliband: The DfES, working in conjunction with London LEAs, is funding a project to develop an ICT strategy for London which has identified personalised learning—tailoring education to the needs, interests and aptitudes of individual pupils within groups so as to enable them to fulfil their potential—as a key area for further development. As part of that ICT strategy, the Barnet project, supported by the London Grid for Learning, is utilising the broadband infrastructure in place across London and the LGfL services to provide individual access for schools, teachers, and pupils, at appropriate levels, to educational resources and information. This initiative by Barnet is a good example of the way LEAs are working with others to develop effective strategies for raising standards through personalised learning. We look forward to seeing the results of the project, and identifying how the lessons learned can be spread more widely.

Primary School Places (Washwood Heath)

Mr. Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the availability of primary school places in Washwood Heath, Birmingham. [199682]

Mr. Miliband: It is for each LEA to plan the supply of school places in its area to ensure that there are sufficient places, schools serve the needs of their local communities and provide good quality education in the most cost-effective way. The Government believe that decisions concerning the supply of school places are best taken locally by the main partners in the provision of education, who have knowledge of local needs.

School Toilets

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what regulations exist to ensure that children's toilet facilities in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools meet the standards set for adults in health and safety at work legislation; and if he will make a statement. [199762]

Mr. Miliband: The number of toilets required in both primary and secondary schools is detailed in the Education (School Premises) Regulations 1999. There are no specific regulations governing the condition and maintenance of toilet facilities but there is a general requirement that every part of a school and of the land provided for a school shall be such that the health, safety and welfare of the occupants is reasonably assured.

Somerset Schools

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his estimate is of total capital expenditure on schools in Somerset for each year from 1997 to 2005; and if he will make a statement. [199896]

Mr. Miliband: The following table shows capital resources allocated to Somerset local education authority and its schools since 1997. Decisions on how resources should be invested in schools are taken locally in accordance with locally prepared asset management plans.

Somerset LEA

1997–98	3,845
1998–99	7,786
1999–00	6,988
2000–01	15,948
2001–02	11,760
2002–03	16,045
2003–04	19,249
2004–05	21,831
2005–06	10,001

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Barker Report

Mr. Soames: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what assessment he has made of the environmental (a) costs and (b) consequences of the Government's policy for implementation of the Barker Report. [200479]

Keith Hill: In addressing the specific recommendations in Kate Barker's report the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister will adopt the same principles as set out in the Communities Plan.

The Government has accepted her central recommendation that there should be a step change in housing supply and has announced its intention to set a national market affordability goal (as recommended by Barker) as part of a package of measures by the end of 2005.

In order to inform this, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is commissioning two closely-related research projects. The first will analyse the relationship between housebuilding and affordability. The second, jointly commissioned with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, will look at the implications of various levels of additional housebuilding for sustainable communities. It will consider a broad range of impacts, including social, environmental, economic and fiscal.

The projects will be completed by mid-2005 in good time to inform and allow for consultation on the setting of a national affordability goal.

Deprivation

Tom Cox: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list deprived areas within Greater London. [200313]

Keith Hill: The Indices of Multiple Deprivation 2004 (ID04) can be used to assess the most deprived local authorities in Greater London. There are six presentations of multiple deprivation at the district level. These six summary measures capture the main ways in which multiple deprivation can be described at this level. No single summary measure is favoured over another, as there is no single best way of describing or comparing districts.

The following local authorities in Greater London score within the top 10 most deprived districts in England in at least one of these six measures:

Hackney

Tower Hamlets

Islington

Newham

Haringey

The following local authorities in Greater London score within 11–20 most deprived districts in England in at least one of these six measures:

Southwark

Lambeth

Camden

Westminster

Electricity

Mr. Soames: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what consultation he has held with electricity providers in the south-east on his plans for new building targets. [200478]

Phil Hope: As part of the Regional Assembly's process of developing the regional spatial strategy for the South East that will replace the Regional Planning Guidance for the South East (RPG9), there will be a number of opportunities for the electricity providers to comment on the emerging strategy. The Regional Assembly will be consulting on alternative spatial options in the new year.

House Prices (Greater London)

Tom Cox: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what the average price of a (a) one bedroom, (b) two bedroom and (c) three bedroom house in the Greater London area is. [199676]

Keith Hill: Estimates of the average price of residential properties sold within the Government Office Region of London and where completion took place during September 2004 are in the table:

Size of dwelling	Average price (£000)
one bedroom	172,603
two bedrooms	225,446
three bedrooms	276,933

Notes:

1. The figures are based on a sample of purchases made with a mortgage. Cash purchases, which represent about 18 per cent. of sales in London, are not represented in the sample.
2. The estimates shown are simple average prices, not mix-adjusted. In other words the price estimates could be influenced by the types of properties sold and the location of these sales in September.
3. The estimates are based on the following numbers of purchases: 633 one-bedroom properties; 1,264 two-bedroom properties and 1,005 three-bedroom properties.

Survey of Mortgage Lenders

Housing

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate his Department has made of the cost (a) in total and (b) per unit of new housing of providing or upgrading the necessary infrastructure to support the 20,000 homes that are due to be built in Kent Thameside in the next 20 years. [199428]

Keith Hill: To date, £54 million has been allocated to support projects across Kent Thameside to 2006. There are also a number of North Kent wide initiatives that Office of the Deputy Prime Minister support separate to this and further programme funding to be allocated.

These resources are spread across a range of projects that support the creation of infrastructure necessary for growth and creation of Sustainable Communities. These include mixed use developments, transport infrastructure, public realm and environmental projects, and community facilities. It is therefore not possible to give a meaningful estimate that corresponds to individual housing units.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister works in partnership with other Government bodies and the private sector to secure full costs for infrastructure. Our funding therefore acts as a catalyst for growth including the 30,000 homes and 50,000 jobs planned for Kent Thameside. There are also a number of other government funding streams that support the Thames Gateway agenda—for example Department for Transport/Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's £200 million Community Infrastructure Fun and Department of Health's additional £40 million for Growth Areas. The Department for Transport's funding towards CTRL Domestics and the Fastrack bus system are also significant funding commitments towards area growth.

Tom Cox: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the grants his Department has made for housing developments in the London Borough of Wandsworth in each of the last three years. [199670]

Keith Hill: Grants made for housing development in the London Borough of Wandsworth in each of the last three years are as follows:

Supported Capital Grant—2002–03 £11,803,000. 2003–04 £8,455,000 and 2004–05 £5,954,000

Disabled Facilities Grant—2002–03 £204,000. 2003–04 £210,000 and 2004–05 £204,000

And the Housing Corporation's Approved Development Programme (ADP) 2002–03 £11,971,073. 2003/04-£15,818,000.

Challenge fund—a two-year investment programme favouring modern methods of construction £5,599,000.

2004–06 current ADP allocation is a two-year programme totalling £17,453,411.

The London Housing Board allocated £900,000 in 2004–05 to Wandsworth as lead authority in the Empty Homes scheme, for the South West London sub regional partnership.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what plans he has to reintroduce minimum room sizes for dwelling houses; and if he will make a statement. [199913]

Phil Hope: The Government have no plans at present to introduce minimum room size standards for new dwellings into the Building Regulations.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the decision-making structures will be for the Housing Market Renewal initiative in Liverpool. [199815]

Keith Hill: The Merseyside market renewal pathfinder is governed by a board established in August 2002. It is an unincorporated association with an independent chair. Liverpool city council acts as the accountable body for the pathfinder. The Board has adopted a formal Memorandum of Agreement which sets out its governance arrangements. The current membership of the board is tabled as follows:

Name	Position	Organisation
John Glester	Independent	Independent Chair
Cllr Flo Clucas	Lead member	Liverpool city council
Cllr George Davis	Lead member	Wirral metropolitan borough council
Cllr Ian Maher	Lead member	Sefton metropolitan borough council
Allison Cooke	Chief Executive, Bebington and West Wirral Primary Care Trust	Wirral Local Strategic Partnership nominee
Kieran Gordon	Chief Executive, Greater Merseyside Connexions Partnership	Liverpool Partnership Group nominee
Rev. Roger Driver	Health and Social Care Forum	Sefton borough Partnership nominee
Diane Walton	Assistant Director of Investment (Field)	Housing Corporation, Northern Region
Paul Spooner	Regional Director	English Partnerships
Jenny Charteris	Private sector	CPCR
Kelvin Hughes	Private sector	Cheshire Building Society
Vacant	Private sector	Being recruited

Local Government Funding (Hampshire)

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, when a grant will be allocated to Hampshire County Council on the basis of the 2001 population census; and if he will make a statement. [200232]

Mr. Raynsford: The mid-year population estimates, based on the 2001 population census, have been used in the distribution of Revenue Support Grant since 2003–04. The Local Government Finance Report (England) 2003–2004 was approved by the House on 5 February 2003.

The Office of National Statistics (ONS) revised the mid-2001 population estimates on 9 September 2004. I announced the start of consultation on the Local Government Finance Report (England) 2005–2006:

Amending Report 2005 on 18 November 2004. The Amending Report incorporates the changes to the population data.

Local Government Pension Scheme

Mr. Bill O'Brien: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what mechanism will be used to introduce the changes to retirement ages for members of the Local Government Pension Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [200499]

Phil Hope: Amendments to the Local Government Pension Scheme are made under powers in the Superannuation Act 1972, by Statutory Instrument subject to negative resolution procedure.

New Deal (Wandsworth)

Tom Cox: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, how much money from the New Deal for Communities programme has been spent in the London Borough of Wandsworth. [199671]

Keith Hill: None. There are 10 New Deal for Communities partnerships in London, but none are in the London Borough of Wandsworth.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, to how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199642]

Phil Hope: None.

Part P Registration

Mr. Gale: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) percentage of contractors who will have registered as a Part P Competent Person by 1 January 2005. [199932]

Phil Hope: The operators report a steadily rising number of applications being received. More accurate details of Part P Competent Persons should be available in the new year when further progress has been made by scheme operators.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what information he has received concerning the availability of courses to enable contractors to qualify for Part P registration. [199933]

Phil Hope: Technical colleges throughout England and Wales are offering the relevant courses although many wishing to register with a Part P competent person scheme will already possess the required qualifications and will not need to attend a training course.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what his estimate is of the total cost to the contractor of Part P registration. [199934]

Phil Hope: The registration fees for Part P competent person schemes range from £300 to £800, depending on which scheme a contractor applies to join. There may be additional costs for electrical testing equipment or for training to acquire the necessary qualifications where a contractor does not already possess these.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what provision his Department has made to increase the number of local authority inspectors to facilitate the enforcement of Part P registration; and if he will make a statement. [199935]

Phil Hope: Local authorities are not responsible for the registration of persons on Part P competent person schemes; this is done by the operators of such schemes.

Right to Buy

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what plans the Government have to extend the right to buy to more housing associations' tenants. [200291]

Keith Hill: Over 50 per cent. of housing association tenants already have the right to purchase their rented home through the right to buy and right to acquire schemes. The Government have no plans to extend the right to buy to more housing association tenants.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is exploring the option of offering an equity loan to social tenants, including those who do not currently have a right to buy or acquire their home, in order to meet their home ownership aspirations. This follows a recommendation of both the Home Ownership Task Force and the Barker review.

Street Properties (Battersea)

Martin Linton: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what the outcome was of the discussions that he and the Housing Corporation have had with the Peabody Trust concerning the proposed sale of street properties in Battersea. [199837]

Keith Hill: The Housing Corporation is continuing to have discussions with the Peabody Trust regarding its progress against its plan to achieve the Decent Homes Standard. The Trust's plans are underpinned by a financial strategy, which includes the sale of some older properties to fund the improvement programme. This includes selected properties in Battersea, which the Trust is considering for disposal. The Trust will ensure that the interests of residents are protected when considering these plans.

Transport Infrastructure Fund

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the (a) type and (b) location of projects to be funded from the transport infrastructure fund he announced in his oral statement of 13 July 2004, Official Report, column 1258. [200038]

Keith Hill: The Community Infrastructure Fund was announced in July 2004 as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review. It comprises £50 million in 2006–07 and £150 million in 2007–08. It is designed to support the transport infrastructure costs required to enable faster housing development in the four Sustainable Communities Plan growth areas—Milton Keynes South Midlands; Thames Gateway; London-Stansted-Cambridge-Peterborough; and Ashford.

Guidance on the operation of the Fund was published on 19 November 2004. £34 million has been allocated to two bus schemes in the Thames Gateway—the East London and Greenwich Waterfront transits. No decisions have yet been taken on the allocation of the remainder of the money. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister and the Department for Transport will be working closely with local and regional partners to agree priorities for funding. Initial funding for successful schemes will be made available from April 2006.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency

Mr. John Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will ensure that the Child Support Agency informs the parent with care of all financial decisions regarding the non-resident parent; and if he will make a statement. [199415]

Mr. Pond: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. John Taylor, dated 29 November 2004:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will ensure that the Child Support Agency informs the parent with care of all financial decisions regarding the non resident parent; and if he will make a statement.

The Agency's ability to share information is governed by Regulation 9A of The Child Support (Information, Evidence and Disclosure) Regulations 1992. Within that constraint the Agency will inform the parent with care of all relevant financial decisions regarding the non-resident parent.

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria are used to decide whether a Child Support Agency client is to be assessed under the new or old system; and what arrangements are in place for moving cases between the two systems. [200317]

Mr. Pond: In general, new applications which take effect on or after 3 March 2003 are dealt with under the new arrangements. However if a new application is made within 13 weeks of the closure of an old scheme case, it may fall to be dealt with under the old arrangements.

Old scheme cases remain subject to the old rules. However some cases are converted early if they are linked to a new application. The circumstances in which this happens are prescribed in legislation. They include, for example, cases where a non-resident parent who already has an old scheme assessment is also the non-resident parent in relation to a new scheme application.

We will make a decision on the transfer of old scheme cases once we are sure that the new arrangements are working well and its IT is robust.

Contracted-out Rebates

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his estimate of expenditure on contracted-out rebates is based on an assumption about the number of people who are contracted out in 2004–05; and if he will make a statement. [200158]

Malcolm Wicks: Current estimates of expenditure on contracted out rebates in 2004–05 are based on assumptions of the number of people contracted out in 2004–05, as well as incorporating other data and assumptions-for example, the earnings of people contracted-out and the level of rebates paid in the past.

Assumptions of the number of people contracted out in 2004–05 are in turn based on the latest available data on the numbers of people contracted out but taking account of information on trends in contracting out since the latest data.

The latest available data on the number of people contracted out was published in March this year and shows numbers contracted-out up to 2000–01. Further data showing numbers contracted out up to 2002–03 is expected to be published by the end of this year and the assumptions underlying the estimate of rebate expenditure will be reviewed in light of this new data.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the costs of the Financial Assistance Scheme will be met from within his Department's pre-existing spending plans. [199725]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government have promised to make £400 million in total available for the Financial Assistance Scheme (FAS). It is proposed to accommodate expenditure on FAS in the period from 2005–06 to 2007–08 within the spending plans settled in the 2004 Spending Review. For later years, the Government will take account of their commitment to the FAS in future spending reviews.

Household Income

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of households in each region of England and Wales has a gross annual income of (a) less than £10,000 and (b) less than £20,000. [199902]

Mr. Pond: The information is in the table:

Percentage of households in each region of England and Wales with gross annual income less than £10,000 and £20,000 at 2002–03 prices. Average for 2000–01, 2001–02 and 2002–03

	Gross household income less than £10,000	Gross household income less than £20,000
North East	27	58
North West	22	53
Yorkshire and Humberside	22	53
East Midlands	22	51
West Midlands	20	49
Eastern	17	41
London	19	42
South East	15	38
South West	20	48
Wales	24	56

Notes:

1. All figures are estimates and are taken from the Family Resources Survey (FRS). Due to regional volatility, estimates are based on a three year average from 2000–01 to 2002–03.

2. Figures are based on a total income at 2002–03 prices.

3. The FRS is not designed to collect information on annual income. Earnings figures are based on last usual pay. Annual income is estimated by assuming that the income for the relevant period applied for the whole year.
4. The estimates are based on sample counts that have been adjusted for non-response using multi-purpose grossing factors which align the FRS to Government Office Region populations by age and sex. Estimates are subject to sampling error and remaining response bias.
5. Total weekly household income consists of gross income from all sources before deduction of income tax and national insurance.
6. Total income has not been adjusted for family size.

Pension Credit

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average payment of pension credit is in (a) England and Wales and (b) each region. [200373]

Malcolm Wicks: Average pension credit awards in Great Britain, England and Wales and in each Government Office Region in Great Britain at 30 September are given in the following table. Information on numbers of pension credit recipients will now be reported on a quarterly basis, in line with reporting practices for other Departmental benefits.

Average pension credit awards—30 September 2004

Area	Average award (£)
Great Britain	41.67
England and Wales	41.83
Eastern	39.14
East Midlands	39.48
London	57.77
North East	37.12
North West	41.42
Scotland	40.29
South East	38.56
South West	38.62
Wales	41.82
West Midlands	41.73
Yorkshire and Humberside	38.15

Working Time (Home Deliveries/Services)

Mr. Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his Department collects statistics on the amount of working time lost by employees waiting at home for delivery of (a) goods and (b) services. [200152]

Maria Eagle: The Department does not collect statistics for this purpose as employees required to wait at home for delivery of goods and services utilise the provisions of the flexible working hours agreement or their annual leave allocation, thereby not incurring any lost working time.

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 30 November 2004

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Exmoor National Park

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make an assessment of the economic impact of the Single Farm Payment on the Exmoor National Park area. [199817]

Alun Michael: An assessment of the economic impact of the Single Payment Scheme in England has been placed in the House of Commons' Library (and is available on the Defra website). Data are not available to enable an assessment to be made specifically of impacts within the National Park, but the report contains analysis relating to cattle and sheep farms in the Less Favoured Areas, which is the predominant farm type in National Parks.

Hunting

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many foxes were killed during hunts in each of the last five years. [199780]

Alun Michael: The Department does not maintain records of the numbers of foxes killed by hunting each year. However, Lord Burns' report estimates that between 21,000 and 25,000 foxes are killed by hunts each year, which accounts for around 6 per cent. of all fox deaths.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when (a) she and (b) Ministers in her Department last met representatives of the League Against Cruel Sports; and if she will make a statement. [199637]

Alun Michael: Ministers meet a wide range of people in the course of their day-to-day business. The last meeting between a Defra Minister and representatives of the League Against Cruel Sports took place in August.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary Session her Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the Session. [199647]

Alun Michael: Four of the 4,883 parliamentary questions tabled by MPs in the last Session did not receive a substantive answer before the end of the Session.

Set-aside Rules

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will publish the details of the new set-aside rules. [200320]

Alun Michael: We have already published many of the rules concerning set-aside that will apply under the Single Payment Scheme in 2005, including details about which farmers will have to set land aside under the new scheme, how these farmers should calculate the area of land they will need to set aside, and how set-aside entitlements must be used. Guidance about the management rules for set-aside, which will be very similar to the corresponding rules which formerly applied under the Arable Area Payments Scheme, will be published shortly.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Correspondence

Joyce Quin: To ask the Solicitor-General when she will reply to the letter from the right hon. Member for Gateshead, East and Washington, West dated 4 February. [200590]

The Solicitor-General: A reply was sent on 5 April 2004. A duplicate copy of that letter has been sent to my hon. Friend on Monday 29 November 2004.

Ministerial Meetings

Glenda Jackson: To ask the Solicitor-General what discussions the Attorney-General held with John Bellinger, senior associate counsel to President Bush and legal adviser to the National Security Council, during his visit to Washington in February 2003. [199763]

The Solicitor-General: As made clear in paragraph 377 of the Report of the Butler Review of Intelligence on Weapons of Mass Destruction, in order to assist in reaching a concluded view on the proper interpretation of resolution 1441, in February 2003 the Attorney-General met members of the US Administration who, as co-sponsors of the resolution had detailed knowledge of its negotiation. These were confidential Government to Government discussions and their content is covered by legal professional privilege. The detail of the discussion is therefore exempt from disclosure under both paragraphs 1 and 4*(d)* of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Carrier Bags

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much it has cost to produce carrier bags branded with ODPM since 1997. [200631]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was created on 29 May 2002. Since then the Office has spent £790.00 on the production of 5,000 branded carrier bags at a cost of about 16p per bag.

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199626]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's main website (www.odpm.gov.uk) and the info4local.gov.uk site follow the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content (W3C) Accessibility Guidelines Priority 2 Checkpoints.

Greywater Recycling Systems

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what measures his Department is taking to encourage the installation of domestic greywater recycling systems in (a) new and (b) existing properties. [199430]

Phil Hope: Water conservation, including the use of recycled water, is being considered in the current review of Part G, Hygiene, of the Building Regulations. This will provide guidance on how recycled water can be used in new buildings.

The use of recycled water in existing buildings is being appraised in integrated water management plans for growth areas including the Thames Gateway.

High Hedges

Mr. Beith: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when he will issue guidance to local authorities in respect of provisions to address problems with high hedges contained in the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003. [199903]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister intends to issue guidance for local authorities at the same time as Regulations to bring Part 8 of the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 into force are laid before Parliament. We expect the complaints system to be fully operational early in 2005.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION

Electoral Registration

Mr. Evans: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what representations the Electoral Commission is making to companies to encourage workers who live abroad to register to vote in British elections. [200086]

Mr. Viggers: I am advised by the Electoral Commission that it is making no such representations.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Fixed Penalty Notices

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many fixed penalty notices have been issued for firework abuse since 14 September. [199712]

Ms Blears: The latest provisional data shows that, between 1 October 2003 and 31 October 2004, 302 penalty notices for disorder have been issued by police forces in England and Wales for the offence of throwing fireworks. A further 10 penalty notices have been issued thus far for offences under the Fireworks Regulations 2004, which were implemented on 11 October 2004.

Police

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will end the funding rule which results in police authorities facing financial penalties if they fail to maintain officer numbers. [199779]

Ms Blears: The number of police officers in England and Wales reached a new record of 139,728 on 31 August 2004 and we are committed to maintaining these record numbers.

The major component in the rise in police numbers since March 2000 has been the use of the Crime Fighting Fund. The Fund has supported forces' recruitment of more than 9,500 officers additional to those which forces were already planning to appoint.

The Home Office will continue to provide funding for these additional posts on condition that the uplift achieved since 2000 is maintained.

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will make an announcement on the Police Grant Settlement. [200318]

Ms Blears: I shall announce details of the provisional police grant settlement for 2005–06 on 2 December.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will make a statement on the future of the police training centre at Bruche, Warrington; [200194]

(2) what discussions he has had on the future of the police training centre at Bruche; when these discussions took place; and who was involved in them. [200197]

Ms Blears: The police training centre at Bruche, Warrington, is run by Centrex, the national police training provider. It is currently used to provide the residential Stage 2 of Foundation Training to probationary officers.

We are currently working on the modernisation of probationer training. Under this, probationers will no longer automatically be sent for residential training at Centrex regional training centres, and the role of Centrex will change, with a greater focus on design, quality assurance and evaluation of training, rather than delivery.

Taking forward this work has involved extensive discussions between the Home Office and key stakeholders, in particular representatives of the Association of Police Authorities, the Association of Chief Police Officers and Centrex. The Home Office has been represented in these discussions by officials. The discussions have been taking place through most of this year, in particular over the summer, and are still on-going.The modernisation of probationer training will necessarily have implications for the future of Centrex's estate, including the training centre at Bruche. We are still working with Centrex on the details of these.

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of policing incidents arising from excessive alcohol consumption was in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [199612]

Ms Blears: Police authority accounts are not kept in a form which would make it possible to identify the costs of policing related to alcohol related disorder, and there is no specific grant made available to forces to deal directly with the problems associated with excessive alcohol consumption. It is for individual police forces to decide how they allocate their resources to tackle their crime and disorder priorities.

The Alcohol Harm Reduction Strategy for England, published on 15 March 2004 estimates that alcohol related crime and disorder costs taxpayers up to £7.3 billion a year.

DEFENCE

Battalion Regiments

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the future new regiments of three battalions will be broken down into heavy, medium and light battalions. [200018]

Mr. Ingram: Each battalion within the new infantry structure will be allocated one of four roles: armoured, mechanised, light or air assault.

Future Surface Combatant Vessels

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total cost to public funds has been to date of the Future Surface Combatant assessment studies, broken down by (a) the Triton Trimaran project, (b) the integrated project team and (c) other costs. [199531]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 29 November 2004]: At outturn prices, the total estimated cost of the Future Surface Combatant studies from inception to date is £17 million. This figure is comprised of £6.2 million for Trimaran trials, £5.7 million for the Defence Procurement Agency's project team costs and £5.1 million for additional concept studies.

Royal Navy

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many standing tasks the Royal Navy Fleet fulfills; and what assessment he has made of the number of standing tasks to be fulfilled by the Royal Navy in 2008 following the implementation of the decision to reduce the number of frigates and destroyers. [199567]

Mr. Ingram: Royal Navy frigates and destroyers currently undertake six standing tasks where forces are permanently committed to the task. We are currently developing an effects based approach to programming which is likely to reduce the number of standing tasks before 2008.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Child Care (Wandsworth)

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average cost is of providing a child care place in the London borough of Wandsworth. [199673]

Margaret Hodge: Data at local authority level on the cost of providing child care places are not collected centrally by the Department.

Education (Wandsworth)

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the grants his Department has made for education provision in the London borough of Wandsworth in each of the last three years. [199672]

Mr. Miliband: The following revenue and capital grants for each year from 2002–03 have been provided by the Department:

	EFS/SSA	Revenue grants	Capital grants
2002–03	103.9	25.7	8.3
2003–04	114.3	29.0	7.0
2004–05	124.1	29.0	6.3

Notes:

1. Price Base: Cash
2. Figures reflect relevant sub-blocks of education Standard Spending Assessments/Education Formula Spending settlements and exclude the pensions transfer to EPS and LSC.
3. Funding also includes all revenue grants in DfES Departmental Expenditure Limits relevant to pupils aged 3–19 and exclude EMAs and grants not allocated at LEA level.
4. Where responsibility for funding a school has transferred from an LEA, related funding no longer appears in the series.
5. Rounding: Figures are rounded to the nearest £0.1 million.
6. Status: 2003–04 and 2004–05 figures are provisional as some grants have not yet been finalised/audited.

Home Start

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what criteria he will use to determine which 10 per cent. of local authorities will not receive funding to provide Home Start in 2006–07, as described in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 44. [199463]

Margaret Hodge: Home Start schemes are independent, voluntary organisations, established by communities themselves and managed locally. Home Start UK works closely with local schemes, supporting them to deliver a high quality home visiting support to families with at least one child under five years. We have significantly increased our funding for Home Start UK from £874,000 in 2003–04 to £2.46 million this financial year to expand the support it offers to local Home Start schemes and increase the availability of Home Start support. Establishing a new local scheme depends on community initiative and Home Start UK seeks to stimulate interest in those areas without existing established home visiting services.

International Student Assessment Study

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the schools in England that were selected for the sample to be included in the OECD Programme for International Student Assessment 2003 study. [200290]

Mr. Miliband: The schools for the sample were selected by the PISA international consortium, led by the Australian Centre for Educational Research, that undertook PISA 2003 on behalf of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development. Participation was voluntary on the part of schools.

The Department's contractor for PISA 2003, the Office for National Statistics, was responsible for running the study in England. The Data Protection Act requires ONS to honour any pledge that it makes to respondents before taking part in its surveys. Both the sampled schools and sampled pupils were assured before agreeing to co-operate that their decision to take part and the information they gave would be held in confidence by ONS. Consequently ONS cannot release the names of participating or non-responding schools or pupils.

Key Stage 2 Tests

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of 11-year-olds attained Level 4 at Key Stage 2 in each year since 1997, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [199916]

Mr. Miliband [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Qualifications

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills for what reasons a GNVQ pass is counted as four GCSE passes in reporting school performance. [200442]

Mr. Miliband: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) decide on the equivalence of qualifications. In reaching these decisions they look rigorously at the level of difficulty, the content and size of the qualification. The QCA has established that 6-unit GNVQs are the equivalent of four GCSE passes. It is on this basis, these achievements are included in the School Achievement and Attainment Tables.

Sure Start

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on progress of the West Hendon Sure Start scheme. [199487]

Margaret Hodge: Sure Start Underhill and West Hendon, a sixth wave local programme has been offering services to under fours and their families since 2003, so it is in its second year. Compared with other similar programmes it is making reasonable progress and was held to be low risk in its latest risk assessment.

The figure for the number of children 'reached' for Underhill and West Hendon at September 2004, was 12 per cent. This is slightly lower than the average for fifth and sixth wave programmes in London (20 per cent.) and national average for fifth and sixth wave programmes (15 per cent.). However, when looking at the percentage of new children seen, the local programme's results for September 2004 are clearly higher than the average for London and nationally.

Percentage

September 2004	Reach	New children seen
Underhill and West Hendon	12	26
London Rounds 5 and 6 average	20	21
National Rounds 5 and 6 average	15	18

Sure Start Underhill and West Hendon will form part of a purpose built children's centre on the site of Parkfield School in West Hendon, to be opened by March 2006. The programme is receiving special support from the Atkins Help Squad, who provide expert advice on capital projects, to ensure the deadline is met.

Teachers (Dismissal/Retirement)

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures have been introduced since 1997 to enable incompetent teachers to be dismissed by their employer; and how many teachers have been subject to those measures. [200648]

Mr. Miliband: As a manifesto pledge, action was taken following the 1997 general election to agree new procedures for dealing speedily and fairly with teachers who cannot do the job. A new outline procedure was agreed at a national level among representatives of teacher employers, teacher unions and associations, and other interested parties. Building on this a statutory duty was introduced for all maintained schools to establish procedures for dealing with teacher capability problems, and the Government issued guidance for schools and LEAs in July 2000. We do not collect records centrally on the number of teachers who undergo capability procedures; they would be an unnecessary burden on schools and LEAs.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of teachers retired at age 60 in each of the last five years; and what percentage took early retirement in each year. [199731]

Mr. Miliband: The following table shows the numbers and percentages of teachers leaving service from maintained sector schools in England who have retired on age grounds at aged 60 or over, prematurely, with actuarially reduced benefit (ARB) or on ill health grounds in each of the last five years.

	1999-2000	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04
Age	2,260	2,300	2,350	2,640	2,950
Percentage	32	29	30	32	32
Premature	2,650	2,620	1,980	1,720	1,840
Percentage	38	33	25	21	20
ARB	—	510	1,380	1,980	2,620
Percentage	—	6	17	24	29
Ill health	2,130	2,450	2,220	1,860	1,700
Percentage	30	31	28	23	19

1. Actuarially reduced benefits were introduced in April 2000.
2. The percentages are calculated from the total number retiring from the maintained school sector during the year.

Teachers' Pensions

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent discussions his Department has had with the teaching unions regarding teachers' pensions. [199729]

Mr. Miliband: Many aspects of the Teachers' Pension Scheme (TPS) have been examined recently by the Teachers' Pensions Review Group (TPRG). The teacher unions from England and Wales represented at the TPRG include the National Union of Teachers, National Association of Teachers in Further and Higher Education, National Association of Schoolmasters/ Union of Women Teachers, Secondary Heads Association, National Association of Head Teachers and the Association of Teachers and Lecturers.

Regular meetings of this group have been held since November 2003 and will continue throughout the review of the TPS.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the effects of proposed changes to teachers' pensions on recruitment and retention of teachers. [199730]

Mr. Miliband: The review of the Teachers' Pension Scheme (TPS) is an opportunity for modernisation in a way that scheme members will value and also secures the long term affordability of the scheme. We have therefore embarked upon a major consultation with interested parties, including individual teachers, to give them an opportunity to comment on range of issues related to the future of the TPS.

In particular, we are looking at ways of increasing the flexibilities available to teachers over the way in which they plan for their retirement because the more attractive and flexible the TPS is as a benefit to the membership, the greater the contribution it will make to recruitment and retention.

The consultation document can be found at www.dfes.gov.uk/consultations.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what ill-health retirement benefits are available to teachers under their pension scheme; and what changes are proposed to those benefits. [199732]

Mr. Miliband: The Teachers' Pension Scheme (TPS) provides for early payment of retirement benefits, comprising annual pension and retirement lump sum, to teachers who become permanently incapacitated. These benefits are normally enhanced in relation to the teacher's age and the amount of pensionable service accrued in the TPS.

The current consultation on the Review of the TPS seeks views on an alternative approach that recognises the severity of the medical condition and its impact on future earnings capacity. Further details are available on www.dfes.gov.uk/consultations.

TRANSPORT

Barnstaple Bypass

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the Barnstaple bypass project was given final approval. [200092]

Charlotte Atkins [holding answer 29 November 2004]: Final approval for this scheme was announced on 9 November 2004.

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199694]

Charlotte Atkins: The main Department for Transport web site at http://www.dft.gov.uk has been designed to comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines at double AA level (Level 2). Following an RNIB audit of the site, RNIB asked for further changes, which we are now implementing. RNIB will be undertaking a further audit in December this year to measure progress.

The Department also maintains a number of .gov.uk web sites. Three of these do not currently fully comply with the guidelines for departmental sites. The specific problems have been identified and actions are being taken to ensure that they will all be compliant with the guidelines as soon as possible.

Level Crossings

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on what date a red light camera facility to detect crossing infringements was first installed at Beddingham level crossing on the A27; for what reasons it remains inactive; and on what date he expects that it will be operational. [200693]

Mr. McNulty: This is an operational matter for Network Rail who will write to the hon. Member.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent to date in connection with the installation of the red light camera facility at the Beddingham level crossing on the A27. [200694]

Mr. McNulty: This is an operational matter for Network Rail who will write to the hon. Member.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many manned level crossings are operated by each train operating company. [199418]

Mr. McNulty: Network Rail, as the mainline railway infrastructure manager, operates all level crossings on its national network.

Local Transport Authorities

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when local transport authorities will be informed whether bids for funding for projects have been granted. [200095]

Charlotte Atkins: [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The Department is currently considering all of the bids for funding under the local transport plan process. The date for decisions for this years settlement has yet to be confirmed, but an announcement will be made in December.

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on what date each local transport authority was informed about the postponement of decisions on each local transport project. [200096]

Charlotte Atkins [holding answer 29 November 2004]: Decisions on the individual schemes that will comprise this years local transport plan settlement have yet to be made. However, arrangements are in place to ensure that local authorities are informed of decisions as soon as possible after the statement to Parliament.

Local Transport Plans (South West Region)

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the South West Regional Development Agency on the (a) financial and (b) engineering viability of the local transport plan in each local transport authority in the South West Region. [200199]

Charlotte Atkins: None. It is for a local authority promoting a local transport scheme to ensure its proposal is supported by a robust appraisal case, and for them to discuss any relevant issues with regional stakeholders. The Department would consider the appraisal case carefully, as part of the decision making process.

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many proposals for final approval from each local transport authority in the South West region have been put on hold. [200200]

Charlotte Atkins: The final decision on the schemes that will comprise this years local transport plan settlement, which to postpone and those that should not be taken forward has yet to be made. The Department is currently considering the relative merits of the proposals received in all of regions and an announcement will be made shortly.

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many requests for immediate approval he has received from Somerset county council in relation to the North West Taunton Package; and what discussions he has had with the council on the likely impact of delays in approval. [200203]

Charlotte Atkins: Since September my officials have been in discussion with Somerset on the final appraisal of the North West Taunton Package following the approval of the Compulsory Purchase Order for the scheme. As part of these discussions the council have expressed their views on the timing of the scheme to officials in both the DfT and the Government Office. In addition the Department has received a letter from Councillor Carroll and an email from the Leader of the Council, both dated 8 November, which set out Somerset's position in relation to the scheme.

Loran C Navigational System

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether it is the intention of the Government to continue their programme of investment in the Loran C navigational system. [200460]

Mr. Jamieson: The General Lighthouse Authorities are planning to operate an experimental Loran C signal from a site near Rugby for a 2-year period, starting early in 2005. Decisions on possible future investment in Loran C will be made in the light of the experience gained and on international developments in the use of this system.

Ministerial Visits

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Ministers from his Department have visited the London borough of Wandsworth in each of the last five years; and what the purpose was of each visit. [199666]

Charlotte Atkins: The Department for Transport was formed on 29 May 2002. Since that date no Ministers from the Department have undertaken a departmental visit to Wandsworth.

Train Services (Hereford)

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what discussions he has had with the First Great Western and Thames Trains about possible reductions to the direct service from Hereford to Paddington; [200485]

(2) what representations he has received about the direct rail service from Hereford to London. [200486]

Mr. McNulty: None.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what regulations are in place to preserve the frequency of direct trains from Hereford to London; and if he will make a statement. [200487]

Mr. McNulty: Train operating companies must provide a minimum level of service as prescribed by their franchise agreements. Services beyond these minimum levels are provided at operators' discretion on a commercial basis. Under its franchise with the Strategic Rail Authority First Great Western is contractually required to provide one service per day in each direction between Hereford and London to arrive in London by 1000 and depart no earlier than 1700. There is no contractual requirement for First Great Western Link (previously Thames Trains) to run services between Hereford and London.

Unadopted Roads

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many unadopted roads there are in (a) Lancashire and (b) Pendle. [199929]

Charlotte Atkins: This information is not held centrally.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Commercial Radio Licences

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions Ofcom has held regarding Jazz FM's radio licence requirements; and if she will make a statement. [199519]

Estelle Morris: The matter raised is the responsibility of Ofcom as independent regulator. DCMS officials have asked the Chief Executive of Ofcom to respond directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the Chief Executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the criteria by which Ofcom assesses applications for changes to commercial radio licences; and if she will make a statement. [199520]

Estelle Morris: The criteria are set out in Section 106 of the Broadcasting Act 1990, as amended by Section 312 (3) of the Communications Act 2003, which states:

Conditions included in a licence for the purposes of subsection (1) may provide that Ofcom may consent to a departure from the character of the licensed service if, and only if, they are satisfied:

(a) that the departure would not substantially alter the character of the service;

(b) that the departure would not narrow the range of programmes available by way of relevant independent radio services to persons living in the area or locality for which the service is licensed to be provided;

(c) that, in the case of a local licence, the departure would be conducive to the maintenance or promotion of fair and effective competition in that area or locality; or

(d) that, in the case of a local licence, there is evidence that, amongst persons living in that area or locality, there is a significant demand for, or significant support for, the change that would result from the departure.

The matters to which Ofcom must have regard in determining for the purposes of this section the character of a service provided under a local licence include, in particular, the selection of spoken material and music in programmes included in the service.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the (a) name and (b) marketing of a commercial radio station is taken into consideration when commercial radio licence bids are considered. [199521]

Estelle Morris: The matter raised is the responsibility of Ofcom as independent regulator. DCMS officials have asked the Chief Executive of Ofcom to respond directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the Chief Executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she will reply to the letter to her dated 6 October from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to John Paton. [200315]

Estelle Morris: I replied to my right hon. Friend on 26 October 2004.

Sustainable Timber

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the refurbishment projects within her Department that (a) are in progress and (b) will start in the next six months; what action is being taken to ensure that these will procure timber from legal and sustainable sources; and whether guidance will be issued to contractors on each of these projects to ensure that the timber used on site during refurbishment comes from legal and sustainable sources. [200438]

Mr. Caborn: DCMS has no refurbishment works in progress or planned for the next 12 months. When any such work is undertaken contracts will state the need for certification of timber being used.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans her Department has to fund the establishment and maintenance of the Central Point of Expertise on Timber. [200439]

Mr. Caborn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 29 April 2004, Official Report, column 1179W, to my hon. Friend the Member for Stoke-on-Trent, North (Ms Walley).

NORTHERN IRELAND

Fisheries Conservancy Board

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions a Fisheries Conservancy Board vessel under the control of the (a) Chief and (b) Deputy Chief Executive has been returned damaged in each of the last three years; and what the total cost of repair was on each occasion. [199887]

Angela Smith: A Fisheries Conservancy Board vessel under the control of the Chief Executive and Deputy Chief Executive was returned damaged on one occasion. The total cost of repair was £17,981.96 plus VAT.

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions, after carrying out patrols in a Fisheries Conservancy Board vessel unassisted by other FCB staff, the (a) Chief and (b) Deputy Chief Executive required overnight accommodation charged to the FCB in each of the last three years. [199890]

Angela Smith: None.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland to how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199650]

Mr. Paul Murphy: At all times, the Northern Ireland Office will make every effort to answer questions substantively before Prorogation. However, this is not always possible. Where right hon. and hon. Members did not receive a substantive response, it is open to them to re-table their question this session.

The hon. Member will be aware of the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House of Commons on 21 July concerning "will write" responses. In accordance with that statement, my ministerial colleagues and I answered that 'it had not proved possible to provide a substantive reply' to 15 parliamentary questions.

Waste (Illegal Dumping)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what tonnage of waste is estimated to have been dumped illegally in Northern Ireland since November 2003. [200079]

Angela Smith: Although no figures are available for the total volume of illegal waste dumped in Northern Ireland during this period, Environment and Heritage Service estimates that approximately 250,000 tonnes of waste, originating in the Republic of Ireland, have been deposited in illegal sites in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is being done with the waste illegally dumped in Northern Ireland over the past 12 months. [200080]

Angela Smith: Where large-scale illegal deposits of waste have been discovered, cases are being pursued through the Courts against landowners and operators of illegal sites. We are seeking Court decisions that will result in the remediation of sites. Discussions are also continuing with the relevant enforcement authorities in the Republic of Ireland (ROI) with regard to the repatriation of ROI waste illegally deposited in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress is being made in apprehending those responsible for illegal dumping of waste originating in the Irish Republic in Northern Ireland. [200085]

Angela Smith: EHS has investigated a number of instances where waste originating from the Republic of Ireland has been illegally deposited in Northern Ireland. A number of such cases have been referred to the Public Prosecution Service. To date, no case that has a direct link to waste originating in ROI has been heard. EHS continues to work with the relevant enforcement authorities in ROI to improve the control of waste movements and detect illegal activity.

Worktrack

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent in each year since 2000 on the Worktrack programme in (a) North Belfast and (b) Northern Ireland. [200902]

Mr. Gardiner: The information is as follows.

£ million

	(a) Expenditure in North Belfast	(b) Total Expenditure in Northern Ireland
1999–2000	0.15	2.486
2000–01	0.78	6.751
2001–02	0.62	8.227
2002–03	0.95	9.156
2003–04	1.14	9.685

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people have been placed on the Worktrack programme in (a) North Belfast and (b) Northern Ireland in each year since 2000. [200903]

Mr. Gardiner: The information is as follows.

	Number of starts in:
	North Belfast	Northern Ireland
1999–2000	43	691
2000–01	203	1,768
2001–02	141	1,880
2002–03	233	2,257
2003–04	255	1,205

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Accounting (EU)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer regarding the quality of accounting practices in the EU institutions. [199806]

Mr. MacShane: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed this matter with my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

British Overseas Territories

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether citizens of British Overseas Territories will be able to vote in the referendum on the EU constitution. [199799]

Mr. MacShane: The Gracious Speech on 23 November announced that a Bill will be introduced to give effect to the Constitutional Treaty for the European Union, subject to a referendum. The Bill will provide for the holding of the referendum including the franchise. It would not be appropriate to comment on the exact nature of those provisions until a Bill is published. I can confirm however that it is our intention to include the people of Gibraltar in the franchise for the referendum.

Cricket Tour (Zimbabwe)

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what advice he has given to the England and Wales Cricket Board on the Zimbabwe Government's decision to ban journalists covering the England cricket tour from entering the country. [200362]

Mr. Mullin [holding answer 29 November 2004]: Officials in London and our embassy in Harare have been in close touch with the England and Wales Cricket Board throughout this period.

On news of the banning of several UK journalists accompanying the England team, my hon. Friend the Minister of State at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (Mr. MacShane) summoned the Zimbabwean Chargé d' Affairs on 24 November, to convey our strong concern about this attack on press freedom.

The Zimbabwean authorities have now decided to accredit the UK journalists. We remain greatly concerned at the broader restrictions on a free media in Zimbabwe.

EU Constitution

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether it is his Department's policy that all British citizens living overseas should be able to vote in a referendum on the Constitution. [199802]

Mr. MacShane: A Bill providing for the holding of the referendum is still to be published. However, in general terms a UK citizen who, when resident in the UK, was registered to vote and who then takes up residence abroad is entitled to apply to the electoral registration officer for the area in which they were most recently registered in the UK, in order to be placed on the "overseas electors' list". Entitlement to be included on the overseas electors' list is limited to a period of 15 years from the time that the applicant was last included on a UK electoral register and entitles them to vote in elections in the UK. Those on the overseas electors list would likewise be entitled to vote in a referendum if its franchise were the same as a Parliamentary election in the UK.

Europe Day

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals his Department has to celebrate Europe Day on 9 May 2005; and what budget he has set aside for this purpose. [199803]

Mr. MacShane: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not yet finalised its plans for Europe Day-celebrations. No specific budget has been set aside for such celebrations.

Sudan

Mr. Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to press for a peace agreement to resolve the conflict affecting Darfur in Sudan. [199721]

Mr. Mullin [holding answer 29 November 2004]: We are actively pressing the Government of Sudan and the rebels to end the fighting in Darfur and reach a political settlement, and building on the Humanitarian and Security Protocols that were signed on 9 November. We are closely involved in the African Union (AU)-mediated peace talks in Abuja, where the UK participates as an observer. We are working alongside the AU to enhance the AU observer mission in Darfur. And we are continuing to play a leading role in the UN Security Council in maximising the pressure on the parties. Security Council Resolution 1574 reaffirms the readiness of the international community to apply sanctions on the Sudanese parties if they fail to fulfil their commitments.

Mr. Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) how much money his Department (a) has given since 1 January and (b) intends to give to the African Union to fund its forces in Darfur; and if he will make a statement; [199722]

(2) whether it is the Government's policy to give additional financial support to the African Union for the cost of administering its force in Darfur. [199723]

Mr. Mullin [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The UK is providing significant financial support to the African Union (AU) mission in Darfur, through the Africa Conflict Prevention Pool, which is a joint DFID/FCO/MOD fund.

In May the UK contributed £2 million to help jump-start the AU mission in Darfur. In August, we helped to pay for the airlift of 150 Nigerian troops into Darfur and provided rations packs at a total cost of approximately £220,000. On 7 October my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced a further contribution of £12 million to support the expanded AU mission. It is for the AU to decide exactly how they allocate this money; we are in close touch with them on this.

Mr. Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information his Department has received regarding the likely date by which a peace agreement to resolve the conflict affecting Darfur in Sudan might be signed. [199724]

Mr. Mullin [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The next round of the African Union-mediated peace talks being held in Abuja is due to begin on 10 December. We will continue to urge the parties to engage seriously and in good faith to reach a political solution to the crisis in Darfur as soon as possible.

We welcome the commitment to the Security Council in Nairobi by the Government of Sudan and the Sudan Peoples Liberation Movement to conclude a comprehensive peace agreement by 31 December. The implementation of this agreement should have a positive impact on the situation in Darfur.

CABINET OFFICE

Duchy of Lancaster

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office whether an estimate exists of the overall cost within the current budget of her Department of the overall cost of creating a separate Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. [201047]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the response I gave him on 10 November 2004, Official Report, column 769W.

Housing Policy

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what role he plays in the development of housing policy. [200139]

Mr. Milburn: As Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, I have a cross Government role in the co-ordination of Government Policy.

Ministerial Responsibilities

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what Ministerial responsibility he has for (a) crime, (b) jobs, (c) health, (d) education, (e) child care and (f) pensions. [200987]

Mr. Milburn: As Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, I have a cross Government role in the co-ordination of Government Policy.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Asbestos-related Benefits

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many people in (a) Scotland and (b) the United Kingdom are in receipt of industrial injuries benefit in relation to exposure of asbestos dust; [200208]

(2) how many people in (a) Scotland and (b) the United Kingdom have been diagnosed with pleural plaques due to exposure to asbestos dust; [200211]

(3) show many people in Midlothian have received industrial injuries benefit in the last 10 years due to mesothelioma caused by asbestos dust; [200212]

(4) show many people in Midlothian are in receipt of industrial injuries benefit due to asbestosis. [200213]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 29 November 2004]: Information is not available in the form requested. The available information is in the table.

Number of people in receipt of industrial injuries benefit for prescribed diseases D1, D3, D8 and D9 as at March 2002

Prescribed Disease	Great Britain	Scotland
D1	11,000	1,100
D3	800	—
D8	*100	—
D9	2,400	*200

Notes:

1. Figures are from a 10 per cent. sample. Figures marked * are subject to a high degree of sampling error and should only be used as a guide to the correct situation. Figures are not available at constituency level.
2. — denotes nil or negligible.
3. Industrial injuries disablement benefit is currently payable for four prescribed diseases to people whose jobs involved working with asbestos or being exposed to asbestos after 4 July 1948. These are: D1-Pneumoconiosis, D3-Diffuse mesothelioma, D8-Primary carcinoma of the lung with accompanying evidence of one or both (A) asbestos (B) unilateral or bilateral diffuse pleural thickening and D9-Unilateral or bilateral diffuse pleural thickening.
4. D1 relates to all Pneumoconiosis cases only some of which (an unknown proportion) are asbestos related. Prescribed diseases D3, D8 and D9 are all asbestos related.
5. Pleural plaques is not a prescribed disease for industrial injuries disablement benefit.

Benefit Processing

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment he has made of the suitability of Inverness as a site for benefit processing; and if he will make a statement; [200982]

(2) when he will make a decision on the location of the six benefit processing centres in Scotland. [200983]

Jane Kennedy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, David Anderson. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from David Anderson to Mr. David Stewart, dated 30 November 2004:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions concerning the suitability of Inverness as a site for benefit processing and when a decision will be made on the location of the benefit processing centres in Scotland. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

You will recall that the Secretary of State, Alan Johnson, announced in September that(subject to detailed planning(benefit processing will in future be carried out in 8 sites in Scotland. The locations chosen are: Inverness, Coatbridge, Kilmarnock, Glasgow, Springburn, Bathgate, Clydebank and Greenock. Further detailed planning and design work is continuing in these sites, and I expect to be in a position to confirm these choices early in the New Year.

I can confirm that, following appraisals undertaken by our Project Team, the social security office in Inverness appears suitable for conversion to a processing centre and remains part of our current plans for benefit processing in Scotland.

I hope this is helpful.

Carers

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make it his policy to continue carer's allowance payments to those entitled upon their take-up of state pension; and if he will make a statement. [200328]

Maria Eagle: No. It is a basic principle of the social security system that only one benefit at a time can be paid for the same purpose. Even though the circumstances which give rise to entitlement to carer's allowance and state pension are different, they are both designed to provide a degree of replacement for lost or foregone income. Carer's allowance replaces income where the carer is over working age or has to give up the chance of working to look after a severely disabled person, while state pension replaces income in retirement.

Carer's allowance is therefore not payable, or not payable in full, in addition to state pension. As the contributory benefit, the payment of state pension takes precedence, either extinguishing or reducing the payment of carer's allowance. Nevertheless, the income of a person in these circumstances will be at least as high as the rate of carer's allowance, and is usually higher. In addition, where the benefit cannot be paid, the person will keep underlying entitlement to carer's allowance, which gives them access to the carer premium in housing benefit and council tax benefit and the additional amount for carers in state pension credit.

We have no immediate plans to change these arrangements.

Departmental Web Content

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199686]

Jane Kennedy: We test all of our departmental websites against the minimum level of the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines as outlined in the Government Guidelines for UK Websites. Several of our sites already meet or exceed these. These are:

www.disability.gov.uk

www.europeansocialfund.gov.uk.

www.emetaskforce.gov.uk

The first three of these have also achieved the RNIB "See It Right" accreditation.

Where we have identified websites that do not yet meet the minimum standard, we are working towards achieving them as part of existing redevelopment plans. Sites being worked on currently include:

www.dwp.gov.uk

www.worktrain.gov.uk

www.jobcentreplus.gov.uk.

Our aim is to exceed the minimum prescribed 'Level A' standard wherever possible, achieving "Level AA" or better.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average weekly payment of income support was to recipients of incapacity benefit credits only in each year since 1997. [200660]

Mr. Chris Pond: The information is in the table.

Average weekly payment of income support for working-age claimants receiving both income support and incapacity benefit credits-only

1997	79.70
1998	82.38
1999	84.90
2000	88.43
2001	93.00
2002	94.63
2003	98.10
2004	98.90

Notes:

1. Working age claimants are men aged 16–64 and women aged 16–59.
2. Includes income support paid to single people, couples and families.
3. Includes pension credit payments to men aged 60–64.
4. Number is taken from a 5 per cent. sample and is subject to a degree of sampling error.
5. There will also be some incapacity benefit credits-only claimants who do not receive income support. These have not been included in the data.

New Deal for the Disabled

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has for the renewal of contracts from April 2005 with those organisations that are contracted to deliver the New Deal for Disabled People. [199616]

Jane Kennedy: All current New Deal for Disabled People contracts cover the period to March 2006 and, consequently, there are no plans for any renewals from April 2005.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199658]

Maria Eagle: None.

Pensioners (Cold Weather)

Brian Cotter: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what action he is taking to reduce the number of winter deaths of pensioners due to cold weather. [199765]

Dr. Ladyman: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Jarrow (Mr. Stephen Hepburn) on 18 November 2004, Official Report, column 1945–47W.

Social Fund

Sir Archy Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Social Fund crisis loan applications were received in Edinburgh Lothians and the borders in each of the last five years; and how many of these applications were successful. [199578]

Mr. Pond: The information is in the table.

Crisis Loan applications received and initial awards made in the area covered by Edinburgh, Lothian and Borders Jobcentre Plus District

	Applications	Initial awards
1999–2000	36,100	27,100
2000–01	39,200	30,900
2001–02	47,600	38,700
2002–03	50,600	41,500
2003–04	48,600	38,000

Notes:

1. Only the numbers of initial awards have been given, information regarding awards subsequently given on review is not included.

2. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 100.

SCOTLAND

Petrol Prices

5. Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Treasury regarding petrol prices in remote areas in Scotland. [199382]

Mrs. McGuire: My right hon. Friend has regular discussions with the Chancellor on a wide range of issues.

Health Provision (Borders)

6. Mr. Peter Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister on levels of health provision in border areas. [199383]

Mrs. McGuire: My right hon. Friend meets the First Minister regularly to discuss a wide range of issues.

Child Support Agency

7. John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions regarding the operation of the Child Support Agency in Scotland. [199384]

Mr. Darling: I have discussions with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, on a range of issues.

Jobcentre Plus (Lanarkshire)

11. Mr. Roy: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what representations he has received from client groups in relation to the Jobcentre Plus roll-out programme in Lanarkshire. [199388]

Mr. Darling: I have not received any representations on the subject of the Jobcentre Plus roll-out programme in Lanarkshire from client groups, but I am fully aware of the concerns my hon. Friend has voiced with regard to the changes in the Job Centre Plus network in Scotland, including those affecting his constituency.

The impact on jobs and services does vary from location to location in Scotland but, overall, the picture and shape of Job Centre Plus business is changing and in some areas the changes are significant. Where closures are being considered DWP have made clear that they wish to pursue different means of delivering services with partner organisations in the locality. These options have been discussed with MPs and other interested parties.

Carer's Benefit

12. Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on the numbers of people in Scotland claiming carer's benefit. [199389]

Mrs. McGuire: My right hon. Friend has discussions with the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on a range of issues. There are 41,695 people in Scotland receiving carer's allowance.

Scottish Regiments

13. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Defence since 26 October regarding the future of Scottish Infantry Regiments. [199390]

Mr. Darling: My right hon. Friend and I have had recent discussions on a range of issues including the future of the Scottish infantry regiments.

14. Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Defence in the last month on the future of the Scottish infantry regiments. [199391]

Mr. Darling: My right hon. Friend and I have had recent discussions on a range of issues including the future of the Scottish infantry regiments.

Rail Services

15. Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with (a) the First Minister and (b) train operating companies in respect of the recent timetable changes on the West Coast Main Line. [199392]

Mr. Darling: Recent timetable changes reflect the outcomes of the Strategic Rail Authority's "West Coast Strategy" for extensive up-grading work on this line. The strategy was published in July 2003 following extensive consultation with the rail industry, the Scottish Executive, national and local politicians, local authorities and others.

Fisheries

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the Fisheries Commissioner on the impact of the Common Fisheries Policy on Scotland. [199387]

Mrs. McGuire: My right hon. Friend and I have had no recent discussions with the Fisheries Commissioner. Fisheries is a devolved matter and the Scottish Executive Minister for Environment and Rural Development is fully involved in the development and presentation of the UK position in Brussels. I keep in close touch with developments.

Public Sector Job Relocation

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the impact of the Lyons Review in areas of Scotland not named in the King Sturge report; and what role his Department is taking in public sector job relocation to Scotland. [199386]

Mr. Darling: The King Sturge report was intended to be used as a guide to Departments when considering relocation opportunities and is not definitive. The choice of locations is for individual Departments to decide based on operational need.

I have made the advantages of Scotland as a location clear to other Government Departments and have encouraged them to consider Scotland when reviewing relocation plans. My hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State, has agreed to a meeting to discuss the matter further.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL

Devolution (Prisons)

20. Rosemary McKenna: To ask the Advocate-General how many devolution issues she has dealt with regarding prisoner complaints about prison conditions. [199397]

The Advocate-General: I have received intimation of 175 devolution issues minutes which concern prisoner complaints regarding prison conditions.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Citizenship Education

37. Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Leader of the House what representations he has made to Education Ministers to give more emphasis to Parliament in the school citizenship syllabus. [200072]

Mr. Woolas: My right hon. Friend has drawn to the attention of the Secretary of State for Education and Skills the recommendation of the Modernisation Committee, in its report on "Connecting Parliament with the Public", that Ministers re-examine the balance of the citizenship curriculum to ensure that it provides young people with an understanding of Parliament and the political process.

Post-legislative Scrutiny

39. Tony Wright: To ask the Leader of the House what plans he has to bring forward proposals for improving post-legislative scrutiny. [200074]

Mr. Woolas: My right hon. Friend is sympathetic to the case for more post-legislative scrutiny, both with Government and by Parliament, though he is conscious of the potential resource implications. The Government are currently considering its response to the recent report of the House of Lords Constitution Committee on "Parliament and the Legislative Process", which contains a number of recommendations in this area.

Parliamentary Questions

40. Mr. Dismore: To ask the Leader of the House if he will bring forward proposals to carry over written questions unanswered at the end of one session to the start of the next. [200075]

Mr. Woolas: My right hon. Friend has no plans to do so. I refer my hon. Friend again to the Written Ministerial Statement which the Leader of the House made on 21 July 2004, Official Report, column 35WS, on "I will write replies".

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Advantage West Midlands

Ross Cranston: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the projects and investments undertaken by Advantage West Midlands meet European state aid requirements. [199569]

Jacqui Smith: Advantage West Midlands (AWM) works within the policy and performance framework provided by the Regional Development Agencies Act 1998 and guidance and direction issued by the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry. This policy framework ensures among other things, that particular programmes or projects do not conflict with national or European rules or agreements, such as state aids.

AWM has incorporated State Aids considerations into its project appraisal system to ensure that all projects are compliant with Current State Aids rules. AWM also employs both a state aid and legal advisor to ensure compliance and to offer the necessary support and guidance to its personnel.

Ross Cranston: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry to which projects Advantage West Midlands has issued letters imposing claw-back requirements so that funding may be withheld or withdrawn even if schemes reach output performance targets. [199570]

Jacqui Smith: When Advantage West Midlands (AWM) contracts with partners, it issues the standard grant contract that clearly defines the claw-back conditions upon which grant is offered and relates to non-performance or breach of contract. AWM has not issued any letters imposing claw-back of funding to a partner when the partner has met their output performance requirements.

Ross Cranston: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether Advantage West Midlands is expected to meet key performance targets on (a) learning opportunities created, (b) jobs created and safeguarded, (c) new business created and attracted and (d) other areas in (i) 2004–05 and (ii) 2005–06. [199571]

Jacqui Smith: As with all regional development agencies, (RDAs) Advantage West Midlands (AWM) performance is currently measured against key five core performance outputs, known as Tier 3. The following table shows the targets agreed with AWM for 2004–05.

Tier 3 milestones	Target 2004–05
Jobs created and safeguarded	11,200
Businesses created or assisted	220
Brownfield land	75
Learning opportunities created	9,700
Investment benefiting deprived areas	10,000,00

All RDAs will shortly be submitting their mid-year progress reports on their achievements against the 2004–05 Tier 3 targets. The results are expected to be laid before Parliament, before the Christmas Parliamentary Recess. Similarly, the end of year results for achievements against the Tier 3 targets will be published next summer.

2004–05 will be the last year for Tier 3 outputs. For 2005–06 we are introducing a new performance Framework for RDAs, known as the Tasking Framework, and the final version of this is expected to be issued shortly. All RDAs will need to set their 2005–06 targets in the context of this new framework.

Ross Cranston: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much Advantage West Midlands will make available for revenue funding on new projects in (a) 2004–05 and (b) 2005–06 (i) in regeneration zones and (ii) elsewhere in the region. [199575]

Jacqui Smith: Advantage West Midlands (AWM) has provided £19.8 million of revenue resources to the Regeneration Zones in 2004–05 which has now been legally committed in full. AWM's allocation for 2005–06 has not yet been confirmed by Government.

AWM currently has no revenue resources available for new projects in 2004–05, whether in or outside the Regeneration Zone.

Batteries

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment her Department has made of alternatives to nickel-cadmium batteries for uses that (a) require reliability and high discharge and charge rates and (b) need to operate at low temperatures. [200281]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department keeps under review published information on the technical performance of rechargeable batteries, such as nickel-metal hydride and lithium-ion varieties.

Better Regulation Team

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on what occasions her Department's Better Regulation team has stipulated that DTI policy officials give serious consideration to alternatives to state regulation since 2002. [200951]

Nigel Griffiths: It is an integral part of the Better Regulation team's ongoing work to ensure that policy officials give serious consideration to alternatives to state regulation.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on what occasions her Department's Better Regulation team has involved independent experts in regulatory policy making since 2002. [200952]

Nigel Griffiths: Departmental policy is to consult widely on all regulatory policy proposals. This ensures that all interested parties, including independent experts, have the opportunity to contribute.

Business Support

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what funding each Knowledge Transfer Partner sponsor provided in the last year for which figures are available; and what each sponsor's criteria for funding are. [201116]

Nigel Griffiths: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 18 November 2004, Official Report, column 1906W.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many Knowledge Transfer Partnerships have been part-funded by Government grant; and what the total cost of these grants was. [201182]

Nigel Griffiths: In 2003–04 there were 285 Knowledge Transfer Partnerships at a cost of £13,906,499.

The total number of Knowledge Transfer Partnerships since the launch in July 2003 until 30 September 2004 has been 529 at a cost of £28,721,457.

Since the launch of the Teaching Company Scheme (TCS the forerunner of KTP) in 1975, until the launch of Knowledge Transfer Partnerships (KTP) in July 2003, there, have been 4458 Partnerships at a cost of £242,483,844.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many businesses in each region have benefited from a Grant for Investigating an Innovative Idea; and to what value. [200534]

Nigel Griffiths: 371 businesses have benefited from a Grant for Investigating an Innovative Idea since its launch in June 2003, with a total value of £2,056,941. This is split by region as follows:

Region	Number of businesses receiving grant for III	Total value of offers (£)
East	65	355,804
East Midlands	76	391,508
London	45	251,294
North East	1	8,100
North West	14	95,489
South East	49	283,180
South West	26	136,609
West Midlands	48	269,359
Yorkshire and the Humber	47	265,597

Business Volunteering Mentoring Scheme

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which businesses are involved in the Business Volunteering Mentoring Scheme; and what assessment she has made of the scheme's contribution to British enterprise. [199862]

Nigel Griffiths: There are currently about 1,000 active mentors.

The Business Volunteer Mentoring (BVM) initiative aims to assist pre and early start-up business with free mentoring support. Some 37,000 clients have been assisted under it and regular reports are received on client feedback and other aspects of the initiative's progress. An initial assessment of the BVM was conducted in 2001, following the first year pilot phase, and it is envisaged that a further review may be conducted as part of a wider assessment of the provision of start-up support.

Citizens Advice Bureaux

Diana Organ: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to give resources to citizens advice bureaux to enable them to improve the money advice service that they provide. [199877]

Mr. Sutcliffe: As announced in the 2004 Spending Review, the Government wish to see a significant increase in the capacity of the free face-to-face money advice sector over the Spending Review period. The Government will invite proposals to expand the provision of advice from potential providers and will also pilot different models of debt outreach. More details on these proposals will be published later in the year.

Compliance Costs

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what her estimate is of the costs to business of compliance with regulations imposed by her Department in the last year for which figures are available. [200270]

Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 29 November 2004]: All proposals which impact on business, charities or the voluntary sector require a regulatory impact assessment (RIA) which includes details of the costs, benefits and risks of the proposal. RIAs are subject to public consultation and copies of final RIAs are available from the House Libraries and on departmental websites.

Debt

Diana Organ: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures she is taking to curb the levels of personal debt. [199878]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Credit is an integral part of our daily lives. It makes a vital contribution to the UK economy: driving economic activity by allowing consumers flexibility in how they choose to access the marketplace and manage their finances; and enabling resources to be put to their most efficient use. Manageable borrowing provides an immense benefit and, in the majority of cases, consumers are using credit successfully.

We have introduced regulations to improve the transparency of the form and content of credit agreements, empowering consumers by ensuring that they have all the relevant information necessary to make informed decisions about their borrowing. We will shortly be introducing the Consumer Credit Bill which will strengthen the credit licensing regime and end unfair selling practices, so strengthening responsible lending.

In the minority of cases where credit leads to over-indebtedness we are working to improve the support and processes for those who have fallen into debt. On 20 July 2004 I published "Tackling Over-indebtedness—Action Plan 2004" which sets out work across Government to bring out a step change in the availability of free debt advice, ensure that wherever possible, debt problems and disputes are resolved without the stress and additional expense of court proceedings and improve the insolvency and court provisions for those needing to access them.

Energy Supplies

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has made for the delivery of secure energy supplies this winter; and what the make-up of those supplies is. [200191]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government are committed to maintain secure energy supplies—it is one of the four goals of the Government's energy policy as set out in the Energy White Paper, which we published in February 2003. We believe that a diverse market-based approach is the best way of delivering energy security.

This approach is working well. National Grid Transco's assessment in their "Winter Outlook Report" is that supplies of gas should be sufficient to meet this winter's needs. National Grid also advise that there is enough electricity generating capacity to meet demand, although guarantees of 100 per cent. security can never be given.

Electricity is generated from a number of different sources in the UK, including gas, coal and oil burn, renewable generation and nuclear power. The overall balance between these different sources is a matter for the market.

EU Battery Directive

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the UK Government's position on the proposed EU Battery Directive [COM (2003) 723 final]. [200506]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: While the Government supports the two broad perspective of the proposed Directive on Batteries and Accumulators—to contribute to a high level of environmental protection and to contribute to the proper functioning of the internal market, the detail is still being discussed. These seek to reduce the quantity of hazardous and non-hazardous waste batteries going to landfill and would increase recovery of their materials. At the same time, the Government wants an effective and workable Directive whose costs are proportionate to its environmental benefits.

Financial Advice

Diana Organ: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the need for (a) money advice and (b) debt counselling services. [199876]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We have carried out various pieces of work with the free debt advice sector to assess the need for money advice and debt counselling services. This includes work to evaluate the National Debtline and work to identify the potential shortfall in supply versus demand for free debt advice services for the telephone gateway project.

We continue to work closely with the Department for Constitutional Affairs to examine the effects of debt advice and methods of delivery. The Department for Constitutional Affairs has recently commissioned the Legal Services Research Centre to carry out research into the impact of debt advice. This work is expected to report back towards the end of 2005.

Fuel Poverty

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) fuel-poor and (b) vulnerable fuel-poor households there were in (i) the UK, (ii) each region and (iii) each constituency in each year since 1997. [200554]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Since 1996, the number of fuel poor households in the UK is as follows.

Number in fuel poverty

Million

	1996	1998	2001	2002
England	4.3	3.3	1.7	1.4
Scotland	0.7	—	—	0.3
Wales	—	0.2	—	—
Northern Ireland	—	0.2	0.16	—
UK Estimate	5.5	4.5	2.4	2.1
Vulnerable Groups	4.0	3.7	2.2	1.75

Figures for 1997, 1999 and 2000 are not available. In addition, as fuel poverty is a devolved issue, figures have been collected on a country-by-country basis, with varying definitions and time frames covered.

Data for England will, in future, be sourced from this new rolling English House Condition Survey (conducted by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister), and will be published annually. The first set of annual data, that for 2003, will be published in 2005 in the 3rd UK Fuel Poverty Strategy Annual Report.

Data is available for Scotland based on the 2002 Scottish House Condition Survey, conducted by Communities Scotland. The first set of regular annual data for Scotland will be released in 2007, and will relate to 2006 figures.

Northern Ireland will continue with a five-yearly House Condition Survey and the next survey will be conducted in 2006.

The Welsh Assembly's current estimates of fuel poverty are based on eligibility for the Home Energy Efficiency Scheme. Initial results of the new Welsh Household and Dwelling Survey are likely to be available in 2005, and thereafter annually.

More detailed Regional data has been extrapolated from the 2001 English House Condition Survey as follows:

Government office region	Number of households in fuel poverty
North East	105,000
Yorkshire and the Humber	238,000
North West	277,000
East Midlands	160,000
West Midlands	228,000
South West	201,000
Eastern	139,000
South East	224,000
London	148,000

No data is available at constituency level.

Gas

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions she has had with (a) other countries and (b) UK companies on the prospects for importing gas from abroad; and if she will make a statement. [200739]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Further to the answer given by the then Minister for Energy, the hon. Member for East Ham (Mr. Timms), gave to the hon. Member's question on 13 May 2004, Official Report, column 504W.

Negotiations with the Norwegians for a new Framework Treaty are nearing completion. The Treaty will facilitate a wide range of cross-boundary projects and in particular the construction of the new Langeled South gas pipeline to meet up to 20 per cent. of UK gas demand from winter 2006–07. The new Balgzand—Bacton Dutch Interconnector is also expected to be operational for winter 2006–07.

During a trade visit to Russia in June, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry held meetings, including with Russian Industry and Energy Minister Victor Khristenko, on a wide range of energy-related matters. Licensing, the regulation of projects under Production Sharing Agreements, and energy co-operation during the UK's G8 and EU Presidencies were some of the issues discussed.

The department is in regular contact with the commercial sponsors of gas import projects. And, although progressing gas import projects is a commercial matter, the Joint Energy Security of Supply Working Group (JESS), chaired by DTI, publishes a regular overview of security of supply indicators, including details of forthcoming planned gas import projects.

As set out in the White Paper "Our energy future—creating a low carbon economy" published in February 2003, the Government believes that allowing the free operation of a competitive British market, within an appropriate regulatory framework, is the most efficient way to ensure security of supply of gas. Commercial operators have incentives to ensure a diversity of sources of gas, of supply routes and of entry points so as to reduce the risk of supply interruption through disruption of any one source or supply route.

General Product Safety Directive

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the issues are which have given rise to the delay in the transposition of the General Product Safety Directive 2001/95/EC. [201177]

Mr. Sutcliffe: As I stated in my answer of 5 May 2004, Official Report, column 1645W, the main delays have resulted from getting the powers introducing the last resort product recall provisions right. There were also delays at the European Commission in providing guidance to support some important practical aspects of the Directive.

Other issues have included ensuring compliance with the European Convention on Human Rights, devolution issues and pursuing the possibility through the draft Regulations to be able to prosecute across local authority borders for breaches of the Regulations and more efficient product safety enforcement.

Glenmorangie

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will refer the acquisition of Glenmorangie by LVMH to the Competition Commission. [200507]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The independent competition authorities (the Office of Fair Trading and the Competition Commission) are responsible under the Enterprise Act 2002 for decision-making in merger cases, with Ministers having no role in this process. The Office of Fair Trading undertakes an initial investigation of each merger case before deciding whether to refer to the Competition Commission.

Job Creation

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate she has made of the number of jobs which (a) moved abroad from the UK and (b) were created in the UK in 2004. [199863]

Ms Hewitt: There are no official estimates of this kind. Announcements by companies of decisions to transfer operations offshore do not necessarily imply equivalent job losses in the UK. They can be accounted for by business growth, and are often accompanied by no compulsory redundancy policies. Offshoring also represents a very small amount of activity compared to total UK employment, which at 28 million is now at record levels.

Miners' Compensation Scheme

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) if she will list the top 100 solicitors with unsettled claims under the coalminers compensation scheme, broken down by number of claims for (a) chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and (b) vibration white finger: [200374]

(2) if she will list the top 100 solicitors in terms of fees paid by the Department under the coalminers' compensation scheme; and how much each has been paid to date: [200375]

(3) what the average settlement is for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and vibration white finger claims for the top 100 solicitors, defined by number of claims submitted, under the coalminers' compensation scheme. [200376]

Nigel Griffiths [holding answers 29 November 2004]: IRISC, the Department's claim handlers, are unable to provide the statistics in the format requested in the time available.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much has been paid to the Union of Democratic Mineworkers for carrying out spirometry testing under the coalminers' compensation scheme. [200377]

Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The UDM have never carried out spirometry testing however Atos origin had previously leased premises from the UDM at Berry Hill in Mansfield for carrying out spirometry testing. They have since moved out. Any financial arrangements with the UDM regarding the premises are a matter for UDM and Atos origin.

Parliamentary Questions

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry for what reasons it did not prove possible to provide a substantive response before Prorogation to the question number 185322 tabled by the hon. Member for Gordon (Malcolm Bruce). [199696]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Regrettably the database used by the Department did not identify the hon. Member's outstanding question as remaining unanswered until just prior to Prorogation. However I have now provided him with a substantive answer and have arranged for a copy of the letter to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Post Office

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what criteria her Department uses to determine a qualifying settlement of fewer than 10,000 inhabitants for the purposes of the Sub-Post Office Start-up Capital Subsidy Scheme. [199699]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The decision to classify a post office branch as urban or rural is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. The company classifies as rural any post office within a community of less than 10,000 inhabitants. Above that the post office is classified as urban. I understand that the company has a sophisticated geographical mapping model that enables them to adopt a consistent approach to classification across the country.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions she has had with the Post Office about the continuance of the free postal service for people who are blind; and if she will make a statement. [200735]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has had no discussions with Royal Mail regarding the continuation of its free articles for the blind service. However, I understand that they remain committed to continuing this valuable service.

Post Office Closures

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list the post offices which have closed in (a) the 10 per cent. most deprived wards and (b) the 20 per cent. most deprived wards in each year since 2000, broken down by region. [200551]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We do not hold the requested information. Post office closures are an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. and I have asked the Chief Executive to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list the rural post offices which have closed since the introduction of the subsidy to support the rural post office network, broken down by region. [200553]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We do not hold the requested information. Post office closures are an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. and I have asked the Chief Executive to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Renewable Energy

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much electricity was generated from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available; how much of this amount qualified under the renewables obligation; and if she will make a statement. [200736]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The latest available information relates to 2003 and is published in the Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2004, Table 7.4. In that year 10,649 GWh of electricity was generated from renewable sources (2.7 per cent. of electricity generated in the UK). Of this 7,186 GWh came from sources eligible under the Renewables Obligation (2.2 per cent. of UK electricity sales).

Royal Mail (Size-based Pricing)

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions she has had with the Royal Mail about its proposals for size-based pricing; and if she will make a statement. [199486]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I meet with Royal Mail Board members from time to time but have had no specific discussions with Royal Mail, or with Postcomm, about size based pricing.

Royal Mail's application to introduce size based pricing is currently being considered by the postal regulator, Postcomm. The progress made in considering the application and the assessment of the effect of size based pricing are matters for Royal Mail and Postcomm.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the impact of the Royal Mail's proposals for size-based pricing on the mail order photofinishing industry. [199488]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Royal Mail's application to introduce size based pricing is currently being considered by the postal regulator, Postcomm. The progress made in considering the application and the assessment of the effect of size-based pricing are matters for Royal Mail and Postcomm.

Postcomm is considering the large number of responses they received to their consultation on Royal Mail's proposals. In view of the complexity of the issues involved and the significant implications for many Royal Mail customers, Postcomm and Royal Mail have agreed that more time is required to assess the size-based pricing proposal. Accordingly, the earliest implementation date, if the application is allowed to proceed, will be April 2006.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the impact on the greetings card industry of the Royal Mail's proposals to move to size-based pricing. [199489]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Royal Mail's application to introduce size-based pricing is currently being considered by the postal regulator, Postcomm. The progress made in considering the application and the assessment of the effect of size-based pricing are matters for Royal Mail and Postcomm.

Postcomm is considering the large number of responses they received to their consultation on Royal Mail's proposals. In view of the complexity of the issues involved and the significant implications for many Royal Mail customers, Postcomm and Royal Mail have agreed that more time is required to assess the size-based pricing proposal. Accordingly, the earliest implementation date, if the application is allowed to proceed, will be April 2006.

Utilities (Appointment Times)

Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make representations to the utility regulators to place conditions on utility providers to ensure that appointment times for provision of services are made time specific. [200151]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 29 November 2004]: I have no such plans. Under Guaranteed Standards of Performance, introduced by the regulator, gas and electricity companies are already obliged to make a morning or afternoon appointments or, if requested by the customer, a timed appointment. Failure to meet the standard, including failing to keep the appointment without adequate notice results in a £20 payment to the customer.

The Office of Communications (Ofcom) regulates BT, but has no specific provisions relating to appointments for service provision. BT offers morning or afternoon, appointments and can narrow the slot down to within a two-hour time range if requested. BT will pay the customer 10 compensation for a missed morning or afternoon slot, but tell us they will not guarantee the offering of a two-hour window.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Magistrates Courts (East Anglia)

27. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs when he next expects to meet representatives of local magistrates from East Anglia to discuss court modernisation programmes. [200061]

Mr. Leslie: While I have no immediate plans to meet magistrates from East Anglia, I am happy to consider any invitations to do so. Officials in my Department are already in dialogue with the shadow courts boards in East Anglia. They will consider the local courts' draft business plan in consultation with magistrates and other interested parties.

House of Lords

28. Hugh Bayley: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs if he will make a statement on reforming the House of Lords. [200062]

Mr. Leslie: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave the hon. Gentleman for Cannock Chase earlier today.

Electoral Reform

29. Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans the Secretary of State has to change the electoral system for elections to the House of Commons. [200063]

Mr. Leslie: The Government remain committed to their manifesto in respect of electoral systems and will make an announcement on the time of a review at an appropriate moment.

Claims Direct

30. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what discussions his Department has had with representatives of Claims Direct in the last five years. [200064]

Mr. Lammy: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 29 November 2004, Official Report, column 29W.

Court Dress

31. Mr. Dismore: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what progress is being made in reforming court dress. [200065]

Mr. Leslie: The Lord Chancellor plans to discuss the way forward on court working dress with the senior judiciary.

Supreme Court

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what progress has been made in locating suitable premises for the proposed Supreme Court. [200066]

Mr. Leslie: The Government have previously announced that Middlesex Guildhall and the new wing, Somerset House are under consideration as locations for the Supreme Court. The Government shall continue to investigate the relative qualitative and financial merits of the building options in consultation with the Law Lords, English Heritage and Westminster city council, and will provide an update before the Constitutional Reform Bill reaches this House.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Chris Ruane: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the average length of time taken by courts (a) hearing and (b) granting antisocial behaviour orders was for each court area in the last period for which figures are available. [199556]

Mr. Leslie: No data are available on the average length of time taken by the courts to (a) hear or (b) grant antisocial behaviour orders. Information on the length of hearings is not collected on the basis of particular types of proceedings. In July 2004, the Government identified 12 "anti-social behaviour response courts" which are focused on dealing effectively with antisocial behaviour in particular on dealing with cases efficiently. We are now seeking to identify further magistrates courts where this approach would be useful, and to roll out the lessons learned to all magistrates courts.

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World

Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199622]

Mr. Leslie: My Department, as a service provider, is obliged by the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 to make its public facing online services and publications accessible and to provide alternative user-friendly formats on request. This is in line with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (version 1.0). The Department for Constitutional Affairs (DCA) adheres to these guidelines. 90 per cent. of publications uploaded to our site are in HTML format.

Electoral Review

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs when he expects to announce the review of electoral systems. [200279]

Mr. Leslie: The Government remain committed to their manifesto in respect of the reviews of electoral systems and will make any announcement on the time of a review at an appropriate moment.

Legal Aid

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans the Department has to promote the use of legal expenses insurance to the public as an addition to the cover provided by civil legal aid. [200986]

Mr. Lammy: The Government welcome the continuing growth in the market for "before-the-event" legal expenses insurance. We understand from insurance firms themselves that the breadth of coverage for LEI has grown substantially in recent years, and this has encouraged the Government in their wish to focus civil legal aid more carefully on the most vulnerable.

A consultation has recently closed on a package of reforms to the civil legal aid scheme to encourage early resolution of disputes; discourage unnecessary litigation and re-prioritise funding to ensure it is better targeted at deserving cases. This included a proposal to identify those applicants with "before-the-event" insurance early on, so that they can rely on this insurance rather than on public funding. We will announce the way forward on this in due course.

Libra Project

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the 44th report from the Committee of Public Accounts, Session 2002–03, whether the Libra Project is being delivered on (a) time and (b) budget; and what steps the Department has taken to ensure that outcome. [200053]

Mr. Leslie: Libra IT infrastructure was delivered two months early—in September 2003. The development of the Libra case management software is, however, taking longer than anticipated. We are working with our suppliers to establish a firm schedule for deployment and expect to be able to confirm this before Christmas. Precise costs depend on rollout timing, but the Department expects to manage any changes within its overall allocation and without any increase in the amount paid for the software.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Website (Young People)

38. Mr. David Stewart: To ask the hon. Member for Roxburgh and Berwickshire representing the House of Commons Commission what representations he has received in favour of a House of Commons website for young people aimed at increasing turnout at the next election. [200073]

Sir Archy Kirkwood: The Commission has not received any such submissions from the public. It agrees with the Modernisation Committee that the Parliament website should be continually improved. There have been a number of recent improvements with more to come. Research will shortly be commissioned on how the website could be better designed to reach out to various target audiences, and especially to be more accessible to young people.

TREASURY

Afghanistan

David Hamilton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been spent on operations in Afghanistan; and how much has been allocated for future operations. [200230]

Mr. Boateng: Between 2001–02 and 2003–04 MOD drew down a total of £677 million through Main and Supplementary Estimates for the military operations in Afghanistan.

It is too early to assess the costs for 2004–05 and subsequent financial years.

Africa (Debt Cancellation)

Tom Cox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which countries in Africa have had their debts cancelled in each of the last three years. [200943]

Mr. Timms: Sinee September 2003, seven countries (Guyana, Nicaragua, Niger, Ethiopia, Senegal, Ghana, Madagascar) have reached completion point in the HIPC initiative. All of these countries are now receiving irrevocable debt relief, taking the total number of post-completion point countries to 15 (March 2003—Benin, Mali; June 2002—Mauritania; April 2002—Burkina Faso; November 2001—Tanzania; September 2001—Mozambique; June 2001—Bolivia; May 2000—Uganda).

A further 12 countries are at decision point and are receiving interim debt relief (July 2003—Dem. Rep. of Congo; March 2002—Sierra Leone; May 2001—Chad; December 2000—Gambia, Guinea, Guinea Bissau, Malawi, Rwanda, Sao Tome and Principe, Zambia; October 2000—Cameroon; June 2000—Honduras).

However many countries are still having to chose between servicing their debt and investing in health, education, infrastructure and other areas necessary to allow them to attain the Millennium Development Goals. That is why the UK is proposing that we match bilateral debt relief of up to 100 per cent. with multilateral debt relief of up to 100 per cent. The UK will provide its share, approximately 10 per cent., of multilateral debt owed by eligible countries to the International Development Association and African Development Bank, and will continue to call on others to join us in this initiative.

Alcohol and Tobacco Tax

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value of revenue from taxation of alcohol and alcoholic products was in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [199611]

John Healey: Excise duty receipts for alcoholic products are included in the HM Customs and Excise 'Bulletins', for Spirits, Wine, Beer and Cider, which can be found on a HM Customs and Excise website address at:

<http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=statbulltwo>.

The estimated Value Added Tax (VAT) receipts for alcohol products for the financial year 2003–04 are not available, as information on VAT for included products is not routinely collected.

Childbirths

Martin Linton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many children have been born to mothers resident in each constituency in the UK since 1 September 2002. [199495]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell to Mr. Martin Linton, dated 30 November 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question concerning the number of children born to mothers resident in each constituency of the UK since 1st September 2002. I am replying in his absence. (199495)

I am placing information on the number of live births by parliamentary constituency in the House of Commons library.

Cold-related Deaths

Mr. Challen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many winter cold related deaths have been recorded in each year since 1997, broken down by country and region in the UK; and how many of these were attributed to hypothermia. [199698]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts to Mr. Colin Challen, dated 30 November 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many winter cold-related deaths have been recorded in each year since 1997, broken down by country and region in the UK; and how many of these were attributed to hypothermia. I am replying in his absence. (199698)

Numbers of cold-related deaths are not available, as cold is not recorded as a cause of death in itself. ONS does however publish annual excess winter death figures. These are the excess number of deaths each winter compared to the average during other months of the year. These figures are not routinely calculated for the United Kingdom but results for England and Wales and Government Office Regions in England have been published for winters from 1991/1992 to 2003/2004. This report, "Excess Winter Mortality—By Age Group and Region" can be found on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/STATBASE/ssdataset.asp?vlnk=7089

For the period 1997 to 2003 (the latest year for which data are currently available) the annual total number of deaths where hypothermia was mentioned on the death certificate are presented in the attached table.

Deaths with a mention of hypothermia[1] on the death certificate, for the United Kingdom and constituent countries and Government Office Regions in England[2] 1997 to 2003[3]

[3] Figures are for deaths occurring in each calendar year for England and Wales and deaths registered in each calendar year for Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Brian Cotter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many excess winter deaths were recorded within (a) the South West Government office region, (b) the North Somerset local authority area and (c) the Weston-Super-Mare constituency in each of the last five years. [199764]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts to Mr. Brian Cotter, dated 30 November 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many excess winter deaths were recorded within (a) the South West Government Office Region, (b) the North Somerset local authority area and (c) the Weston-Super-Mare constituency in each of the last five years. I am replying in his absence. (199764)

The figures requested are presented in the table below from 1998/1999 to 2002/2003, the last winter for which figures are available for local authorities and parliamentary constituencies, and for which final figures have been published for Government Office Regions. For 2003/2004 a provisional figure of 2,300 excess winter deaths has been published for the South West Government Office Region. Figures are not yet available for smaller areas.

Excess winter deaths[1] for winters 1998–99 to 2002–03

	Excess winter deaths[2]
Winter	South West Government Office Region	North Somerset local authority	Weston-Super-Mare parliamentary constituency
1998–99	4,130	160	100
1999–2000	4,730	140	40
2000–01	2,270	130	50
2001–02	2,740	60	60
2002–03	2,360	80	50

[1] Excess winter deaths are defined by the Office for National Statistics as the difference between the number of deaths during the four winter months (December to March) and the average number of deaths during the four preceding months (August to November) and the following four months (April to July).
[2] Figures have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Customs and Excise (Scotland)

Mr. Weir: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many investigation officers employed by Customs and Excise work (a) full-time and (b) part-time or on secondment within Scotland. [200979]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is as follows:

(a) HM Customs and Excise has 85 Law Enforcement investigation staff based in Scotland including two officers seconded to the Crown Office, Financial Crime Unit and Civil Recovery Unit to support the Lord Advocate's Proceeds of Crime Act strategy.

(b) There are no part-time investigation officers or investigation officers seconded from elsewhere in the UK to Scotland. However any Law Enforcement investigation officer employed by HM Customs and Excise may be required to work in Scotland in response to operational circumstances.

Departmental Jobs

Sir Archy Kirkwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) full-time, (b) part-time and (c) temporary jobs his Department and its executive agencies have had in (i) the Scottish Borders and (ii) Scotland since 1997. [199576]

Mr. Timms: The answer is given as in the table.

Departmental Training

Charles Hendry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by his Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98. [200395]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. For example, HM Customs and Excise alone delivered over 117,000 learning interventions last year.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200415]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Disabled Pension Tax Credits (Scotland)

David Hamilton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the introduction of the working and disabled pension tax credits has changed support to low income families in (a) Scotland and (b) Midlothian. [200078]

Dawn Primarolo: The introduction of the working and child tax credits has sharply increased the number of working families with low or moderate incomes in Scotland and in Midlothian who are benefiting from financial support. The number of disabled workers in Scotland benefiting from tax credits has increased even more sharply.

By April 2004, 201,800 families with children were receiving more than the family element of child tax credit in Scotland, 56 per cent. more than the number of families receiving working families' tax credit in November 2002. By January 2004, 3,100 families were receiving more than the family element of child tax credit in Midlothian, 57 per cent. more than the number receiving working families' tax credit in November 2002.

By April 2004, 7,600 households in Scotland were benefiting from the disabled worker element of working tax credit, more than double the number of households receiving disabled person's tax credit in October 2002. Data on the number of households in Midlothian benefiting from the disabled worker element of working tax credit are not yet available.

Economic Activity (Wandsworth)

Tom Cox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the economic activity rate in the London borough of Wandsworth was in each of the last three years. [199667]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 30 November 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about economic activity. I am replying in his absence. (199667)

The attached table shows the working age economic activity rates in the London Borough of Wandsworth for the twelve month periods ending in February each year from 2002 to 2004. These estimates from the Labour Force Survey are, as with any sample survey, subject to sampling variability.

Economic activity rate[1] in the London borough of Wandsworth 12 month period ending in February each year

E-Government

Paul Holmes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199690]

Mr. Timms: HM Treasury, Inland Revenue and HM Customs and Excise are all committed to comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines. HM Treasury has recently redesigned its public website templates to comply with the World Wide W3C Guidelines 1.0 Double-A. The Inland Revenue already follows the W3C Guidelines 1.0 Double-A and HM Customs and Excise is committed to achieving compliance with the minimum level of the W3C Guidelines and aims to exceed them where possible. The new merged department HM Revenue and Customs will be committed to comply with the guidelines.

Ethiopia

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether all debt owed by Ethiopia to the UK has been extinguished; and if he will make a statement. [200145]

Mr. Timms: The UK has written off 100 per cent. of debt owed by Ethiopia to the UK. Furthermore, under the recently proposed UK multilateral debt initiative Ethiopia will also qualify for multilateral debt relief as a post-completion point Highly Indebted Poor Country (HIPC). The UK will pay its share, approximately 10 per cent., of multilateral debt service owed by Ethiopia to the International Development Association and African Development Bank, and will continue to call on others to join us in this initiative.

Euro

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will meet the European Commissioner for External Trade to discuss setting a target date for British entry into the euro. [199801]

Mr. Timms: As the Chancellor said in his 2004 Budget speech,

> "while the Government do not propose a euro assessment be initiated at the time of this Budget, the Treasury will again review progress at Budget time next year and report to the House".

Britain in Europe

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will next meet representatives of Britain in Europe; and at what dates in the last year he has met representatives of Britain in Europe. [199805]

Mr. Timms: The Chancellor met most recently with representatives of Britain in Europe at their annual board meeting on 17 November. At present no further meetings have been scheduled.

Goodison Review

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to implement the recommendations of the Goodison Review: Securing the Best for our Museums; and if he will make a statement. [199705]

Mr. Boateng: In the 2004 Spending Review the Government announced that:

> annual funding for the National Heritage Memorial Fund will double by 2007–08, compared to 2004–05; > the Renaissance in the Regions programme for regional museums will be extended to all nine English regions; and > the free access commitment, which currently covers the main national museums and galleries, and the VAT refund scheme that helps deliver free access, will be extended to university museums and galleries.

Other recommendations relating to tax are being considered as part of our on-going work. The Department of Culture, Media and Sport also plans to transfer administrative functions to the Museums Libraries and Archives Council (formerly Resource) as recommended by the Goodison Review.

Household Water Supplies

Tom Cox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what percentage of households in the Greater London area were lacking the use of a hot water supply according to the 2001 Census; [199677]

(2) what percentage of households within the Greater London area were lacking the use of a bathroom according to the 2001 Census. [199678]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 30 November 2004:

The National Statistician and Registrar General for England and Wales has been asked to reply to your recent questions to the Chancellor of the Exchequer asking:

1. what percentage of households in the Greater London area were lacking the use of a hot water supply according to the 2001 Census (199677)

2. what percentage of households in the Greater London area were lacking the use of a bathroom according to the 2001 Census (199678).

I am replying in his absence.

A question about the availability of a hot water supply was not asked in the 2001 Census and consequently no figures are available.

In the 2001 Census respondents were asked whether they had sole use of a bath, shower or toilet for their household as opposed to whether they lacked the use of a bathroom altogether. On Census day (29 April 2001) 1.06% of households in the London Government Office Region (GOR) were without the sole use of a bath, shower or toilet. That figure includes households with shared access and households with no access.

The London GOR is equivalent to the administrative area of the Greater London Authority covering the 32 London Boroughs and the City of London. The figures have been extracted from Table UV60 on the Census 2001—Census Area Statistics (CAS) for Output Areas, wards and higher administrative geographies in England and Wales DVD, which is available in the House of Commons library.

Iraq

David Hamilton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much money has been allocated for future engagements in Iraq; and how much has been spent on the operation in Iraq to date. [200226]

Mr. Boateng: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 17 November 2004, Official Report, columns 1504–05W.

Life Assurance

Norman Baker: To ask The Chancellor of the Exchequer what action he has taken in relation to the life assurance business following the publication of the Penrose Report. [200665]

Mr. Timms: The Government have enacted fundamental reform of the regulation of financial services by establishing the Financial Services Authority (FSA) as an integrated and independent regulator combining prudential and conduct of business regulation. A key part of the new regulatory regime is the creation of a comprehensive Financial Services Compensation Scheme and a single Financial Ombudsman Service.

The FSA has proceeded to introduce risk-based insurance regulation and individual capital standards. It is also in the process of introducing realistic accounting by life offices, including a requirement to reserve for terminal bonus. In addition, the use of future profits implicit items is being phased out.

The FSA is also removing responsibility for making key decisions on asset allocation and distribution in with-profits funds from the appointed actuary and transferring it to company boards and it has brought forward proposals on better treatment of customers by firms and fuller transparency of with-profits funds. Lord Penrose welcomed the FSA's regulatory reforms, which he said

"has sought to anticipate many of the lessons that might be drawn by this enquiry and it should come as no surprise that it has largely succeeded".

Subsequent to the Penrose report the Government have separately instigated a number of reviews which represent a significant opportunity to address the interests of future policyholders.

Paul Myners is reviewing the governance of mutual life offices to make their boards as accountable to their members as those of comparable companies to their shareholders.

Sir Derek Morris is leading a review of the actuarial profession considering how best to modernise the profession and see high standards are delivered in a more open, challenging and accountable professional culture.

The Accounting Standards Board has launched a review of the accounting framework for with-profits business with particular emphasis on improving the transparency of reporting.

Life Expectancy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the life expectancy at birth of (a) a male and (b) a female belonging to social class (i) I, (ii) II, (iii) IINM, (iv) IIIM, (v) IV and (vi) V has been in each of the last 25 years for which figures are available. [199454]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts to Mr. Andrew Lansley, dated 30 November 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the life expectancy at birth of (a) a male and (b) a female belonging to social class (i) I, (ii) II, (iii) IIINM, (iv) HIM, (v) IV and (vi) V has been in each of the last 25 years for which figures are available. I am replying in his absence. (199454)

Available figures are from the ONS Longitudinal Study, a one per cent. sample of the population. The most recently available estimates were published in Health Statistics Quarterly 15[1] for the period 1972 to 1999. The attached table presents life expectancy at birth by social class for males and females for five-year periods from 1972 to 1996, and for 1997–1999.

Mortgage Income Tax Relief

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Government abolished mortgage income tax relief; and what the estimated change in taxation for a typical household with a mortgage over £30,000 in 2004–05 is due to its abolition. [200138]

Dawn Primarolo: The MIRAS scheme was abolished in April 2000. The value of relief payable on £30,000 of loans in 2004–05 would depend on the rate of interest charged on the loan.

Ms Emma Bowers

Helen Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the Inland Revenue's handling of tax credits claimed by Ms Emma Bowers of Glazebury, Warrington. [200193]

Dawn Primarolo: I understand that the Inland Revenue has made a thorough investigation of Miss Bowers' case and has written to my hon. Friend about it.

Office for National Statistics

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the calculations of the (a) RPI and (b) CPI made by the Office for National Statistics take into account changes in the standard quantities of the representative commodities contained in the indices. [200591]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. James Arbuthnot, dated 30 November 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your parliamentary question asking how the calculations of the RPI and CPI made by the Office for National Statistics take into account changes in the standard quantities of the representative commodities contained in the indices. (200591)

Within each year, the RPI and CPI are fixed quantity consumer price indices. That is, changes in prices as measured by both indices are calculated as the change in the total cost to the average consumer of a basket of goods and services of fixed composition, quantity and quality.

In practice, this is achieved by (a) holding constant each year the sample of representative goods and services for which prices are collected each month in estimating price changes more generally; and (b) applying a fixed set of weights to price changes for each of the items such that their influence on the overall index reflects their importance in the typical household budget. In this way, changes in the RPI and CPI indices from month to month reflect only changes in prices, and not ongoing variations in consumer purchasing patterns.

However, the contents of the RPI and CPI baskets of goods and services and associated expenditure weights are updated annually so that the indices remain representative of consumer spending patterns over time. This is important in helping to avoid potential biases in consumer price indices that might otherwise arise, for example, due to the development of entirely new goods and services, or the tendency for consumers to substitute purchases away from those particular goods and services for which prices have risen relatively rapidly.

For the RPI, changes to the items and weights are introduced in February each year, but with an overlapping collection of prices in January. This means that the figures for each year can be 'chain linked' together to form a long-run price index spanning many years. This procedure ensures that the annual changes to the basket and weights have no impact on estimated changes in prices as measured by the RPI. The same basic approach is likewise adopted in the CPI although, for technical reasons, it is necessary to chain link the published index twice each year rather than only once as in the RPI.

These issues are described in greater detail in a range of articles published by ONS, which are available on the National Statistics website. The basic principles underlying the construction of the RPI and CPI are described in:

David Roe and David Fenwick (2004) 'The New Inflation Target: the Statistical Perspective', Economic Trends No 602, http://www.statistics.gov.uk/cci/article.asp?id = 688

The basket of goods and services employed in the calculation of ONS consumer price indices and the associated weights are described respectively in:

David Roe (2004), 'Consumer Prices Index and Retail Prices Index: the 2004 Basket of Goods and Services', http://www.statistics.gov.uk/CCI/article.asp?ID = 864

David Baran (2004), 'Consumer Prices Index and Retail Prices Index: Updating weights for 2004', http://www.statistics.gov.uk/cci/article.asp?id = 891

Redundancies

Paul Holmes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many redundancies have been notified in each quarter of each year since June 2001, broken down by nation and region; what these figures represent as a percentage of the total work force, broken down by nation and region; and if he will make a statement. [199620]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Paul Holmes, dated 30 November 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about redundancy. (199620)

The Labour Force Survey provides estimates of redundancies experienced by survey respondents in the three month period before their survey interviews. The attached table gives Labour Force Survey estimates for number of redundancies in each nation and region of the UK for each three month period from 2001 to 2004. The table also shows redundancy rates, i.e. redundancies as a proportion of the number of employees in each area.

The estimates for the Labour Force Survey are, as with any statistical sample survey, subject to sampling variability.

Sikhs

Mr. Plaskitt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he is discussing with the Office for National Statistics changes to the 2011 Census forms which would recognise Sikhs as an ethnic group. [200041]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell to Mr. James Plaskitt, dated 30 November 2004:

The National Statistician and Registrar General for England and Wales has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking about changes to the 2011 Census forms which would recognise Sikhs as an ethnic group. I am replying in his absence. (200041)

In planning for a census in 2011, arrangements will be put in place for consultation with a wide range of users on the form and content of the questions to be included, using similar criteria that were adopted in designing the 2001 Census form. The criteria used for 2001 were:

there is a clearly demonstrated need for the information; users' requirements cannot adequately be met by information from other sources;

the questions should be shown, in tests, to have no significantly adverse effect on the Census as a whole, particularly the level of public response; and that practicable questions can be devised to collect data that are sufficiently accurate to meet users' requirements.

We recognise that ethnicity is an ever-changing concept and we want to reflect the contemporary nature of British society. However, comparability over time remains a very important issue. Because ethnicity is multifaceted, the current National Statistics practice is to collect as much information as possible on associated factors. For example, the Labour Force Survey (LFS) has questions on national identity, ethnic group, religious affiliation, country of birth, and nationality.

It is also our view that we should test questions for the 2011 Census (when they are determined) before they are asked in the Census itself. In the meantime National Statistics guidelines on the measurement and collection of ethnicity data were published on the Office for National Statistics (ONS) website earlier this year.

They reflect the need for a balance between the prime requirement for comparability with the 2001 Census while, at the same time, acknowledging the fact that classifications are never set in stone.

The ethnicity question will be reviewed as part of the general preparations for the 2011 Census. A paper entitled 'Strategic issues surrounding the 2011 Census questionnaire Content' was presented to the Census Advisory Groups earlier this month. ONS will begin its formal external user consultation on 2011 Census topics with the production of a consultation document, which will be published in spring 2005. This will be available via the ONS website and circulated to key users through the formal Census Advisory Groups mechanism. This document will set out ONS' current views on user requirements for outputs, along with information on the quality of 2001 Census responses and the key alternative sources for the information, and will seek responses by late summer 2005.

Tax Credits

Brian Cotter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what action he plans to take to assist those families who are having to repay money to the Inland Revenue as a result of tax credit overpayments caused by administrative failures. [199769]

Dawn Primarolo: The Inland Revenue's Code of Practice 'What happens if we have paid you too much tax credit?' sets out their approach to handling overpayments of tax credits.

Overpayments are collected from continuing awards wherever possible, subject to automatic limits on how much they collect.

The Inland Revenue will accept that an overpayment should not be recovered if it arose because of their mistake and the person could reasonably have thought their award was right.

Brian Cotter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what action he plans to take to simplify the application (a) process and (b) forms for those families wishing to apply for the (i) working tax credit and (ii) child tax credit. [199771]

Dawn Primarolo: Claimants have to complete a claim form only once to get into the tax credits system. Thereafter, when they renew their claims each year, there are only two pages of a renewals form that need to be completed and returned. There is a straightforward step-by-step guide in every claim and renewals pack, as well as detailed guidance notes.

The Inland Revenue continually look to improve the process for people claiming tax credits, either using the claim form or online.

Brian Cotter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what information he is making available about the process for repayment to families who are having to repay money to the Inland Revenue as a result of tax credit overpayments caused by administrative failures. [199777]

Dawn Primarolo: The Inland Revenue's Code of Practice 26 'What happens if we have paid you too much tax credit?' sets out their approach to handling overpayments of tax credits.

The Code of Practice is available on the Inland Revenue website or from the tax credits helpline.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the processing of completed application forms for (a) working tax credit and (b) child tax credit takes place in the UK. [200900]

Dawn Primarolo: Claimants send their completed tax credits claim forms to the Inland Revenue's office in Netherton, Merseyside, where they are processed. People can, of course, also claim online.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the number of tax credit overpayments for 2003–04; how many such overpayments have been accepted as the fault of the Inland Revenue; and how many such overpayments will be written off. [200925]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my right hon. Friend to the reply given to him by my hon. Friend the Economic Secretary on 17 November 2004, Official Report, column 1511W.

Brian Cotter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of what caused the Inland Revenue error that led to the overpayment of tax credit payments; and what action he is taking to ensure that such an error will not occur again in the future. [199768]

Dawn Primarolo: Details are in the Inland Revenue's Annual Report for 2003–04, published on 21 October 2004, at page 42 and at page 104 of the Report of the Comptroller and Auditor General attached to it.

A software error in April and May 2003 caused incorrect payments of tax credits; the error was corrected for June 2003 onwards.

Brian Cotter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average length of time is that the Inland Revenue is taking to inform individual families that have received tax credit overpayments; and what period of notice is given before repayments of overpayments are requested. [199772]

Dawn Primarolo: Overpayments are established after the end of the tax year when an award has been finalised. When awards are finalised, claimants receive a final award notice setting out any overpayment that has arisen. Where there is a continuing entitlement to tax credits, overpayments are generally collected from future awards. But where that is not possible, the amount overpaid may be collected directly from the claimant. Information on the average length of time taken from identification of an overpayment and notifying the claimant of it is not available.

The approach the Revenue takes to overpayments is contained in their Code of Practice 26 'What happens if we have paid you too much tax credit?' a copy of which has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Tobacco Tax

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value was of revenue from taxation on tobacco products in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [199610]

John Healey: Excise duty receipts for tobacco are included in the HM Customs and Excise Tobacco Bulletin', which can be found on a HM Customs and Excise website address at:

< http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?tasksstat = bulltwo >

The estimated Value Added Tax (VAT) receipts for tobacco for the financial year 2003–04 are not available, as information on VAT for individual products is not routinely collected.

Winter Deaths

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many excess winter deaths there were in each year since 1997 in (a) the UK, (b) each region and (c) each constituency; and if he will make a statement. [200552]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 30 November 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many excess winter deaths there were in each year since 1997 in (a) the UK, (b) each region and (c) each constituency. (200552)

Excess winter death figures (the excess number of deaths each winter compared to the average during other months of the year) are not routinely calculated for the United Kingdom. Results for England and Wales from 1997/1998 to 2003/2004 are presented in the attached table. These figures have been published with results for Government Office Regions in England for winters from 1991/1992 to 2003/2004. This report, "Excess Winter Mortality—By Age Group and Region" can be found on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/STATBASE/ssdataset.asp?vlnk=7089

Published figures for 2003/2004 are currently provisional and not available for areas smaller than Government Office Regions. I am placing in the House of Commons Library, information on numbers of excess winter deaths by each parliamentary constituency for winters from 1997/1998 to 2002/2003.

Excess winter deaths,[1] England and Wales,[2] 1997–98 to 2003–04[3]

	Excess winter deaths[1,4]
1997–98	22,900
1998–99	46,840
1999–2000	48,440
2000–01	24,840
2001–02	27,230
2002–03	23,970
2003–04[3]	23,500

[1] Excess winter deaths are defined by the Office for National Statistics as the difference between the number of deaths during the four winter months (December to March) and the average number of deaths during the four preceding months (August to November) and the following four months (April to July).
[2] Including non-residents.
[3] Figures for 2003–04 are provisional.
[4] Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.

Works of Art

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many claims for conditional exemption for works of art were made in each year since 1976; and how many were accepted in each year. [199704]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave to the hon. Member for Henley (Mr. Johnson) on 16 September 2004, Official Report, columns 1656–57W. Comparable figures for years before 1994 are not available.

HEALTH

Alcohol

Ross Cranston: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will make a statement on his policy on the introduction of (a) compulsory and (b) voluntary labelling of units of alcohol on alcohol products; [200133]

(2) if he will make a statement on his policy on the introduction of (a) compulsory and (b) voluntary labelling of alcohol products with recommended units of alcohol consumption; [200134]

(3) if he will make a statement on his policy on the introduction of (a) compulsory and (b) voluntary labelling of alcohol products with recommendations regarding alcohol consumption by pregnant women. [200135]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The voluntary social responsibility scheme for drinks producers will strongly encourage drinks companies to participate in promoting well being, including putting the sensible drinking message clearly on bottles alongside information about unit content.

There are no plans to include compulsory or voluntary labelling of alcohol products regarding alcohol consumption by pregnant women. However, the Department is preparing a revised leaflet—"Drinking for two"—on drinking and pregnancy.

Aspergers Syndrome

Jonathan Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether people with Aspergers Syndrome who have an IQ of over 70 qualify for social services assessment under the fair access to care services practice guidelines; and if he will make a statement. [200106]

Dr. Ladyman [holding answer 29 November 2004]: A local authority social services department has a duty to carry out an assessment where it appears to them that someone may be in need of community care services. Decisions to carry out assessments are not made on the basis of a person's intelligence quotient.

Child Incontinence

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to ensure children who are doubly incontinent are provided with more than five incontinence pads for every 24 hours; and if he will make a statement. [200150]

Dr. Ladyman [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The Department published "Good Practice in Continence Services" in April 2000. This provided health authorities and primary care trusts (PCTs) with good advice on various continence matters. This includes advice that PCTs should have specialist continence services in place, which provide patients with an individual assessment of their needs. Pads should be provided in quantities appropriate to the individual's continence needs. The setting of arbitrary ceilings is not appropriate.

Council for Healthcare Regulatory Excellence

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the budget for the Council for Healthcare Regulatory Excellence is in each of the next five years. [199928]

Mr. Hutton: The Council's budget for the current year, 2004–05, is £2 million. Budgets are agreed each year so that they can be informed by the Council's annual business plan.

Disabled People (Direct Payments)

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which local authorities have set up support systems to enable them to make direct payments to disabled people. [200647]

Dr. Ladyman: We have made it mandatory for all local authorities to make direct payments to all eligible individuals who would like them. We do not monitor the number of local authorities who have set up support systems. However, we are spending £9 million over three years in grants to 108 different councils working in partnership with voluntary sector organisations to promote the use of direct payments. Other councils may have set up support systems using their general funding. In addition, grant funding went to two voluntary organisations working at a national level.

In addition, the Department has produced user-friendly information in a variety of formats promoting direct payments. Councils should supplement this with locally appropriate information.

Expenditure (Leeds)

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the expenditure on medicines switched from Leeds health authorities to the Prescription Pricing Authority has been since 1997–98. [200137]

Miss Melanie Johnson: This information is not available, since expenditure accounted for by the Prescription Pricing Authority cannot be allocated to individual health bodies.

Food Additives

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment (a) his Department and (b) the Food Standards Agency has made of the effects of artificial (i) colourings, (ii) flavourings and (iii) additives on children. [200424]

Miss Melanie Johnson: Responsibility for food safety lies with the Food Standards Agency (FSA). Food additives, including colourings, are authorised for use only after a rigorous safety assessment by independent scientific committees. This assessment includes a consideration of all age groups within the population. There is some concern on the effects of some food additives on the behaviour of children but the assessment of the results of studies have shown that there is still significant scientific uncertainty. The FSA has commissioned a study into the effects of some colourings and preservatives on children's behaviour, and results are expected in spring 2007.

The approval process of flavourings is different. All flavourings and indeed, each constituent of a flavouring blend, must be safe under the terms of the Food Safety Act 1990. The European Commission is working towards a positive list of permitted chemically defined flavouring substances (either natural, nature-identical or artificial). A European Union-wide register of flavouring substances, approximately 2,800 substances, provides the basis for this work on safety evaluations, currently being undertaken by the European Food Safety Authority.

GM Foods

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with his EU counterparts regarding the right of member states to exclude genetically modified foods; and if he will make a statement. [200231]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 29 November 2004]: None.

Health Direct

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether Health Direct will be established as a subsidiary of NHS Direct; whether NHS Direct and Health Direct will share the same access points; and if he will make a statement. [199468]

Miss Johnson: The implementation of this and a number of other initiatives announced will be covered in a delivery plan for the White Paper, to be published early in 2005.

Health Trainers

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether NHS health trainers will be required to complete a criminal records check through the Criminal Records Bureau. [199475]

Mr. Hutton: All national health service staff with access to patients in the course of their normal duties are eligible for Criminal Records Bureau checks. These checks will be compulsory for all eligible new staff from 14 February 2005.

Health White Paper

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost of delivering the proposals in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374; what methodology was used to make this estimate; what proportion of the cost will be met by funds provided (a) centrally and (b) from other funding sources; and if he will make a statement. [199450]

Miss Melanie Johnson: We will invest at least £1 billion in improving health over the next four years. We have calculated this figure by identifying the additional requirements of the Choosing Health White Paper and costing these on the basis of best evidence available.

. The allocation of funds is being considered by Ministers and announcements will be made early in 2005 from the Department's spending review settlement.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether all children will be provided with children's health guides under the Child Health Promotion programme, as described in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 23. [199452]

Dr. Ladyman: Children's health guides are a radical new approach to help children, parents and carers assess the child's health and set their own health goals. Everyone will have the opportunity to have a personal health guide if they want one, and will be able to develop their guide in electronic form, linked to their "HealthSpace" on the Internet. The implementation and details of this, and other initiatives, will become clearer early in 2005 when the Government will publish its delivery plan for the White Paper.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate he has made of the change in the number of deaths from passive smoking each year likely to result from his proposals to restrict smoking in public places, as outlined in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 77; [199466]

(2) what estimate he has made of the change in the proportion of daily smokers in England which will result from his proposals on restricting smoking in public places, as outlined in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 76; and on what research this estimate was based. [199467]

Miss Melanie Johnson: A partial impact regulatory assessment (RIA) has been published, which gives initial estimates of the possible impact on smoking prevalence. A copy is available in the Library.

No estimate has been made of the likely annual change in the number of deaths from second-hand smoke to result from the proposals in the White Paper.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what body has been charged with the development of a tool to assess local health and wellbeing as described in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 12. [199477]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Department and the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister are working together to commission this development.

Mayday Hospital, Croydon

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the routine waiting times for digital audio equipment at Mayday Hospital in Croydon (a) are and (b) were 12 months ago. [199517]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Mental Health

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the three long-stay hospitals that provide accommodation for people with a learning disability for which closure dates have not yet been agreed. [199621]

Dr. Ladyman: The three long-stay hospitals for which closure dates have not yet been agreed are Little Plumstead, Long Leys Court and Orchard Hill. The "Valuing People" support team is working with health authorities on this programme. The team can be contacted via its website at http://www.valuingpeople.gov.uk/.

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of children who have been assessed as needing support from Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services are in mainstream education in each region; and if he will make a statement. [199774]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not collected centrally. A survey by the Office of National Statistics (Mental Health of Children and Adolescents in Great Britain, ONS 1999) found that among five to 10 year olds, 10 per cent. of boys and 6 per cent. of girls had a mental disorder. In the 11 to 15 year old age group, the proportion of children with any type of mental disorder was 13 per cent. for boys and 10 per cent. for girls. Mental disorders can range from clinically significant conduct disorders, emotional disorders—such as anxiety and depression—to hyperactivity.

Nicotine Replacement Therapy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps have been taken since 1997 to promote the use of nicotine replacement therapy on the NHS. [199451]

Miss Johnson: We have successfully taken a range of measures to promote the use of nicotine replacement therapy (NRT) since 1997, including making all nicotine replacement products available on national health service prescription from April 2001. The effect of these measures is shown in the following table.

Number of prescription items and net ingredient cost of NRT products dispensed in the community in England from 1997 to 2003

Nocturnal Enuresis

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate his Department has made of the number of children in (a) England, (b) the South West and (c) Dorset who suffer from nocturnal enuresis; what the ratio is of treatment centres to the child population in England; and if he will make a statement; [199759]

(2) how many national health service treatment centres for paediatric continence there are, broken down by region; [199760]

(3) what assessment his Department has made of national health services for paediatric continence; and if he will make a statement. [199761]

Dr. Ladyman: Data on the numbers of children with nocturnal enuresis and national health service treatment centres for nocturnal enuresis and paediatric continence are not collected centrally.

NHS primary care trusts (PCTs) are responsible for assessing the need for paediatric continence services, commissioning services and for provision of services. In September 2004 we published the national service framework (NSF) for children, young people and maternity services. This is a 10-year programme, intended to stimulate long-term and sustained improvement in children's health by setting standards for health and social services for children.

The NSF directs PCTs to guidance issued in 2000, "Good Practice in Continence Services", which advises that each PCT should have specialist continence services in place. PCTs are also directed to the Modernisation Agency's 2003 publication, "Good practice in paediatric continence services—benchmarking in action".

Nurses

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much it costs the NHS to train a nurse. [199561]

Mr. Hutton: The latest year for which figures are available show that, in 2003–04, the national average cost of tuition to train a nurse over the three years of their course was £19,370. Diploma students would also be entitled to a non-means tested bursary, which in 2003–04 averaged £6,772 per annum.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the number of nurses that have left the UK for employment as a nurse (a) in the USA and (b) elsewhere in each of the last 10 years. [199641]

Mr. Hutton: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The Nursing and Midwifery Council (NMC) holds information on the number of checks made by overseas regulators that nurses in the United Kingdom are on the NMC register. As these figures show the number of checks made, they will overstate the actual number going abroad each year. This information can be found on the NMC website at www.nmc-uk.org.

Peninsula Medical School

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many doctors are in training at the Peninsula Medical School. [199864]

Mr. Hutton: As at 31 July 2004, there were 302 students studying medicine at the Peninsula Medical School. Intake figures for autumn 2004 are not yet available.

Pharmaceutical Dispensing

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects repeat dispensing from pharmacies will be available in all parts of the country; and if he will make a statement. [199453]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Since regulations came into force in May 2003, 89 primary care trusts across the country are able to operate repeat dispensing arrangements.

Repeat dispensing is one of the essential services to be provided by all community pharmacies as part of the new contractual framework for community pharmacy. National roll-out will therefore be in the context of implementing this new framework, which is expected to go live from April 2005. There will be a six month transitional period, so community pharmacies will have until October 2005, to ensure they are in a position to provide this as an essential service in the new contractual framework.

Pregnant Women

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the cost of administering the test for group B streptococcus to pregnant women is in this financial year; [199708]

(2) what assessment he has made of (a) the effectiveness and (b) the cost of alternative screening tests for group B streptococcus; and if he will make a statement. [199709]

Dr. Ladyman: The National Institute for Clinical Excellence, the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists and the UK National Screening Committee (NSC) have all recommended that routine screening for group B streptococcus (GBS) should not be offered to all pregnant women in the United Kingdom, as there is insufficient evidence that this would do more good than harm.

The NSC is undertaking further work on the prevention of GBS infection in newborn babies. This will include an assessment of the different diagnostic tests. We do not hold information about national health service costs of administering tests for GBS.

Pulmonary Rehabilitation

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will include pulmonary rehabilitation in the payment by results NHS funding tariff; and if he will make a statement. [199431]

Mr. Hutton: In 2005–06, the national tariff will cover all admitted patients—day-cases, elective and non-elective in-patients, out-patients and accident and emergency services unless the services those patients receive are specifically excluded from the scope of the tariff. Rehabilitation, but not specifically pulmonary rehabilitation, is excluded from the tariff where, for admitted patients it takes place in a discrete rehabilitation ward or unit or where, for admitted or out-patients, the activity is coded to specialty 314 (rehabilitation).

Regional Tobacco Control Managers

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the post of Regional Tobacco Control Managers is a new position; and what the job description is. [199485]

Miss Melanie Johnson: Since May 2003, regional tobacco control managers have a remit to provide strong leadership on tobacco control across each Government office region, by working with key partners to deliver the goals of the national tobacco control programme, including the coordination and funding of local tobacco alliances. Their roles will now include delivery of the White Paper, "Choosing Health".

Restraint (Children)

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what methods of restraint are approved for use on children in (a) hospitals and (b) secure hospitals. [200422]

Dr. Ladyman: Guidance on the use of restraint is set out in the Mental Health Act code of practice, paragraphs 19.6 to 19.15. This states that restraint by physical means should take place only as a last resort and never as a matter of course. In addition, the guidance states that any restraint used should: be reasonable in the circumstance; apply the minimum force necessary to prevent harm to the patient or others; be used for only as long as is necessary; and be sensitive to gender and race issues. The advice applies in all healthcare settings and to all age ranges. Trusts should regularly audit their control and restraint procedures consistent with the framework of clinical governance.

Royal National Orthopaedic Hospital

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the findings of the inquiry conducted by Professors Triston and Townsend into waiting irregularities at the Royal National Orthopaedic hospital, with particular reference to the findings concerning Barnet primary care trust; and what assessment he has made of the implications of the findings for the star rating of Barnet primary care trust for 2004–05. [199422]

Dr. Ladyman: I welcome the steps taken by North Central London strategic health authority (SHA) to commission the inquiry and note that arrangements for managing waiting lists are now satisfactory at the Royal National Orthopaedic Hospital.

I understand that in the light of the inquiry, North Central London SHA and Barnet primary care trust have made representations to the Healthcare Commission concerning the impact on 2004–05 star ratings.

Responsibility for calculating performance ratings for 2004–05 is a matter for the independent Healthcare Commission, not the Department

South and West Devon Health Authority

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding was provided for the former South and West Devon health authority area in (a) 1997 and (b) 2002–03; and what the percentage change was. [199870]

Mr. Hutton: The table shows revenue allocations to South and West Devon health authority (HA) made in 1997–98 and 2002–03 and the increase in percentage terms for 1997–98 and 2002–03.

It is not possible to make comparisons between the allocations made in 1997–98 and 2002–03 as 1999–2000 was the first year unified allocations were made to HAs to cover hospital and community health services, prescribing and general medical services cash limited.

Allocations to South and West Devon HA

South West Pensinsula Area

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) total and (b) percentage change in funding for each primary care trust in the South West Peninsula Area was between 2003–04 and 2005–06. [199871]

Mr. Hutton: The table shows the total allocations and percentage increase in funding for each primary care trust (PCT) in the South West Peninsula area between 2003–04 and 2005–06.

Allocations to South West Peninsula Strategic Health Authority are PCTs 2003–04 to 2005–06

Speech Therapists

Mrs. Helen Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the (a) need for and (b) availability of speech therapy at head and neck clinics; and what plans he has to provide dedicated funding for speech therapists at head and neck clinics. [200275]

Dr. Ladyman: No assessment has been carried out centrally.

Written Answers to Questions

Wednesday 1 December 2004

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bass

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the value of commercial fishing for bass in UK inshore waters. [200048]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 29 November 2004]: Data for the value of commercial fishing for bass in UK inshore waters are not available. However, the total value for landings of bass in 2003 by the UK commercial fleet wherever they fish was approximately £3.2 million.

GM Crops

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what GM crop applications are pending; when a decision on whether they may be added to the National Seeds List is expected; and if she will make a statement. [199440]

Mr. Morley: There are no current GM crop variety applications in the UK National List system.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make it her policy to support the right of individual countries to implement national bans and safeguard measures in relation to GM crops and food at the 2001/18 Regulatory Committee on 29 November; and if she will make a statement. [200033]

Mr. Morley: Article 23 of Directive 2001/18 provides member states with the right to take safeguard action to restrict or prohibit the use and/or sale of a GMO in their territory if new or additional scientific information becomes available, after the date of consent, that indicates that the GMO constitutes a risk to human health or the environment.

Additional scientific evidence in support of the actions being discussed at Regulatory Committee on 29 November was provided by Greece and Austria earlier this year. The European Food Safety Authority has considered the information provided and concluded that there is no new, scientific evidence, in terms of risk to human health and the environment that would invalidate the original risk assessments. The Advisory Committee on Release to the Environment has also assessed the further information provided and agrees with the EFSA opinion. Defra officials will therefore be voting in support of the Commission Decisions requesting the countries concerned to repeal these measures.

Hazardous Waste Sites

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what directions she has given the Environment Agency with regard to monitoring sites dealing with hazardous waste; and if she will make a statement. [200089]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 29 November 2004]: None. The Environment Agency regulate hazardous waste landfills in accordance with the requirements of the Landfill (England and Wales) Regulations 2002 and other relevant legislation. Other sites dealing with hazardous waste will be subject to the waste management licensing or pollution prevention control regimes.

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment was made of Wingmoor Farm, Bishop's Cleeve, Gloucestershire when deciding which sites should be eligible to deal with hazardous waste; and if she will make a statement. [200090]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The requirements for a hazardous waste landfill are set out in the Landfill (England and Wales) Regulations 2002, as amended by the Landfill (England and Wales) (Amendment) Regulations 2004 and related Pollution Prevention and Control legislation. For those sites, such as Wingmoor Farm, that choose to be designated as hazardous waste landfills, operators had to apply to the Environment Agency for a permit that contained the operating conditions for the site. The agency had to then decide whether a permit should be issued and, if so, what operating conditions would be applied. The Environment Agency is unable to issue a permit unless the necessary planning permissions are in place. I understand that a permit has been issued for Wingmoor Farm.

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the safety implications of the transportation of hazardous waste. [200091]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 29 November 2004]: Hazardous waste is subject to the controls of the Special Waste Regulations and transport of dangerous goods legislation. Each movement is accompanied by a consignment note and tracked and recorded from the point of production to the place of disposal or recovery. The system is regulated by the Environment Agency and ensures that the waste is transported and dealt with appropriately in order to protect the environment and prevent harm to human health.

Pair Trawling

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps are being taken to licence pair trawling in British inshore waters. [199823]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 29 November 2004]: As a result of Defra-funded research which identified a dolphin bycatch problem in the pelagic pair trawl fishery for bass, I announced my intention to prohibit this fishery within 12 miles of the south west coast of England. We are currently considering responses to a consultation exercise on the technical aspects of the closure before proceeding. Alongside this measure, I announced that I would introduce a licensing scheme elsewhere for UK vessels in this fishery which will be taken forward in the light of responses to the consultation exercise on the 12 mile prohibition.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what action is taken to enforce rules relating to pair trawling of British inshore waters by Spanish vessels. [199826]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 29 November 2004]: Under the Common Fisheries Policy, Spanish vessels do not have access rights to UK coastal waters. Any vessels breaching these rules would be liable to prosecution.

Peregrine Falcon

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, what estimate she has made of the size of the peregrine falcon population in the UK; and what the size was (a) 10, (b) 20 and (c) 30 years ago. [199543]

Mr. Bradshaw: Surveys are carried out by BTO, RSPB and conservation agencies.

The most recent UK survey was carried out in 2002 with the number of breeding pairs estimated at 1,402.

(a) In 1991 the number of breeding pairs in the UK was estimated at 1,283.

(b) In 1981 the number of breeding pairs in the UK was estimated at 768.

(c) In 1971 the number of breeding pairs in the UK was estimated at 445.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many positive reactor cattle subsequently proved to be free of tuberculosis in each of the last five years; how their carcase was subsequently disposed of; and how many of them entered the human food chain. [199572]

Mr. Bradshaw: Cattle which react to the tuberculin test are considered to be affected by bovine tuberculosis (TB), regardless of culture results. Bacteriological tests on samples taken from reactor animals are not carried out to validate the skin test results but to identify, for epidemiological purposes, the strain of "Mycobacterium bovis (M. bovis)" responsible for the infection.

Carcases and their associated offal are inspected by the Meat Hygiene Service at slaughter and those with generalised infection are fully condemned and declared unfit for human consumption. Where localised TB lesions are found in more than one organ or area of a carcase the whole carcase is condemned. Carcases with lesions in a single organ or part of the carcase and associated lymph nodes are only passed fit for human consumption once the affected part of the carcase has been cut out and condemned. If no TB lesions are found the carcase is passed fit for human consumption. Any remaining "M. bovis" would be de-activated by thorough cooking.

Once identified as unfit for human consumption, condemned carcases, or parts of carcases, are disposed of in accordance with the relevant Animal By-Products Regulations.

Information on meat condemned from carcases of TB reactor animals is not available in the format requested.

Warm Front

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects to publish the study funded by her Department into health improvements for families and individuals whose homes have benefited from energy improvements under the Warm Front scheme. [199972]

Mr. Morley: The results from the study funded by Defra into health improvements for those whose homes have benefited from Warm Front will be published in academic journals over the course of 2005–06. A summary report will be published on the Defra website.

Waste Management

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures she has put in place to permit waste disposal authorities which will be introducing new private finance initiative waste management contracts to suspend fines prior to the full introduction of the contract under the Landfill Allowance Trading Scheme. [199439]

Mr. Morley: None; under Section 9(2) of the Waste and Emissions Trading Act 2003 a waste disposal authority (WDA) automatically becomes liable for a (financial) penalty if the amount of biodegradable municipal waste it sends to landfill in any one scheme year exceeds the amount authorised by the number of landfill allowances it holds for that year. Before that position is reached, however, a WDA will be able to trade or borrow allowances in a six month reconciliation period that follow the end of a scheme year, in order to balance its books. Alternatively, a WDA can make a case to the Secretary of State for her to use her powers to waive a penalty if the reason for the breach was beyond its control.

Wildlife Trafficking

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reason secondary legislation has not yet been introduced to give effect to powers authorised in 2003 to (a) increase the maximum prison sentence for wildlife trafficking and (b) give the police the power of arrest for such crimes; and if she will make a statement. [200653]

Mr. Morley: The powers will be implemented through a Statutory Instrument which will also replace The Control of Trade in Endangered Species (Enforcement) Regulations 1997.

A comprehensive review of these Regulations identified a number of difficult issues. We are now close to resolving these matters and plan to publish a draft Statutory Instrument shortly.

TRANSPORT

A249

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) for what reason the Highways Agency does not remove broken-down vehicles on the A249 Iwade to Queensborough new build; [201041]

(2) if he will make representations to the Highways Agency to request that it remove broken-down vehicles on the A249 Iwade to Queensborough whilst the second crossing of the Swale is being built. [201042]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 30 November 2004]: The Highways Agency and its contractor, Sheppey Route Ltd., do provide a vehicle breakdown recovery service on the 17km length of the A249 between the M2 near Stockbury and Sheerness on the Isle of Sheppey, but only in locations where roadworks are in progress.

This ensures that broken-down vehicles and their passengers are removed quickly from roadworks to a place of safety. On sections of road not subject to roadworks, motorists are responsible for organising their own recovery, as they are anywhere else on the network.

Air Quality

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress his Department has made on the joint Public Service Agreement target to improve rural air quality by meeting the National Air Quality Strategy objectives for carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide, particles, sulphur dioxide, benzene and 1–3 butadiene. [201207]

Mr. Jamieson: In 2002 there were no exceedences of any PSA objective across any of the pollutants included in the air quality PSA in rural areas. This is also the case in 2004 to date.

2003 saw unusually high levels of PM_{10} across the UK with Saharan dust storms, continental particles and continued re-circulation of air contributing to several notable particle pollution episodes. Consequently, in 2003, there were exceedences of the objectives for particles (PM_{10}) at two rural monitoring sites measuring PM_{10}.

In implementing the White Paper, "The Future of Transport", my Department is pursuing measures to ensure that air quality continues to improve across the whole country, including rural areas. We are providing significant resources to support local authorities' local transport plans, which are required to take account of air quality and we are actively encouraging the European Commission to produce tighter proposals for emission standards for new vehicles (Euro standards).

Carbon Emissions

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average level of carbon dioxide emitted per kilometre driven was for road traffic in each (a) EU and (b) G8 country in the latest year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [200696]

Mr. Jamieson: The average level of carbon dioxide emitted per kilometre by new cars under official test cycle conditions for the original EU-15 in 2002 is shown in the table. The table includes data for cars sold by European Automobile Manufacturers Association (ACEA) members, the Japan Automobile Manufacturers Association (JAMA) members, and the Korea Automobile Manufacturers Association (KAMA) members. Together, these three associations account for virtually all cars sold in the EU.

There is no official test cycle for vehicles other than cars and so we do not have data on such vehicles. We also do not have data for the other G8 countries.

Average EU-15 2002 new car CO_2 emissions

Member state	Average new car CO_2 (g/km)
Austria	163
Belgium	160
Denmark	169
France	156
Finland	176
Germany	176
Greece	166
Ireland	163
Italy	156
Luxembourg	173
Netherlands	171
Portugal	153
Spain	155
UK	173

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the robustness of the estimates made for carbon emissions for road transport by the National Environmental Technology Centre. [200897]

Mr. Jamieson: The figures that the National Environmental Technology Centre publish on carbon emissions from road transport are based on internationally agreed emission reporting guidelines which require them to be based on national statistics on fuel consumption. Thus, the figures are as robust as DTI's energy statistics on petrol and diesel consumption in the UK. A very small correction is made for the amount of these fuels used for off-road machinery, for example, lawn mowers, but the relative amounts used for these machines are very small. The allocation of the carbon emissions between different vehicle classes is based on vehicle km data from DfT's national traffic survey and speed-related CO_2 factors for different vehicle types.

Further, the National Environmental Technology Centre emission inventories are subjected to rigorous quality assurance and quality control checking procedures and the data and procedures are reviewed annually by an expert review team of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how the relationship between congestion and carbon emissions is factored into the figures for total carbon dioxide emissions compiled by the National Environmental Technology Centre. [200898]

Mr. Jamieson: The effect of congestion on carbon emissions is included in as much as it affects the overall fuel consumption figures the National Environmental Technology Centre use in the calculations. That is, where increased congestion leads to higher fuel consumption then this would be reflected in the DTI fuel consumption figures used for the carbon emission calculations.

Driving Tests (Gillingham)

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the targets are for the length of time between receipt of an application for a driving test and the date of the test in Gillingham. [199529]

Mr. Jamieson: [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The Driving Standards Agency (DSA) has a single appointment availability target for all practical driving test centres of nine weeks from the date the test is requested. The Agency also has a target to maintain a national average car practical test waiting time for six weeks. The current appointment availability at Gillingham is twelve weeks, and DSA is working hard to reduce this.

For theory test appointments, the target is to give 95 per cent. of candidates an appointment at their preferred test centre within two weeks of their preferred date. The performance figure achieved during October 2004 at Gillingham theory test centre was 92 per cent.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport who audits the performance of the driving test services at Gillingham against their targets. [199776]

Mr. Jamieson: [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The Driving Standards Agency's performance against targets, including those achieved at all driving test centres, is assessed initially by the Agency's Central Operations Branch and Business Planning and Performance Team. Internal auditors from the Department for Transport audit these performance figures, which are published at the end of the financial year in the Agency's Annual Report and Accounts. This document is subject to scrutiny by the National Audit Office.

Highways Agency

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the annual budget of the Highways Agency is for 2004–05. [200640]

Mr. Jamieson: The indicative capital and resource budgets of the Highways Agency are identified, in total and by main categories of expenditure, in the agency's published business plan for the year 2004–05, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

M2

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the remaining part of junctions 5 to 6 on the M2 will be resurfaced using a quieter tarmac. [200237]

Mr. Jamieson: [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The remaining section of the M2 between Junction 5 and Junction 6 (Milstead to Faversham) will be resurfaced using a quieter surfacing material in the summer of 2005, subject to funding being available.

The Highways Agency's scheme to resurface the M2 between Junction 5 and Bredgar, using quieter resurfacing materials, has started works and is due for completion before the end of March 2005.

Motor Cycle Safety

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is on the wearing of tinted visors as a safety measure by motor cyclists; and if he will make a statement. [200190]

Mr. Jamieson: Following a public consultation in 2002, and after careful consideration, I decided to retain the level of tint for motorcyclists' visors at a minimum 50 per cent. transmittance. However, riders may choose the option of a helmet with a dark internal sun shield provided it is retractable.

Navigational Aids (Republic of Ireland)

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much the Irish Government have agreed to contribute for the Dún Laoghaire project being undertaken by the Commissioners of Irish Lights; and if he will place in the Library a schedule of costs; [200451]

(2) if he will make a statement on the plans for the Dún Laoghaire project being undertaken by the Commissioners of Irish Lights; [200452]

(3) when the Irish Government first agreed to provide funding for the Dún Laoghaire project being undertaken by the Commissioners of Irish Lights. [200457]

Mr. Jamieson: The Commissioners of Irish Lights (CIL) propose to redevelop their existing site at Dún Laoghaire to become their combined headquarters building and operational base. The project, with an estimated total cost of £14 million, would bring substantial efficiency gains from co-location, and realise some £7 million from the sale of the CIL's current HQ building in central Dublin. CIL has submitted an application for planning permission to the relevant authorities. Detailed design work is not yet complete and so no schedule of costs is available.

The Irish Government confirmed on 26 November that they are ready to contribute 35 per cent. of the cost of the project, starting in 2005. We are now considering the case for sanctioning expenditure from the General Lighthouse Fund for the balance of the costs.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will list the dates of meetings since January between his Department and the Irish Government on navigational aids in the Republic of Ireland; and who the attendees were at each meeting; [200453]

(2) what his latest estimate is of the 2005–06 value of the subsidy to Light Dues in the Republic of Ireland from the General Lighthouse Fund; and what the projected cost is in 2006–07; [200454]

(3) what the date is for the cessation of payment of subsidies for navigational aids in the Republic of Ireland; [200458]

(4) whether he plans to seek a rebate from the Irish Government for the sums contributed for the Irish Lights from the General Lighthouse Fund in the last financial year. [200459]

Mr. Jamieson: The provision of aids to navigation around the British Isles as a whole is funded by light dues levied on shipping using ports in Britain and Ireland. Because light dues revenue at ports in Ireland is much less than at ports in the UK, there is effectively a subsidy from the UK to Ireland. This can only be calculated retrospectively; and it cannot be estimated until the annual expenditure plans of the Commissioners of Irish Lights (CIL) are agreed. We expect the subsidy will amount to £6.1 million in respect of 2003–04.

This figure is after allowing for the contribution the Irish Government already make to bring receipts from Ireland up to 35 per cent. of the operating costs of CIL, in accordance with a 1985 agreement between the British and Irish Governments. We are working with the Irish Government to renegotiate the 1985 agreement, but cannot set a date when the subsidy might cease. There have been two meetings in 2004, on 26 April and 14 October, between officials of the Department for Transport and of the Department of Communications, Marine and Natural Resources (DCMNR). The issue was also raised at a meeting in June between HM ambassador to Ireland and the secretary-general of the DCMNR. We are pressing for more substantive negotiations, involving additionally officials from the Foreign Office and the Northern Ireland Office, to begin in the new year.

Regional Transport Boards

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many regional transport boards there will be; when they will be established; what their budget will be for (a) 2005–06, (b) 2006–07 and (c) 2007–08; and what their (i) composition and (ii) remit will be. [200039]

Charlotte Atkins [holding answer 29 November 2004]: We have no plans to establish regional transport boards.

Road Developments

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the major road developments that (a) have been agreed and (b) are under consideration by his Department within the Greater London area. [200308]

Mr. Jamieson: Under the GLA Act 1999 the strategic road network in London was transferred to Transport for London (TfL) along with responsibility for funding major projects on London borough roads. As a result there are no major road developments within the Greater London area that have been agreed or are under consideration by the Department for Transport.

One road project that has been and will continue to be considered by the Department for Transport is the Thames Gateway Bridge. This is a TfL project where the Government have made a provisional offer of up to £200 million of PFI credits. This offer is subject to the finalisation of an acceptable business and environmental case, a satisfactory financial structure and the granting of all construction and tolling powers.

Road Safety

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made towards fulfilling the European Commission Recommendation on Enforcement in the Field of Road Safety (2004/245/EC). [200632]

Mr. Jamieson: The Recommendation was adopted by the European Commission on 21 October 2003. Since then the UK has participated in an expert group on enforcement in June this year and a meeting of a sub-group on seat belts. Further sub-group meetings on spending and drink-driving are planned. The aim of these groups is to identify common ground, encourage collaboration between Member States and to establish good practice in road traffic enforcement.

Road traffic enforcement was discussed recently at an informal meeting of EU Road Safety Ministers in Verona (October 2004), which I attended. The meeting underlined the importance of enforcement for road safety and the conclusions are due to be considered at a forthcoming meeting of the Transport Council

Vehicle Registration

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many vehicles have been registered with a statutory off road notification in each year since 1992. [201203]

Mr. Jamieson: The Statutory Off Road Notification system was introduced in February 1998. The information requested, from that date, is as follows:

	SORN Declarations
1997–98	116,932
1998–99	852,114
1999–2000	1,014,317
2000–01	1,175,199
2001–02	1,421,158
2002–03	1,575,084
2003–04	2,645,878
2004–05[1]	2,171,598

[1] To 31 October

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Circle initiative

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what steps his Department (a) has taken and (b) is planning to take in support of the Circle Initiative and business improvement districts. [200603]

Mr. Raynsford: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister supports the promotion of Business Improvement Districts (BIDs) through our participation on the advisory board of the Circle Initiative, and by providing financial support to the Association of Town Centre Management's National BIDs pilot project, which is developing 22 BID partnerships across England and Wales. These pilots will provide good practice information for the public and private sector on how to set up BIDs.

Local Authority Funding

Mr. Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much Pendle council has received in Government grant in real terms since 1996–97; and what the percentage change since 1996–97 has been in the annual grant. [200993]

Mr. Raynsford: The amount of Government grant made available to Pendle borough council in the period 1996–97 to 2004–05 in real terms is shown in the table.

The figures are derived from data as reported by the local authority, adjusted using the GDP deflator, and consists of outturn data for 1996–97 to 2002–03 and budget data for 2003–04 and 2004–05. The amounts are shown in £000s and have not been adjusted for changes affecting local authorities such as changes in function or financing.

Government grants to Pendle borough council in real terms

1996–97	8,264
1997–98	7,604
1998–99	7,780
1999–2000	7,843
2000–01	8,111
2001–02	8,541
2002–03	9,071
2003–04	10,230
2004–05	9,629

The grants included are special and specific grants inside Aggregate External Finance, Standard Spending Assessment (SSA) reduction grant, revenue support grant and redistributed non-domestic rates.

The unadjusted percentage increase in annual grant for Pendle since 1996–97 in real terms is 16.5 per cent.

Local Government Pension Scheme

Mr. O'Brien: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the timing of the introduction of changes to the retirement ages for members of the Local Government Pension Scheme. [200497]

Phil Hope: Amendments to the Local Government Pension Scheme to remove provisions that allow some scheme members to retire with unreduced pension benefits before age 65 will come into effect on 1 April 2005.

TREASURY

Civil Service Jobs

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many civil servants have (a) been relocated and (b) been agreed for relocation in the last 12 months; and to which areas of the United Kingdom. [200521]

Mr. Boateng: Progress on delivery of the relocation programme will be announced in the pre-Budget report on 2 December.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of the civil service job cuts recommended by the Gershon Review were outside Greater London. [200522]

Mr. Boateng: There will be an overall gross reduction in posts of 84,150 by 2008 and Departments will pursue these reductions in line with business need. Progress will be reported in the Pre-Budget Report on 2 December.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many jobs recommended for relocation by the Lyons Review were also recommended to be cut by the Gershon Review. [200523]

Mr. Boateng: Planned work force reductions in London and the South East are excluded from the 20,000 posts identified for relocation.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200184]

Mr. Timms: Following the Prime Minister's commitment to Parliament on 4 May 2004, Official Report, column 1456W, the Government will shortly be publishing a comparative analysis of the EU Constitution with existing EU Treaty provisions. This document will address points (a), (b) and (c). In addition, with regard to points (b) and (e), I refer the hon. Member to the Foreign Secretary's reply on 5 July 2004, Official Report, columns 592W-93W, to the Member for New Forest, East (Dr. Lewis) setting out moves from unanimity to QMV in the EU Constitution, and to the statement given by the Foreign Secretary on 9 September 2004, Official Report, columns 133–36W on the Charter of Fundamental Rights. With regard to points (d) and (f), the EU Constitution will not in itself determine the quantity of EU legislation, or any costs associated with its implementation. The introduction of a rigorous subsidiarity mechanism involving national parliaments should provide a check on new legislation and help focus it better when it is necessary.

Higher Rate Taxpayers

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many higher rate taxpayers there have been in each county in England in each year since 2000; and what percentage of the total they represent in each case. [200969]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to table 3.11 "Income and tax, by region and country" on the Inland Revenue website www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk/stats/income_distribution/menu.htm.

Inland Revenue Staff

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff were employed at the Inland Revenue in (a) April 1997 and (b) April 2004; what the reasons were for the change in staff numbers; and if he will make a statement. [200249]

Dawn Primarolo: The numbers of staff employed in civil service Departments and agencies, including the Inland Revenue, are available on the Cabinet Office's "Civil Service Statistics" website at http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management_information/statistical_information/statistics/index.asp.

The effects of changes in departmental responsibilities on departmental staff numbers are also available on the website.

Invoice Payments

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average length of time was between the date of invoices issued to his Department from a supplier and payment by the Department of the invoice in the last 12 months for which figures are available; what percentage of these invoices were paid within 30 days of the date of issue of the invoice; what percentage of these invoices remained unpaid after 90 days; and if he will make a statement on the Department's policy on the payment of invoices issued to it. [200628]

Mr. Timms: Information relating to the Treasury's payment performance was published in the Treasury's resource accounts for 2003–04 (Paragraph 51 on page 10, HC920), a copy of which is available in the Library of the House. Additional information could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Pensioners (Income Tax)

Tom Cox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the number of pensioners living in (a) the London borough of Wandsworth and (b) Greater London who pay income tax on their income. [200945]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to table 3.12 "Income and tax for individuals aged 65 and above, by region and country" on the Inland Revenue website www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk/stats/income_distribution/menu.htm.

Timber

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans his Department has to fund the establishment and maintenance of the central point of expertise on timber. [200725]

John Healey: I welcome the establishment of a central point of expertise (CPET) on timber procurement as a valuable source of advice on purchasing timber from legal and sustainable sources for both Government buyers and their suppliers. Clearly, some departments are likely to draw on this resource more heavily than others, and therefore at present my Department does not plan to contribute to the funding of this body.

VAT (Golf)

Mr. Weir: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received from golfing organisations in Scotland relating to VAT. [201189]

Dawn Primarolo: I am not aware that any Treasury Minister has received representations in the last year from golfing organisations in Scotland relating to VAT.

HEALTH

Chronic Illnesses and Dementia

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what estimate he has made of the cost to the NHS of (a) chronic illness and (b) care for dementia in each of the last three years. [199586]

Dr. Ladyman: The data required to attribute national health service spending to classes of disease with the precision the question seeks are not available. However, the cost of treating and caring for patients with chronic disease, including dementias, is significant and this Government are committed to increasing investment in the NHS year-on-year, so that the needs of these patients and their carers are properly addressed.

That is why, in the 2004 spending review, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer, confirmed the sustained high levels of investment that were set in the five-year NHS settlement announced in the 2002 Budget.

This means that, for the period 2003–04 to 2007–08, expenditure on the NHS in England will increase on average by 7.2 per cent, a year over and above inflation. Over the three years 2005–06 to 2007–08, NHS spending will increase on average by 7.1 per cent, a year over and above inflation; a total increase over the period of 23 per cent. in real terms, taking total spend on the NHS in England from £69 billons in 2004–05 to £92 billion in 2007–08.

Dentistry

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, when he expects to publish (a) the responses to his consultation paper Strengthening the Dental Team, (b) the amendments he wishes to make in the light of those responses and (c) an Order under section 60 of the Health Act 1999 to implement his conclusions; and if he will make a statement. [199515]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I plan to lay the Order before Parliament, along with a report on the recent consultation exercise, early in 2005. The Order will include amendments made in the light of responses to the consultation.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will commission research into the NHS dentistry service in the Portsmouth City area in order to determine (a) levels of access to an NHS dentist and (b) levels of resources required to provide an acceptable standard of dentistry provision in the city; and if he will make a statement. [200022]

Ms Winterton: The latest figures available show that in the area covered by Portsmouth City primary care trust (PCT), 49.9 per cent. of adults and 65.9 per cent. of children are registered with an national health service dentist. The PCT has a detailed dental action plan to improve access to dentistry and is actively working with dentists in advance of the new contract to ensure that dental services meet local needs. At a national level, the Department is investing an extra £368 million in NHS dentistry, recruiting 1,000 more NHS dentists in little over a year and reforming the dental system to improve the long-term oral health of the nation.

Disabled People (Direct Payments)

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many direct payments were made by each local authority to disabled people in each year from 2001 to 2003. [200642]

Dr. Ladyman: Information showing the number of adults aged 18 and over with physical disability, frailty and sensory impairment receiving direct payments in England and each council with social services responsibilities, for the years 2000–01 to 2002–03, has been placed in the Library.

E-Government

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199630]

Ms Winterton: The Department's website—www.dh.gov.uk—complies with the world wide web consortium's level "A" guidelines for accessibility. This has been confirmed by more than one independent assessor.

The Department's website sits on DotP, the central Government content management platform developed and hosted by the e-Government unit. This platform was developed to comply with United Kingdom Government and industry best practice guidelines on accessibility and has been designed to work with screen readers. We are currently working with the e-Government unit to improve the product's accessibility rating from single "A" compliance to double "A" compliance.

In addition, the Department's website was speech-enabled in September 2004. This facility allows users to download free software which enables them to have the site read aloud. Speech enabling provides an additional way of accessing the Department's content for people who may find it hard to read the website including those with dyslexia or learning difficulties, those for whom English is not their first language, or those with mild visual impairment.

Health White Paper

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to public funds of FIT magazine, as described in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 95. [199455]

Ms Winterton: FIT magazine was launched as a pilot scheme in November 2004 with 23 primary care trusts (PCTs). FIT costs PCTs an average of 40 pence per copy. This compares favourably with the cost of advertising or inserting leaflets into men's magazines, which in any case would not offer the same scope for providing tailored local information. The total cost to the national health service was £92,000. The Department subsidised the overall cost of FIT by £175,000, in order to make it more affordable for PCTs.

Leukaemia

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of children under 15 years of age who (a) died and (b) suffered from leukaemia in each of the last three years who lived (i) within 100 metres of and (ii) over 100 metres away from high voltage power lines. [199609]

Miss Melanie Johnson: No such estimate has been made. The Department has, however, been supporting a study by the Childhood Cancer Research Group at Oxford University of children with leukaemia diagnosed between 1962 and 1995 in relation to their residential proximity to power lines. A summary of the study design is available on the WHO web site at www.who.int/peh-emf.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199649]

Ms Winterton: Seventeen.

At all times Ministers make every effort to answer questions substantively before prorogation. However this is not always possible. Where right hon. and hon. Members did not receive a substantive response it is open to them to re-table their question this session.

Pregnant Women

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many pregnant women were tested on the NHS for group B streptococcus in each of the last three years; [199707]

(2) how many babies were born having contracted group B streptococcus from their mother in each of the last three years; how many of these (a) died, (b) contracted meningitis and (c) contracted other related conditions; and what the cost of treating these babies was in each year; [199710]

(3) what estimate he has made of the cost of providing IV antibodies from the onset of labour to all pregnant women identified as carriers of group B streptococcus. [199711]

Dr. Ladyman: Information relating to the testing of pregnant women for group B streptococcus (GBS) is not centrally available. It is for local clinicians to decide whether to test individual women for this infection. Guidelines have been issued by the National Institute for Clinical Excellence (NICE), as well as the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists.

Data on the number of babies who are born having contracted the infection are not collected centrally. However, a descriptive analysis of cases of GBS infection in which GBS was isolated from blood (bacteraemia) for the year 2003 only, has been published by the Health Protection Agency from routine reports received from microbiology laboratories in England, Wales and Northern Ireland. In England and Wales, a total of 208 cases of GBS bacteraemia occurred in the first week after birth (early onset) and a further 103 cases of GBS bacteraemia occurred between seven and 90 days after birth (late onset).

A special United Kingdom/Republic of Ireland study of infants up to 90 days old with invasive GBS infection (GBS isolated from a normally sterile site), diagnosed between 1 February 2000 and 28 February 2001 found a total of 377 cases of GBS infection that occurred in the first week of life, 53 of who died.

Following on from the latter study, a further study is being conducted in collaboration with the Oxford perinatal epidemiology group into the economic impact of this infection.

The cost of providing intravenous antibiotics is not currently centrally available. However, this information will be sought as part of the further work that the National Screening Committee is undertaking on this important topic.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what the average budget deficit or surplus is for a primary care trust in (a) the area covered by the Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire Strategic Health Authority and (b) England and Wales. [199542]

Dr. Ladyman: Information provided by primary care trusts (PCTs) in the Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire Strategic Health Authority area shows they are forecasting an average year-end deficit in 2004–05 of £1.82 million. In 2003–04, the latest year for which audited information is available, PCTs in England made an average surplus of £12,769. Information on matters relating to Wales is a matter for the devolved Administration.

Pulmonary Rehabilitation

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will ensure that pulmonary rehabilitation is made available to all appropriate patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) in line with the National Institute for Clinical Excellence guidelines on the management of COPD in primary and secondary care. [199432]

Dr. Ladyman: It is for primary care trusts (PCTs), in partnership with local stakeholders, to commission local services, taking account of National Institute for Clinical Excellence guidelines and subject to independent inspection.

The national health service is currently receiving the largest sustained increase in funding in its history. The total of PCT allocations is £45 billion for 2003–04, £49.3 billion for 2004–05 and £53.9 billion for 2005–06. This represents an increase of £12.7 billion, or an average of 30.8 per cent. over the three years 2003–04 to 2005–06.

Smoking-related Illness

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost to the NHS of treating patients with medical conditions deemed to have been linked to the use of tobacco products was in the last 12 months for which records are available. [199613]

Miss Johnson: Treating illness and disease caused by smoking has been estimated to cost the national health service up to £1.7 billion every year in terms of general practitioner visits, prescriptions, treatment and operations.

HOME

Community Support Officers (Detention Powers)

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons the detentions of 31 people under the Metropolitan Police Community Support Officer detention-power pilot resulted in release after the arrival of a police officer; and if he will make a statement. [200357]

Ms Blears: This information is not available because the data were not sought during the evaluation of the use of the detention power in the six pilot forces.

The report "Community Support Officer (Detention Power) Pilot: Evaluation Results" published on 29 September concluded that the evidence collected and analysed in evaluation indicated that the power to detain did not have an adverse effect either on the Community Support Officer or the detainee.

A decision to arrest or take alternative action is at the discretion of the constable who attends the scene. A decision by a constable not to make an arrest does not imply that the decision by the Community Support Officer to detain was incorrect, particularly if the decision to detain results from an individual's failure to comply with a lawful direction by a Community Support Officer.

The Association of Chief Police Officers is developing guidance on the power to detain and how it should be exercised. The guidance will be issued shortly.

National Offender Management Service

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether budgets for the National Offender Management Service will be held (a) regionally, (b) nationally and (c) locally. [199983]

Paul Goggins: Different elements of the budget for the National Offender Management Service will be held at national, regional and local level. Individual budgets will operate within the system according to where they will be most effective in helping to reduce reoffending. Most of the funding for offender services will be held by Regional Offender Managers (ROMs), who will be responsible for planning and commissioning those services.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Solicitor-General whether her Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if she will make a statement. [199685]

The Solicitor-General: The Websites for the Crown Prosecution Service, the Serious Fraud Office and the Legal Secretariat to the Law Officers comply with the World Wide Web Consortium Web Content Accessibility Guidelines' Priority 1 checkpoints. The SFO will be updating its website shortly and will be making improvements to the overall structure.

For the Treasury Solicitor's Department, the website dealing with the Department's bona vacantia matters currently complies with the guidelines, although the website for the Department generally has some minor issues which need to be addressed. These are being addressed as part of the current website development.

The Crown Prosecution Service Inspectorate website conforms with the majority of the requirements and a full compliance review will be conducted next year.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Broadband National Aggregation Board

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on (a) the work and (b) the future of the regional broadband aggregation organisations. [200894]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: In the light of the significantly changed market conditions for broadband since the set up of the broadband aggregation bodies, the original central co-ordination mechanism is no longer appropriate. In practice the opportunities are regionally based and broadband aggregation will continue to operate at the regional level. Delivery mechanisms will vary across regions, as is the case now. While there will be some cost cutting over the next year, in line with the changed business environment, the specific operations and organisation of each of the individual Regional Aggregation Bodies are governed by their boards, and decisions will be based on their regional needs and opportunities.

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) if she will make a statement on her plans for the Broadband National Aggregation Board; [200896]

(2) what funding was provided for the Broadband National Aggregation Board in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement on its future funding. [200895]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To date, the funding provided to the National Aggregation Body amounts to £571,000. Any future funding will be a collective matter for the National Aggregation Body Executive Board, as will any decisions on its future as a trading entity.

Concessionary Coal

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many former mineworkers or beneficiaries are in receipt of concessionary coal in (a) Midlothian, (b) Scotland and (c) the United Kingdom. [200207]

Nigel Griffiths: There are 32,434 beneficiaries (as at 1 November 2004) who are in receipt of Concessionary Fuel in the UK. Of these some 1,331 reside in Scotland and, included in that number, are 605 beneficiaries taking solid fuel that live within the Midlothian constituency.

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many former mineworkers or beneficiaries are in receipt of cash in lieu in (a) Midlothian, (b) Scotland and (c) United Kingdom. [200210]

Nigel Griffiths: There are 78,440 beneficiaries (as at 1 November 2004) who are in receipt of Cash in lieu of Concessionary Fuel in the UK. Of these some 6,120 reside in Scotland and, included in that number, are 2,532 beneficiaries taking the cash alternative to fuel that live within the Midlothian constituency.

Departmental Training Courses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by her Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98. [200385]

Ms Hewitt: My Department does not hold this information centrally. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200405]

Ms Hewitt: My department does not hold this information centrally. To provide this information could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether her Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if she will make a statement. [199693]

Ms Hewitt: All of my Department's websites aim to comply with the Guidelines for UK Government websites, which are based on the W3C Guidelines. It is very important that all citizens should have access to Government information and services online, regardless of disability or level of competence and equipment. My Department strives to have a high level of accessibility in all its communications.

Gas Prices

Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the impact of the rising price of wholesale gas on domestic consumers. [199541]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Initial estimates suggest that, for domestic customers, prices at the end of 2004 are likely to be 18 per cent. higher for gas and 13 per cent. higher for electricity than they were at the start of the year. The impacts of these increases will be greatest for lower income customers. They can be minimised by taking a range of actions. Switching from "home" gas and electricity suppliers can save an average of £50 a year; switching payment method to direct debit can save a further £25. Taking energy efficiency measures can provide significant annual savings, and taking advantage of social programmes offered by energy suppliers including benefits health checks and fixed tariffs, can respectively increase household income and provide greater certainty on payments.

Large Combustion Plant Directive

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when she expects to announce how she intends to implement the large combustion plant directive; and if she will make a statement. [200738]

Mr. Morley: I have been asked to reply.

We are seeking to implement the revised EU large combustion plants directive in a way that will meet its environmental objectives and be as cost-effective as possible for business. As we announced on 22 July, we have therefore decided to explore with the European Commission a modified approach to implementation of the directive that would combine the National Emissions Reduction Plan (NERP) and Emissions Limit Values (ELV) approaches. The UK's reasoned arguments in support of this approach were sent to the Commission on 26 November.

We will take final decisions in the light of the Commission's response, which we expect to receive by March 2005 at the latest.

Research and Development

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how the (a) impact and (b) success of basic research in the UK is being assessed; and how it will be assessed in the future. [199951]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The Department of Trade and Industry undertakes an international benchmarking study to assess the impact and success of UK research against a comparator group of 26 countries, including the G8 and leading EU nations. The 2004 study shows the continued strong performance of UK science across a number of key scientific indicators including papers published, citations received, number of high impact papers and productivity per unit spend of GDP. A copy of the study "PSA target metrics for the UK research base" is available in the Libraries of the House.

The Department will continue to track progress towards meeting the Government's overall targets outlined in the "Science and Innovation investment framework 2004-14". In particular, progress will be measured against a basket of performance indicators for each of the broad attributes of the UK science and innovation system, as set out in Annex B of the Investment Framework.

Written Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry to how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary Session her Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the Session. [199652]

Ms Hewitt: 121. At all times Ministers make every effort to answer questions substantively before Prorogation. However this is not always possible and where right hon. and hon. Members did not receive a substantive response it is open to them to re-table their question this Session.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Republican Sympathisers

9. Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many incidents of (a) punishment beatings, (b) expulsions and (c) criminal extortion from the owners of commercial enterprises have been committed by Republican sympathisers over the past 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [199406]

Mr. Pearson: In the period 1 November 2003 to 31 October this year there have been a total of 40 casualties as a result of paramilitary style assaults attributed to Republican groups. No official figures on the number of people exiled from Northern Ireland as a result of paramilitary intimidation are available as not all incidents are reported. The most recent report by the Independent Monitoring Commission on paramilitary activity, published on 4 November, clearly states that Republicans are engaged in criminal extortion.

Belfast City Airport

10. Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what reasons determined the length of the consultation period in relation to Belfast City Airport's application to increase the number of seats for sale. [199734]

Angela Smith: There is no statutory period for this type of procedure. However, we recognise that it is important to be consistent in our approach and we therefore chose to align it with the new Development Plans Regulations, which provide for an eight-week consultation period. This period was recently extended from six weeks to eight weeks and it accords with the Equality Impact Assessment (EQIA) consultation process.

Devolved Government

11. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on recent discussions held in Northern Ireland on the restoration of devolved government. [199735]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier to the hon. Members for South Antrim (David Burnside) and Edinburgh, West (John Barrett).

15. Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on recent talks regarding the restoration of devolved government in Northern Ireland. [199739]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier to the hon. Members for South Antrim (David Burnside) and Edinburgh West (John Barrett).

Peace Process

12. Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the peace process. [199736]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier to the hon. Members for South Antrim (David Burnside) and Edinburgh West (John Barrett).

Education Funding

Mr. Trimble: If he will make a statement on the funding of education in Northern Ireland. [199405]

Mr. Gardiner: Since 1999–2000 total Department of Education spending has increased by 48 per cent. per pupil. By the end of the Draft Budget period, that figure will rise to an increase of 76 per cent. per pupil by the addition of £1.86 billion.

In the current year the Department for Employment and Learning allocated £188 million for the further education sector and £217 million for the higher education sector in Northern Ireland.

Employment (Public Investment)

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many jobs have been created in (a) North Belfast and (b) Northern Ireland as a result of public investment in each year since 1997. [200907]

Mr. Gardiner: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

GDP

Mr. Trimble: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the level of (a) gross domestic product and (b) gross value added per hour worked in the Northern Ireland economy was in (i) 1996, (ii) 1999 and (iii) 2002. [200885]

Mr. Gardiner: The Office for National Statistics is responsible for producing estimates of gross value added (GVA) for the regions of United Kingdom including Northern Ireland. Regional Estimates of gross domestic product are no longer produced since the extension of the European System of Accounts 1995 (ESA95) to the Regional Accounts. Total GVA and GVA per hour worked for Northern Ireland in the requested years is detailed.

	1996	1999	2002
GVA (£ million)	15,258	17,746	20,497
GVA per hour worked (UK = 100)	86.2	83.4	84.4

Inward Investment

Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on inward investment in Northern Ireland. [199562]

Mr. Gardiner: In the period April 2003 to March 2004 Invest NI secured 27 inward investment projects and total investment of £132 million. Of these, 16 were mobile projects from externally owned companies who already had a presence in Northern Ireland. In addition, there were 11 new inward investment projects involving a total investment of £35 million.

Legislation

Brian White: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what pieces of legislation passed in the last 30 years that the Department is responsible for remain to be brought into force, broken down by year of enactment. [200445]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Providing the information for the period requested would incur disproportionate costs. The following list, therefore, sets out a broad overview of primary legislation from 1997 for which the Northern Ireland Office is responsible and parts of which remain to be brought into force. The list does not include provisions which have never been in force and are now repealed or spent.

LMS Scheme

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the funding surplus within the LMS scheme was for each school in the South Eastern Education and Library Board in each of the last five years; and how each surplus was used. [200501]

Mr. Gardiner: I understand from the Chief Executive of the South-Eastern Education and Library Board that the funding surpluses and deficits within the Local Management Scheme for each school in the South-Eastern Education and Library Board in each of the last 5 years is set out in the published outturn statements for those years. A table containing the funding surplus for each school for the period in question has been placed in the Library. Information on how each school has been or will be using its budget surplus could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Political Situation

Mr. McGrady: If he will make a statement on the political situation in Northern Ireland. [199737]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave earlier to the hon. Members for South Antrim (David Burnside) and Edinburgh West (John Barrett).

Racist Attacks

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the number of racist attacks in Northern Ireland (a) generally and (b) with specific reference to attacks on the Chinese community. [199423]

Mr. Spellar: Government are working on many fronts to tackle this problem. Action is being taken at operational and strategic levels by the Police Service of Northern Ireland, Government Departments and through funding of the voluntary sector. Government are committed to eradicating all manifestations of hatred, and will be unceasing in their efforts to create a safer and more tolerant Northern Ireland.

The attacks on people from minority communities are unacceptable and to be deplored. They are an issue for all sections of society in Northern Ireland. Some of the recent media headlines would lead observers to the conclusion that Northern Ireland has become a hotbed of racial intolerance. However, this is not the case. It is frequently only the bad news that is reported, not the work going on behind the scenes to promote integration and tolerance. And while crimes have increased significantly over a number of years, I am pleased to report that the rate of increase in the number of attacks appears to be slowing down.

The following table shows the number of racist attacks in Northern Ireland since 2001:

	Number
2001–02	185
2002–03	226
2003–04	453
2004–05 (first six months)	312

The following table shows the number of recorded racist attacks on the Chinese community since 2002:

	Number
2002–03	44
2003–04	100
April 2004 to September 2004	51

Security Situation

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the current security situation in Northern Ireland. [199402]

Mr. Pearson: The general security situation is improving. Dissident republicans remain a threat, though for the most part their activities have been thwarted, intercepted or nullified by good policing and intelligence operations.

Worktrack

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to replace the Worktrack programme in Northern Ireland. [200084]

Mr. Gardiner: The Department for Employment and Learning is not planning any direct replacement for the Worktrack programme. There are already significant resources available in a comprehensive provision under the various New Deals and other employment programmes. Significant provision to improve workforce skills is also available through higher and further education.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people have been placed on the Worktrack programme in (a) North Belfast and (b) Northern Ireland in each year since 2000. [200903]

Mr. Gardiner [pursuant to his reply, 30 November 2004, Official Report, c. 63W]: There was a factual inaccuracy in the figure provided for the "Number of starts in Northern Ireland—2003–04". The correct information is as follows.

	Number of starts in North Belfast	Number of starts in Northern Ireland
1999–2000	43	691
2000–01	203	1,768
2001–02	141	1,880
2002–03	233	2,257
2003–04	255	2,196

PRIME MINISTER

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Prime Minister, how many written questions for his Office were unanswered when Parliament Prorogued; and how many of the unanswered questions were tabled in each of the previous months of the 2003–04 Session. [201557]

The Prime Minister: None.

President Bush

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the actions achieved in 2004 through his diplomatic engagement with President Bush. [200899]

The Prime Minister: As always, during 2004 the UK and US worked closely together on a range of issues including Iraq, Iran, the Middle East Peace process and Afghanistan. I look forward to working with President Bush over the coming months in order to make further progress on these, and other matters.

Sir John Day

Norman Lamb: To ask the Prime Minister, (1) on how many occasions he has (a) met and (b) spoken to Sir John Day in the last 12 months; what was discussed on each of those occasions; on how many occasions he has (i) met and (ii) spoken to (A) other Ministers, (B) Government officials or (C) other staff of BAE Systems with regard to Sir John Day's appointment to BAE Systems; and what was discussed on each of those occasions; [200510]

(2) whether he had been informed of Sir John Day's role in assessing the causes of the crash of the RAF Chinook HC2 helicopter ZD576 on the Mull of Kintyre in 1994; when he overturned the ruling of the Advisory Committee on Business Appointments; and on how many occasions he has overruled the Advisory Committee on business appointments; [200511]

(3) whether he has discussed with Sir John Day his role in assessing the causes of the crash of the RAF Chinook HC2 helicopter ZD576 on the Mull of Kintyre in 1994; [200512]

(4) how he was first informed of Sir John Day's appointment to BAE Systems; and what factors underlay his assessment that it would be in the wider national interest for Sir John Day to take up his post at BAE Systems three months after his retirement from the RAF. [200513]

The Prime Minister: As set out in my letter to the hon. Member on 11 October 2004, copies of which have been placed in the Library, the tragic helicopter accident on the Mull of Kintyre in 1994 played no part in this case. As in previous cases, the procedures and rules governing Business Appointments were rigorously adhered to.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Child Allergies

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children with severe allergies were denied access to local authority extra-curricular schemes because of the lack of trained staff who can administer adrenaline in the last year for which figures are available. [199757]

Margaret Hodge: My Department does not keep a central record of the number or type of study support (out of school hours learning) activities provided by schools or local authorities, nor of the number of children who attend them. It is for local authorities and schools to determine what provision best meets the needs of the young people in the area.

We encourage schools and local authorities to make study support activities available to all young people who wish to attend. This includes ensuring that all provision incorporates a health and safety policy. The DfES publication "Safe Keeping: a good practice guide for health and safety in study support" provides information on the legal responsibilities of staff, and guidance on first aid requirements. Copies of the publication are held in the Library of the House of Commons.

Connexions (Prisons)

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what work is undertaken by the Connexions service in prisons. [200433]

Margaret Hodge: Connexions is working in secure establishments, chiefly Young Offender Institutes, alongside the Prison Service and youth justice professionals, to deliver support services and personal development opportunities aimed at re-engaging young offenders into education, training and employment. The precise role of Connexions depends on the established support structure in each individual prison and is determined locally.

Early Years Education (Somerset)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his estimate is of the percentage of three and four-year-olds in early years education in Somerset in each year from 1997 to 2005; and if he will make a statement. [199897]

Margaret Hodge: The information is not available in the form requested. Figures on the provision of early years education in January 2005 have not yet been collected. The latest available figures for January 2004 show that all three and four-year-olds in England took up some form of early years education. Ninety seven per cent. of these children received funding.

The available sub-national information relates the number of free part-time nursery education places taken up by three and four-year-olds. The latest figures for the Somerset local education authority area are shown in the table.

Final figures for 2004 on the provision for three and four-year-olds were published in a Statistical Release Provision for children under five years of age in England—January 2004' which is available on the Department's website www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway.

Entry to Employment Programme

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the future of the Entry to Employment programme. [200398]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Since Entry to Employment (E2E) was first launched in 2003, over 60,000 young people have benefited from the programme. E2E is part of the Apprenticeship family giving a vocational ladder of learning from entry level to higher education.

E2E has an important place in the Foundation level of the14–19 agenda and it will continue to play a key role in the Government's commitment to social inclusion.

Local Partnerships involving Connexions and the local Learning and Skills Councils work together to ensure that E2E and other appropriate entry to level 1 programmes are available for young people.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many places his Department estimated would be taken up by young people on the Entry to Employment programme in each academic year since the programme's establishment; and how many have been taken up. [200399]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council. Mark Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding has been provided for the Entry to Employment programme in each year since its establishment; and what future levels of funding have been allocated. [200400]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council. Mark Haysom, the council's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list by Learning and Skills Council area the budgets allocated to fund e2e in (a) 2003–04 and (b) 2004–05. [199522]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 29 November 2004]: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council. Mark Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which Learning and Skills Councils are commissioning European Social Fund bids to replace e2e shortfalls in England. [199523]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 29 November 2004]: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council. Mark Haysom, the council's chief executive, will write to my hon. Friend with this information and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Education Maintenance Allowances

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students in Birmingham, Selly Oak constituency are receiving education maintenance allowances. [200584]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Since the start of the academic year, as of 25 November 2004, 8,448 young people in the Birmingham area had received payments under the national EMA scheme. The number is increasing at a steady rate and we expect it to continue to do so. We are unable to provide numbers down to constituency level.

International Student Assessment Study

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which civil servants within his Department have direct responsibility for compiling evidence for submission to the OECD Programme for International Student Assessment 2003 study. [200276]

Mr. Miliband: The Department's contractor for PISA 2003, the Office for National Statistics, was responsible for running the study. None of the data collected in schools passed through the Department. The data went directly to the consortium, led by the Australian Centre for Educational Research, that undertakes PISA 2003 on behalf of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development.

Internet Access (Schools)

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools have broadband internet access. [200745]

Mr. Clarke: 65 per cent. of primary schools and 98 per cent. of secondary schools in England had Broadband Internet access as at October 2004. This equates to 68 per cent. of all schools in England.

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress has been made towards the Government target of having all schools online by 2006. [200746]

Mr. Clarke: 68 per cent. of schools in England (98 per cent. of secondary schools and 65 per cent. of primary schools) have access to broadband as at October 2004. The Government's target is to connect all schools to broadband by 2006. Over 99 per cent. of schools in England had access to the Internet from April 2002.

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many different companies supply broadband to schools in England. [200968]

Mr. Clarke: This information is not available as it is not collected by my Department.

Jarvis

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much public money will be invested in the investigation into the failure of the Jarvis private finance initiative bid for school building. [200131]

Mr. Miliband: Jarvis was the preferred bidder in the Norfolk grouped schools PFI project. On 8 November Norfolk county council de-selected Jarvis as preferred bidder because it was not able to give the guarantees the council required. Since there is no reserve bidder the project is now on hold. The Department for Education and Skills is working with the council to identify the best way forward.

On the basis of information provided by Norfolk county council my understanding is that the council has commissioned an independent review of the procurement process from the 4ps (public-private partnerships programme). When the review is completed its report will be discussed in an open council meeting towards the end of January next year. I have no information on the possible cost of this exercise, which is not the responsibility of this Department but the responsibility of Norfolk county council.

Programme for International Student Assessment

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what data was omitted from the returns required from his Department by the OECD Programme for International Student Assessment 2003 study. [200927]

Mr. Miliband: PISA is a survey requiring pupils to take tests, and pupils and school staff to complete background questionnaires, rather than data returns from administrative records. All data collected as part of the survey were sent to the OECD by the Department's contractor, the Office for National Statistics. However, school and pupil response rates to the study were lower than those required by the OECD's technical standards for PISA.

Sector Skills Development Agency

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, what the (a) resource budget, (b) staffing levels and (c) administration costs of the Sector Skills Development Agency (i) were in each year between 2002 and 2004 and (ii) will be in each year to 2007. [200954]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Sector Skills Development Agency's resource budgets, staffing levels and administration costs for the years from 2002 to 2004 were as shown in the table.

£million

	2002–2003	2003–2004
Resource Budget	22.6	49.58
Staffing Levels	37	65
Administration Costs	3.72	4.93

The forecasted figures for the periods to March 2007 are shown in the following table.

£million

	2004–2005	2005–2006	2006–2007
Resource Budget	69.45	62.36	57.36
Staffing Levels	91.6	89.6	89
Administration Costs	5.87	6.18	6.19

Selection

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, what research he has commissioned into the effect of secondary schools using partial selection on the basis of ability on maintained and voluntary schools in the same catchment area. [200893]

Mr. Miliband: We have commissioned no research into this matter, nor are we aware of any other, independent research. However, admissions forums have an important role in reviewing the impact of the admissions systems in their areas. Where a Forum finds that any kind of admission arrangements have a detrimental impact on parents and children, or other schools, it can make recommendations as to how this could be remedied.

Schools, local education authorities and (in the case of partial selection by ability) parents have the right to refer objections about admission arrangements to the independent Schools Adjudicator. The Adjudicator is an independent arbitrator who can rule out or reduce partial selection by ability where he finds in favour of an objector.

Single Sex Schools

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of single sex schools. [199820]

Mr. Miliband: In June 2002 the Department published the National Statistics bulletin Statistics of Education: Pupil Progress in Secondary Schools by School Type in England: 2001.

This contained an analysis of progress made by girls and boys in mixed and single sex non-selective maintained schools between Key stages 2 and 3, and Key stages 3 and 4. Results showed that during Key Stages 3 and 4, pupils in single sex schools on average made slightly more progress than pupils of the same gender in mixed schools. The difference was most marked in English, at around a fifth of a level between Key Stages 2 and 3. There was little difference in mathematics and science. Between Key Stages 3 and 4 girls in single sex schools gained 2 or 3 GCSE points more than girls in mixed schools. There was very little difference in progress for boys. Because the findings were based on a small group of schools the results should be treated with caution. A further study Raising Boys' Achievement conducted by Homerton College at Cambridge University will be published early next year.

A 1999 investigation by the Institute of Education into girls' achievement in single sex schools reported that the good exam results of these schools derived from their high-achieving pupils, and not from their single sex status. The study found that ability, as well as social class and the history and traditions of the schools, had a greater impact on the results girls achieve. The study concluded that there is no conclusive evidence to suggest that single sex schooling is better than co-educational schooling.

Young Mums to be Programme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what arrangements are being put in place to assist the Young Mums To Be programme following reductions in e2e funding; in what form this assistance is being given; and for how long it will be given in this form. [199524]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 29 November 2004]: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council. Mark Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Young People

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many young people were consulted by his Department on the role of the Children's Commissioner; and what the age-range was of those consulted. [200360]

Margaret Hodge: The Department for Education and Skills has established an advisory Children and Youth Board (C&YP) comprising 25 children and young people between the ages of 11 to 19. It includes members with experience of homelessness, foster care, supported living, children's homes and parenthood, as well as children and young people with disabilities (including physical and learning disabilities), and comprises representatives of both urban and rural areas and of differing ethnic backgrounds.

Members of the board and other children and young people recently helped to draw up a person specification and job advertisement for the Children's Commissioner, and will in due course be involved in assessing applicants for the post.

In addition to the members of the board, a number of participants were consulted on the role of the Commissioner in face-to-face workshops as part of the "Every Child Matters" consultation exercise, which involved 600 children and young people.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199632]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The DFID website (www.dfid.gov.uk) has been redesigned and relaunched in August 2004 to comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's (W3C) Web Content Accessibility Guidelines, and Cabinet Office's e-government Unit guidelines.

Every HTML page that is published on dfid.gov.uk is checked using Bobby web accessibility checking software. Pages are only published when there are no errors at Priorities 1, 2 or 3. Priority 3 is the highest level of conformance and the fact that we use this as standard shows how committed DFID is to providing for people with disabilities.

Website development is ongoing and we hope to continue improving the way in which we provide information for users with disabilities in the next year. DFID Website and Intranet Teams will receive training from the RNIB early in 2005 with a view to ensuring that they maintain their understanding of accessibility issues.

Priorities for improvement in 2005

1. Departmental sites

We have two stand alone departmental sites DFID Bangladesh (http://www.dfidbangladesh.org/) and DFID India (http://www.dfidbangladesh.org/) which do not meet basic accessibility standards. We aim to integrate these into the main dfid.gov.uk within the next 12 months.

2. Publications

We aim to make our publications more accessible by improving the way that we publish PDF documents, and also by providing material in alternative formats.

Developing Countries (Debt)

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, how much the UK's share is of the remaining debt owed by developing countries; and if he will make a statement. [199546]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The UK has committed to paying our share of multilateral debt service costs to IDA (the concessional lending arm of the World Bank) and the African Development Fund for all countries that have completed the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) Initiative and all other IDA-only countries with robust public expenditure management systems. We have calculated our share to be 10.14 per cent. based on our burden share from the last replenishment round of IDA.

Energy Efficiency

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress the UK Government has made towards implementing commitments made at the 2002 Johannesburg World Summit on Sustainable Development to increase the availability of renewable energy sources and promote measures to improve energy efficiency under the (a) REEEP Programme of Work, (b) Export Credits Guarantee Department Renewables Initiatives Process and (c) Global Village Energy Partnership; and if he will make a statement. [200655]

Mr. Gareth Thomas [holding answer 30 November 2004]: The energy commitments made at the World Summit on Sustainable Development (WSSD) include action to improve access to reliable and affordable energy services as well as to increase the use of renewable energy and to promote the more efficient use of energy. The UK, through the work of several Government Departments, is actively following up on these commitments, including those referred to in the question.

The Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency Partnership (REEEP) was announced at the WSSD and launched in London in October 2003. The international secretariat, initially within the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), moved to Vienna in the summer of 2004, where it was established with a full-time manager and staff. In addition, five regional REEEP secretariats have been set up in various parts of the world. In addition to core funds provided by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA), the FCO Global Opportunities Fund has provided £2 million for projects. Other contributing partners include Austria, Germany, Italy and the US. REEEP is working with other WSSD partnerships, including the Global Village Energy Partnership (GVEP).

The Export Credit Guarantee Department (ECGD) Renewable Energy Initiative, also announced at the WSSD, is to support UK exports of renewable energy technologies, providing up to £50 million of cover each year. Marketing of the initiative is a joint effort of the Department for Trade and Industry and the ECGD. Renewable energy exports to emerging markets take time to develop and there has been no take-up of the facility by UK exporters to date. However, the cover remains available and will continue to be promoted by ECGD officials and DTI trade promoters.

The Global Village Energy Partnership (GVEP) seeks to improve access to energy in developing countries, in support of economic and social development and poverty reduction. It promotes all technology options, including renewable energy where appropriate. The secretariat is hosted by a leading UK-based international NGO, with a full-time manager funded by the World Bank. GVEP has attracted over 400 partner organisations globally. A major part of its interest is to improve access to energy in Africa. DFID has provided £700,000 core funding and the full-time input of an energy expert. Other contributing partners include five EU member states, the UN Foundation, the US Agency for International Development and the United Nations Development Programme. DFID is actively encouraging GVEP and REEEP to work together, and with other energy access initiatives such as the EU Energy Initiative.

Ethiopia

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department plans to lead the Ethiopia country dialogue as part of the European Water Initiative. [200924]

Mr. Gareth Thomas [holding answer 30 November 2004]: DFID does not intend to lead the Ethiopia country dialogue under the EU Water Initiative but is intending to strengthen the capacity of the EC delegation in Addis Ababa to take the lead on the policy dialogue and the administration of the EU Water Facility.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200177]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister for Europe on 29 November 2004, Official Report, columns 10–11W.

European Water Initiative

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the performance indicators for the European Water Initiative; and which of these have been achieved. [200114]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The EU Water Initiative aims to improve coordination of EC and EU member states' development expenditure on water and sanitation, focusing on water resource management as well as service delivery.

The EU Water Initiative was launched in 2002 in Johannesburg, at the World Summit on Sustainable Development. The initiative was signed by the Presidents of South Africa, Nigeria and the European Commission, and by the Secretary-General of the UN.

The monitoring working group of the EU Water Initiative is in the process of developing a number of performance indicators around the following outputs:

improved coordination with other EU member states in managing development funding provided for water and sanitation; advance the knowledge within the EU on the management of financing for developing countries in the water and sanitation sector; create new, and improve existing, partnerships between donors, the public sector, private sector investors and NGOs; and increase the resources provided to the water and sanitation sector in developing countries.

It is too early in the process to identify whether the EU Water Initiative has achieved these outputs.

Mr. Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans his Department has to provide additional resources to the Finance Working Group of the European Union Water Initiative in order to implement their commitment to the Water Action Plan. [200115]

Mr. Gareth Thomas [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The Department for International Development (DFID), chairs the Finance Working Group of the European Union Water Initiative and provides financial expertise to the Working Group. In addition, DFID supports all aspects of the EU Water Initiative through the secondment of a sector specialist to the European Commission and through the provision of expertise to other Working Groups. Over this financial year DFID will have spent £150,000 on the EU Water Initiative, and has budgeted for the same amount for the 2005–06 financial year.

Haiti

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, what measures the United Kingdom is taking to support the Government of Haiti in stopping environmental degradation in that country. [199847]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The Interim Cooperation Framework (ICF) for Haiti is the basis for a coordinated national reconstruction and development programme for Haiti, including both short and medium-term priority needs. The ICF includes a programme for the environment that aims to promote alternative energy sources to replace wood and charcoal; to fight against degradation of land and key natural resources; and to promote sustainable and integrated disaster risk management through the implementation of the National Plan for Disaster and Risk Management.

The UK is supporting the environmental measures outlined in the ICF through its contributions to the European Commission, the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) and the World Bank who are financing efforts in this area. The EC has pledged US$3 million for environmental programmes in the ICF, and the IDB and World Bank have pledged US$105 million and US$44 million in unallocated funds to the broad economic recovery section of the ICF, some of which may be used to finance environmental programmes.

The UK will continue to engage with its partner multilateral institutions in order to ensure that the development assistance relating to the environment in Haiti, and all other sectors, is delivered effectively and efficiently, and that the voices and needs of the poor are included and addressed.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether the UK made a contribution to bi-lateral assistance in Haiti during the meeting of donor countries in Washington in July. [199848]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The UK did not make a bilateral contribution to assistance in Haiti during the Donor Conference held in July 2004. However, donor pledges totalled over US$1 billion, exceeding the US $924 million requested to finance Haiti's needs outlined in its Interim Cooperation Framework for 2004–06. The funds pledged included significant contributions from the following multilateral institutions supported by the UK Government:

European Commission—US$ 288 million

Inter-American Development Bank—US $263 million

World Bank—US $155 million.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans the Government have to support efforts to bring peace and prosperity to Haiti. [199849]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The Interim Cooperation Framework (ICF) sets out a comprehensive plan to promote peace, prosperity and overall development in Haiti, and covers four broad areas:

Political Governance and National Dialogue;

Economic Governance and Institutional Development;

Economic Recovery; and Access to Basic Services.

DFID is contributing indirectly to the Interim Cooperation Framework through its contributions to the European Commission, the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank, who have pledged assistance to the ICF as follows:

European Commission—US$ 288 million

Inter-American Development Bank—US $263 million

World Bank—US $155 million.

DFID will continue to engage with its multilateral and bilateral donor partners to ensure that the development assistance under the ICF is efficient and effective, and that the needs of poor people are adequately addressed.

DFID will also continue to support civil society organisations working in Haiti through the Small Grants Scheme, the Civil Society Challenge Fund and the Partnership Programme Agreements for Latin America and the Caribbean.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will second staff from his Department to work in the European Commission's delegation to Haiti. [199850]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: DFID currently has no plans of seconding staff to work in the European Commission's delegation. DFID's engagement with the Commission on Haiti will continue to be managed by the European Union department, in collaboration with DFID Caribbean.

DFID will continue to engage in Haiti through our contributions to the key multilateral institutions operating in Haiti, including the UN, the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank, as well as the EC. We will also continue to support civil society organisations operating in Haiti through our Small Grants Scheme, Civil Society Challenge Fund and Partnership Programme Agreements.

Russian Federation (Children)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent support he has given to projects in the Russian Federation aimed at improving facilities for (a) street children, (b) orphans and (c) children with disabilities; what his plans are in this area; and if he will make a statement. [200143]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: I refer the hon. Member to my response to his previous question dated 20 October 2004, Official Report, column 738W.

Water and Sanitation

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans his Department has to monitor the success of its dialogue with main partner governments who have not prioritised water and sanitation in their poverty reduction strategy papers. [200608]

Mr. Gareth Thomas [holding answer 30 November 2004]: The Department of International Development (DFID) works with partner governments, respecting choices made at the country level, including priorities set within poverty reduction strategies. Where these do not include sectors or issues that DFID regards as high priority, DFID addresses this through reviews of poverty reduction strategies, and through support to strengthen policy analysis and dialogue. Opportunities for monitoring arise in particular during annual reviews of Poverty Reduction Strategies, World Bank and International Monetary Fund reviews, budget and public expenditure reviews, and during the preparation of subsequent Poverty Reduction Strategies.

Yasser Arafat (Estate)

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate his Department has made of the amount of funds in US dollars which originated from (a) United Kingdom bilateral aid and (b) aid from the European Union held by the estate of the late Yasser Arafat; and if he will make a statement. [199584]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: There is no evidence which indicates that either UK bilateral or European funds are held by the estate of President Arafat. Until this year the majority of DFID's bilateral programme expenditure has been technical assistance, channelled directly through international and local managing agents, not the Palestinian Authority (PA). In 2004 DFID contributed bilaterally to the PA budget through the World Bank Public Financial Management Reform Trust Fund. Since 2000, the European Commission has provided budget assistance to the PA in addition to its technical assistance programme. This money has been managed directly by the Ministry of Finance with no involvement of the President's Office.

The International Monetary Fund reported last year that during the period 1995 to 2000, there was a diversion of £560 million of revenue from the Palestinian Authority budget to a special bank account controlled by President Arafat. There was no suggestion that this money had been "misused"—and that the large majority of these funds had been invested in assets that are still within the public domain. The IMF report highlighted the significant progress that has been made over the last two years in improving accountability and transparency. Allocations from the PA budget to the President's Office have been drastically reduced.

SCOTLAND

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200174]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend, the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, on 29 November, Official Report, column 10–11W.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many written questions for his Department were unanswered when Parliament prorogued; and how many of the unanswered questions were tabled in each of the previous months of the 2003–04 Session. [201558]

Mrs. McGuire: None. All the Office's outstanding written questions were answered before prorogation.

DEFENCE

Asset Tracking

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made in establishing a system of asset tracking for defence logistics. [199830]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence has employed two consignment tracking systems since the first Gulf War; Royal Naval Invoicing and Delivery System (RIDELS) for the Royal Navy and Visibility in Transit Asset Logging (VITAL) for the Army and RAF. VITAL was subsequently enhanced by the acquisition of the US system Total Asset Visibility (-) (TAV (-)) as an Urgent Operational Requirement in January 2003. This has automated much of the process and improved performance. We are now investing additional money on enhancing these systems still further. This will include, for example, the full integration of TAV (-) into existing consignment tracking systems.

Battlefield Digital Information

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of (a) Major J. A. Kennedy's presentation Real-Time Exchange of Battlefield Digital Information, given at the SMI Conference Joint Battlespace Digitisation on 20 May 2003, (b) Wing Commander Mike Longstaff and Squadron Leader R. K. Dyson's presentation Flying Training, given at the SMI Conference Fighter Trainer on 2 June 2003, (c) Sym Taylor's presentation Effective Management of Spares, given at the SMI Conference Military Spares and Inventory Management on 16 June 2003, (d) Lieutenant Colonel Chris Barkes and Wing Commander Chris Otley-Doe's presentation Effective and Efficient Control of Material Flow, given at the SMI Conference Military Spares and Inventory Management on 16 June 2003 and (e) Lieutenant Commander Charles Jewitt's presentation on the Joint Modular Storage Concept, given at the SMI Conference Military Spares and Inventory Management on 17 June 2003. [199827]

Mr. Ingram: The following presentations are held within the Ministry of Defence and will be placed in the Library of the House:

Sym Taylor's presentation on the Effective Management of Spares.

Lieutenant Colonel Chris Barkes and Wing Commander Chris Otley-Doe's presentation on the Effective and Efficient Control of Material Flow.

Lieutenant Commander Charles Jewitt's presentation on the Joint Modular Storage Concept.

The other presentations are no longer held in the Ministry of Defence, although they may be available from SMI Group.

Certain Conventional Weapons Convention

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the UK to ratify Protocol V to the Convention on Certain Conventional Weapons. [200295]

Mr. Ingram: The United Kingdom intends to ratify Protocol V at an early opportunity.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the countries which have ratified Protocol V to the Convention on Certain Conventional Weapons; what action he has taken to encourage others to sign the protocol; and if he will make a statement. [200299]

Mr. Ingram: Lithuania, Sierra Leone and Sweden have so far ratified Protocol V. The United Kingdom continues to urge all states to ratify Protocol V as soon as possible.

Cooneen Watts and Stone

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which elements of the Department's cut and sew contract with Cooneen Watts and Stone Ltd. have been satisfied to date. [200743]

Mr. Ingram: This contract covers a wide range of deliverables, many of them not due to commence until early 2005. The supplier has achieved delivery obligations agreed to date.

Correspondence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what his target time is in 2004–05 (a) to reply to letters from honourable Members and (b) for the officials in his Office to reply to letters received directly from members of the public. [200806]

Mr. Caplin: The Ministry of Defence aims to respond to all correspondence within 15 working days of receipt.

Defence Contracts

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the date of contract signature was for the (a) Support Vehicle, (b) Light Forces Anti-Tank Guided Weapon Systems, (c) Next Generation Anti-Armour Weapon and (d) TERRIER projects. [199831]

Mr. Ingram: The Demonstration and Manufacture contract signature dates are as follows:

(a) Support Vehicle - It is anticipated that contractual negotiations with MAN ERF UK Ltd., the Preferred Bidder for the Support Vehicle Project, will be concluded by spring next year.

(b) Light Forces Anti-Tank Guided Weapon - 7 February 2003.

(c) Next Generation Light Anti-Armour Weapon - 28 June 2002.

(d) TERRIER - 19 July 2002.

Departmental Account Codes

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's account codes. [199832]

Mr. Ingram: Yes.

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost of refurbishing each Ministerial Private Office was in the last two years. [200802]

Mr. Caplin: The offices in the Old War Office occupied by Defence Ministers from 2001 to July 2004 to allow the redevelopment of the main building have not been refurbished in the last two years. The element of the cost of the main building redevelopment which relates directly to ministerial offices is not separately identified in the contract and cannot therefore be established with accuracy.

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199625]

Mr. Caplin: The Ministry of Defence is undertaking a programme of work to ensure that its internet websites comply with the W3C Web Content Accessibility Guidelines. We take seriously our accessibility commitments and are striving to ensure that we deliver fully accessible services to the public on the internet and elsewhere.

EU Military Staff

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many EU Military Staff there are, broken down by (a) rank and (b) nationality. [200382]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 29 November 2004]: On 16 November 2004 the EU Military Staff comprised 147 people. The following table gives a breakdown of this figure in terms of nationality and rank. The UK Army equivalent rank is given in brackets where appropriate.

Human Rights Act

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, how many cases have been brought against his Department under the Human Rights Act 1998; and what has been the cost in (a) legal fees to defend cases and (b) compensation payments. [200812]

Mr. Ingram: In line with policy and practice in other Government Departments, the Ministry of Defence does not record separately those cases brought against the Department raising issues under the Human Rights Act 1998. Human rights are now integrated in the general law and are rarely the sole basis for a challenge.

The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Lost Flying Hours

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, if he will list (a) the average flying hours lost per month at airbases in (i) England, (ii) Wales and (iii) Scotland and (b) the flying hours per month lost due to bad weather at (A) RAF Waddington, (B) RAF Lyneham and (C) RAF Brize Norton in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [200269]

Mr. Ingram: Records of the average flying hours lost per month at airbases are not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

The Ministry of Defence does not hold records of flying hours lost owing to bad weather. The following table presents the total number of lost flying hours by month since January 2001 at RAF Waddington, RAF Lyneham and RAF Brize Norton when conditions were assessed as red. Red conditions are defined as when visibility is less than 800 metres or the cloud base is less than 200 ft above ground level. In these conditions, flying is unlikely to take place. Other weather conditions, for example high winds and turbulence, might also preclude flying but their incidence is not recorded.

Red Reflection

Mr. Watts: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment his Department has made of the ability of the successful contractor to meet deadlines for the supply of Red Reflection clothing and other camouflage combat garments. [200045]

Mr. Ingram: Delivery of combat clothing items is not due to commence until early next year. The contractor is on target to meet the required delivery dates and to deliver items to specification, which includes meeting the required Infra Red Reflective standard.

Royal Irish Regiment

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether it is his policy that the Home Service part-time officers and soldiers of the Royal Irish Regiment are deemed to be casual workers for the purposes of pension provision; and if he will make a statement. [200349]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 29 November 2004]: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Home Service part-time soldiers of the Royal Irish Regiment have been charged since 1 July 2000 under section 69*(a)* of the Army Act 1955 for failure to attend a duty; and what punishments were awarded in each case. [200350]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 29 November 2004]: It would not be possible to ascertain whether soldiers were charged for failure to attend duties under section 69*(a)* of the Army Act 1955 except at disproportionate cost but failing to attend a duty would normally be dealt with under section 29A*(a)* and not 69*(a)* of the Army Act 1955.

Figures are only available from 1 October 2000 onwards but from that date until the 19 November 2004 eleven Part-Time members of the Home Service Battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment were dealt with summarily under section 29A*(a)* for failing to attend a duty.

Individual punishments are a personal matter between the Commanding Officer and the soldier in question but the penalties in these cases ranged from fines to restriction of privileges.

Runway De-icing Chemicals

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who supplies the RAF with runway de-icing chemicals; and how much the contract was worth in each of the last three years. [199839]

Mr. Ingram: The current suppliers of runway de-icing chemicals are Verdugt BV from Tiel in the Netherlands who supply de-icer and Univar Ltd. of Middlesbrough who supply icing preventer. The combined value of these enabling contracts is approximately £1.5 million pounds per annum.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether shortages have been experienced in runway de-icing chemicals for RAF and other service airfields; and if he will make a statement. [199857]

Mr. Ingram: There are no shortages of runway de-icing chemicals for RAF or other Service airfields. In February this year the current supplier of runway de-icing chemicals to the Ministry of Defence was unable to meet the required delivery date for a demand from an RAF airfield. The demand was satisfied by an alternative supplier.

UK Eurofighter

Mr. Lyons: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the latest cost of the UK Eurofighter above the original estimate is. [200121]

Mr. Ingram: As set out in the recently published National Audit Office Report on Major Defence Projects (HC1159–1 session 2003–04 dated 10 November), the latest cost to the United Kingdom of the Eurofighter Typhoon programme is £2,343 million above the original estimate which was produced in 1987 before development began.

Uniforms

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, whether uniforms made in China have been issued to service personnel. [200505]

Mr. Ingram: Uniform items, such as berets and Norwegian Shirts, have previously been made in China and issued to service personnel. In terms of the recent contract award for cut and sewn items to Cooneen Watts and Stone Ltd, the uniform element of the contract is not due to commence delivery until early 2005. No uniform procured under this contract have therefore yet been issued to Service personnel.

Warship Command Systems

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what risk assessments were made on the proposal to run the command systems for future Royal Navy warships on the Microsoft Windows operating system; what other options were considered; what benefits Windows has over the other options; and if he will make a statement. [200036]

Mr. Ingram: The Type 45 prime contractor, BAE Systems, and its sub-contractor, are responsible for selecting an operating system that meets the requirements placed on them by the Defence Procurement Agency. However, industry's decision to use Windows 2000 was also the subject of a review conducted by the Ministry of Defence which included specialist representatives from QinetiQ and the Defence Science and Technology Laboratory. The review concluded that the choice of Windows 2000 presented the lowest risk of the available options. The contractor considered that there were only two credible choices of accredited operating system: Windows 2000 from Microsoft and a Unix based solution, Solaris from Sun. While the Unix option was considered technically viable, the decision to use Windows 2000 was taken as it was considered to minimise the risks for long-term support.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts Council Funding

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding the Arts Council has given to theatre in each of the last three years; and what proportion of total Arts Council funding this constituted in each year. [200630]

Estelle Morris: The following table shows the Arts Council's funding commitments to theatres over the last 3 years, also expressed as a percentage of their total grant-in-aid spending on all artforms.

	Total ACE Spend on Theatre (£)	Theatre spend as a proportion of ACE spending (percentage)
2002–03	74,629,940	33
2003–04	89,566,873	35
2004–05	95,601,602	34

Athletics

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with UK Sport on the funding formula for performance athletes. [200662]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 30 November 2004]: Ministers and officials maintain an on-going dialogue with UK Sport about funding for elite athletes. Following the Sports Cabinet meeting in April this year, Ministers collectively agreed the funding package to be provided to our elite athletes through UK Sport's World Class Performance programme for the Beijing Olympic/Paralympic cycle. It is a matter for UK Sport, however, to devise the detailed formula to allocate this funding package to individual sports.

Commonwealth Institute Building

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, if she will place in the Library (a) the report she commissioned from English Heritage on the de-listing of the Commonwealth Institute building in Kensington and (b) related correspondence between ministers and officials of her Department and English Heritage. [200225]

Mr. Caborn: The information is as follows:

(a) This report has not yet been received. I will place it in the Libraries of both Houses once the Secretary of State has taken her decision on whether or not this building should be de-listed.

(b) There has been no such correspondence other than the standard pro-forma commissioning English Heritage's advice.

Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 27 September. [200322]

Mr. Caborn: I apologise for the delay in responding. The letter concerned an application to list a telephone box under the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990. This matter is still being considered by English Heritage and has been delayed as English Heritage have been considering possible amendments to the criteria for listing telephone boxes. They expect to be able to provide their advice to this Department in December and a decision will be made very shortly after that. I will write to the hon. Member as soon as the decision has been taken.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 21 October. [200323]

Mr. Caborn: My right hon. Friend the Minister for Media and Heritage replied to the hon. Gentleman on 25 November.

The letter of 21 October was not received in the Department until 25 November 2004, and was replied to immediately.

Cricket

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what agreements made by her Department govern negotiations for new television rights for (a) international and (b) first-class cricket. [200661]

Estelle Morris [holding answer 30 November 2004]: The Government intervenes in the sports broadcasting market only to ensure that viewers have access to those sporting occasions which are considered to have true national resonance. These events are listed under Part IV of the Broadcasting Act 1996.

Cricket test matches played in England are listed as Group B events as are the final, semi-finals and matches involving Home Nations teams in the Cricket World Cup. Exclusive live coverage of Group B events is permitted on subscription channels provided that delayed coverage or highlights have been offered on fair and reasonable terms for transmission on BBC1, BBC2, ITV1 or Channel 4.

Other international cricket matches and first class cricket matches are not included on the list.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, what discussions she has had with the England and Wales Cricket Board on the England cricket tour to Zimbabwe. [200361]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 29 November 2004]: Neither the Secretary of State or I have had any recent discussions with the England and Wales Cricket Board about the England cricket tour of Zimbabwe. However, officials from the FCO and DCMS have been in contact about the tour. The decision whether or not to tour is a matter for the ECB.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, what discussions she has had with (a) UK Sport and (b) the England and Wales Cricket Board on the proposed International Cricket Conference Headquarters in London. [200364]

Mr. Caborn: Earlier this year I had an exchange of correspondence with Sue Campbell, Chair of UK Sport, about proposals to relocate the headquarters of the ICC from Lord's cricket ground. My officials have also taken part in discussions with representatives of UK Sport. I am not aware that any discussions have taken place between my Department and the ECB.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff there were in her Department in each year since 1997. [200189]

Mr. Caborn: I refer the hon. Member to table C of the annual publication "Civil Service Statistics" which provides staff numbers in my department and its agency in each year from 1997 to 2003, copies of which are laid in the Libraries of both Houses. 2004 figures have been published on the Cabinet Office website www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk.

Departmental Telephone Use

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her policy is on the use of telephones by members of staff in her Department for personal use relating to (a) domestic calls and (b) international calls; and if she will make a statement. [200886]

Mr. Caborn: My Department has a policy on the use of telephones for personal calls which recognises that such calls may be necessary but that staff should keep the number and duration to a minimum.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what measures she has taken to ensure that telephones in her Department are not used by staff making unauthorised personal calls to international numbers. [200887]

Mr. Caborn: By default, all telephones in my Department have a bar on international access. If international access is essential for an official to carry out the duties of their post then a formal written request must be submitted, countersigned by an appropriate senior official.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimates she has made of the cost to her Department of unauthorised personal calls made by members of staff to (a) domestic numbers and (b) international numbers in the last year for which figures are available. [200888]

Mr. Caborn: As my Department is part of the Government Telecommunications Network (GTN), it pays a set fee per annum per extension number, regardless of how many calls are made. Therefore there are no additional costs incurred as a result of personal calls.

Digital Television

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions her Department has held with (a) the European Commission and (b) other European Union member states regarding the parameters permitted by European state aid laws for the funding arrangements of the Government's intended switch to digital television transmission; and if she will make a statement. [200567]

Estelle Morris: We have had no formal discussions with the Commission to date regarding the state aid rules in connection with the switch to digital television transmission but we have made them and the other member states aware of our plans for switchover on various occasions, including in response to the eEurope 2005 Action Plan.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what advice she has sought regarding the parameters permitted by European state aid laws for the funding arrangements of plans to switch to digital television transmission. [200568]

Estelle Morris: In considering the plans to switch to digital television transmission, we have taken advice on state aids from experts within Government and from Ofcom.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what advice SwitchCo has sought regarding the parameters permitted by European State Aid laws for (a) its structure, (b) its funding and (c) the funding arrangements for the switch to digital television transmission. [200569]

Estelle Morris: There is no legal entity called "SwitchCo" currently in existence. However, broadcasters are working closely with the supply chain to create an organisation to co-ordinate the implementation of the switch to digital television and I expect them to take full account of national and European legislation.

Free TV Licences

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people in Pendle receive the free television licence for the over 75s. [199931]

Estelle Morris: TV Licensing, who administer free television licences for people aged 75 or over as agents for the BBC, are not able to provide geographical breakdowns of the number of free licences issued. However, the number of households with at least one person aged 75 or over claiming the winter fuel payment in the Pendle constituency in 2003–04 was 5,170, according to Department for Work and Pensions records.

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the effect the implementation of the EU Directive on Age Discrimination will have on the free TV licence for those aged over 75 years. [200187]

Estelle Morris: The provision of free television licences for the over-75s does not fall within the scope of the European Employment Directive (2000/78/EC), the age provisions of which extend only to the areas of employment and vocational training.

Horseracing

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects the British Horseracing Board to complete its assessment of the impact of the European Court of Justice's recent ruling. [200663]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 30 November 2004]: I expect that the Board will wish to complete this assessment with some urgency

Olympic Games

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment has been made of the benefits to Northern Ireland of the Olympic Games being held in London in 2012. [199638]

Tessa Jowell: We are assessing the impact of staging the Games on the whole of the UK. We and London 2012 are working with all the regional development agencies and devolved administrations to ensure the whole of the UK, including Northern Ireland, can benefit.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether football matches are planned to take place in Northern Ireland as part of the bid for a London Olympics in 2012. [199639]

Tessa Jowell: London 2012 have no current plans to hold Olympic football competition matches in Northern Ireland. This is because at present there is no stadium which meets FIFA accredited standards. If Northern Ireland builds its planned national stadium, London 2012 will consider incorporating this venue within the competition—thereby ensuring that it includes cities across the UK.

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much she estimates has been spent in promoting the 2012 Olympic Games; and if she will make a statement. [199669]

Tessa Jowell: London 2012, the company established to develop, market and promote London's bid to host the Olympic and Paralympic Games in 2012, has so far spent £15.1 million in undertaking its activities.

School Sport

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether (1) she expects the Public Service Agreement (PSA) to increase the percentage of school children in England who spend a minimum of two hours each week on high quality physical education and school sport within and beyond the curriculum to 75 per cent. by 2006 to be met; what percentage has been reached to date; and what travel provisions have been made in connection with the PSA; [200358]

(2) if she will make a statement on the Physical Education, School Sport and Club Links initiative. [200365]

Mr. Caborn: The Government are investing over £1 billion in England to transform school sport. The PE, School Sport and Club Links strategy is delivering an ambitious Public Service Agreement target, shared with the Department for Education and Skills, to increase the percentage of 5 to 16-year-olds who spend a minimum of two hours each week on high quality PE and school sport to 75 per cent. by 2006; and to 85 per cent. by 2008.

We expect the targets to be met. Evidence from the 2003–04 survey of School Sport Partnerships showed that an average of 62 per cent. of pupils in Partnerships are spending a minimum of two hours in a typical week on high quality PE and school sport within and beyond the curriculum. However, this figure rises to 68 per cent. in schools that have been in Partnerships the longest, while schools new to Partnerships average 52 per cent. This shows that School Sport Partnerships are making a difference.

School Sport partnerships now cover over half of schools (54 per cent.), benefiting over 3.5 million pupils. 75 per cent. of schools will be in a partnership from September 2005 and 100 per cent. from September 2006.

No special travel provisions have been made in connection with the PSA target. Time spent changing and travelling will normally fall outside the two hours.

Tourism

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what support her Department gives to assist small tourism enterprises in the use of information technology. [199700]

Mr. Caborn: DCMS seeks to use information technology as a means of increasing productivity across the small tourism business sector. We are presently contributing to the Small Business Service-led review to identify how a more coherent and customer-focused offer of public sector support can be made to small businesses, and the use of information technology and e-commerce are an important element of that review. My Department is also supporting the development of the EnglandNet project, which is being developed by VisitBritain and its regional partners. When complete, EnglandNet will offer tourism enterprises access to the 11 million potential customers who visit the VisitBritain website each year. Small tourism businesses will have access to EnglandNet through regional and sub-regional destination management systems, with the option of online booking facilities.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what support her Department gives to VisitBritain for e-tourism; and if she will make a statement. [199701]

Mr. Caborn: The Department is supporting the EnglandNet project, which is presently being developed by VisitBritain and its regional partners. When complete, EnglandNet will offer tourism enterprises access to the 11 million potential customers who visit the VisitBritain website each year. Individual tourism businesses will have access to EnglandNet through regional and sub-regional destination management systems, with the option of online booking facilities.

Funding from my Department for EnglandNet over 2001–02 to 2004–05 totals £6,891 million, as follows:

Grant in aid funding to the English Tourism Council (to 31 March 2003)	1,034,000
Grant in aid funding to VisitBritain (from 1 April 2003)	1,852,000
Capital Modernisation Fund	600,000
Invest to Save Fund	3,405,000

As part of the EnglandNet project, an additional £300,000 has been made available from the Capital Modernisation Fund to enable Tourist Information Centres to access the extranet services to be provided by EnglandNet. A further £150,000 has also come from the Invest to Save Fund to support more general work on e-business awareness and training for tourism businesses in rural areas of England.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to increase expenditure on the tourism sector outside London. [199702]

Mr. Caborn: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is currently considering tourism expenditure plans for 2005–08, including allocations to VisitBritain. Her decision will be announced in the near future.

With respect to regional development agencies, who have strategic responsibility for tourism in the regions, the spending review provided for a DCMS contribution of £3.6 million per annum to the RDAs' "Single Pot" funding.

Training Courses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by her Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98. [200331]

Mr. Caborn: The Department has organised a wide range of training courses designed to meet the needs of its staff. On the majority of occasions these have been delivered at DCMS buildings in London. Occasionally these training courses take place at external facilities, usually in London, and occasionally at the Government's Centre for Management and Policy Studies (CMPS) in London or Sunningdale.

Since 2003 our range of courses have been grouped under the following headings: Induction, Business Planning, Finance and Budget Management, Policy Development, Project Based Working, Leadership and Management, Ministers and Government, Information Technology and Diversity.

Figures prior to 2001 are not available. Since 2001 the total annual cost to the Department of all annual Learning and Development provision, including training courses organised for the Department, was as follows:

2001–02	318,352
2002–03	590,329
2003–04	453,709
2004–05	[1]305,180

[1] to end of September 2004

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200403]

Mr. Caborn: Cancellation charges of our external providers vary between nil and 100 per cent. of the cost of the course depending on the provider and how near to the scheduled date of the course the cancellation was made. From our records we have paid the following cancellation charges in the time period specified:

2002–03	495 + VAT
2003–04	0
2004–05	990 + VAT

Note:
Figures prior to 2002–03 are unavailable.

Video Conferencing Units

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many video conferencing units are installed in (a) the Department and (b) each agency of the Department; what percentage of offices have these facilities in each case; and what plans there are to increase the number. [200440]

Mr. Caborn: DCMS has one videoconferencing unit covering five office locations.

DCMS has one Agency, the Royal Parks, which does not have videoconferencing facilities.

There are no plans to increase the number of videoconferencing units at present.

World Heritage

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will take steps during the UK membership of the World Heritage Committee to ensure that (a) Sagarmartha national park in Nepal, (b) the Belize barrier reef and (c) Huascáran national park in Peru are put on the list of world heritage in danger as a result of climate change. [200654]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 30 November 2004]: Under Article 11 of the Covention concerning the Protection of the World Cultural and Natural Heritage 1972 (the World Heritage Convention) the Committee is required to maintain a "list of World Heritage in Danger". There is an agreed procedure for establishing whether a site is threatened by "serious and specific dangers" and if so whether it should be included on the in Danger list. We have asked the World Heritage Centre, the Committee's Secretariat, to provide the necessary information for the Committee to consider the matter at its 29th Session.

WALES

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200181]

Mr. Touhig: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 29 November 2004, Official Report, column 10W, by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199654]

Mr. Touhig: None.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many written questions for his Department were unanswered when Parliament Prorogued; and how many of the unanswered questions were tabled in each of the previous months of the 2003–04 Session. [201549]

Mr. Touhig: None.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Equatorial Guinea

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) he, (b) Ministers in his Department and (c) officials had discussions in an official capacity with the former right hon. Member for Hartlepool during the last 12 months concerning Equatorial Guinea. [200920]

Mr. Straw: Neither I nor Ministers in my Department have had discussions at any time about Equatorial Guinea with the former right hon. Member for Hartlepool. Since 14 September officials have had some contact with him and his office, first to inform his office of the letter my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs was sending to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker), and then in response to approaches by the former right hon. Member for Hartlepool and his office regarding recent media reports that named him in connection with the alleged coup plot.

Hamas

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) whether the Government was consulted about the discussions held by the High Representative for Common Foreign and Security Policy with Hamas; whether discussions were authorised by the Council of Ministers; under what authority the discussions took place; whether discussions have taken place with other organisations and individuals on the European Union list of terrorist organisations and individuals; and if he will make a statement; [201049]

(2) what representations he has made to (a) foreign governments and (b) European Union institutions regarding the holding of discussions with Hamas since Hamas was included on the European Union list of terrorist organisations; and if he will make a statement; [201050]

(3) when the Government first became aware of discussions between Javier Solana and Hamas; and if he will make a statement. [201051]

Mr. Rammell [holding answer 30 November 2004]: As the spokesman of the European Union High Representative, Javier Solana, said on 24 November:

"the Office of the High Representative Javier Solana clarifies that at no time Dr. Solana wished to imply that direct contacts between himself and Hamas had taken place. Any mention of contacts or meetings with Hamas referred to soundings and impressions conveyed to him but gathered by governments and other parties on the ground. At no time did the High Representative, nor his office, hold any direct contacts with Hamas or any other organisations appearing on the EU 'terrorist list'."

There was no discussion of any such contacts at the Council of Ministers.

Iraq (Elections)

Mr. Lyons: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what requests have been received from the interim Iraqi Government for assistance in the January elections. [200129]

Mr. Rammell: Responsibility for the forthcoming elections rests with the Iraqi Electoral Commission of Iraq (IECI). After discussion with the IECI about their requirements, The UK Government have contributed US$10 million and provided two DFID advisers to assist the IECI.

Middle East

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has for a conference in London on the Middle East peace process; and if he will make a statement. [199498]

Mr. Rammell: We have made it clear that we are determined to redouble our efforts to achieve progress towards a lasting peace and to mobilise the international community to do likewise. We are looking at how we can best support both parties to move forwards, and judge that a meeting or a conference may at some stage help the new Palestinian leadership prepare for Israeli disengagement from Gaza and parts of the West Bank in the context of the Roadmap.

Overseas Contracts

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the success of British companies in winning government contracts in other European countries. [199819]

Mr. Boateng: I have been asked to reply.

In the 2003 pre-Budget report, the Chancellor announced that Alan Wood, Chief Executive of Siemens plc, was to lead a review of UK businesses' experiences in competing for public procurement contracts in other EU countries. The report, to the Chancellor and the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, was published in November 2004 and is available in the Library of the House.

Palestinian Authority

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assurance he has (a) sought from and (b) been given by the Israeli Government that elections for the Palestinian Authority in January will be given appropriate support by Israel. [199502]

Mr. Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised this issue during his visit to Israel and Palestine last week. On 24 November, following the Foreign Secretary's meeting with Israeli Foreign Minister Silvan Shalom. Mr. Shalom stated that "Israel will do everything in its power to facilitate the smooth running of the forthcoming Palestinian elections. We also welcome the commitment of the international community to this process."

Sudan

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with the Government in Sudan on the situation there. [200474]

Mr. Mullin: In recent months my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, the Foreign Secretary, the Secretary of State for International Development and I have all visited Sudan and held in depth meetings with the Sudanese Government. Most recently the Foreign Secretary spoke to the First-Vice President on the telephone on 16 November. We are in regular contact with the Sudanese Government through our Ambassador in Khartoum. Discussions cover both the situation in Dafur and the North-South peace process.

UK Embassies

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many personnel are employed (a) from his Department and (b) locally by the commercial department of the UK Embassy in Vienna. [199939]

Mr. Alexander: One full-time UK based member of staff is employed in the Commercial Section of the Embassy in Vienna plus 30 per cent. of the Ambassador and 15 per cent. of the Deputy Head of Mission. There are five Locally Engaged positions, but six staff (two on a job share). (There are 21 UK Based Staff employed in the whole of the Embassy)

WORK AND PENSIONS

Financial Assistance Scheme

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which companies he has had discussions with regarding contributions to the Financial Assistance Scheme; and how much each of them has agreed to contribute. [200162]

Malcolm Wicks: Ministers from the Department for Work and Pensions have held many meetings with representatives from the pensions industry.

No direct financial contributions have yet been made, but we are keen that the industry should have the opportunity to offer support to the Financial Assistance Scheme (FAS) either by voluntary financial contributions or assistance in kind.

We are most grateful for the valuable assistance in kind offered by the pensions industry to date, both in sharing their expertise through the FAS Industry Working Group and in supporting the data collection exercises which enhance our understanding of the problems which the FAS must address. We maintain a firm hope that the industry will further support the Government's leadership in assisting these individuals, and we believe that they have a strong interest in doing so.

IT Systems

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many different IT systems hold customer benefit data; and what plans he has to integrate those systems. [200119]

Jane Kennedy: The Department currently holds customer benefit data in seven major IT benefit systems supported by the Departmental Central Index, which holds national insurance numbers and details, and the Personal Details Computer System. The Personal Details Computer System is the Department's master repository for customer personal details and ensures the synchronisation of customer data across the benefit systems.

As part of the modernising delivery programme, we are increasing data sharing capability across the Department and rationalising the number of systems we have holding data. Key to this is the introduction of the Customer Information System which will become the central repository for core customer benefit data. This new system will start to be delivered from mid-2005 and will enable a more consistent and consolidated approach when interacting with our customers.

Myasthenia Gravis

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on benefit entitlement for those diagnosed with myasthenia gravis. [201078]

Maria Eagle: We do not pay benefits based on medical diagnosis.

Incapacity benefit is intended to provide a source of income for sick and disabled people of working age who are unable to work.

Entitlement to disability living allowance is based on walking difficulties and/or the need for personal care which results from severe disability. The customer's medical condition is not, necessarily, the key factor. Rather it is the disablement that results from it and the effects of that disablement.

We are ensuring that the benefit system encourages and promotes work where possible. However, we recognise that those with the most severe conditions may never be able to work, and benefits provide security for those for whom work is not an option.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many written questions for his Department were unanswered when Parliament Prorogued; and how many of the unanswered questions were tabled in each of the previous months of the 2003–04 Session. [201548]

Maria Eagle: No questions were unanswered when Parliament Prorogued.

Theft and Fraud

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will launch an inquiry into the levels of theft and fraud in his Department committed by officials and contractors. [201186]

Mr. Pond: A typographical error by Hansard in reporting a response to a previous question overstated levels of fraud and theft by a factor of 1,000. The actual level of fraud detected involving contractors is less than 1/20 of 1 per cent. of the level of expenditure. The actual level of frauds involving staff is even smaller.

The Department has recently formed a dedicated unit with responsibility for the prevention, deterrence and investigation of internal fraud. Over a number of years actual levels of fraud and theft by contractors and officials has not significantly changed and while the Department will continue to take all reasonable steps to reduce this further it does not give grounds for an inquiry.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) men and (b) women in Pendle receive the winter fuel allowance. [199930]

Malcolm Wicks: In Winter 2003–04, the total number of people in Pendle who received the winter fuel payment was 16,850, of which 7,495 were men and 9,355 were women. We would expect the numbers to be similar for winter 2004–05.

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 5.

2. Locals authorities and Parliamentary constituencies are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.

Brian Cotter: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) people and (b) households in the Weston-Super-Mare constituency were (i) eligible to receive and (ii) received the winter fuel payment in 2003–04. [199766]

Malcolm Wicks: It is not possible to provide an accurate estimate of the number of people in the constituency of Weston-Super-Mare who were eligible to receive a winter fuel payment as DWP administrative data does not contain complete information on household circumstances, and payments are based on household composition.

The number of people in the Weston-Super-Mare constituency who received a winter fuel payment for winter 2003–04 was 23,505, in 16,045 households.

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 5.

2. Any residence found to have four or more occupants is not included in these figures as it is assumed to be a residential care or nursing home.

3. Locals authorities and parliamentary constituencies are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Court Closures

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs, if he will list the (a) magistrates courts and (b) county courts which have been closed since May 1997. [201019]

Mr. Leslie: The provision of magistrates courthouses is a matter for the 42 Magistrates Courts Committees (MCCs). From 1 April 2005 Her Majesty's Court Service (HMCS) will take responsibility for the administration of all courts below the House of Lords. HMCS will be an executive agency of the Department of Constitutional Affairs.

MCCs are not required by statute to inform my Department of magistrates court closures that are not subject to an appeal, although the Department does keep a complete record of county court closures. The information available to my Department on the county courts and magistrates courthouses which have closed since 1997 has been posted in the Libraries of both Houses.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs, if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200180]

Mr. Lammy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister for Europe to the hon. Member for South Holland and The Deepings (Mr. Hayes) on 29 November 2004, Official Report, column 10W.

Fines Enforcement

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs, how many people were working on fines enforcement for each magistrates courts on (a) 1 April of each year since 2001 and (b) the latest date for which figures are available. [201018]

Mr. Leslie: The latest estimates are that there are approximately 1,900 magistrates courts staff working on criminal enforcement (including fines). Data for numbers of staff working on fine enforcement in individual magistrates' courts is not held centrally, and it is therefore not possible to provide a breakdown for each court. In addition no figures are available for preceding years.

Royal Charters

Norman Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many Royal Charters there are. [200698]

Mr. Leslie: The records of the Privy Council Office show that 945 Charters have been granted since the year 1231. Many of those will no longer be in force, but the task of establishing which are still extant could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

Norman Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs if he will list Royal Charters which have been amended in the last 10 years. [200699]

Mr. Leslie: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Norman Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many Royal Charters have been (a) awarded and (b) cancelled in each of the last 30 years. [200700]

Mr. Leslie: The number of Charters granted in each year since 1974 is shown in the following table. Information on the number of Charters that have been surrendered in that period could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

	Number of charters granted
1974	1
1975	3
1976	6
1977	1

Norman Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what steps are taken to enforce conditions attached to Royal Charters; and who is responsible for such enforcement. [200701]

Mr. Leslie: Grants of Royal Charters are not subject to conditions.

Norman Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the Government's policy is on the future award of Royal Charters. [200702]

Mr. Leslie: The Privy Council will continue to advise Her Majesty to grant Royal Charters to bodies where such a grant would be in the public interest.

Norman Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs, what process is followed in order to alter the terms of Royal Charters. [200703]

Mr. Leslie: All amendments to Charters are subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council. Once a body has duly resolved to amend its Charter it sends the amendments to the Privy Council Office, who arrange for them to be considered by an ad hoc Committee of Council. If the Committee agrees that the amendments should be allowed they are put to Her Majesty in Council for approval.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

EU Aid

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with European Union counterparts about the (a) allocation and (b) delivery of EU aid to third world countries; and if he will make a statement. [200719]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: On 23 November, the Secretary of State attended the General Affairs and External Relations Council in Brussels, which discussed both the issues of aid allocation and its delivery.

DFID continues to work for agreement that a much larger share of EC aid of higher quality should be allocated to low income countries where it will have the greatest impact on poverty reduction. Over the past two years, EC spending has been moving in the right direction, with 56 per cent. of aid being spent in low-income countries in 2003. A further re-balancing of aid is required if the Millennium Development Goals are to be met and the UK has called for the EC to spend 70 per cent. of its aid in low-income countries by 2008. This proportion would still recognise the needs of the poor in middle-income countries. It remains clear from the Council discussion that a number of other member states do not subscribe to this view. After a discussion, the Council Conclusions invited the Commission to find ways to increase focus on the poorest, with a specific focus on Africa.

EC aid has gone through serious reforms since it launched its reform programme back in 2000. DFID welcomes this and recognises important progress in terms of speedier delivery, more local capacity in the field and improved portfolio performance overall. Current reforms have focused on qualitative improvements. DFID believes there is a case for continuing reforms also under the new Commission, but with a focus on quality and impact of EC aid. The 23 November Council called upon the new Commission to undertake an assessment of EC External Assistance and to identify what follow up to the Reform Process is required focusing on quality, impact and results.

Falluja

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Developmentwhat assistance his Department is giving to Iraqi civilians remaining in Falluja. [201661]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The Interim Iraqi Government (IIG) is leading on humanitarian and reconstruction work in Falluja and has established a central team to co-ordinate its assistance to the people of Fallujah. The UK is in close contact with the IIG, and DFID is providing technical advice to its Fallujah coordination team.

The IIG and the Multi-National Force operating in Fallujah have reported that there is no humanitarian crisis so far and humanitarian visits to Falluja by British military officials confirm this assessment. The Iraqi Ministry of Health, Iraqi Security Forces, and the Multi-National Force have reported that their stockpiles of humanitarian supplies have provided for the immediate needs of Falluja's civilians. The IIG and Iraqi Red Crescent trucks containing humanitarian supplies are entering the city and distributing food, water, and medical supplies. Work to clear rubble and restore basic services is also underway.

DFID is maintaining close contact with the IIG, with representatives of the Multi-National Force, and with humanitarian organisations on the ground, to address the needs of Falluja's population. DFID is ready to respond positively to requests for humanitarian help or further advice in Falluja or elsewhere.

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what information he has received on the (a) location and (b) humanitarian condition of Iraqi civilians who left Falluja in advance of the US bombing. [201663]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The Iraqi Interim Government (IIG), together with its humanitarian agency partners, is monitoring the location and condition of Falluja's displaced population. The IIG has reported that the main concentrations of Falluja's civilians are located in Ameria, Habania, Saqlawiyah, and Gaana, with a significant number also in Baghdad.

The IIG judges that there is no humanitarian crisis in Falluja or the surrounding area.The Iraqi Ministry of Health (MoH) assessment teams have visited the four areas around Falluja where it considers the main concentrations of Falluja's displaced population to be located. The MoH teams report that most of the displaced citizens are staying with family and friends, some are in schools, mosques, and government buildings, and a small number are in tents. Pre-positioning of supplies has helped to provide for immediate needs, and the IIG and humanitarian agencies are continuing to deliver essential food, water, blankets and medical supplies. The IIG plans to send public health teams and medical staff into the four main areas to address potential health and hygiene concerns until it is safe for the displaced families to return to Falluja. DFID is providing technical advice to the IIG Falluja co-ordination team and is ready to respond positively to further requests for humanitarian help or advice in Falluja and the surrounding area.

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, what assistance his Department is giving to the Iraqi civilians who left Fallujah in advance of the US bombing. [201662]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The Interim Iraqi Government (IIG) is leading on assistance to the citizens of Falluja who left the city before military action took place. The IIG has established a ministerial team to co-ordinate its response, which includes supplying food, water and medical supplies to Falluja's displaced population, and planning for their safe return to the city. DFID is providing advice to the IIG Falluja team and is ready to respond positively to requests for further humanitarian help or advice in Falluja and the surrounding area.

Jamaica

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what studies his Department has undertaken into the effects that the European Commission's proposed price reductions on sugar will have on his Department's existing programmes in Jamaica. [200238]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: DFID is currently reviewing the composition of its Jamaica programme, developing in more detail, the areas identified in the Regional Assistance Plan for the Caribbean. This assessment will be undertaken in discussion with the Government of Jamaica and in light of the studies on the potential impact of sugar price changes.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what assessment his Department has made of the impact that a three-year transition period and a price reduction on sugar would have on the sugar industry in Jamaica; [200239]

(2) what studies his Department has undertaken into the effects that the European Commission's proposed price reductions on sugar would have on the sugar industry in (a) Jamaica and (b) the wider Caribbean region. [200240]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: DFID recognises that the reform of the EU sugar regime will have a significant impact on the sugar industry in Jamaica and the Caribbean, and hence on many communities already among the poorest in the region.

The impact of EU reform will vary between countries, and will depend crucially on the policies that Caribbean countries adopt with regard to their sugar industries. The Government of Jamaica are bringing together representatives of the Government, the sugar industry, academia, trade unions, and other civil society organisations to identify possible future scenarios for Jamaica's agricultural sector. The exercise will develop a relevant and practical action plan for the future, which will be passed to the Government of Jamaica for consideration and action.

The impact of EU reform will also depend on the transitional assistance available. On a parallel track, DFID is working to ensure that the EU offers the most effective possible package of transitional assistance.

In order to help inform the debate and ensure the impact on developing countries is taken sufficiently into consideration, DFID commissioned a study last year with LMC International and Oxford Policy Management, 'Addressing the Impact of Preference Erosion in Sugar on Developing Countries'. The study is divided into two sections. The first part assesses the economic and social impact on the African, Caribbean and Pacific Countries (ACP) Sugar Protocol countries of the various reform scenarios suggested by the European Commission. The second part of the study assesses alternative options for addressing the impact of preference erosion in sugar. The purpose of this analysis was to identify various options for debate by the ACP and the EU.

DFID has recently commissioned two further pieces of work on this issue: from LMC International, 'EU Sugar Reform: the Implications for the Development of Least Developed Countries (LDCs)' and from the Overseas Development Institute: 'Forthcoming changes in EU sugar/banana markets: a menu of options for an effective EU transitional assistance package'. This latter report should help those countries affected by reform determine their priorities for a transitional package. It also includes some analysis of alternative uses for sugar.

DFID is now following up this work by commissioning a series of country profiles for those Caribbean countries that will be affected by the change in the EU trade regime. The principle objective of these profiles is to identify a specific menu of options for an effective competitive fund package, which addressees the impact of sugar reform at both the national and the household level.

Snow Cover (Everest/Nepal)

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Developmentwhat estimate he has made of the percentage of snow cover on Mount Everest in (a) 1953, (b) 1983 and (c) 2003; and what assessment he has made of the impact on Nepal of changes in the level of snow cover. [200691]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: Quantifying the change in percentage snow cover on Mount Everest from 1953 to 2003 is difficult because there have been few surveys of the mountain's snow-covered area over the period in question and none of these surveys has been continual. DFID has recently funded a research project on Snow and Glacier Aspects of Water Resources Management in the Himalayas, 2001–2004 (SAGARMATHA) that undertook analysis of temperature data and developed a predictive model to assess impacts of changes. The analysis revealed a trend of increasing annual average temperature between 1961–1996 of around +0.07° C/ year across Nepal, while data from the 15 highest gauges for the period 1976–96, at elevations of between 1800 and 4100 metres, showed an upward trend of +0.1° C/ year. If maintained, such trends will cause the snow-covered area in the Nepal Himalaya to recede.

Photographs taken of the mountain since the 1950s, and other anecdotal evidence, do suggest a general reduction both in the snow-covered area and the spatial extent of the mountain's glaciers, but with the snow-covered area varying within each year and from year to year, it is not possible to provide definitive figures from these for the percentage change.

The impacts of a reduced snow-covered area are many. There is a greater tendency for glaciers to retreat resulting in glacial lakes being formed behind unstable moraine dams. Consequently a build-up of melt-water and/or glacier surges behind these structures increases the threat of glacial lake outburst floods (GLOFs), several of which have been reported in Nepal. The reduction in snow and ice cover also has potential impacts on water resources availability and use downstream: it is likely to lead to a temporary increase followed, ultimately, by a reduction in river flows. Increased river flows, resulting from more glacial ice being exposed for melting, could increase the incidence of flooding and landslides; whereas reduced river flows, as the glacial ice disappears, could affect agricultural productivity, fisheries, hydropower generation, industry, domestic water supply, and transportation.

The SAGARMATHA project sought to quantify the timing and extent of these impacts across the Himalayan region. It concluded that, while glaciers were retreating throughout the Himalaya, the threat to future water availability was greatest in the west. In the eastern Himalaya changes in the melt-water from glaciers has a relatively small effect. The project's models forecast that flows in eastern Nepal would gradually increase for several decades but would eventually diminish. In the west, river flows were forecast to diminish rapidly over the next few decades, which will be a concern for both India and Pakistan.

Water/Sanitation Projects

Mr. Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, what plans his Department has to work with (a) other donors and (b) main partner governments to establish sector wide approaches in water and sanitation. [200112]

Mr. Gareth Thomas [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The Department for International Development (DFID) works with its partners to support governments to achieve the Millennium development goals, including the water and sanitation goals. Where appropriate, DFID provides Poverty Reduction Budgetary Support, which helps countries implement their Poverty Reduction Strategies. Poverty Reduction Strategies are produced following a consultation process within the country concerned, and between governments and donors. Water and sanitation are a key part of these discussions.

Where DFID does not provide all or any of its assistance through Poverty Reduction Budgetary Support, DFID may work with others towards sector wide approaches in water and sanitation. This will depend on the specific situation in a country, including whether water and sanitation are agreed priorities for DFID support. DFID is also promoting improved donor co-ordination in the water and sanitation sector, under the European Union Water Initiative.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Chernobyl

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farms were affected in 1986 by fallout from Chernobyl; on how many farms restrictions remain in place as a result; and when she expects the effects to be eradicated from farms in Wales. [200268]

Miss Melanie Johnson: I have been asked to reply.

This is a devolved issue and the Food Standards Agency for Wales has responsibility for this area.

Fisheries

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons the term "common policy in the sphere of operation of fisheries", specified in the Maastricht Treaty, was replaced by the term "exclusive competence to manage marine life" in the proposed constitutional treaty for the European Union; and what assessment she has made of the consequences for the UK of the change. [200259]

Mr. Bradshaw: The conservation of marine biological resources under the common fisheries policy has been an exclusive competence of the Community since 1979. This competence is derived from a combination of the EC Treaty and the language negotiated in 1973 in the UK Act of Accession and endorsed by all the then member states. This has been confirmed by the European Court of Justice.

The new Constitutional Treaty has been drafted to reflect this position and does not extend competence in fisheries.

Foot and Mouth

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the (a) outcome of her Department's negotiations with the European Commission in respect of the request for financial aid to assist in the management of the foot and mouth disease outbreak in 2001 and (b) the comments by the European Commission on the handling of the outbreak of foot and mouth disease. [200731]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 30 November 2004]: The Department has recently concluded its negotiations with the European Commission and as a result the United Kingdom will receive a total of £350 million in co-financing for the 2001 outbreak.

The United Kingdom will continue to work with the European Commission and other member states to ensure that the lessons learned from the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in 2001 are applied.

Nickel-cadmium Batteries

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment her Department has made of the impact of a total ban on the sale and use of nickel-cadmium batteries on employment in the United Kingdom. [200282]

Mr. Morley: Neither the European Commission proposal for a Directive on Batteries and Accumulators nor the European Parliament's amendments at First Reading envisage a total ban on the sale and use of nickel-cadmium batteries. A partial ban has, however, been suggested during current negotiations on the proposed Directive, and is the subject of an extended impact assessment by the Council. When participating in negotiations, the Government weigh all relevant factors, including impacts on cost, employment, customer choice, and environmental protection, in consultation with business and other interested parties.

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to improve collection and recycling rates for nickel-cadmium batteries. [200283]

Mr. Morley: The proposed EU Directive on Batteries and Accumulators, currently being negotiated, contains collection and recycling targets for portable and industrial nickel-cadmium batteries. If these targets appear in an adopted Directive, it is likely that a range of approaches to achieving them will be necessary. We will develop these in consultation with industry and other parties, taking account of best practice, cost, and environmental impact.

Offshore Dredging

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to ensure that offshore dredging of marine aggregates does not adversely affect fish spawning. [199496]

Keith Hill: I have been asked to reply.

No offshore dredging of marine aggregates can take place without first receiving an environmental consent called a favourable 'Government View' from the First Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister. His decisions on Government View applications are only reached following wide publicity and consultation, including with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which, in turn, consults the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science; the Sea Fisheries Inspectorate and local fishermen. Applications are subject to an Environmental Impact Assessment and must be accompanied by an Environmental Statement. Only if he is satisfied that there will be no significant effect on the marine environment, including, if appropriate, effects on fish spawning, will the First Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister, consider issuing a favourable Government View. Consented proposals are subject to conditions relating to mitigation and monitoring measures; where appropriate, these may relate to fish spawning.

Unsolicited Departmental Mail

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list consultation documents and mailings that were sent unsolicited by her Department or its agencies in the most recent 12 months for which information is available that contained general information; how many of each publication were printed; and what the cost was per copy. [200321]

Alun Michael: During the period we issued 117 consultation documents. These include some very specific and narrow proposals regarding animal welfare, farm products and secondary legislation to the transposition of European legislation, amendments to environmental regulations and draft guidance consequent on domestic legislation. They also include major initiatives such as the Clean Neighbourhoods consultation, implementation of CAP reform, Rights of Way and Pollution Control. I am placing a copy of the full list in the Library of the House of Commons. It is also available on the Defra website at www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/default.asp. Information on the cost per copy of each mailing is not available and to establish the information would incur the Department in a disproportionate cost. The extent of the circulation will depend on the issues involved and the range of people and organisations likely to be affected by it.

Veterinary Services

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many overseas temporary veterinary officers were employed in the public sector to assist in her Department's veterinary work in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [200687]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not hold statistical data for overseas Temporary Veterinary Inspectors (TVIs) for the period outside of Foot and Mouth disease. During this disease, the Number of Overseas TVIs who were appointed to assist the State Veterinary Service (SVS) was 706.

The figures do not include vets employed outside the SVS whether in Defra or other Government Departments.

Temporary Veterinary Inspectors are appointed to carry out specific functions on behalf of Defra. They are not employed by the Department.

These figures are referenced from: Smith, L (2002) Foot and Mouth Disease: Veterinary Resource Issues. State Veterinary Journal 12 (1) 3–5.

Warm Front Scheme

Brian White: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discretion her Department allows Warm Front Scheme managers to (a) repeat grants for households which have already benefited from Warm Front and (b) fast track exceptionally vulnerable households. [200448]

Mr. Morley: Under the current scheme applicants are entitled to assistance once at the same address. However, in cases where heating measures are not recommended the Scheme Managers will review any further application within a twelve month period.

A Fuel Poverty Action Plan, including proposals for the future development of Warm Front is expected to be published shortly.

We are currently funding a project to assess the feasibility of fast-tracking applicants with particular medical conditions to the scheme. The project is being delivered by the National Energy Action, the Warm Front Scheme Managers and local health practitioners. Results will be reported to the Department during 2005.

Brian White: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what mechanisms are in place to monitor private landlords' compliance with the requirement to freeze rents for a one or two year period after a Warm Front improvement. [200449]

Mr. Morley: Where measures are to be installed by Warm Front in a privately rented property, prior to work going ahead landlords sign an agreement that they will not increase the rent for either one or two years.

However depending on the measures provided, where a property is regulated under a fair rent agreement or is subject to an annual rent review, landlords can increase the rent providing it does not take into account the impact of any Warm Front measures installed.

The Warm Front Scheme Managers do not have any formal requirement to check whether these arrangements are being complied with but would act if contacted by a tenant on this issue.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Bullfighting

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, (1) if she will make representations to Ofcom to prevent the exposure of children to graphic pictures of bullfighting in late afternoon transmissions; [200705]

(2) what controls there are on the content of satellite transmissions by Sky television. [200706]

Estelle Morris: Responsibility for what is broadcast on television rests with the broadcasters and the appropriate regulator and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State therefore has no plans to make specific representations to Ofcom about this issue.

Broadcasters established in the United Kingdom and licensed by Ofcom must comply with their programme code which is intended, among other things, to ensure that children are not exposed to inappropriate material.

Some of the channels on the Sky platform are not licensed by Ofcom but by other jurisdictions in Europe. Under EU law, in the Television Without Frontiers (TVWF) Directive, licences granted in EU countries are recognised throughout the EU and stations which hold a licence can also be carried on other countries' domestic satellite platforms. In these circumstances they are subject to regulation by their country of origin only, and not by the second country on whose satellite platform they also appear.

The TVWF Directive provides minimum standards for the protection of minors. The UK Government would intervene only if those standards were manifestly, seriously and gravely breached and Ofcom had recommended intervention.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, if she will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of her Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200166]

Mr. Caborn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Minister for Europe on Monday 29 November, Official Report, columns 10W-11W.

Legislation (Enactment)

Brian White: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what pieces of legislation passed in the last 30 years that the Department is responsible for remain to be brought into force, broken down by year of enactment. [200444]

Mr. Caborn: The pieces of primary legislation passed since 1997, for which the Department is responsible, and which remain to be brought into force, are listed in the table. The information requested for the period prior to 1997 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Off-licences

Ross Cranston: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many applications for off-licences have been objected to by local residents in each of the last 10 years; what the main reasons given for such objections were; and what proportion of licences objected to were rejected. [201653]

Mr. Caborn: This information is not held centrally and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Special Advisers

Mr. Andrew Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many appeals were made by civil servants to the Civil Service Commissioners regarding special advisers in her Department between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004; and when each appeal was lodged. [201366]

Mr. Caborn: There were no appeals regarding special advisers made by civil servants to the Civil Service Commissioners in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004.

Under-age Drinkers

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to increase penalties for those who sell alcohol to under-age drinkers. [201523]

Mr. Caborn: Under the Licensing Act 2003 the maximum fine for selling alcohol to an individual aged under 18 will increase to a maximum of £5,000 (level 5 on the standard scale). This is an increase on the maximum penalty available under the Licensing Act 1964, which is a fine of £1,000 (level 3 on the standard scale). Furthermore, on convicting a personal licence holder for such an offence (or a range of offences set out in the 2003 Act), the court will have the power to order the forfeiture of the personal licence or its suspension for up to six months. Also, an application for a personal licence could be refused because the applicant has such a conviction. In addition, such a conviction could jeopardise an application for the renewal of a personal licence. By contrast, under current law, the holder of a justices' licence may have his licence declared forfeit by the court only on conviction for a second offence under certain provisions of the 1964 Act. The 2003 Act is being brought into force in stages and it is planned that the sentencing provisions referred to above would be in force from November 2005.

TRANSPORT

Car Emissions

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) low carbon vehicles and (b) vehicles were sold in the UK in each of the last five years. [201208]

Mr. Jamieson: The Government support sales of low carbon vehicles in a number of ways, as summarised in our "Powering Future Vehicles Strategy". Our Vehicle Excise Duty and company car tax regimes in particular reward those who choose the cleanest, most fuel-efficient cars.

We reported progress on low carbon vehicle sales in the Second Annual Report on the delivery of the Powering Future Vehicles Strategy, published in October 2004 and available via the Department's website. Some good progress has been made in recent years. Average new car fuel efficiency has been improving each year since 1995 in the UK, by between 2003 sales of cars with a fuel efficiency of 120 g/km carbon dioxide or better made up about 3 per cent. of total new car sales.

Information on annual new vehicle registrations is published each year in "Transport Statistics Great Britain", available via the Department's website. Total new vehicle registrations and new registrations of private and light goods vehicles are presented in the following table.

Thousand

	All vehicles	Of which, private and light goods vehicles
2003	3,231.9	2,820.7
2002	3,229.4	2,815.6
2001	3,137.7	2,709.7
2000	2,870.9	2,429.8
1999	2,765.8	2,342.0

Cycling

Jane Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures he will take to promote cycling in the English regions after the end of the contract for the English Regions Cycling Development Team in May 2005. [201224]

Charlotte Atkins: We have announced a wide range of measures to promote cycling, many of which can be found in our Action Plan on Walking and Cycling published June this year. These measures include £10 million to provide links from the National Cycle Network to more schools, and over £500,000 for improved bike parking at 200 targeted stations to aid bike and rail journeys. A new National Standard for cycle training will be launched shortly. We will also be working with the bicycle industry, DfES, local authorities, teachers and parents to roll out the "Bike It" scheme to the more than 250 school travel advisors. "Bike It" aims to make comprehensive provision for cycling to school by putting in place cycle training, bike parking and safer routes.

Intercity Trains

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what information he holds on the performance of intercity train companies; [200429]

(2) if he will publish information he holds on the punctuality of Virgin Trains' intercity services. [200430]

Mr. McNulty: The Strategic Rail Authority monitors the performance of all train operators, including Virgin, and publishes the results in their quarterly "National Rail Trends" publication. Copies are held in the Library of the House.

Level Crossings

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many manned level crossings were (a) closed and (b) converted to automatic operation in each of the last five years for which figures are available; [199419]

(2) how many permanent road closures over railway lines at the point of level crossings there were in each of

Mr. McNulty: During the last two years, 178 level crossings have been closed by Network Rail. Almost all of these were crossings worked manually by users on private roads.

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment his Department has made of the use of cameras linked to heat and movement sensors triggering remote signalling to prevent train and road vehicle collisions at level crossings. [200087]

Mr. McNulty: The Rail Safety and Standards Board (RSSB) is conducting a formal industry investigation into the tragic derailment at Ufton Nervet, Berkshire on 6 November. As part of this, a panel of level crossing experts from Network Rail and RSSB has been convened to consider practical suggestions which might prevent similar incidents in the future.

Mersey Crossing

Mr. Watts: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the contribution that a new Mersey crossing may make to the economic growth of the North West. [201583]

Charlotte Atkins: Halton borough council will shortly be submitting to my Department a revised appraisal of the proposed New Mersey Crossing including an assessment of the wider economic benefits of this scheme to the areas that it would serve. We will consider this assessment once it has been submitted.

Rail Franchises

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport who will be responsible for drawing up the new franchises created as a result of the termination of the Central Trains franchise; what the timetable is for the developments of these franchises; and to whom representations should be made about suggestions for new services. [200100]

Mr. McNulty: The Secretary of State announced in the House on 19 October that he would reduce the number of rail franchises to 19. He also announced that when the Central Trains franchise expires in 2006, routes will be distributed into the Silverlink Trains, Virgin Cross Country, Midland Mainline, Chiltern and Northern franchises. Where appropriate, these will be put out to competitive tender as soon as possible. Responsibility for this process rests with the Strategic Rail Authority and any successor body. Representations about potential new services should be sent to the Strategic Rail Authority until such time as DfT, subject to the Railways Bill becoming law, takes over its functions.

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport who will be responsible for drawing up the terms of the new Greater Western franchise; what the timetable is for its development; and to whom representations about the services it specifies should be made. [200101]

Mr. McNulty: Plans for a Greater Western franchise were first announced by the Strategic Rail Authority (SRA) on 6 November 2002 following extensive local existing First Great Western, First Great Western Link (previously Thames Trains) and Wessex Trains franchises into one operation as part of the process of reducing the number of rail franchises to 19 as the Secretary of State announced in the House on 19 October. The SRA is currently developing an invitation to tender for these services which will be issued in summer 2005. The new franchise is scheduled to commence in April 2006. Any representations on the Greater Western franchise should be sent to the SRA, until such time as DfT, subject to the Railways Bill becoming law, takes over its functions.

Pedestrian Rail Crossings

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is with respect to the provision of tunnels at pedestrian rail crossings where there have been fatalities, with particular reference to the Jamaica Road Crossing in Malvern, Worcestershire. [201467]

Mr. McNulty: This is an operational matter for Network Rail, as the infrastructure manager. However, I understand that Network Rail has no current plans to install a tunnel at the Jamaica Road pedestrian level crossing in Malvern, Worcestershire.

Public Transport Subsidy

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his latest estimate is of the public transport subsidy per head of population from central Government for each English county in each year from 1997 to 2005; and if he will make a statement. [199898]

Charlotte Atkins: The Department for Transport does not hold financial information and expenditure in this format. Total departmental spend and planned expenditure from 1994–95 to 2014–15 was published as a graph in "The Future of Transport: a network for 2030", Annex A. (Cm 6234).

For a breakdown of central and local government expenditure on transport in terms of England, Scotland, Wales and Great Britain, see Table 1.15 in Transport Statistics Great Britain 2004 (Published 2004).

Copies of both documents are available in the Libraries of the House.

Railways (Scotland)

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the proposed devolvement of control of Scotland's railways as proposed by the Railways Bill will give powers to the Scottish Executive to renationalise railways. [200922]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 30 November 2004]: No. While streamlining the structure of the Rail industry and making a number of amendments to current rail legislation, the Railways Bill does not propose any changes to the status of Network Rail, which would remain a private 'not for dividend' operating, maintaining and renewing Britain's rail network. Nor does the Bill propose amendments to Section 25 of the Railways Act 1993, which prevents any public sector body or emanation of the Crown or any company controlled by the Crown from operating a franchise, other than as an operator of last resort.

Road Noise

Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on noise reduction barriers to reduce noise from roads in each of the last seven years. [200611]

Mr. Jamieson: Figures for the last seven years are not available. Spend on noise reduction barriers that are provided in conjunction with highway improvement schemes are not separately identified in the scheme cost. Spend on the installation of noise barriers provided retrospectively on older trunk roads that commenced in 2000 has been met by the £5 million per year ring-fenced allocation.

Wheel Loss

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research his Department has commissioned in respect of the products which claim to prevent wheel loss. [201199]

Mr. Jamieson: The Department has not itself commissioned such research. However, work carried out on behalf of the British Standards Institution indicated that a loss of clamp force—due to settlement between the interfaces of the wheel-fixing assembly—can take place without rotation of the nut. Thus, although use of locking devices can prevent loss of wheel nuts the devices cannot counteract a loss of clamp force, and excessive wear as a consequence of this could result in loss of a wheel while nuts were still attached. Nonetheless there might be benefit in some cases, with such equipment preventing or delaying total loss of a wheel.

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advice his Department has issued to (a) manufacturers and (b) operators of heavy commercial vehicles on reducing road traffic accidents attributable to lost wheels. [201201]

Mr. Jamieson: My Department, in association with the Confederation of Passenger Transport, Freight Transport Association, Institute of Road Transport Engineers, Road Haulage Association and the Tyre Industry Council, has issued a leaflet offering guidance on regular and effective wheel fixing maintenance measures to reduce the possibility of wheel loss.

Copies of the leaflet have been placed in the Library of the House.

Roadworks

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much and what proportion of the Highways Agency budget for 2004–05 is expected to be spent on (a) noise barriers and (b) other environmental programmes in (i) maintenance and (ii) non-maintenance programmes; [200639]

(2) what route mileage of (a) road surface and (b) noise barriers is expected to be installed by the Highways Agency and its operators in (i) 2004–05, (ii) 2005–06 and (iii) 2006–07. [200901]

Mr. Jamieson: The Highways Agency does not have available all data in relation to noise barriers and other environmental measures in the format requested. However, it is known that approximately £8.5 million will be spent on noise barriers in the current financial year. This figure is about 0.5 per cent. of the Highways Agency's published business plan total programme budget.

The total approximate cost of environmental measures for the current financial year is £20 million. This figure includes measures such as wildlife fencing, badger runs and landscape planting. Although some of the measures are noise related, it is not possible to break down the costs to extract these.

The cost of noise mitigation measures included in maintenance schemes cannot be separately identified. However, when building new roads or re-surfacing existing ones, quieter noise surfacing is used where possible.

The approximate route length to be replaced or newly built in the current financial year is 400 km. The approximate length of noise barriers to be installed in the same period is 32 km. Figures are not yet available for 2005–06 and 2006–07 as budgets are yet to be confirmed.

School Transport

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many and what percentage of trips to schools were by bus by (a) five to 10 year olds and (b) 11 to 16 year olds in the latest year for which figures are available; and what proportion of these were (i) under three miles and (ii) three miles and over (1) in total and (2) broken down by region. [201206]

Charlotte Atkins: The National Travel Survey provides the data requested. The latest available data are for 2002–03, shown in the tables.

Numbers of trips are averaged over all children. Bus includes local and private school buses. Figures exclude trips over 50 miles.

South Eastern Trains

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent performance improvements have been achieved by South Eastern Trains; and if he will make a statement. [201802]

Mr. Darling: Since South Eastern Trains (SET) franchise began operating on 9 November 2003 performance has been improving. At that time the yearly average number of SET services arriving on time was 79.4 per cent. Performance figures change from month to month. The most recently published figures cover the year to June 2004, and show that SET performance has risen to 80.8 per cent.

This improvement of 1.4 per cent. points is marginally better than the improvement of 1.3 per cent. points across the South East sector as a whole. Over the same period, sector performance improved from 79.3 per cent. punctuality in November last year to 80.6 per cent. in June 2004.

By way of comparison, performance on South West Trains (SWT) and Southern, the other two big south of London commuter operators, also improved over this period. SWT's yearly average was 73.7 per cent. at 9 November 2003 and rose to 74.5 per cent. in the year to June 2004. Southern performance rose from 78.2 per cent. to 79.5 per cent. over the same time.

The overall increase in punctuality for SET is driven by two factors: a reduction in the delays caused by Network Rail's infrastructure operation and maintenance of around 2 per cent.; and a comparable reduction in knock-on delays caused to SET services by other train operators.

Timber

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans his Department has to fund the establishment and maintenance of the Central Point of Expertise on Timber. [201144]

Charlotte Atkins: The Department supports and welcomes the creation of a Central Point of Expertise on Timber (CPET) which would provide much needed advice to suppliers and purchasers of timber. However, as a result of budget constraints, we are unable to provide funds towards its establishment although we expect to pay for its services when it has been created.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport to how many written questions tabled in the last parliamentary session his Department had been unable to provide a substantive answer before the end of the session. [199645]

Charlotte Atkins: The effective handling of parliamentary questions is an issue to which I, and ministerial colleagues, attach great importance.

At all times Ministers make every effort to answer questions substantively before Prorogation. However this is not always possible. One question did not receive a substantive response before the House prorogued on Thursday 18 November. It is open to the hon. Member to re-table the question this session.

TREASURY

Band Aid (VAT)

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will authorise payment of a grant to the charity Band Aid equivalent to the sum to be paid in VAT by the end of the 2004–05 tax year from the sales of their new song. [201255]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer the Chancellor gave on 8 November 2004, Official Report, column 509W to the hon. Member for Preseli Pembrokeshire (Mrs. Lawrence)

Civil Service Jobs (Middlesbrough)

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what change there will be in civil service jobs in Middlesbrough as a result of the merger of Customs and Excise and the Inland Revenue. [201500]

Dawn Primarolo: We are currently working on detailed plans on where staff reductions will arise but it is still too early to say what effect the changes will have on any particular location.

Economic Policies (Lewisham, Deptford)

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures he has introduced to improve the financial position of (a) parents and (b) pensioners in the Lewisham, Deptford constituency; and how many recipients there were of such measures in (i) 2001 and (ii) 2004. [201098]

Mr. Timms: Changes to the tax and benefit system made by this Government mean that, compared to the 1997 system:

in 2004–05 families with children are, on average, £1,350 per year better off and families in the poorest fifth of the population are, on average, £3,000 per year better off. These improvements have been delivered in particular through increased child benefit and the introduction of tax credits. In 2001, 11,280 families in Lewisham Deptford benefited from the increases in child benefit, 1,729 working families also benefited from working families tax credit or disabled person's tax credit and 3,700 non-working families benefited from the child allowances in income support and jobseeker's allowance. In 2004, 10,915 families benefited from child benefit, of these 6,000 also benefited from more than the family element of child tax credit and 1,800 benefited from the family element of child tax credit.

the average pensioner household was £11 per week better off in 2001–02 and is £26 per week better off in 2004–05. A key part of this has been financial support offered to the poorest pensioners by pension credit, introduced in October 2003. 3,200 pensioners in Lewisham Deptford are currently benefiting from pension credit with an average award of £57.30 a week.

Child Tax Credits/Benefits

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to apportion (a) child tax credits and (b) child benefits to non-resident parents. [201506]

Dawn Primarolo: Child benefit and child tax credit are awarded to the person with main responsibility for a child. Parents may choose which of them will receive the payments, but if no agreement is reached the Board of the Inland Revenue is responsible for determining entitlement, based on the facts of each case. There is no provision to allow the splitting of payments.

The Government have an ambitious long-term goal to eradicate child poverty by 2020, and have a PSA target to halve it by 2010. To meet this challenging target it is necessary to focus financial support in a way which enables the parent with main responsibility for the child to provide for the child's needs. Child poverty groups support this approach. Splitting tax credits and benefits could have far reaching risks and consequences. The Government will continue to listen to parents and representative groups about the best way to support families with children.

Public Spending

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, if he will make a statement on the change in public spending between 1997 and 2004. [201290]

Mr. Boateng: Annex B of the 2004 Pre-Budget Report contains the latest historical series on total managed expenditure, including figures for 1996–97 and 2003–04.

Timber

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the refurbishment projects that (a) are in progress and (b) will start in the next six months; what action is being taken to ensure that these will procure timber from legal and sustainable sources; whether guidance will be issued to contractors on each of these projects to ensure that the timber used on site during refurbishment also comes from legal and sustainable sources. [200724]

Mr. Timms: HM Treasury has no current or planned refurbishment projects which involve the procurement of timber.

The Inland Revenue, HM Customs and Excise and Valuation Office Agency outsourced works including refurbishments to a private company, Mapeley, in April 2001 under a 20-year contract. The Department's only current and planned refurbishment works are part of the Mapeley STEPS contract and are given as follows.

Due to the size of the estate, works have been grouped rather than giving line by line property data.

	Number of projects
Current
Roofs/windows doors	6
Lighting	2
Lifts	4
HVAC	12
Electrical and Mechanical	5
H and S works/security and statutory compliance	14
General building works	82
Internal re-decoration/floorings blinds	5
Total	130
Planned to commence during next six months
Roofs/windows doors	18
Lighting	9
Lifts	7
HVAC	21
Electrical and Mechanical	8
H and S works/security and statutory compliance	14
General building works	54
Internal re-decoration/floorings blinds	35
Total	166

The STEPS contract requires Mapeley and all contractors used by them, to comply with various environmental requirements, specifically that they must ensure all procurement follows environmental procurement guidelines (PUG 177/97). Further to this they must ensure all wood is from an independently verified sustainable source and must support the Government's vision of sustainable development. Contractors are required by contract to use timber on site during refurbishment from legal and sustainable sources. Lifecycle plans for other departmental PFI contracts are currently being compiled, all such contracts are bound by the same government guidance.

Tax Credits

Mr. Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place a copy of the results of his exercise to establish the extent of fraud and error in provisional new tax credit awards for 2003–04 in the Library. [201581]

Dawn Primarolo: Claimants have until 31 January to report 2003–04 incomes and finalise their 2003–04 awards. The extent of any non-compliance in 2003–04 tax credits awards can only be estimated when all such awards have been finalised.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many TC840 forms for requesting reconsideration of recovery of tax credits have been sent out during the current tax year. [201574]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my right hon. Friend to my answer to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 19 October 2004, Official Report, column 666W.

VAT (National Lottery)

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether there are circumstances in which governing bodies in sport have to pay VAT on money received from the lottery. [200664]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 30 November 2004]: Lottery grants to sports governing bodies will generally be outside the scope of VAT as they are generally not payment for any supplies. VAT incurred on purchases made using grant income can only be recovered to the extent that those purchases relate to the grantee's taxable business activities. VAT can not be recovered on purchases related to an organisation's exempt supplies or non-business activities.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Belfast City Airport

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many flights there were into Belfast City airport on average each week in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by type of aircraft; and how much fuel each such aircraft would be expected to consume during the first three minutes of take-off. [200508]

Mr. Spellar: The weekly average of flights into Belfast City airport by aircraft type between 1 August 2004 and 31 October 2004 is shown in the following table. The amount of fuel used by an aircraft taking-off will vary depending on various factors including loading and weather conditions. The table shows an estimate of how much fuel each such aircraft would be expected to consume during the first three minutes of take-off where this was made available.

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what steps are being taken to enforce compliance by Belfast City Airport of its planning agreement to offer 1.5 million scheduled seats for sale from the airport in any 12 month period; [200916]

(2) what assessment he has made of the extent to which Belfast City Airport is meeting its planning agreement in respect of scheduled seats on offer. [200917]

Angela Smith: The latest information available to the Department indicates that Belfast City Airport (BCA) is operating within the current limit included in the Planning Agreement in relation to the number of scheduled seats for sale.

As BCA has not to date exceeded the planning agreement restriction of 1.5 million scheduled seats for sale from the airport in any 12-month period the Department would have no reason to pursue enforcement action

Crumlin Road Gaol

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the future of Crumlin Road gaol. [200909]

Mr. Pearson: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 18 November 2004, Official Report, column 1751W.

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199691]

Mr. Pearson: At present, only the website of the Northern Ireland Office complies with the World Wide Web Consortium (W3C) guidelines at Priority Checkpoint 2 (Level AA) standard.

The websites of the 11 Departments of the Northern Ireland Administration currently do not fully comply with the Priority Checkpoint 2 (Level AA) Guidelines although work is currently underway to attain compliance with that standard in 2005.

Fisheries Conservancy Board

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many recommended prosecutions by bailiffs in Northern Ireland have been prevented by the issuing of exemption certificates by the Fisheries Division of the Department of Agriculture Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [199861]

Angela Smith: There has been one recorded recommended prosecution which was subsequently not progressed following the issue of an exemption certificate by the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure. This occurred in 2002.

Housing

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many new housing starts there have been in (a) North Belfast and (b) Northern Ireland in each year since 1997. [200908]

Mr. Spellar: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 18 November 2004, Official Report, column 1758.

Psychotherapy

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what provision for psychotherapy is available under the national health service in Northern Ireland. [201174]

Angela Smith: The term psychotherapy encompasses a range of interventions such as family therapy, supportive psychotherapy, psychoanalytical therapy, and cognitive and behavioural therapy. These may be delivered by therapists from various professional backgrounds and addressing a range of issues from emotional and psychological problems to severe mental illness or addiction. Identifying all psychotherapy interventions could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Roads Budget

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the Department for Regional Development Roads Service Structural Maintenance budget was in each of the last three years. [200082]

Mr. Spellar: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Malcolm McKibbin to Mr. Gregory Campbell, dated 30 November 2004:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about what Roads Service's Structural Maintenance budget was for each of the last three years. I have been asked to reply as these issues fall within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service.

The maintenance of the structure of roads and footways in Northern Ireland continues to be one of the primary objectives of the Roads Service. In the last three years 01/02; 02/03; and 03/04 the expenditure on structural maintenance has been £54, £65 and £83 million respectively. In the current financial year it is expected that just under £70 million will be spent on this key activity.

Strangford View, Killyleagh

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will institute a public inquiry into the construction of a 45 foot gabion wall at Strangford View in Killyleagh; and if he will make a statement. [200370]

Angela Smith: It would not be appropriate to initiate a Public Inquiry in this instance. Planning permission was granted on 5 December 2003 for proposed alterations to an existing entrance, development roads, dwelling footprints together with storm and foul sewers. The approved plans did not provide for a wall of the scale and character now constructed and the wall is therefore unauthorised.

Although the Planning Service has received assurances that the developer is keen to rectify this breach, enforcement action has been initiated and a final warning letter issued on 22 November. Formal enforcement proceedings will now follow unless the developer takes action on the breach.

The developer has submitted a planning application for twelve 3-storey townhouses on a portion of the site, which is still under consideration. It is anticipated that the developer will submit a further application addressing the breach of planning control through the delivery of a comprehensive scheme for the whole site.

Once an application is received, interested parties will be notified and given the opportunity to inspect relevant plans and comment as appropriate. Any comments will be taken into account before a final decision is reached on the application. The Department will continue to ensure that concerns expressed by residents and elected representatives in relation to the wall are addressed.

Victoria Square

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress is being made on redeveloping Victoria Square, Belfast. [200906]

Mr. Spellar: Further to the answer I gave on 18 November 2004, Official Report, column 1775W, Churchill House was successfully imploded on 21 November.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Crown Prosecution Service

23. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Solicitor-General if she will make a statement on the work of the Crown Prosecution Service in North Yorkshire. [201251]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service in North Yorkshire is working with the police and the courts to bring offenders to justice and to ensure people can have confidence in the criminal justice system.

Last year's inspection finds their casework decision-making to be "good".

The CPS is bringing persistent young offenders before the courts speedily and they are reducing the number of cases which do not result in a guilty plea or conviction after trial.

Mr. Allen: To ask the Solicitor-General what interaction takes place between local police officers and local lawyers of the Crown Prosecution Service in Nottinghamshire to improve mutual understanding of the process from arrest to charge; and if she will make a statement. [201252]

The Solicitor-General: The principal interaction between local prosecutors and police officers is through the charging scheme, which was implemented in Nottinghamshire on 5 July 2004. Early consultation between police officers and duty prosecutors takes place in over 1,000 cases a month in Nottinghamshire. This promotes and encourages the prosecution team approach towards the common goal of bringing offenders to justice.

Additionally the CPS and police meet every month to examine management information and to learn lessons, identify issues and training needs and to consider any changes required to further improve arrangements. For example, consideration is currently being given to opening further charging centres in local police stations to reduce waiting times for officers and ensure the charging advice scheme is more convenient for police officers.

I understand that my hon. Friend met a senior official in the Crown Prosecution Service to discuss the new charging arrangements. A scheduled review is shortly to take place when the issue you have raised will be examined. A report will be sent to my hon. Friend shortly about the findings.

Evidential Test

25. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Solicitor-General what recent discussions she has had with the Crown Prosecution Service about the strength of the evidential test needed to bring a case to court. [201254]

The Solicitor-General: The evidential test for public prosecutions is set out in the Code for Crown Prosecutors issued by the Director of Public Prosecutions. The Attorney-General and I maintain a close interest in the code. A revised edition was published last month and a copy is available in the House of Commons Library.

But the evidential test remains the same, namely whether there is sufficient evidence to provide a realistic prospect of conviction. This is an objective test which means that a jury or bench of magistrates, properly directed in accordance with the law, is more likely than not to convict the defendant of the charge alleged.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Alderman Knight School

13. Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the recent poll held in Tewkesbury borough with respect to the future of Alderman Knight School. [201240]

Margaret Hodge: Under arrangements introduced in the School Standards and Framework Act 1998, the consideration of proposals for establishing, altering, or discontinuing maintained special schools are a matter for local decision making. It is for the local School Organisation Committee to take into consideration any objections received when they make their decision on proposals.

Children's Diet (Behaviour)

15. Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research he is undertaking into the relationship between diet and behaviour of children in schools. [201242]

Mr. Stephen Twigg: The Department for Education and Skills is not undertaking any research into the relationship between diet and behaviour of children in schools. However, the Food Standards Agency is currently carrying out research into the impact of food additives on children's behaviour.

Science Teaching

16. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the teaching of practical science in schools. [201243]

Mr. Miliband: Exciting science practical work has a key part to play in delivering inspiring science lessons. We are improving teacher skills and confidence in practical work through the national network of Science Learning Centres, our £51 million partnership with the Wellcome Trust. The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority have developed a new Programme of Study for science at Key Stage 4: which gives greater flexibility and has more emphasis on practical understanding of science. science.

17. Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to increase the number of students studying science and technology subjects at A level. [201244]

Dr. Howells: The Government's 10 Year Investment Framework for Science and Innovation outlined our plans to enthuse more students to achieve in science and technology and study these subjects at A level. We said we would improve science teaching, addressing recruitment of science teachers and providing access to continuing professional development. Through the new Programme of Study for science at Key Stage 4, we are ensuring the science taught in schools inspires learners to pursue further study.

Building Schools for the Future

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance he has issued to local authorities which have successfully bid for Building Schools for the Future funding. [201237]

Mr. Miliband: Comprehensive guidance has been issued to all authorities within Building Schools for the Future, from both the Department and its delivery partners, partnerships for Schools. This covers a wide range of areas; how to develop and Education Vision for local areas, the funding assumptions underpinning the programme, establishing a project team, the latest developments in school design and ICT, value for money procurement, and how to prepare a successful business case for final funding approval. The core guidance documents issued include BSF Wave 1 (or 2 as appropriate) Overview for Local Authorities, which covers all key areas from Education Visions to funding, design and procurement; "Building Schools for the Future": "Local Authority Education Vision— Guidelines for Wave 1" (or 2 as appropriate), which covers the whole range of policy areas and expectations from school organisation to the 14–19 agenda; "Guidance for Local Authorities on Improved joined-up Planning and Funding"; and "Prioritisation and Forward Planning Information", which details how we prioritised local authority projects for investment, and how they can best plan ahead of Building Schools for the Future.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the refurbishment projects for (a) schools under the Building Schools for the Future programme, (b) colleges and (c) his Department's buildings that (i) are in progress and (ii) that will start in the next six months; what action is being taken to ensure that these will procure timber from legal and sustainable sources; and whether guidance will be issued to contractors on each of these projects to ensure that the timber used on-site during refurbishment also comes from legal and sustainable sources. [201591]

Mr. Miliband: Funding for Building Schools for the Future is not fully available until 2005–06. While it is not possible to forecast, at this stage, how many projects will start building work at the beginning of that financial year, a limited number of wave 1 projects are expected to start building work within the next 6 months.

There is no specific guidance available on the procurement of legal and sustainably sourced timer as part of the BSF. However, recently we have launched BREEAM-Schools (Building Research Establishment's Environmental Assessment Method) which will help schools, local authorities and dioceses to set environmental targets for new school buildings and major refurbishments and help designers to improve the environmental performance of their buildings. All schools supported by Government funding should aim for a very good or excellent rating. Within BREEAM there are two optional credits available where timber and wood products used in structural and non-structural elements are responsibly sourced (legal and sustainable) or utilised reused and recycled timber. There are also other credits available in BREEAM which promote the use of timber as it has a low environmental impact.

All of the Department's funds for post-16 learning and skills sector capital investment are allocated to the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). The LSC has sole responsibility for the programme of renewing and replacing the FE estate. This is an operational matter for the LSC. Mr Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member about this matter and provide the information that he has asked for. A copy of this reply will be placed in the House Library.

My Department has no refurbishment projects in progress and no future plans that will call for the use of timber.

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress his Department is making with the Building Better Schools programme. [201660]

Mr. Miliband: We are making excellent progress with Building Schools for the Future. On Tuesday, I announced the 20 new authorities in waves two and three, which will develop projects aiming to sing in 2006–07 and 2007–08. This brings to 39 the number of local authorities in the programme: over a quarter of the total. About 380 schools will benefit from £6.5 billion of investment being allocated over the next three years. We have established Partnerships for Schools to help authorities develop their projects. We have published a range of exemplar designs for schools, which have been well received. Two of the wave one authorities have had their outline business cases approved and are now moving to procurement; other have submitted or will submit their cases shortly for consideration.

Vocational Education

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the financial co-operation between local education authorities and the Learning and Skills Council on implementing the Government's 14–19 strategy for vocational education; and if he will make a statement. [201245]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The joint 16–19 Capital Fund announced in the Department's five year strategy will be available for cross-sector projects, including vocational provision. The forthcoming 14–19 White Paper will consider how financial co-operation between LEAs and the LSC can be further developed to help support implementation of the 14–19 strategy.

Education (Lewisham, Deptford)

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what action his Department has taken to improve standards in secondary schools in the Lewisham, Deptford constituency since 1997. [201105]

Mr. Miliband: Standards in secondary schools in the Deptford, Lewisham constituency have improved significantly. Since 1997 the Key Stage 3 results at Level 5 and above show an increase of 17.3 (percentage) points in English, 22.7 (percentage) points in mathematics and 21.2 inscience. At Key Stage 4 there has been an increase of 20.6 (percentage) points in the attainment of 5+A*-C GCSEs and 10.9 at 5+ A*-G GCSEs, significantly above the national rates of improvement. A summary of the improving outcomes is set out in the table . Data for 2004 will be provided at constituency level during January 2005.

Information about education and skills by constituency is made available by the Department through the 'In Your Area' web site, available at http//www.dfes.gov.uk/inyourarea.

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what action his Department has taken to improve standards in primary schools in the Lewisham, Deptford constituency since 1997. [201106]

Mr. Miliband: This year's results show that standards in primary schools are improving again. In English the percentage of 11 years olds achieving the expected level has increased by 3 (percentage) points to 78 per cent. and mathematics has increased by 1 (percentage) point to 74 per cent.

Standards in primary schools in the Lewisham, Deptford constituency have improved dramatically. Since 1997 the Key Stage 2 results show an increase of 23.2 (percentage) points in English and 23.7 (percentage) points in mathematics, significantly above the national rates of improvement of 15 (percentage) points in English and 12 in mathematics. A summary of the improving outcomes is set out in the following table. Data for 2004 is not yet available at constituency level but will be provided when the Achievement and Attainment tables are published in mid-January.

Information on education and skills by constituency is made available by the Department through the "In Your Area" website available at http://www.dfes.gov.uk/inyourarea

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what capital investment his Department has made in the Lewisham, Deptford constituency in the last three years. [201107]

Mr. Miliband: The capital allocations made to Lewisham Local Education Authority and its schools in the last three years are:

£000

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Grant.	8,326	7,314	6,455

Information on the split between constituencies is not held centrally. Decisions on how resources should be invested in schools are made in accordance with locally prepared asset management plans.

The capital investment on ICT made to the LEA and its schools is not included in the figures provided above. This information is kept separately and can be found in the house of Commons Library in a paper Funding for ICT schools in England.

Training Costs

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research his Department has undertaken to ascertain the willingness of employers to pay for training. [201268]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has not commissioned any research specifically to investigate the willingness of employers to pay for training. However, the Learning and Training At Work Survey in 2000 researched how much employers do pay for training and the 2002 report "The Nature of Training and Motivation to Train in Small Firms" by John Kitching and Robert Blackburn contains a section on the barriers to training (including financial barriers). Both reports are in the House of Commons Library.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

British Nuclear Fuels

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate she has made the financial benefit conferred on British Nuclear Fuels by the Energy Act 2004. [200656]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 30 November 2004]: The Energy Act 2004 does not confer any direct financial benefit to BNFL. Its provisions relating to the civil nuclear industry (in part) establish the NDA and provide for nuclear transfer schemes to facilitate the consequent reorganisation of British Nuclear Fuels Limited (BNFL). This reorganisation will be conducted in line with the conclusions of the Joint Strategy Review as announced by the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry in the House of Commons on 11 December 2003

Business Support Initiatives

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) if she will list the value of (a) UK High Technology Fund and (b) Regional Venture Capital Funds expenditure in each region since the Funds' establishment; [200528]

(2) if she will list the value of (a) UK High Technology Fund and (b) Regional Venture Capital Fund expenditure in each region since 2000. [200537]

Nigel Griffiths: As at the 31 October 2004 the Regional Venture Capital Funds (RVCFs) had invested £38,194,527. This number can be broken down regionally as follows:

Region	£
East Midlands	5,269,152
East of England	1,158,111
London	4,633,102
North East	4,890,381
North West	5,559,080
South East	9,907,201
South West	1,400,000
West Midlands	3,677,500
Yorkshire and Humber	1,700,000

The UK High Technology Fund is a fund of funds, as at the 30 June 2004 £123.6 million had been invested in nine private equity partnerships. The information necessary to determine a regional breakdown of this expenditure is not made available to us by the UK High Technology Fund.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what financial provision has been made for the Regional Venture Capital Funds in each year since 2001; and what the uptake was in each year. [200530]

Nigel Griffiths: The UK Government have committed a total of £74,375,000 to the Regional Venture Capital Funds.

As at 31 October 2004 this provision has been drawn down as follows:

2001–02	2,100,000
2002–03	9,037,500
2003–04	19,600,000
2004–05	13,825,000
Total	44,562,500

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what financial provision has been made for the Research and Development Grants/Smart in each year since its inception; and what the uptake was in each year. [200531]

Nigel Griffiths: I refer to the answer given on 26 January 2004, Official Report, column 84W. For 2003–04, provision for Smart and Grant for Research and Development was £27 million and expenditure of £47 million.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what financial provision has been made for enterprise grants in each year since its inception; and what the uptake was in each year. [200532]

Nigel Griffiths: The enterprise grant scheme is now closed. Initially the scheme was allocated a budget of £45 million between January 2000 and March 2003. The scheme deadline was extended to March 2004. The uptake has been as follows:

Financial year	Expenditure (£ million)
2000–01	3.6
2001–02	10.2
2002–03	11.8
2003–04	13.6

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list the value of Small Firms Loan Guarantee Scheme expenditure in each (a) region and (b) constituency in each year since 2000. [200535]

Nigel Griffiths: The following table lists the value of Small Firms Loan Guarantee expenditure by Region from 2000–04.

Value £ million

Region	1 April 2004 to 31 March 2001	1 April 2001 to 31 March 2002	1 April 2002 to 31 April 2002	1 April 2003 to 31 April 2004

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many organisations have been assisted by the Phoenix Fund; and to what value in each (a) region and (b) constituency since 2000. [200538]

Nigel Griffiths: The Phoenix Fund provides funding to enable business support organisations to undertake a range of measures to promote enterprise in disadvantaged areas and under-represented groups. The number of organisations and the amount of funding that they have been awarded, by region, is as follows:

Region	Number of organisations receiving funding	Amount of funding awarded (£)
Eastern	10	5,380,000
East Midlands	20	5,820,000
London	43	18,100,000
North East	21	5,180,000
North West	38	13,980,000
South East	11	3,350,000
South West	22	6,740,000
West Midlands	28	9,100,000
Yorkshire and The Humber	28	11,700,000

With this funding, the organisations have to date helped in the creation of over 8,400 new businesses, assisted some 9,600 existing enterprises and provided over 1,800 loans to the value of £11,300,000.

As organisations work across constituency boundaries, it is not possible to provide information on a constituency basis.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many businesses have been assisted by Enterprise Grants; and to what value in each (a) region and (b) constituency since 2000. [200539]

Nigel Griffiths: The number of Enterprise Grants awarded and the value of payments made in each region from 2000 are as follows:

	April 2000 to March 2004
Region	Number of grants awarded	Value of payments (£000)
East	47	764
East Midlands	233	4560
London	48	950
North East	416	8652
North West	461	8317
South East	152	2586
South West	92	1423
West Midlands	255	5205
Yorkshire and Humber	349	6931

The number of businesses assisted may be slightly lower than the number of grants awarded as a small number of businesses may have received more than one grant. Corresponding data for each constituency are not readily available and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

As organisations work across constituency boundaries, it is not possible to provide information on a constituency basis.

Better Regulation Task Force

Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the representation from manufacturing industry is on the Better Regulation Task Force. [200228]

Ruth Kelly: I have been asked to reply.

The Better Regulation Task Force is a Cabinet Office sponsored non-departmental public body (NDPB).

Members of the Better Regulation Task Force are appointed for their experience and expertise, not as representatives of a particular sector. At present, there is one member of the Task Force with experience in the manufacturing sector. Full details of all Task Force members can be found on their website at www.brtf.gov.uk.

Civil Space Technology

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what financial contribution her (a) Department, (b) non-departmental public bodies and (c) research councils made to civil space technology in 2004–05; and what financial provision has been made for the period 2005–06 to 2009–10. [200543]

Ms Hewitt: My Department plans to spend £32.9 million in 2004–05 on civil space activities. With changes to DTI funding arrangements it is not possible separately to identify space technology funding. The Particle Physics and Astronomy Research Council will spend £68.8 million on civil space activities and the Natural Environment Research Council will spend £52.5 million. I am not aware of any other financial contributions by non-departmental public bodies. Financial provisions for subsequent years have not been settled, but are likely to be of the same order in 2005–06.

Clean-coal Technology

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions she has had with representatives of the coal generating industry about fitting clean-coal technology; and if she will make a statement. [200737]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 30 November 2004]: Although Ministers have not recently had any formal discussions with the coal-fired power generation industry about cleaner coal technologies, DTI officials have been in frequent touch with the companies in this sector and Ministers have had broader meetings which included reference to FGD. In particular representatives from E.ON and RWE sit on the Advisory Committee for Carbon Abatement Technologies which meets about every two months.

We are currently developing a Carbon Abatement Technology Strategy for Fossil Fuel Power Generation which will include support for new cleaner coal technologies. We plan to publish this early next year.

Miners' Compensation

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when she last met representatives of the Law Society to discuss solicitors' fees for coal health compensation claims. [200067]

Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 30 November 2004]: The Department continues to hold discussions with the Law Society of England and Wales on a regular basis regarding the coal health schemes. The last such discussion took place in October. We aim to meet with them again early in the new year.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, what guidance the Department has issued on the practice of solicitors farming out work under the coalminers compensation scheme. [200923]

Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 30 November 2004]: The Department has not issued guidance in relation to this. Solicitors have a professional code which is supervised by the Law Society.

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many miners and widows have been paid less than £2,000 in settlements for (a) vibration white finger and (b) chronic obstructive pulmonary disease in Midlothian. [200205]

Nigel Griffiths: As of 21 November 2004 the figures are:

	Number of claimants paid less than £2,000 in settlement
COPD	414
VWF	153

Note:
Statistics represent the total damages on claims settled by payment.

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much has been paid to solicitors in Scotland for vibration white finger claims since the scheme came into operation. [200206]

Nigel Griffiths: As of 21 November 2004, the total costs paid to solicitors in Scotland is £5 million.

Consumer Direct

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much it has cost to make the Consumer Direct telephone advice service available in (a) Scotland, (b) South West England, (c) Wales, (d) Yorkshire and the Humber and (e) total; and how many inquiries have been handled in each region. [200548]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The cost for making the new consumer advice and information service, Consumer Direct, available in Scotland, South West, Wales and Yorkshire and Humber cannot be broken down per region/nation. But the overall budget for developing the service and launching it in the first four regions/nations is £3 million for financial year 2003–04 and £12 million for financial year 2004–05. The figure for 2004–5 includes both one offset-up costs, the cost of running the service on an ongoing basis in all four regions, and also central overheads such as IT development, telephony and quality assurance.

The Consumer Direct Scotland was launched on 12 July 2004 and has answered 39,007 calls. Consumer Direct Yorkshire and the Humber was launched on 23 August 2004 and has answered 47,568 calls. Wales launched 8 September 2004 and has answered 31,687 calls and Consumer Direct South West launched on 15 September 2004 and has dealt with 37313 calls. These figures cover the period from launch up to 27 November 2004, not to the end of the financial year.

I am pleased to say that the early performance of the service has been most encouraging in all four regions. Initial feedback from the first customer satisfaction surveys indicates an overall satisfaction rate of 85 per cent.; 79 per cent. said that the advice received from Consumer Direct had helped resolve the matter they were calling about; and over 90 per cent. would recommend Consumer Direct to a friend.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry at what cost the Consumer Direct website was set up; how much it costs each year; and how many people have visited the site. [200549]

Ms Hewitt: The Consumer Direct website (www.consumerdirect.gov.uk) cost £112,000 to set up and its annual running costs will not exceed £25,000. Since 1 September 2004 there have been 49,901 visitors to the website.

COT3 Settlements

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the likely effects of amending the law so that unpaid COT3 settlements accrue interest on the same basis as awards made by employment tribunals; and if she will make a statement. [200192]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The terms of a COT3 settlement are for negotiation and agreement between the parties, with the active involvement of a conciliation officer. It is already open to an employee, as a condition of agreeing a COTS settlement, to require that provision be made for interest to accrue if any amount payable under that settlement is unpaid after a given period.

Departmental Five Year Programme

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, what role was played by her Department's special advisors in the drafting and production of the Five Year Programme published by her Department on 17 November. [200950]

Ms Hewitt: Special advisers provided advice to the Secretary of State and Ministers and commented on drafting by officials during the development and production of the programme.

Dial-up Internet Scams

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, what plans she has to provide consumers with protection against fraudulent dial-up internet scams; and if she will make a statement. [200957]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department has asked the communications regulator the Office of Communications (Ofcom) to review the role and powers of ICSTIS in premium rate regulation in view of the consumer harm caused by fraudulent dial-up internet scams. Ofcom is due to report back shortly. The Department will consider Ofcom's recommendations, and will be involved in implementing them.

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, what estimate she has made of the number of people affected by dial-up internet scams in the last year for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [200958]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Premium Rate Services are regulated by the Independent Committee for the Supervision of Telephone Information Services (ICSTIS). ICSTIS received around 60,000 complaints between August 2003 and July 2004, of which approximately two thirds were related to internet diallers.

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, what discussions she has had with the Independent Committee for the Supervision of Standards of Telephone Information Services (ICSTIS) about the growth of dial-up internet scams and premium rate number diallers; and if she will make a statement. [200959]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department has had several discussions with ICSTIS about the growth of such scams and diallers in recent months.

Employment Tribunals

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, what the average award for compensation in employment tribunal cases was in the UK in each year between 1992 and 1996. [200947]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Between 1992 and 1996 the Employment Tribunals Service only collected compensation statistics for tribunal cases covering the jurisdictions for Unfair Dismissal, Race Discrimination and Sex Discrimination. Therefore, the figures quoted in the tables illustrate the average award for compensation in Employment Tribunal cases for the UK (excluding Northern Island) since 1992 in relation to the aforementioned complaints.

	Average award for compensation (£000)
1992–93	2,593
1993–94	2,801
1994–95	3,402
1995–96	2,510
1996–97	2,602

Energy Consumption/Emission Levels

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when she will publish the latest revisions to her Department's forecasts for energy consumption and carbon emission levels for the UK in (a) 2010 and (b) 2020; and if she will make a statement. [200714]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Trade and Industry published its latest revisions to projections for energy consumption and carbon emission levels in 2010 in a recent paper on the Department's website www.dti.gov.uk/energy/sepn/uep2004.pdf. Further details of the carbon projections by source and end user will be published, for 2010 and 2020, in the consultation paper for the Climate Change Programme Review to be published in December. The latest projection of carbon dioxide emissions is 141.3 million tonnes of carbon (MtC) in 2010.

Equal Opportunities Commission

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many claims have been brought by people living in the Greater London area to the Equal Opportunities Commission in each of the last three years. [200312]

Mr. Sutcliffe: People do not bring claims to the Equal Opportunities Commission (EOC). The EOC provides information on legal rights, what options and steps are available to individuals, and advice on how to take cases to employment tribunal or court.

Fireworks Act

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions she has had with the police on the enforcement of the Fireworks Act 2003. [200518]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department conducted informal, preliminary consultations and formal consultation exercises, which included discussions with the Association of Chief Police Officers and other police representatives, during late 2003 (prior to the making of the emergency Fireworks Regulation 2003) and throughout the summer of 2004, prior to the introduction of the Fireworks Regulations 2004.

Those discussions included matters of policy and practical issues in relation to the enforcement of certain measures in the proposed Fireworks Regulations—measures such as the possession of fireworks in public places by the under 18s; non-professional possession of category 4 fireworks; and breaches of the curfew on fireworks use.

Additionally, the Home Office have also communicated to the police guidance on their new responsibilities and the powers available to them in the course of enforcement.

IAEA Conferences

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the Government were represented at the conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency in (a) Moscow in June and (b) Beijing on 18 to 22 October; and if she will place in the Library the text of Government statements and submissions to each conference. [200222]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The UK Government were not represented at the IAEA International Conference on Fifty Years of Nuclear Power in Moscow in June.

The UK Government were represented at the IAEA International Conference on Topical Issues in Nuclear Installation Safety in Beijing on 18 to 22 October by officials from the Health and Safety Executive. No formal Government statements or submissions were made to the Conference.

Industrial Diseases (Nottinghamshire)

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many claims for (a) chronic bronchitis and emphysema and (b) vibration white finger were concluded for the constituency of Sherwood in (i) 2000, (ii) 2001, (iii) 2002, (iv) 2003 and (v) 2004. [199781]

Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 1 December 2004]: The figures are as follows:

	COPD		VWF
	Settlements[1]	Damages paid[2] (£ million)	Settlements[1]	Damages paid[2] (£ million)
2000	148	0.5	171	1
2001	356	1.4	660	5
2002	781	3.2	893	5.9
2003	1,547	7.2	1,428	9
2004[3]	1,642	4.2	1,287	7.4

[1] Settlements represent claims settled by payment and by denial/withdrawal.
[2] Damages paid represents the total damages paid on claims settled by payment.
[3] Figures for 2004 reflect the position to 21 November 2004.

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many claims for (a) chronic bronchitis and emphysema and (b) vibration white finger were concluded in Nottinghamshire in (i) 2000, (ii) 2001, (iii) 2002, (iv) 2003 and (v) 2004. [199782]

Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 1 December 2004]: The figures are as follows:

	COPD	VWF
2000	553	641
2001	1,560	2,235
2002	3,346	3,382
2003	6,617	5,474
2004	7,239	4,843

Notes:
1. Nottinghamshire is defined by claimants postcode beginning with 'NG'.
2. Settlements represent claims settled by payment and by denial/withdrawal.
3. Figures for 2004 reflect the position to 28 November 2004.

Industrial Tribunals (Greater London)

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many cases are waiting to be heard at industrial tribunals that cover the Greater London area; and what the average time before a case is heard at such a tribunal has been in the last period for which figures are available. [200309]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Employment Tribunal offices that cover the Greater London area are London Central, Stratford, Watford and London South. The numbers of live cases on 31 October 2004 were as follows:

	Live cases at 31 October 2004
Stratford	3,835
Watford	10,500

Note:
It should be noted that not all of these will necessarily result in a hearing.

The Employment Tribunals Service does not measure the average time for cases to be heard. The Agency has a key performance target of 75 per cent. of cases being brought to a first hearing within 26 weeks of the receipt of a claim. The year to date performance at the end of October 2004 for the above offices is as follows:

	Percentage
London Central	78
London South	91
Stratford	72
Watford	80

International Thermonuclear Experimental Reactor

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress has been made in the deliberations within the European Union in respect of the decision on the location of the International Thermonuclear Experimental Reactor (ITER); and what plans there are for multinational responsibilities for the management of radioactive waste arising from ITER. [199697]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The negotiations on the location of ITER are proceeding; the European Commission has been given a mandate to finalise the negotiations. The

The partners are also negotiating the legal agreement on ITER covering management issues. Unlike nuclear fission reactions that generate radioactive waste the end products of the fusion reaction will be helium, which has no harmful effects; any radioactivity will be limited to the walls of the chamber the reaction takes place in.

Nuclear Accidents

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent assessment she has made of the threat of nuclear accident worldwide; and if she will make a statement. [201588]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: There is not a new assessment of the issue, however with respect to nuclear safety at civil sites in the UK, this is the responsibility of the operators who are regulated by the Health and Safety Executive's Nuclear Installations Inspectorate. The UK has in place a stringent regulatory regime which provides for the application of high standards of safety aimed both at minimising radiation exposures from normal operations and at preventing major accidental releases of radioactivity at nuclear installations.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs is nominated lead Minister under National Response Plan arrangements in the unlikely event of a nuclear accident overseas. The UK has in place measures for the early notification of an accident overseas and contingency plans to deal with such an event.

Plutonium Shipment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what role the UK Government played in (a) reviewing and (b) approving the security arrangements provided by the United States and France aboard the Pacific Teal and Pacific Pintail. [200716]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As UK-flagged vessels were used, the UK Government were responsible for the security of the shipment in international waters. At those times when the vessels were within the territorial waters of the United States and France, the main responsibility for the protection of the shipment rested with the United States and France respectively. The on-board security arrangements at these times were reviewed by the Office for Civil Nuclear Security (OCNS) with US/French authorities and were approved as part of the overall Transport Security Plan for the voyage.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the cost was (a) of investigations and (b) in administration to the UK Government in preparation for the transport of plutonium from the United States to France aboard the Pacific Teal and Pacific Pintail. [200717]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: A number of Government by my officials, particularly in the Office for Civil Nuclear Safety (OCNS), who reviewed, co-ordinated and eventually approved the Transport Security Plan for the voyage. OCNS costs will be recovered by BNFL.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the transport ships, Pacific Teal and Pacific Pintail, were operating on Government service in recent movement of plutonium from the US to France. [200718]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The shipment of plutonium between the United States and France using British registered PNTL ships was a commercial matter between the countries and organisations involved. The Office for Civil Nuclear Security (OCNS) approved the security plan for the voyage whilst the ships were in international waters.

Post Office Card Account

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people have applied for a Post Office Card Account in each (a) region and (b) ward. [200550]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information is not available in the format requested. I understand however from the Department for Work and Pensions that the latest information as to how many people have applied for a Post Office Card Account is available in the Library.

R and D Targets

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the planned Government expenditure on research and development is in each financial year from 2005–06 to 2009–10; what the expenditure is on (a) civil and (b) defence in each year; and what the planned Indicative UK contribution is to the European Union budget. [200541]

Nigel Griffiths: Planned Government expenditure on research and development (R and D) in 2005–06 is £9,293 million (in cash terms). Of this, £6,400 million is civil R and D and £2,894 million is defence R and D.

The Office for National Statistics collects data on Government expenditure on research and development via their GOVERD survey. Government Departments and Research Councils report on actual expenditures in the previous financial year, estimated expenditure in the current year and planned expenditure in the two subsequent years. Hence the latest year for which reliable, detailed projections currently exist is 2005–06.

The 2005 EC budget has not yet been adopted, the preliminary draft budget indicates a UK gross contribution of 17.91 per cent. before abatement. UK contributions to the EC budget for the period 2006 to 2010 will depend on a number of factors, including the size of the budget in these years. Traditional Own

Renewable Energy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what initiatives her Department is supporting to develop renewable energy provision in the South West region. [200650]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 30 November 2004]: The development of renewable energy in the South West benefits from the range of initiatives which my Department has put in place to support delivery of the Government's target for 10 per cent. of UK electricity supply in 2010 to come from renewable sources. They include:

The Renewables Obligation, which places a requirement on electricity suppliers to produce a specified and growing proportion of their electricity from renewable sources.

Capital grants for renewables projects such as biomass. My Department is supporting a number of projects in the South West.

In addition, my Department has supported key regional partners (South West Regional Development Agency, Government Office for the South West, South West Regional Assembly) in the development of a regional renewable energy strategy for the South West of England. This sets targets for renewable energy in the region and contains an action plan showing how regional partners will work together to deliver them. A renewables agency, RegenSW, has been established in the region to oversee delivery of the strategy.

Retail Outlets

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent research she has commissioned concerning ownership of retail outlets in the high street. [200935]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has not commissioned any recent research concerning ownership of retail outlets in the high street. Competition issues raised about ownership of retail outlets are a matter for the independent competition authorities to consider.

Supermarkets

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions her Department has had with the Office of Fair Trading concerning the investigation of actions by the five major supermarkets in relation to their small and medium-sized competitors. [200988]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 1 December 2004]: The Department of Trade and Industry discusses a range of issues of mutual interest with officials of the Office of Fair Trading.

The OFT is currently carrying out an independent audit of the Supermarket Code of Practice. That audit is also examining Supermarkets dealings with their suppliers, and we expect the OFT to announce its findings shortly. It would not be appropriate for me to comment in advance of those findings.

Tesco

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent representations she has received concerning the share of the retail market held by Tesco. [200934]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Ministers receive a range of representations from members of the public, MPs and other stakeholders on issues related to supermarkets. Any competition issues raised in this sector are a matter for the independent competition authorities.

UK High Technology Fund

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what financial provision has been made for the UK High Technology Fund in each year since its inception; and what the uptake was in each year. [200529]

Nigel Griffiths: The UK Government provided a total of £20 million to the UK High Technology Fund.

This provision was drawn down by the UK High Technology Fund over two years:

1999	3,000,000
2000	17,000,000

Wind Turbine Projects

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assistance her Department is giving to encourage UK firms to compete in the provision of wind turbine projects in England. [200964]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: There are significant opportunities for UK companies to win a share of the developing onshore and offshore markets. We are working to help UK companies win business in the very competitive wind turbine market. We have published a series of market reports which have identified opportunities for UK businesses and delivered a programme of meet the buyer events which has given UK companies the opportunity to meet the major turbine manufacturers and to discuss supply requirements. DTI also maintains close links with RDA's and regional renewable champions to assist in developing business and identifying inward investment opportunities—which can also create business for UK industry.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Equatorial Guinea

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what actions were taken to establish whether UK nationals were involved in the (a) October 2003 and (b) March 2004 coup attempts in Equatorial Guinea; and what the results were of the investigations. [199891]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 30 November 2004]: I refer the right hon. and learned Gentleman to the written statement I made on Equatorial Guinea on 1 December 2004, Official Report, column 37WS.

European Commission (Departmental Press Releases)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the Whitehall Departments whose default setting is just to put out press releases attacking the European Commission as mentioned by the Minister of Europe in his interview with the Financial Times on 17 November. [200046]

Mr. MacShane: No.

European Constitution

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) why the official text of the EU Treaty on the European Constitution published by the EU differs from the version on the internet; and when he intends to place the UK Government's text of the treaty on the internet; [200475]

(2) how many versions of the treaty establishing the European Constitution his Department has published; what further revisions he expects to be made; and when he anticipates that a final version will be published. [200509]

Mr. MacShane: The Government have striven to provide Parliament with the most up to date texts of the EU constitution since the beginning of treaty negotiations. In doing so, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has published two versions of the treaty as Command Papers. These are the Convention's draft (CONV 850/03) and the Provisional Consolidated Version of the Treaty (CIG86/04) as agreed on 17 June at the European Council. Subsequent revisions of the treaty in light of the jurist-linguist process have been deposited in the Library of the House as they have been published. The most up to date versions of the treaty have also been posted on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website: www.fco.gov.uk, the current version posted being the most recent, CIG87/2/04. The Government have now received the final treaty (the text of which is identical to CIG87/2/04) signed on 29 October and sealed on 8 November and are currently preparing this as a Command Paper to be deposited in Parliament as soon as possible.

European Union

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will announce the logo for the UK Presidency of the EU in July 2005. [200936]

Mr. MacShane: The logo will be made public in early 2005.

Hamas

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he had prior knowledge of recent EU discussions with Hamas; and what assessment he has made of the implications of these discussions for dealing with problems involving proscribed organisations under UK terrorist legislation. [200666]

Mr. Rammell: The Government were aware of EU contacts with Hamas before Hamas was placed on the European Union's list of terrorist organisations in September 2003. These contacts were to support Palestinian Authority efforts to improve security for both Israelis and Palestinians. Since these contacts ceased before the listing, they did not create a problem in relation to our national policy on contacts with proscribed organisations.

Nagaland

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of (a) recent attacks on Christians and (b) the overall security situation in Nagaland. [200120]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The UK Government condemn the persecution of individuals or groups because of their religion or beliefs. The UK Government believe that the democratic process in India is the best protection for a peaceful and secure country. The Government have raised the issues of minorities with the Indian Government, and will continue to urge the Indian authorities to ensure that the right to freedom of religion is upheld, and that those responsible for attacks on religious minorities are brought to justice. The UK Government welcome the remarks by Dr. Manmohan Signh in his first press conference as Prime Minister, when he said

> "We are the most tolerant civilisation and we cannot divide people on the basis of religion and race."

The British High Commission in India continues to monitor developments in Nagaland. A ceasefire remains in place and this has led to a significant improvement in the security situation. A tragic bombing incident took place in Dimapur in early October, which we have strongly condemned. Although the culprits are yet to be identified local observers believe that the incident was perpetrated by outsiders and does not signal a general return to violence. Discussions are proceeding between the Government of India and one of the major militant factions on a political resolution of the conflict. The British High Commissioner visited Nagaland from 13–15 November to update himself on developments.

Turkey/Greece

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to Turkey about the recent Turkish (a) air force violations of Greek airspace and (b) coastguard violations of Greek territorial waters; and if he will make a statement. [199551]

Mr. MacShane: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no recent discussions on this issue with Turkey.

The Government welcomes the contacts which continue between the Governments of Greece and Turkey with a view to the consolidation of improvements in bilateral relations.

Vietnam

Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Vietnam's accession to the World Trade Organisation. [199565]

Mr. MacShane: The Government strongly support Vietnam's accession into the WTO. It believes the WTO delivers benefits for all its members, particularly developing countries. We are pleased that on 9 October the European Commission, which has exclusive competence in such bilateral negotiations on behalf of the EU, agreed bilateral access aspects of the WTO accession for Vietnam. The EU is Vietnam's biggest trading partner and is one of the first to settle bilateral access negotiations with Vietnam.

The Government will continue to support Vietnam's accession as it seeks to conclude bilateral negotiations with a number of other important WTO members (including China, Japan, Australia and the US). The Department for International Development is supporting analytical work on the accession tariff reduction options and possible implications for policies, including social and poverty impacts, in Vietnam.

Vietnam's terms for acceding to the WTO will be based upon the outcome of these bilateral negotiations together with agreement reached at the multilateral level within the WTO Working Party. If agreement is reached at both these levels then we hope Vietnam will accede to the WTO after the organisation's ministerial meeting in Hong Kong in December 2005.

DEFENCE

EU Budget (Defence)

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of the EU budget the UK has agreed should be apportioned to defence and military operations. [200381]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 29 November 2004]: None. Expenditure arising from EU operations having military or defence implications is not charged to the EU budget, as set out in Article 28.3 of the Treaty on the European Union.

Headline Goal 2010

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what scenarios have been adopted by the EU military staff as a basis for force planning to meet the Headline Goal 2010. [200379]

Mr. Hoon: The following illustrative scenarios form the basis for force planning to meet the Headline Goal 2010:

Separation of Parties by Force

Stabilisation, reconstruction and military advice to third countries

Conflict Prevention

Evacuation Operation in a non permissive environment

Assistance to Humanitarian Operations.

Infantry Units

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) into which infantry units the 550 posts freed up from the four redundant regiments would be transferred; and how many are expected to be transferred to (a) logistics, (b) engineers, (c) signals and (d) intelligence; [200012]

(2) what the establishment figures are for the next three years for (a) logistics, (b) engineers, (c) signals and (d) intelligence. [200013]

Mr. Hoon: 537 posts will be reinvested back into the infantry as follows:

	Number of posts
Armoured Infantry	154
Mechanised Infantry	69
Light Infantry	257
Air Assault	48
Pathfinder Platoon	9

The establishments of individual infantry battalions have yet to be determined.

The Army is working on the detail for the Royal Logistic Corps, the Royal Engineers, the Royals Corps of Signals and the Intelligence Corps. Once the numbers have been finalised, I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Parachute Battalion (Deployment)

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) when was the last time that a parachute battalion force was deployed on operations using parachutes as the main entry into the theatre; and what the theatre of operation was; [201004]

(2) how many in role parachute battalions there are in the Army. [201005]

Mr. Ingram: The last time a battalion of the Parachute Regiment deployed on operations using parachutes as the main entry into the theatre was during the Suez crisis in November 1956. As my hon. Friend will be aware, elements of the Parachute Regiment are traditionally held at very high readiness and are often among the first forces to deploy in any operational theatre.

I am sure my hon. Friend will also recall that approximately 1,000 paratroopers from the US Army's 173rd Airborne Brigade parachuted into Northern Iraq in March 2003 and seized an air field in Kurdish controlled territory less than 30 miles from the Turkish border; clearly demonstrating that this method remains a valid form of entry in to an operational theatre.

There are currently three battalions of the Parachute Regiment in an airborne role.

Regiments

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, whether he intends to reduce the number of battalions in the (a) Royal Regiment of Fusiliers, (b) Royal Anglian Regiment and (c) Princess of Wales's Royal Regiment; and if he will make a statement. [200652]

Mr. Ingram [holding reply 30 November 2004]: As my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence announced in July, the reduction in the number of forces committed to Northern Ireland means that the overall requirement for infantry battalions can be reduced by four. This reduction will comprise one battalion from Scotland and three from England.

In addition, the decision to phase out the Infantry Arms Plot means that a new infantry structure is required. This new structure will seek to preserve the best elements of the regimental system while adapting to ensure operational success for the future. The new structure will be based on large regiments of two or more battalions. Details of the new organisation are still being worked through but we hope to make an announcement before the Christmas Recess.

Trident

Mr. Lyons: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what assessment his Department has made on the future use of Trident. [200122]

Mr. Hoon: The Government's policy on nuclear weapons was set out in the Strategic Defence Review. I refer my hon. Friend to Chapter Four and Supporting Essay Five.

HOME DEPARTMENT

National Centre for Replacement, Refinement and Reduction

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of members on the board of the National Centre for Replacement, Refinement and Reduction have expertise in the area of replacement. [200697]

Ms Hewitt: I have been asked to reply.

The National Centre for Replacement, Refinement and Reduction (NC3Rs) is committed to advancing and implementing the principles of all three of the 3Rs (Replacement, Refinement and Reduction of the use of Animals in Research). Membership of its Board is intended to reflect this remit. Members are appointed in a personal capacity and have expertise in a range of issues relating to the 3Rs, including five members with experience in replacement alternatives. When additional expertise in any area is needed this will be sought through consultation.

HEALTH

Asthma

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received on the asthma indicators in the Quality and Outcomes Framework for general practitioners; and if he will make a statement. [201509]

Mr. Hutton: The Department has not received any formal representations on the asthma indicators in the Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF).

An independent review group is being established to make recommendations for changes to the QOF. Recommendations which are agreed can be implemented from April 2006.

The independent review group has being set up by the Employers Organisation (EO), on behalf of the Department. As far as we are aware, the EO has not yet received any representations on the asthma indicators in the QOF.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will include criteria on self-management and inhaler technique in the asthma indicators in the Quality and Outcomes Framework; and if he will make a statement. [201510]

Mr. Hutton: The Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF) indicator Asthma 6 provides up to 20 points, worth £1,550 to an average practice, to practices which ensure that their patients with asthma have an asthma review every 15 months. The QOF supplementary documents state that this asthma review should include the assessment of inhaler technique and the creation of a personalised care plan, which may include self-management, where appropriate.

In addition, QOF indicator chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), provides up six points, worth £465 to an average practice, to practices which ensure that their patients with COPD who are receiving inhaled treatment have their inhaler technique checked every 27 months.

Buckinghamshire Mental Health Trust

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many (a) managers and (b) other staff resigned from Buckinghamshire Mental Health Trust in (i) 2001, (ii) 2002 and (iii) 2003; [201468]

(2) how many (a) managers and (b) staff had their duties reassigned by Buckinghamshire Mental Health Trust in (i) 2001, (ii) 2002 and (iii) 2003. [201470]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information about the number of managers and other staff who have resigned from Buckinghamshire Mental Health Trust or had their duties reassigned is not centrally held.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms Buckinghamshire Mental Health Trust has in place to deal with complaints made to it by members of the public. [201469]

Ms Rosie Winterton: All national health service bodies, including NHS trusts, are required to have a complaints procedure in line with the National Health Service (Complaints) Regulations 2004, which came into force on 30 July 2004. Prior to the regulations, they were required by directions to have a complaints procedure.

The regulations are supported by national guidance published by the Department, and set out the statutory framework for the handling of complaints by NHS bodies, and the independent review of complaints by the Healthcare Commission, where local resolution has been unsuccessful in resolving matters.

The regulations require NHS trusts to have a written complaints procedure that is freely available to anyone who asks for it.

More information about regulations 2004, and departmental guidance is available on the Department's website at http://www.dh.gov.uk.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many mental health beds were available in Buckinghamshire in (a) 2001, (b) 2002 and (c) 2003; and what the average occupancy rates were in each year. [201471]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The average daily number of available beds and occupancy rates for Buckinghamshire is shown in the following table.

	Mental health beds available	Average occupancy rate (percentage)
2001–02	221	89.2
2002–03	261	89.0
2003–04	254	88.0

Notes:
1. The figures are only available for financial years rather than calendar years.
2. The figures are based on the three Buckinghamshire trusts—Buckinghamshire mental health trust, South Buckinghamshire national health service trust and Stoke Mandeville Hospital NHS trust.

Children's Hospices

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate his Department has made of how many terminally ill children are waiting to be placed in a children's hospice; [199880]

(2) how many hospice beds are available for terminally ill children in (a) England, (b) the South West region and (c) Dorset; and if he will make a statement; [199881]

(3) how many terminally ill children have died in each of the past five years in (a) a hospice and (b) a hospital; and if he will make a statement. [199883]

Dr. Ladyman: Information is not collected centrally on the number of terminally ill children waiting to be placed in a children's hospice, the number of hospice beds available for terminally ill children or the number of terminally ill children who have died in hospital or a hospice in the last five years. The national service framework (NSF) for children, which we published on 15 September, is a 10-year strategy which recognises that high quality palliative care services should be available for all children and young people who need them. Children's hospices have an important place in the network of services that need to work together to provide palliative care. The NSF emphasises that services should be provided where the child or family want—in the home, or in a hospital, hospice or other setting. With the substantial growth money we are investing in the national health service and in the light of "National Standards, Local Action", our health and social care standards and planning framework, primary care trusts have the flexibility to plan how full implementation of the NSF will be achieved to meet local needs.

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the time scale is for the implementation of the recommendations made by the Health Select Committee in its Fourth Report of Session 2003–04 on Palliative Care, HC454, with particular reference to palliative care services for children; and if he will make a statement. [199882]

Dr. Ladyman: Palliative care for children is covered in the national service framework (NSF) for children, young people and maternity services, which we published on 15 September. As stated in the Government's response to the Select Committee report, the NSF recognises the importance of high quality standards and service provision in the transition from adolescent to adult services and that parents of children with a terminal illness may require additional support. We have set a 10-year time scale for the full implementation of the NSF. With the substantial growth money we are investing in the NHS and in the light of "National Standards, Local Action", our health and social care standards and planning framework, primary care trusts have the flexibility to plan how full implementation of the NSF will be achieved to meet local needs.

Community Pharmacy Contract

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the new community pharmacy contract will incorporate elements of the pharmaceutical public health strategy, as described in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 45. [199446]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The new pharmacy contractual framework is being implemented from April 2005. It provides a sound platform for community pharmacy to expand its contribution to improving health, working at the heart of local communities. The framework provides real opportunities to offer health messages and advice on matters such as stopping smoking, diet, alcohol and physical activity to people presenting prescriptions with, for example, diabetes, coronary heart disease and supporting people in making healthy lifestyle choices to improve their health.

The strategy for pharmaceutical public health will be published in 2005. It will demonstrate how all pharmacists, their staff and the premises in which they work can contribute to improving health and reducing health inequalities. Following publication, we will invite the Pharmaceutical Services Negotiating Committee and National Health Service Confederation to consider with us any further necessary steps to ensure the new contractual framework fully reflects the strategy.

Diabetes

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, if he will make a statement on the European Council of Health Ministers' statement on diabetes; and if there will be a similar Council statement after the next meeting in December. [200040]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The European Council of Health Ministers' statement described the health impacts of diabetes, its risk factors, and the predicted rise in prevalence of the condition across Europe. Using cardiovascular disease and cancer strategies as examples, the paper also suggested a European strategy for diabetes.

We are aware that the incidence of diabetes is rising. The national service framework (NSF) for diabetes aims to provide a world-class service for people with diabetes in England. The diabetes NSF was published in two parts: the standards document, published in December 2001, set out 12 standards in nine areas, covering the prevention, identification and management of diabetes, and surveillance for and management of its complications. The delivery strategy, published in January 2003, builds on the standards and offers the framework for a systematic programme of reform. The delivery strategy advocates how local progress can be made to ensure that the national health service is able to reach the NSF Standards by 2013.

I understand there are no plans to make a similar statement at the Council's next meeting.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200173]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on 29 November 2004, Official Report, columns 10–11W.

Food Additives

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what assessment his Department has made of the effects of over-consumption of (a) potassium sorbate and (b) sodium benzoate; and if he will make a statement. [200423]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The authorisation process for food additives, including potassium sorbate and sodium benzoate, is designed to protect against over consumption. An acceptable daily intake (ADI) is established, by independent experts, which represents the amount of the additive that can be consumed daily over a lifetime without appreciable risk to health. For many food additives, including potassium sorbate and sodium benzoate, strict limits are set on the amount that can be added to different types of food to ensure that ADIs are not exceeded.

Fuel Poverty

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the impact of fuel poverty on health; and what research his Department has (a) received and (b) supported into the impact of fuel poverty interventions on health. [200555]

Miss Melanie Johnson: It is well known that fuel poverty is a significant contributor to excess winter mortality. In addition, it is likely that there are other more subtle effects on health arising from fuel poverty.

The Department is represented on the steering group of the health impact evaluation of "Warm Front", jointly commissioned by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Welsh Assembly. Its objectives are

> To evaluate the impact of key "Warm Front" interventions on householders' quality of life, mental and physical health, and risk of cold-related death.
> To identify the potential of energy efficiency measures in general to improve householders' health and quality of life.
> To assess the impact of key "Warm Front" interventions on the utilisation of health care services.

Health Poverty Index

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what ways the Health Poverty Index, as described in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 28, will differ from the health deprivation and disability domain indices contained within the Index of Multiple Deprivation produced by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. [199447]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Health Poverty Index includes the same indicators of the state of health and disability contained in the Index of Multiple Deprivation plus additional indicators, not available in the Index of Multiple Deprivation that measures the potential for good health or the risk of ill health. The Health Poverty Index is now available at http://www.hpi.org.uk.

Health Trainers

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate his Department has made of the cost of employing NHS accredited health trainers; [199472]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of NHS health trainers, as defined in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, which will be needed to provide universal access for those entitled to NHS care for this service; and what criteria NHS health trainers will be required to meet to obtain accreditation; [199473]

(3) what consultation his Department has had with (a) primary care and (b) general practice bodies on the establishment of NHS health trainers; and if he will make a statement. [199476]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Choosing Health consultation prompted many recommendations from specialist task groups and responses from organisations and the wider public. Representatives from primary care were involved in the primary care task group and responses to the Choosing Health consultation document were received from across the national health service.

A key theme in the recommendations and replies was the need to promote health and healthy lifestyles and for the NHS to take a lead. As a response to those views, the White Paper, Choosing Health, announced the establishment of NHS health trainers. We will be working with the Faculty of Public Health and other appropriate professional bodies as the detailed plans for NHS health trainers are developed.

From 2006, NHS trainers will be providing support to people in disadvantaged areas and progressively from 2007 across the country. This will involve a mix of full and part-time accredited NHS trainers and others, for example, trainers working in the voluntary sector, some of whom could carry out this role as part of their main job. There is no firm figure for the total number of accredited trainers as there will be a number of different models for delivering this service. During 2005–06, we will be piloting local models.

The method of accreditation will be based on completion of formal training with built-in standards and quality assurance.

The planning assumption, based on existing evidence and best practice, is that they will be broadly similar in salary and related employer costs to health care assistants and other NHS staff with comparable skills.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether NHS health trainer will be a title protected by the Health Professions Council; and if he will make a statement. [199474]

Mr. Hutton: When the role of national health service health trainer is established and the competences and training agreed, it will be a matter for the Health Professions Council, as independent statutory regulator, to consider whether to recommend regulation with protection of title. The health trainer role will be piloted in spearhead primary care trusts from 2005.

Hospital Capacity

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he will take to ensure that hospital capacity matches increased demand in areas designated for high levels of new house building. [199497]

Mr. Hutton: It is for strategic health authorities (SHAs) to ensure that capacity is in place to meet the needs of their local population and deliver the 2005–06 to 2006–07 planning framework.

To support this, the Department, with SHAs, has developed guidance for local capacity planning. This recommends that, as a basis for capacity planning, SHAs need to model demand for services, including understanding changes to population and demographics. This guidance is available on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/08/28/32/04082832.pdf.

The Department allocates revenue funding to primary care trusts (PCTs) on the basis of the relative needs of their populations. A weighted capitation formula is used to calculate PCT's target shares of available resources, based on population size, age and additional need, and unavoidable geographical variations in the cost of providing services, which then

As announced to Parliament on 15 March 2004, an extra £20 million, per annum, of revenue funding in 2004–05 and 2005–06 will be allocated to primary care trusts (PCTs) and £20 million of capital resources in 2005–06 will be allocated to SHAs.

The Department has also agreed to give priority to Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) growth areas for future local improvement finance trust schemes and to include a growth area adjustment for ODPM growth areas in the next round of PCT allocations.

Mental Health

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many mentally ill young people aged between 16 and 18 years are held under the Mental Health Act 1983; what proportion of these people are held on adult psychiatric wards; and if he will make a statement. [199755]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not collected centrally.

In the three years to March 2006, we are investing some £300 million in child and adolescent mental services (CAMHS). Our plans to increase CAMHS provision will reduce the incidence of placing children and young people on adult psychiatric wards, but will take time to eliminate.

Placing adolescents on adult psychiatric wards is sometimes necessary and acceptable for clinical or practical reasons. Our plans to increase CAMHS provision will help deliver the marker of good practice in the children's national service framework which states that > '. . . young people who require admission to hospital for mental health care have access to appropriate care in an environment suited to their age and development'.

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has undertaken into (a) demand for and (b) the supply of infant mental health specialists; and if he will make a statement. [199773]

Dr. Ladyman: No such research has been undertaken. The Department's 2003 child and adolescent mental health service (CAMHS) mapping exercise found that of all the children being seen by CAMHS professionals, 6.5 per cent. were aged four years and under.

We are committed to ensuring that CAMHS are able to provide high quality services for children in all age groups, including infancy. The children's national service framework recommends that:

> 'Primary Care Trusts and Local Authorities ensure that CAMH Tier 2 and 3 services with specialist expertise, are available to provide assessment and therapeutic support for infants/young children and their families to promote parent child relationships and address attachment difficulties'.

NHS Care Costs

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the average time taken to complete an investigation into recompensing someone who has been inappropriately denied fully-funded NHS care was in

(2) what percentage of cases notified by 31 March of people who may have been inappropriately denied fully-funded NHS care have been completed; [201463]

(3) what the latest available figures for progress with restitution cases in continuing care are; [201464]

(4) what percentage of cases of individuals who may have been inappropriately denied fully-funded NHS care had been fully investigated on the most recent date for which figures are available; and in what percentage of cases investigated recompense has been granted; [201465]

(5) how many complaints he has received since 1 January as part of the ongoing investigations into recompensing people inappropriately denied fully-funded NHS care; and how many such cases have been investigated to completion. [201466]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department has been working with all strategic health authorities to ensure that they have robust processes in place to clear any backlog of pre-April cases and to process subsequent cases thoroughly, quickly and efficiently. I have no additional statistical information beyond that included in my written ministerial statement on continuing care on 16 September 2004, Official Report, columns 175–76WS.

NHS Staff

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what forecasts have been made by his Department's work force planners of the number of additional medical and nursing staff over the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [200596]

Mr. Hutton: "Delivering the NHS Plan" included forecasts of expected growth in the national health service work force. By 2008, there are expected to be 15,000 more consultants and general practitioners (GPs) and 35,000 more qualified nurses and midwives. These expectations are headcounts and have not been broken down by year.

The expected increase for nurses and midwives has been achieved early. Between September 2001 and March 2004, the number of headcount nurses and midwives increased by 46,978 and between September 2001 and June 2004, consultants and GPs has increased by 6,719.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) general medical practitioners and (b) practice nurses there were in each strategic health authority for each year since 1997, broken down by (i) whole-time equivalent and (ii) headcount. [201524]

Mr. Hutton: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) hospital, public health medicine and community health service (HCHS) medical and dental staff, (b) consultants and (c) HCHS qualified nursing, midwifery and health visiting staff there were in each year since 1997, broken down by (i) whole time equivalent and (ii) headcount in each (A) NHS Trust and (B) Strategic Health Authority. [201525]

Mr. Hutton: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

NHS Walk-in Centres

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many new NHS walk-in centres his Department plans to establish; where the new centres will be sited; and which groups will be permitted to bid to run them. [201528]

Mr. Hutton: National health service walk-in centres are now an established service. There are 61 centres open and a further 21 in development by primary care trusts, with more to follow in future years. Alongside this, the Department has invited proposals from potential providers to establish NHS walk-in centres whose services will focus on the working population. The initial seven centres will be located in London, Leeds, Newcastle and Manchester.

Nosocomial Viruses

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nosocomial cases of small round structured viruses there were in (a) England and (b) each strategic health authority in each year since 1997. [199921]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Health Protection Agency (HPA) has a voluntary reporting system for outbreaks of gastroenteritis, including those caused by norovirus, formerly known as small round structured virus, norwalk or norwalk-like virus.

Since January 1997 to 25 November 2004, there have been 874 outbreaks of gastroenteritis in hospitals caused by norovirus, affecting 24,076 people. The information, broken down by region and year, is shown in the table. Data broken down by strategic health authority or month are not available. Studies of outbreaks of norovirus in hospitals suggest about 40 per cent. of cases occur in staff.

Out-patients (Travel Costs)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what help is available towards reimbursing travel costs for the transportation of children to hospital clinics for out-patient treatment following a serious operation, when the care and treatment required is not available locally. [209565]

Dr. Ladyman: The same help is available for both child and adult patients requiring help with transport to an out-patient clinic following a serious operation.

This is determined firstly by the patient's medical need for the use of the patient transport service, as assessed by a doctor, dentist or midwife. If the patient does not have a medical need for patient transport but is eligible for help under the hospital travel costs scheme, they should claim via the national health service trust, within three months of travel, for a reimbursement.

Paediatric Services

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many paediatric allergy specialists there are in England; and what the ratio is of paediatric allergy specialists per child in England. [199758]

Mr. Hutton: Paediatric allergy is a sub-specialty of paediatrics. Sub-specialty level data are not collected by the Department.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) headcount and (b) whole-time equivalent medical staff there were in the NHS in England working within the paediatrics group of specialties in each year since 1992, broken down by region; and how many there were per head of population. [199922]

Mr. Hutton: The standard ratio used by the Department is per 100,000 population. The information requested is shown in the tables.

Post Mortems

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice he is giving to strategic health authorities and trusts in the south-west regarding the current capacity constraints in the carrying out of post mortems on babies and children. [199816]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department is aware of the current capacity difficulties in paediatric pathology in the south-west of England, and is reassured that the local health community is taking steps to resolve them. More generally, the Department is addressing nationally the pressures facing this important subspecialty through initiatives to increase the number of histopathologists working in the national health service. These include the international fellowships programme, the histopathology training schools scheme and the conversion fellowships scheme. The latter is an innovative initiative to enable existing consultant histopathologists to re-train as paediatric pathologists.

Prisoners (Mental Health)

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, how many people are employed to treat mental health disorders in each prison establishment. [201057]

Dr. Ladyman: This information is not available. Most healthcare staff working in prison establishments will be involved in some way in the care and treatment of prisoners with mental health problems. We have met, and exceeded, the commitment in the NHS Plan that, by 2004, 300 additional staff would be employed to provide mental health services for prisoners.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what mental health programmes are available to prisoners upon release from prison. [201058]

Dr. Ladyman: Released prisoners can access the full range of mental health services available to the population in which they become resident. An important function of national health service mental health in-reach teams working in prisons is to ensure effective through-care for prisoners with serious mental health problems, to be followed up by support from appropriate mental health services on release.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prisoners have been (a) diagnosed with and (b) treated for mental health disorders in each year since 1997, broken down by prison establishment. [201059]

Dr. Ladyman: This information is not available in the form requested. A survey of mental ill health in the prison population of England and Wales, undertaken in 1997 by the Office for National Statistics, showed that around 90 per cent. of prisoners sampled displayed evidence of at least one of the five disorders—personality disorder, psychosis, neurosis, alcohol misuse and drug dependence—considered in the survey. There will, at any one time, be around 5,000 prisoners with a severe mental illness, although not all of them will be acutely ill.

Prison establishments and their local national health service partners are responsible for assessing the health needs of their populations and developing appropriate services to meet them. NHS-funded prison mental health in-reach teams were providing community type mental health services in 90 establishments in England by March 2004.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on incidence of mental health disorders amongst ethnic minority prisoners. [201060]

Dr. Ladyman: In 1997, the Office for National Statistics undertook a survey of mental ill health in the prison population of England and Wales. The report of that survey, Psychiatric morbidity among prisoners in England and Wales (1998), a copy of which is available in the Library, included a range of information on the prevalence of specific mental health problems in black and minority ethnic prisoners.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the effectiveness of mental health service (a) provision and (b) interventions in prisons. [201061]

Dr. Ladyman: The current model of service, that of a community mental health team, used in prisons reflects the current model of choice in contemporary mental health services in the national health service. An independent academically led project to evaluate the effectiveness of prison mental health services has begun.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what programmes are in place to ensure swift identification of prisoners with mental health disorders upon arrival at prison establishments; and which prison establishments operate such programmes. [201062]

Dr. Ladyman: The Prison Service and the Department are introducing a revised reception health screening process designed to identify prisoners with immediate health care needs, or who are at significant risk of a serious health problem. The new process focuses explicitly on ensuring prompt and effective identification of individuals with mental health problems.

The new reception screening arrangements have been introduced at the following establishments in England: Durham, Eastwood Park, Feltham, Glen Parva, Holme House, Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester, New Hall, Wandsworth, Brixton, Bedford, Lewes, Preston, Styal, Wormwood Scrubs, Woodhill, Dorchester, Exeter, Lincoln, Norwich, Pentonville, Hull, Chelmsford, Nottingham, Hindley, Altcourse, Blakenhurst, Bristol, Brinsford, Gloucester, Highdown, Forest Bank, Onley, Shrewsbury, Stoke Heath, Elmley, Brockhill, Bullingdon, Long Lartin, Lancaster Farms, Wetherby, Wakefield, Holloway, Belmarsh, Full Sutton, Huntercombe, Reading, Werrington, Low Newton, Kirkham, Morton Hall, Foston Hall. Work is under way to ensure that the new arrangements are in operation at the remainder of establishments that receive prisoners direct from court by April 2005.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which prisons operate permanent community mental health teams. [201063]

Dr. Ladyman: The following prison establishments in England, 90 in total, have established community mental health team (CMHT) format services as part of waves one, two and three of the national prison mental health programme.

Wave one—introduced during 2001–02—Belmarsh, Birmingham, Brixton, Bullwood Hall, Chelmsford, Durham, Eastwood Park, Feltham, Frankland, Holloway, Leeds, Leicester, Pentonville, Wandsworth, Winchester, Whitemoor, Woodhill and Wormwood Scrubs.

Wave two—introduced during 2002–03—Ashfield, Bedford, Blakenhurst, Bristol, Brockhill, Dorchester, Exeter, Glen Parva, Holme House, Hull, Lewes, Lincoln, Liverpool, Long Lartin, Manchester, Moorland, New Hall, Norwich, Nottingham, Onley, Parkhurst, Portland, Preston, Rochester, Styal, and Wakefield.

Wave three—introduced during 2003–04—Albany/Camp Hill, Altcourse, Aylesbury, Blantyre House, Brinsford, Buckley Hall, Bullingdon, Canterbury, Castington, Coldingley, Cookham Wood, Dartmoor, Deerbolt, Doncaster, Dovegate, Drake Hall, Elmley, Forest Bank, Foston Hall; Full Sutton, Garth, Gartree, Gloucester, Haverigg, Highdown, Highpoint North/Highpoint South, Hindley, Hollesley Bay/Warren Hill, Huntercombe, Kingston, Lancaster Farms, Littlehey, Low Newton, Maidstone, Northallerton, Reading, Risley, Shrewsbury, Stafford, Stoke Heath, Swaleside, Swinfen Hall, Thorn Cross, Werrington, Wetherby, and Wolds.

All remaining establishments—wave four—have now received funding for the commencement of CMHT format services, although, for some, such funding has been provided to facilitate an assessment of service need rather than a fully functional service. Not all establishments will require fully funded CMHT format services. Establishments where the need was highest were targeted in waves one to three.

Public Health White Paper

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans the Government have to extend the policy objectives set out in the Public Health White Paper through EU-wide action. [199852]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 1 December 2004]: The Government will be working within the European Union to carry forward action on relevant policy objectives contained in the "Choosing Health" White Paper. We will also be pursuing wider White Paper aims through the United Kingdom presidency next year, notably through the public health theme, "Empowering People, Reducing Inequalities".

Residential and Nursing Homes

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many residential and nursing home beds were available in (a) England and (b) each local authority, at the end of each year since 1996–97. [200592]

Dr. Ladyman: Information showing the number of residential care home places in England and councils with social services responsibilities (CSSRs) for adults aged 18 and over, at 31 March for the years 1997 to 2001, and the number of nursing home places in England and health authorities for adults aged 18 and over, at 31 March for the years 1997 to 2001, has been placed in the Library.

Figures for later years were collected by the National Care Standards Commission and now the Commission for Social Care Inspection, but comparable details are not available.

Sexual Health

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will encourage health authorities to use both molecular and serological techniques to detect chlamydia trachomatis; [199433]

(2) what assessment has been made of the (a) cost and (b) diagnostic accuracy of (i) serology and (ii) antibody testing for chlamydia trachomatis; [199434]

(3) if he will commission a comparison of diagnostic techniques for chlamydia trachomatis covering all possible samples on persons of different ages from different socio-economic backgrounds; [199435]

(4) how much was spent on (a) screening and (b) molecular techniques in relation to chlamydia trachomatis in each of the last five years; [199436]

(5) if the Government will use some of the funds allocated for sexually transmitted diseases on comparing molecular and serological techniques in relation to chlamydia trachomatis; [199437]

(6) what methods are being assessed for detection of asymptomatic and deep-seated chlamydia trachomatis infections which molecular testing cannot detect. [199438]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The latest evidence on the prevalence of chlamydia suggests that up to 300,000 sexually active 16 to 24-year-olds may have undiagnosed chlamydia, and addressing this is a priority for the Department, through the national chlamydia screening programme. The recently published White Paper on public health committed additional funding of £80 million to accelerate the roll-out of this programme by 2007.

Evidence shows that the use of urine tests for chlamydia, such as the nucleic acid amplification test (NAATs), is the most appropriate and sensitive method to use for the national chlamydia screening programme, where the test has to be simple, safe, precise, validated and acceptable to the population being screened.

The use of blood tests to diagnose chlamydia is undeniably useful in certain circumstances, for example, more detailed diagnostic testing in cases of infertility. The decision on the method of testing offered to patients, however, is a clinical one, made at the discretion of medical physicians, and will be made locally.

The Government have no plans to commission a comparison of diagnostic techniques for chlamydia trachomatis, nor a comparison of molecular and serological techniques.

The Department has invested £13.5 million in the national chlamydia screening programme over the three years 2002–03 to 2004–05, plus a further £7 million in 2004–05 to improve access to NAATs.

Telecommunications Masts

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what plans he has to investigate the potential health hazards of telecommunications mast emissions. [200132]

Miss Melanie Johnson: This year, the National Radiological Protection Board's (NRPB) independent Advisory Group on Non-Ionising Radiation (AGNIR) reviewed all the research on possible health effects from exposure to radiofrequency fields since the Independent Expert Group on mobile phones and health (the Stewart Report) published in 2000. AGNIR concluded that "Exposure levels from living near to mobile phone base stations are extremely low and the overall evidence indicates that they are unlikely to pose a risk to health." Exposure measurements are documented on the websites of the NRPB at www.nrpb.org and Ofcom at www.ofcom.org.uk.

The potential health effects of radiofrequency from mobile phone technology more generally are being investigated under the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research (MTHR) Programme at www.mthr.org.uk. Two projects within this programme have been designed specifically to investigate the effects of exposure from mobile phone base stations.

Summaries of ail the MTHR projects can be seen on the website.

CABINET OFFICE

Civil Service (Pay Negotiations)

Paul Holmes: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what the estimated number of staff days in all departments, agencies and other civil service organisations involved in conducting pay negotiations across the civil service was in the period April 2003 to March 2004. [200963]

Ruth Kelly: Responsibility for pay and appraisal systems, outside of the senior civil service, is delegated to departments and agencies. This information is not held centrally as any negotiations that take place regarding pay arrangements are the responsibility of individual departments and agencies.

Civil Service Pensions

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how the figures for (a) public service-wide additional costs for future service of £150 million per annum and (b) a public service-wide one-off cost of £3 billion to cover all past service in respect of the amendment of the pre-2002 Civil Service Pension Scheme to allow widows and widowers of civil servants who remarry or cohabit to retain their pension rights were calculated; how soon the additional costs would taper off; and if she will make a statement. [200023]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the response I gave him on 13 October 2004, Official Report, column 317W, which relates to the costs for public service schemes as a whole. Any change to Civil Service Pension arrangements would have implications for other public service schemes.

The costs for the public service schemes as a whole break down into the following elements:

(1) the cost of reinstating all widow(er) pensions already stopped following remarriage and

(2) the cost of not stopping pensions for

(a) existing widow(er)s

(b) future widow(er)s of pensioners and deferred pensioners and

(c) future widow(er)s of active members

The Government Actuary estimated "past service costs", that is, capitalised costs of items (1), (2)(a), (2)(b) and the accrued service element of item (2)(c) at around £3 billion in the year 2000.

The future service element of item (2)(c) was estimated to cost an additional £150 million per year.

For the pre 2002 Civil Service Pension Scheme alone, it is estimated that it will take about 10 years for the cash flow in relation to current pensioners to peak and then begin to taper off. For current active and deferred members it is estimated that the cash flow associated with past service costs would peak in around 25 years and then begin to taper off. Future service costs would continue for between 30 and 40 years.

Equal Pay

John McDonnell: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what (a) proportion and (b) number of departments, agencies and other civil service organisations carried out an equal pay audit or review in 2004; what steps are being taken in response to the reviews; and what plans she has for further periodic equality reviews. [200585]

Ruth Kelly: Every department and agency produced an equal pay action plan in 2003 as part of the Government's commitment to address the gender pay gap. Cabinet Office continues to encourage civil service organisations to monitor progress with their action plans and to review their pay systems following implementation of pay awards for equality proofing purposes.

Responsibility for conducting equal pay audits and reviews, outside the senior civil service, is delegated to departments and agencies. Information regarding more recent equal pay audits will be held at a local level.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many written questions for the Department were unanswered when Parliament Prorogued; and how many of the unanswered questions were tabled in each of the previous months of the 2003–04 Session. [201542]

Ruth Kelly: None.

Performance Assessment

John McDonnell: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office (1) what the difference was between average (a) men's and (b) women's performance assessment at each grade, band or salary range, broken down by (i) national and (ii) London rates in each department at the latest date for which figures are available; [200588]

(2) what the difference was between performance assessment by (a) ethnic group, (b) disabled and able-bodied and (c) part-time and full-time employees at each grade, band or salary range, broken down by (i) national and (ii) London rates in each Department at the latest date for which figures are available. [200589]

Ruth Kelly: Responsibility for pay and appraisal systems, outside of the senior civil service, is delegated to departments and agencies. The information requested is not held centrally as any analysis of performance assessments will be conducted at a local level.

Public Engagements

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many public engagements he has fulfilled since September. [201046]

Mr. Milburn [holding answer 30 November 2004]: My recent public engagements have been:

9 November 2004(Speech to the Institute of Public Policy Research at the University of London.

11 November 2004(Regional visit to the south east.

23 November 2004(Speech at the Guardian Public Services Awards, at the Victoria and Albert Museum.

25 November 2004(Regional visit to Wales.

30 November 2004(Speech at the Lunch of the Association of Chief Executive of Voluntary Organisations (ACEVO), commission of Inquiry Report(the Guardian Newsroom.

In addition and from time to time I meet individuals and organisations outside Government.

Special Advisers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what responsibilities he has given to his special adviser; [201655]

(2) what hours his special adviser is contracted to work for him in his ministerial capacity; [201656]

(3) whether his special adviser is paid on a full-time basis; [201657]

(4) whether his special adviser works for (a) him other than in his ministerial capacity and (b) any other Minister; [201658]

(5) whether his special adviser takes part in non-civil service political activity during hours in which he is contracted to work for him. [201659]

Mr. Milburn: I have one full-time and one part-time special adviser. The adviser who works part-time also works for the Prime Minister. Both advisers are employed under terms and conditions set out in the Code of Conduct and Model Contract for Special Advisers. These documents set out details of working hours, involvement in political activities and duties and responsibilities.

Web Content Accessibility Guidelines

Paul Holmes: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office whether her Department monitors the compliance of .gov.uk websites with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines. [199618]

Ruth Kelly: There is no centralised system of monitoring UK Government websites for compliance with the W3C's "Web Content Accessibility Guidelines" and the accessibility levels they define.

The Cabinet Office published the "Guidelines for UK Government websites" in 2002 to assist public sector web developers with the application of the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines. The Department has extensively promoted accessibility awareness and continues to keep web accessibility standards and technical developments under review. Responsibility for the application of the W3C's guidelines rests with individual Government Departments, agencies and local authorities.

We have recently updated the terms and conditions for the use of .gov.uk domain names to require all new websites to maintain the high level of accessibility detailed in the Guidelines for UK Government websites.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office whether her Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if she will make a statement. [199623]

Ruth Kelly: The Cabinet Office is responsible for 48 .gov.uk websites. 23 of these, including the main Cabinet Office site www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk, comply with the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG).

Under the Cabinet Office's Better Internet Project, all of the Department's websites will be fully WCAG compliant by mid 2006.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what percentage of local authority detected frauds resulted in prosecutions in each year since 1997. [200117]

Mr. Pond: The number of cases of benefit fraud detected is not available. The number of cases resulting in prosecution and cases resulting in conviction is in the following table.

Benefit fraud prosecutions by local authorities

	Prosecutions	Convictions
1997–98	n/a	700
1998–99	n/a	800
1999–2000	n/a	900
2000–01	n/a	1,100
2001–02	2,101	1,732
2002–03	3,187	2,503
2003–04	4,601	3,747

Notes:

1. Figures for convictions prior to 2001–02 have been rounded to the nearest 100 because they include estimated values for non-responding local authorities.
2. Figures for prosecutions which did not lead to conviction are not available prior to 2001–02.

Source:

From 2001–02 onwards the numbers are taken from local authority subsidy claim forms. Prior to this the numbers are taken from management information returns.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have claimed incapacity benefit in Pendle in each year since 1997. [201013]

Maria Eagle: The information is in the following table.

Incapacity benefits claimants in the Pendle parliamentary constituency

May	Number
1997	5,700
1998	5,800
1999	5,400
2000	5,300
2001	5,600
2002	5,400
2003	5,300
2004	5,400

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 100. Totals may not sum due to rounding.
2. Figures include all incapacity benefit (IB), severe disablement allowance and IB national insurance credits only cases.
3. Parliamentary constituencies are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant postcode directory.

Correspondence

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he will reply to the letter dated 26 August from the hon. Member for Banff and Buchan regarding the motability scheme. [201258]

Maria Eagle: I have replied to the hon. Member on 1 December 2004.

Disability Benefits

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people living in the London borough of Wandsworth are receiving the disability income guarantee; and if he will make a statement. [200306]

Mr. Pond: The disability income guarantee is paid by means of enhanced disability premiums through income support, jobseeker's allowance (income based), housing benefit and council tax benefit.

Housing benefit and council tax benefit information is not available below Government Office Region level.

The information for income support and income-based jobseekers allowance is in the following table.

Income support (IS) and jobseekers allowance (income based) (JSA(IB) claimants with an enhanced disability premium in London borough of Wandsworth at May 2004

	Number
IS and JSA(IB)	900
IS	900
JSA(IB)	[1]

[1] Figures are nil or negligible.

Notes:

1. Figures are based on a 5 per cent. sample and are therefore subject to a degree of sampling variation.
2. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 100.
3. Figures include claimants in receipt of income-based JSA who would also be entitled to the contributory element.
4. Local authorities are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.

Housing Benefit Matching Service

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, which and what percentage of local authorities have yet to implement the Housing Benefit Matching Service. [200167]

Mr. Pond: Of the 408 local authorities, Isles of Scilly is the only local authority that has not implemented the Housing Benefit Matching Service.

Low-income Households (Scotland)

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the Department is on target to reduce the number of children in low-income households by at least a quarter by 2004 in (a) Scotland and (b) Midlothian. [200220]

Mr. Pond: The Government has a PSA target at the national level to reduce the number of children in low-income households by at least a quarter by 2004–05, as a contribution towards the broader target of halving child poverty by 2010 and eradicating it by 2020.

Between the baseline year of 1998–99 and 2002–03 the number of children in low income households has fallen by 500,000 before housing costs and 600,000 after housing costs. We will report on the target in spring 2006 when the data for 2004–05 become available. However, our assessment is that we are broadly on course to meet our PSA target.

Specific information regarding low income for the United Kingdom is available in 'Households Below Average Income 1994–95—2002–03'. Data are not available below the regional level. Only poverty rates are available at regional level rather than numbers of children in low income households. It should be noted that year on year changes in these regional poverty rates are not statistically significant. The data show that progress made in Scotland over the entire period 1998–99 to 2002–03 was in line with progress made in Great Britain over the same period.

'Measuring child poverty', published in December 2003, outlines the Government's measure of UK child poverty for the long term. This new measure will begin from 2004–05. All publications listed are available in the Library.

Pathways to Work

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in the nine areas piloting the Pathways to Work scheme have (a) been interviewed and (b) subsequently got jobs. [199617]

Maria Eagle: In total, there have been 5,600 job entries in the Pathways to Work Pilots to the end of August 2004. Of these 4,200 were in the first three Pilot Districts and 1,200 were in the four Pilot Districts in the second phase. The following table sets out how many Initial Work Focused Interviews have been attended and how many job entries have occurred subsequent to those Work Focused Interviews.

Work Focussed Interviews and subsequent job starts in the seven Pathways to Work Pilots

Pilot district	Initial Work Focused Interviews attended	Job starts
Renfrewshire, Inverclyde, Argyll and Bute	2,820	450
Bridgend, Rhondda, Cynon, Taff	2,920	420
Derbyshire	3,210	410
Gateshead	720	50
East Lancashire	1,270	90
Essex	1,380	60
Somerset	650	50

Notes:

1. The first three Pathways to Work Pilots commenced on 27October 2003, the four Pilots in the second phase of Pathways to Work commenced on 5April 2004.
2. Work Focused Interviews should take place at around 8 weeks after the start of the benefit claim. This means that majority of benefits starts in July and August will not be included in the data.
3. Initial Work Focused Interviews attended refers to the actual number of Work Focused Interviews that have taken place. Some individuals will have attended more than one Work Focused Interview. These will be people who have started more than one benefit spell since the start of Pathways to Work.

4. Job Starts includes all recorded job entries plus Return to Work Credit (RTWC) awards for which no job entry is yet recorded. (By definition, an RTWC award must indicate that a job entry has occurred).

5. The total number of job entries is higher than that recorded in the table. This table excludes job entries achieved with existing clients who had already started to claim benefit before the start of Pathways to Work.

6. Job starts figures include job starts achieved through referral to New Deal for Disabled People (NDDP) job brokers.

7. The job starts figures represent all job starts that have occurred subsequent to an initial Work Focused Interview within the same benefit spell.'

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what assumptions his assertion that Pathways areas show twice the improvement in job entries of that in the rest of the country are based. [199788]

Maria Eagle: The improvement in the number of job entries in the Pathways to Work pilots is based on an analysis of the recorded number of job entries recorded by Jobcentre Plus, including those by New Deal for Disabled People job brokers, in the seven Pathways to Work pilot districts compared to non-pilot districts.

The number of job entries recorded between November 2003 and September 2004 in the three Phase 1 pilot districts was 88 per cent. higher than for the corresponding period in the previous year. This compares to an increase of 32 per cent. over the same period for non-pilot districts.

Pension Protection Fund

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will make a statement on the statutory basis under which the Pension Protection Fund would be able to charge pension protection levies designed to incentivise participating schemes to opt for a predominantly risk-based levy. [200155]

Malcolm Wicks: During the transitional period, well funded schemes will be able to reduce their overall levy charge by opting to pay the risk based pension protection levy rather than just the required scheme based pension protection levy.

As more schemes opt to pay the risk based pension protection levy during the transitional period, the PPF will need to ensure that it adjusts the amounts paid to reflect the risk represented by those schemes who remain outside the risk regime. In this way we would anticipate that those schemes which opt only to pay the scheme-based pension protection levy will see the levy rate increase during the transitional period, thereby increasing the incentive for schemes to opt in to the risk-based regime.

The statutory basis for this is given under sections 175, 177 and 180 of the Pensions Act 2004.

Social Fund

Sir Archy Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to transfer to the pension service the administration of social fund claims from pensioners. [199581]

Mr. Pond: All social fund applications are administered by Jobcentre Plus. We have no plans to change these arrangements. The pensions service will continue to ensure that pensioners have access to advice and help in completing the appropriate forms.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will estimate the number of eligible people who have not received backdated winter fuel payments for the first three years of the scheme; and what the value was of such payments. [200156]

Malcolm Wicks: We estimate that about 1.9 million people could have been eligible for backdated payments for the first three years of the scheme and about 1.2 million people have now been paid. There is no cut-off dates for these retrospective payments.

It is not possible to provide a reliable estimate of the numbers who have not claimed because the estimate of those newly eligible was based on sample data. It is up to the individual, where a claim is necessary, to decide whether or not to make that claim.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Building Regulations

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the number of self-employed electricians who will be required to register as a competent person by 1 January 2005 under the requirements of Part P of the Building Regulations; and if he will make a statement. [201565]

Phil Hope: It is estimated that there are about 61,000 electrical contractors in England and Wales. There is no requirement to register; it is for each one to decide whether or not to do so. Those that choose not to register and carry out notifiable electrical work in dwellings after 1 January 2005 will need to submit a building notice to the local authority detailing the work they intend to carry out.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the capacity of certification bodies to process the likely number of applicants to become competent persons under Part P of the Building Regulations; and whether compensation will be made available to applicants whose certification is delayed and who lose work as a result. [201566]

Phil Hope: The adequacy of the competent person operators to deal with applications to join the competent person schemes within a reasonable timescale was one of the criteria for authorisation of the schemes. There is no requirement to be registered in order to carry out electrical installation work in dwellings, no compensation will be payable.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make it his policy to permit self-employed electricians who have applied for competent person accreditation in accordance with Part P of the Building Regulations (a) to continue working on jobs which were already under way before 1 January 2005 and (b) to continue their trade pending the availability of the certification inspector to examine and process their application. [201567]

Phil Hope: There is a transitional period in the Regulations on Part P. Any work contracted for or started by 31 December 2004 will not be within the scope of the requirements of Part P so long as it is completed by 31 March 2005. In respect of work that does not fall within the transitional arrangements it will be necessary to submit a building notice to the local authority until an application to join a competent person self-certification scheme is approved.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what steps his Department has taken, and over what period, to ensure that self-employed electricians have (a) been made aware of and (b) been granted adequate time to apply for accreditation in accordance with Part P of the Building Regulations due to come into force on 1 January 2005. [201568]

Phil Hope: The Government issued a Consultation Document on proposals to regulate electrical installation work in dwellings in May 2002. All the electrical trade bodies were consulted on the proposals and would have made their members aware of them. The Government formally announced in July 2003 that they had decided to introduce Part P of the Building Regulations. Throughout this period there have been many articles about the introduction of Part P in the trade press.

The Government authorised five competent person self-certification schemes to which electricians could choose to apply in July 2004. All have been accepting and assessing applications since that time. Those electricians that applied in good time should have their application approved before 1 January unless it was defective.

E-delivery

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, how much money his Office has given to local authorities in North Yorkshire to achieve e-delivery. [200141]

Phil Hope: Each local authority in North Yorkshire has received £750,000 in Implementing Electronic Government (IEG) grants, and can expect to receive a final IEG grant of £150,000 in 2005–06. In addition, a grant of £750,000 was made for the North Yorkshire ICT Partnership. The amounts to £7,950,000 since April 2002.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200182]

Mr. Raynsford: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister for Europe on 29 November 2004, Official Report, column 10W.

Gypsies and Travellers

Mr. Luff: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, if he will list the registered social landlords involved in providing and managing sites for Gypsies and Travellers. [201667]

Keith Hill: The information requested is not held centrally, and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

The Government have stated their intention to extend the permissible purposes of the Housing Corporation, which will allow Registered Social Landlords (RSLs) to obtain funding for the development and management of Gypsy and Traveller sites.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what mechanisms have been put in place to enable people to appeal against sites approved for permanent Traveller sites on local authority land; and if he will make a statement. [201732]

Keith Hill: There is no third party right of appeal against a local authority decision to grant planning permission irrespective of whether the land is local authority land or privately owned land. It is open to any third party who is aggrieved by a local authority's decision to grant planning permission to apply for judicial review if they believe the decision was wrong in law.

Interested or third parties have opportunities to make their views known at the formulation stages of development and local plans. They also have the opportunity to make their views known on planning applications and subsequently if the application is called in by the Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister or if the applicant appeals against a local authority's planning decision.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many Traveller caravans there were on each unauthorised site in South Bedfordshire in (a) July 2004 and (b) July 2003; and whether these figures include those Traveller caravans on unofficial sites owned by Travellers. [200610]

Keith Hill: In the South Bedfordshire District there were 19 unauthorised caravans in July 2003, eight on unauthorised encampments and 11 on unauthorised developments of land without planning permission. In July 2004, unauthorised caravans totalled 28, all of these on Gypsies' own land.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the estimated annual cost will be of recruiting and hiring the 7,500 home inspectors to police home information packs. [200961]

Keith Hill: Home inspectors will not be recruited by the Government and will not have a role in enforcing the home information pack duties. The majority of the 7,500 to 8,000 home inspectors needed to prepare home condition reports will come initially from existing surveying and related professions and trades. This represents a significant boost to private sector employment and business opportunities. The cost of recruiting home inspectors will be met by the private sector. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is assisting with awareness initiatives aimed at publicising this new career opportunity. A highly successful conference and trade fair held on 25 November in the West Midlands cost £19,000 and was attended by between 800 and 1,000 potential home inspectors.

House Prices (Bassetlaw)

John Mann: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the average house price is in Bassetlaw; and what it was (a) five, (b) 10 and (c) 15 years ago. [201087]

Keith Hill: Estimates of average house prices at local authority level are only available back to 1996, with the most recent figures being the provisional figures for Q2 2004. Hence the time series in the table covers a more recent period than that requested.

Period	Average price of residential property transactions in Bassetlaw, 1996 to Q2 2004 (£)
1996	52,693
1998	55,574
2000	67,218
2002	88,576
Q2 2004	119,911

Notes:
1. The above figures exclude purchases by sitting tenants and any other transactions that were believed to be below market value.

Housing

Mr. Edward Davey: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department have held regarding the stock options appraisal in (i) Bedfordshire, (ii) Hertfordshire, (iii) Cambridgeshire, (iv) Essex, (v) Suffolk and (vi) Norfolk, broken down by local authority area; and if he will make a statement. [200488]

Keith Hill: There have been no ministerial meetings held with any of the local authorities in these areas to discuss options appraisal.

Officials in the Government Office for the East of England, and the Community Housing Taskforce adviser hold meetings with those local authorities in the region who are undertaking a stock options appraisal, and with their tenant representatives, on an ongoing basis to provide support and advice on conducting an effective options appraisal.

Tom Cox: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the average local authority rent charged by authorities within the Greater London area is for (a) a one, (b) a two and (c) a three-bedroom flat. [200941]

Keith Hill: The latest available estimates of local authority rents within the Government Office Region of London (equivalent to "Greater London") for the financial year 2003–04 are tabled as follows:

Property type	Weekly rent
One-bedroom flat	56.21

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what recent assessment he has made of the fourth option of direct investment in council housing. [200996]

Keith Hill: There is no fourth option for providing direct additional investment to local authorities to meet the Decent Homes standard.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much rent was paid by council tenants in England in the last year for which figures are available; how much of these receipts was spent on (a) repairs and maintenance and (b) management; and if he will make a statement. [200997]

Keith Hill: Data supplied to the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister by local authorities in England show for 2003–04:

	£ million
Rent due from council tenants	6,245
Major repairs expenditure	1,356
Maintenance expenditure	1,810
Management expenditure	2,092

Each authority has other items of income and expenditure and has a duty to budget to avoid an end of year deficit.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what his latest estimate is of the level of central Government financial support for (a) local government and (b) county councils, per head of population for each English county; and if he will make a statement. [199899]

Mr. Raynsford: The amount of central Government financial support provided to all local authorities in England in 2004–05 is £58,412 million. This equates to £1,172 per head of population.

The amount of central Government financial support provided to county councils by head of population in the same period is in the table.

Information has been supplied for county councils only and therefore excuses unitary authorities, shire districts, and police and fire authorities within the county boundary.

The all-England data for local government support include special and specific grants inside "Aggregate External Finance", police grant, Revenue support grant, redistributed non-domestic rates and general Greater London Authority (GLA) grant.

The data for county council support include special and specific grants inside "Aggregate External Finance", Revenue support grant and redistributed non-domestic rates but not police grant or general GLA grant as they are not payable to county councils.

The figures for the county councils will not necessarily be comparable with each other because those which did not undergo a reorganisation between April 1995 and April 1998 will include support for fire expenditure, whereas those which did undergo a reorganisation will exclude such support.

Similarly they will not be comparable with the total figure for England as the latter includes support for all tiers of English local government.

The data are taken from the Revenue Account (budget) form for 2004–05—these forms are completed each year by individual local authorities.

Mersey Crossing

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what assessment he has made of the contribution that a new Mersey crossing may make to the economic growth of the north-west. [201584]

Keith Hill: The Department for Transport is expecting a full appraisal to be submitted by the end of this week. This should comprehensively assess the benefits of the proposal against the Government's key transport criteria of integration, economy, environment, safety and accessibility. Until the submission has been reviewed, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is not able to comment on the robustness of the economic case presented. The timing of any decision will depend on our assessment of the appraisal and the issues that it raises.

Planning

Mr. Nick Gibb: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what account he takes of commercial factors in determining planning matters. [200292]

Keith Hill: The Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister, set out his general approach to planning matters in Planning Policy Guidance Note PPG1: General Policy and Principles.

This policy includes the consideration of commercial factors, and states that a sustainable planning framework should provide for the nation's needs for commercial development, while respecting environmental objectives. It needs to be positive in promoting competitiveness while being protective towards the environment and amenity.

Development plans should encourage new enterprise and investment by setting out clear land-use policies for industrial and commercial development.

It is important that the locational needs of businesses are taken into account in the preparation of development plans. In defining suitable locations for development, plan policies should take into account:

the contribution to regenerating existing urban areas;

access to customers;

access to raw materials and suppliers;

links with the other businesses and the special needs of small businesses;

the workforce catchment area;

the availability of adequate infrastructure; and various transport considerations including the particular needs of the freight industry.

Mrs. Calton: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what advice he was given by (a) the Secretary of State for Health and (b) the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs as a result of the consultation on the preparation of Planning Policy Statement 23: Planning and Pollution Control. [200973]

Keith Hill: Planning Policy Statement 23: Planning and Pollution Control reflects the agreement of the Secretaries of State for Health and for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Mrs. Calton: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the purposes of (a) Planning Policy Statement 23 and (b) its annex on the development of land affected by contamination. [200974]

Keith Hill: I refer the hon. Member to the written statement made on 3 November 2004 when I published PPS23, Official Report, column 9WS.

Priority Estates Project

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much sponsorship of the Priority Estates Project cost his Office in (a) the financial year 2002–03 and (b) 2003–04. [200514]

Keith Hill: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister paid the Priority Estates Project, by way of grants and other payments, the following amounts: £727,857 in 2002–03 and £1,020,963 in 2003–04 (both amounts include VAT).

Regional Assemblies

Mr. Swire: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, (1) what the running costs of each of the existing regional assemblies were in the last year for which figures are available; [201355]

(2) how much his Department contributed to the regional assemblies in the last year for which figures are available; [201356]

(3) whether legislation is required to disband the existing regional assemblies; [201357]

(4) what discussions he has had with officials concerning the dismantling of the regional assemblies; [201358]

Mr. Raynsford: The total level of Government grant paid to the existing regional assemblies in 2003–04 is as follows:

	£million
East	1,874,000
East Midlands	1,631,000
North East	1,408,000
North West	1,837,000
South East	2,186,000

No details are kept centrally on the running costs of the assemblies.

The existing assemblies are voluntary bodies designated to undertake certain functions and no legislation would be necessary should any assembly decide to disband. My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister has not had any discussions with officials on the dismantling of assemblies.

Right to Buy

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the average (a) purchase price of and (b) discount applied to a right to buy (i) flat and (ii) house was in each region in England in (A) 1997 and (B) the last year for which figures are available. [200289]

Keith Hill: Average right-to-buy selling price (net of discount) and discount figures for each of the Government Office regions are shown in the table.

Standards Board

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what budget was allocated to the Standards Board for England in each of the last two years; and how many staff were employed by the Standards Board for England in each of those years. [201728]

Mr. Raynsford: The information requested in respect of the last two complete financial years is in the table.

Superstores

Mr. Byrne: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what research he has collated on the impact of new superstores on surrounding retail facilities; and if he will place it in the Library. [200332]

Keith Hill: The then Department of Environment Transport and the Regions commissioned The Impact of Large Foodstores on Market Towns and District Centres, published in September 1998, which looked specifically at the impact of large edge-of-centre and out-of-town foodstores.

Together with Marks and Spencer plc and the British Council for Shopping Centres Educational Trust, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister funded research by the National Regional Planning Forum on secondary shopping areas. The report, The Role and Vitality of Secondary Shopping—a New Direction by CB Richard Ellis, published earlier this month, includes an assessment of the impact of superstores on the secondary shopping areas of large towns as well as district centres and small town centres.

A copy of each of these reports has been placed in the Library of the House.

Town Centres

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what action his Department is taking to discourage the domination of town centres by larger store groups. [200570]

Keith Hill: The Government's objectives for town centres and retail development, include sustaining and enhancing the vitality and viability of town centres and maintaining an efficient, competitive and innovative retail sector. The Government are strongly committed to ensuring that town centres act as the focus of development, so as to provide easy access to a wide range of facilities and services by a choice of means of transport but it is for the market to determine what form that investment takes.

However, it is not the role of the planning system to restrict competition, preserve existing commercial interests or to prevent innovation.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Chief Executive (House of Commons Service)

Mr. Burns: To ask the honourable Member for Roxburgh and Berwickshire, representing the House of Commons Commission what qualifications the Chief Executive of the House of Commons Service has to fulfil his duties as Chief Executive. [201811]

Sir Archy Kirkwood: The Chief Executive of the House of Commons Service holds that post by virtue of his appointment as Clerk of the House of Commons. This arrangement was endorsed by the external reviews of the management of the House of Commons carried out in 1990 by Sir Robin Ibbs and in 1999 by Mr. Michael Braithwaite. I refer the hon. Member in particular to paragraphs 15.38 to 15.42 and Annex G of the Braithwaite Report (HC 745, 1998–99), which set out the rationale for that arrangement.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Arable Area Payment Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when Arable Area Payment Scheme payments are expected to be made. [200566]

Alun Michael: The payment window for the Arable Area Payment Scheme 2004 main payments opened on 16 November 2004 and closes on 31 January 2005. Payments commenced immediately the payment window opened and during the first two weeks 69 per cent. of claims were paid including 80 per cent. of claims from producers in those countries most affected by wet weather.

Bees

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the future of the bee health programme. [200426]

Alun Michael: The Department's Activity Baseline Review has identified the bee health programme as an area where 20 per cent. savings (equivalent to £250,000 p.a.) could be realised from 2008. We expect to make these savings through a reduced programme of expenditure with the Central Science Laboratory's National Bee Unit, which implements the programme in England.

We have discussed these proposals with beekeeping organisations, who have registered a number of concerns. We will take these concerns into account in developing and implementing the proposals.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures her Department is taking to support beekeepers in the UK; and if she will make a statement. [200427]

Alun Michael: The Department assists the beekeeping sector in England through an integrated bee health programme administered by the National Bee Unit. The programme will cost £1.235 million in 2004–05. Measures include the provision of a free diagnostic and inspection service as well as training and technical advice to help beekeepers become more self-reliant in controlling pests and diseases through improved bee husbandry techniques.

This year, the Department also intends to spend some £240,000 on research and development to underpin our bee health policy in controlling endemic notifiable diseases in the UK and preventing the introduction of serious exotic pests.

Drinking Water

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) prosecutions, (b) cautions and (c) enforcement notices there have been in each year since 1995 brought by the Drinking Water Inspectorate (i) in total and (ii) broken down by region. [200709]

Mr. Morley: Since 1995 the Drinking Water Inspectorate has initiated proceedings for 35 prosecutions and issued 20 Cautions. The Inspectorate has also issued 8 Enforcement Notices under section 20 of the Water Industry Act 1991. The number of prosecutions, cautions and notices are summarised as follows, by year and by region.

Emissions

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what further action she plans to reduce emissions of methane. [200690]

Mr. Morley: There has been a 42.7 per cent. reduction in methane emissions in the UK between 1990 and 2002, the most recent year for which data is available.

Methane is one of the greenhouse gases covered by the Kyoto Protocol. Following the decision of Russian to sign up to the Kyoto Protocol it is due to come into force on 16 February 2005. The UK remains on course to achieve its Kyoto target to reduce emissions of all greenhouse gases by 12.5 per cent. below 1990 levels by 2008–12. Provisional estimates suggest that in 2003 greenhouse gas emissions were about 14 per cent. below the baseline.

A review of the Climate Change Programme was launched on 15 September. The review will evaluate the success of the existing policy measures in reducing greenhouse gas emissions and will examine the scope for further reductions in the future.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the volumes of methane likely to be released following the effects of climate change in polar regions; and what assessment she has made of the effect that the release of such methane will have on climate change. [200704]

Mr. Morley: There are currently large uncertainties in the estimates of present-day natural methane fluxes. There are also large uncertainties in the projections of changes in these fluxes under climate change, due both to the responses of methane emissions to warming and the changes in wetland area under climate change.

However, modelling studies performed by the Hadley Centre for the UK Climate Prediction programme funded by Defra indication that methane emissions from wetlands north of 45°N will approximately double by 2100 relative to the present day, from 50 to 95 Terragrams per year. It is estimated that this will contribute an additional 1 per cent. to global warming over the 21st Century.

It should be noted that this does not consider the potential release of methane from ocean hydrates, which has not yet been quantified, but is the subject of research within the Climate Prediction Programme.

Environment Agency Projects

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects that the feasibility/design stage of the Environment Agency project concerning (a) the possible raising of ground levels at the western end of Gossmore Close in Marlow and (b) the construction of flap valve/headwall of the existing highway ditch adjacent to Firview Close in Marlow will be reached; and if she will make a statement. [200657]

Mr. Morley: I understand that the raising of the ground levels at the western end of Gossmore Close is part of the Firview Close Area Study and has gone through a pre-feasibility study only. It is currently being considered for inclusion on the Environment Agency's Capital Programme.

The detailed design for the construction of a flap valve/headwall of the existing highway ditch adjacent to Firview Close is unlikely to begin before 2006–07.

As an interim measure I understand that Wycombe district council and Buckinghamshire county council have agreed that if another flood event occurs (of a magnitude that puts the properties in Firview Close at risk of flooding), they will make arrangements for an emergency headwall to be constructed across the highway ditch with the aim of protecting the properties from river flooding.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects that the feasibility/design stage of the Environment Agency project concerning the possible erection of an earth bund at the rear of Bream Close/Trout Close in Marlow will be reached; and if she will make a statement. [200658]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 30 November 2004]: I understand that the Environment Agency's pre-feasibility study for this area is now complete and has concluded that there is a viable project to reduce the risk of river flooding to the residential properties on the Pound Lane estate.

The preferred option is for construction of a substantial earth bund, commencing at the rear of Bream Close and extending in a north easterly direction to the rear of Trout Close. Feasibility and design for this proposal is now under way.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what action she has taken in relation to the conclusions of the Environment Agency feasibility study on the prevention of flooding in Medmenham; and if she will make a statement. [200659]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 30 November 2004]: Environment Agency (EA) flood risk improvement projects must meet specified economic, technical and environmental criteria and achieve the threshold priority score for the year in which they start in order to be eligible for funding from Defra's ring-fenced improvement allocation which is shared between all operating authorities.

I have not seen a copy of this feasibility study. However, I understand that the EA's preferred option is for a flood bund around the properties in Ferry Lane on both the east and west side of the road including the Abbey. I understand, however, the priority score for the proposal is relatively low and construction is therefore unlikely to progress in the near future. In the meantime the EA is working closely with riparian owners to ensure local watercourses are property maintained.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of her Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200186]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 29 November 2004, Official Report, column 10W by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary.

Flood Prevention Schemes

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost of flood prevention schemes undertaken since 1997 was, broken down by county. [199783]

Mr. Morley: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 17 November 2004, Official Report, column 1482W. I plan to place this information in the Library of the House shortly.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures the Environment Agency is taking to hold back water in the upper reaches of the Thames. [201869]

Mr. Morley: I understand the upstream catchment currently supports significant storage of water within the confines of the natural floodplain.

The Environment Agency has a statutory duty to maintain water levels of the Thames within a range of +6" to -3" of Standard Head Water Level, marked at the head of each lock. To achieve this, the weir associated with each lock is operated to regulate the amount of flow through it, which will either raise or lower the water level of the reach above the weir. In this way the rate of flow of the river may rise or fall although the level of the river may remain much the same.

After rain, as river flows increase, weir gates are opened to prevent, or to minimise as far as possible, rises in water level. Water is not deliberately held back. When very high flows are experienced, they may exceed the capacity of the river channel at which point it overtops its banks even though the weir may be fully open.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Environment Agency is taking to dredge the upper reaches of the Thames. [201870]

Mr. Morley: I understand proposed dredging works are scheduled to take place at Marlow Lock tail cut in the winter of 2005. This programme of dredging was developed in response to the findings of the Summer/Autumn 2004 River Thames Reach bathymetric surveys.

In line with the Mechanism of Flooding Report recommendations, the agency is currently reviewing its position on the options and case for additional dredging. This work includes: searching for new disposal sites for the dredging (including reprocessing), reviewing environmental implications and recalculating the potential benefits and costs to assess the economic justification of further dredging. This report will be concluded in spring 2005.

Hazardous Waste Sites

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria were used in determining which sites would be eligible to deal with hazardous waste; and if she will make a statement [200088]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 29 November 2004]: With the ending of the co-disposal of hazardous and non-hazardous waste in landfills, operators had to decide on the classification for each of their landfill sites post 16 July 2004. For those sites that choose to be designated as hazardous waste landfills, operators had to apply to the Environment Agency for a permit that contained the operating conditions for the site. The Agency had to then decide whether a permit should be issued and, if so, what operating conditions should be applied.

The requirements for a hazardous waste landfill are set out in the Landfill (England and Wales) Regulations 2002, as amended by the Landfill (England and Wales) (Amendment) Regulations 2004 and related Pollution Prevention and Control Legislation. Those sites designated as hazardous but have yet to complete the permitting process, can continue to accept hazardous waste under the terms of its waste management licence until such time as a decision on the permit application is made. The Environment Agency is unable to issue a permit unless the necessary planning permissions are in place.

Government Ministers have no role in this process unless an appeal against a decision by the planning authority or the Environment Agency is made. Ministers adjudicate on those appeals.

Home Energy Efficiency/Warm Front Schemes

Mr. Keith Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many homes in the Manchester, Withington constituency have benefited from the home energy efficiency and warm front schemes. [201925]

Mr. Morley: Information is not available on a constituency basis on the number of homes that benefited from the original Home Energy Efficiency Scheme between 1991 and 1997.

It is estimated that between June 1997 and May 2000 approximately 2,200 households in Manchester, Withington received assistance from the Home Energy Efficiency Scheme.

Since the launch of the Warm Front scheme in June 2000 and the end of October 2004 approximately 2,000 households in Manchester, Withington received assistance.

Newspaper Article

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether she approved the article by the Parliamentary Private Secretary, the hon. Member for the Wrekin (Peter Bradley), which appeared in the Sunday Telegraph on 21 November. [202100]

Alun Michael: Parliamentary Private Secretaries are not obliged to seek the approval of the Secretary of State for anything they write in a personal capacity.

PFI Projects

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for has been taken to ensure that other Government Departments deliver sustainability within the private finance initiative projects; 200713]

(2) what role her Department (a) has and (b) plans to take to make the PFI process more accountable and transparent in terms of environmental sustainability;. [200712]

(3) what assessment her Department has made of the sustainability and environmental impacts of private finance initiative projects and the effectiveness of the PFI process to deliver environmentally sustainable projects; [200711]

(4) what role her Department has played in ensuring that private finance initiative projects create the minimum of environmental damage. [200710]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 25 May 2004, Official Report, column 149W.

Since then the sections of the "Framework for Sustainable Development on the Government Estate" on waste, estates management and construction, and on procurement have been published; these sections commit all Government Departments to include clauses relating to sustainable development issues in relevant contracts, including PFIs and PPs.

The Government is committed to ensuring that sustainable development considerations are taken into account in public procurement (including PFIs/PPPs).

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Age Discrimination

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's policy is towards age discrimination. [200868]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: DFID has in place, an Equal Opportunities Policy that clearly outlines our commitment not to discriminate on the grounds of age.

We have taken numerous steps to address potential age discrimination including flexibility for staff below the Senior Civil Service (SCS) grade to work on beyond normal retirement age, statistical monitoring of all of our selection processes, and training for all staff on diversity and equal opportunities.

DFID is a member of the Employers Forum on Age (EFA) and has adopted some of the good practice techniques recommended by the EFA. Using the EFA policy assessment toolkit, we have initiated a review of our current policies and practices in relation to discrimination.

AIDS

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what research his expectancy of someone who has been diagnosed with AIDS in (a) Sub-Saharan Africa, (b) other developing countries and (c) Western Europe; and if he will make a statement. [199554]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: DFID, like many in the international system, uses data from a variety of sources, including UNAIDS, the World Health Organisation (WHO) and the United Nations who are tasked with monitoring and reporting on the AIDS epidemic.

The latest UN Human Development Report estimates that life expectancy in many sub-Saharan African countries has fallen to under 33 years, primarily due to the AIDS epidemic. WHO report that overall life expectancy has dropped precipitously over the last 10 years—for females from 51.1 to 46.3 and males 47.3 to 44.8 years. WHO report that life expectancy in Africa has been cut by five to 10 years due to the AIDS epidemic, this is reduced even further by 15 to 20 years in Southern Africa. The Global Health Council report that in Thailand, Cambodia and Burma two to five years of life expectancy has been lost due to AIDS. UNAIDS report that life expectancy at birth in 2010 is projected to be 10 years less in Haiti and in Trinidad and Tobago nine years less than it would have been without AIDS.

Once someone is infected with the HIV virus their possible progression to AIDS or death will be affected by many factors. With access to treatment, not only ART but also basic health care people can live longer, potentially for more than 20 years. However for people with HIV with no access to clean water, or who are malnourished or who have little or no access to basic health services for treatment of opportunistic infections such as TB, life expectancy can drop substantially.

Angola

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance the Government have offered to the Government of Angola in order to facilitate national elections by 2006. [201970]

Hilary Benn: DFID's Country Engagement Plan (CEP) for Angola, identifies the priorities for UK development assistance from 2003 to 2006. This includes support to the government and other stakeholders to prepare for the next general election which is expected to take place in September 2006.

Following discussions with the Angolan Government and civil society, DFID is looking at the possibility of funding a programme consisting of voter and civic education, election-related conflict management and election monitoring. Through the Electoral Institute of Southern Africa, DFID has also been co-financing Angolan parliamentarians and civil society representatives to participate as observers in the elections of other Southern African Development Community (SADC) member states. This list includes: Malawi, South Africa, Botswana, Namibia and currently Mozambique.

In addition, the European Union made a declaration in August, in which it stated that it stands ready to contribute to the establishment of a proper and

Climate Change

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the impact of climate change on the developing world. [201289]

Hilary Benn: DFID uses the Inter-Governmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) reports and other multilateral assessments of climate change and potential impacts. However, it is clear that currently available information is inadequate. DFID has jointly commissioned, with DEFRA, a study on African climate research needs which is due to report this December. Climate change is a major theme of DFID's Research Strategy and we have commissioned a needs assessment to inform a call for new research proposals next spring.

DFID is also taking steps to help developing countries manage the risks of climate change and develop effective adaptation strategies. We have produced guidance for our country programmes and climate is included in our environmental screening procedures for all bilateral programmes.

DFID is working to integrate climate change risk management into the development and environmental safeguard policies of the main multilateral development institutions, starting with joint work on risk management with the World Bank in 2005.

Helping developing countries to meet their growth and energy needs through the adoption of more energy efficient technologies will also be crucial to tackling climate change. DFID is exploring ways to increase support for low carbon development with international development banks, including the World Bank.

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost has been of criminal damage to his Department's buildings in each of the last two years. [200858]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The only costs incurred as a result of criminal damage to the Department's buildings in the UK in the last two years is £345, in 2003–04.

Information on costs incurred by overseas offices is not readily available and cannot be obtained without incurring a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his estimate is of the cost of building refurbishment carried out by his Department in each of the last two years. [200861]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The costs of building refurbishment, carried out by DFID in the UK in the last two years are in relation to the work on our office in East Kilbride. The costs are as follows:

Costs associated with refurbishment of any overseas offices are not centrally available and cannot be provided without incurring a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, what the total external spend by his Department was on Private Finance Initiative consultants in each of the last two years; how many full-time equivalent consultants were employed over this period; how many billed consultancy days there were per year; what the implied average cost of each PFI consultant was; how many consultancy firms were used by his Department over this period; and if he will make a statement. [200874]

Hilary Benn: DFID has no Private Finance Initiative arrangements.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, what the total external spend by his Department was on public private partnership consultants in each of the last two years; how many full-time equivalent consultants were employed over this period; how many billed consultancy days there were per year; what the implied average cost of each PPP consultant was; how many consultancy firms were used by his Department over this period; and if he will make a statement. [200875]

Hilary Benn: DFID has no public private partnership arrangements.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, how many departmental mobile telephones were used by Ministers, special advisers and officials in his Department in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202173]

Hilary Benn: Mobile phones were not managed under a central contract prior to 2003–04, and therefore information for earlier years (and information on mobile phones in overseas offices) is not readily available and could not be provided without incurring a disproportionate cost. Similarly, the costs incurred through the replacement of the individual phones stolen are not readily available and so also could not be provided without incurring a disproportionate cost.

Over the last two years, the number of mobile phones in use in the UK, and their costs (including equipment, call charges and access charges) as follows:

	Number of mobile phones	£
2003–04	230	89,500
2004–05 (to date)	434	92,800

These figures include the two mobile phones for

The total number of mobile phones lost or stolen since 2001 is 28, broken down as follows:

	Number
2001	5
2002	6
2003	13
2004	6

No information is available on phones lost prior to this period.

Departmental Properties

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his estimate is of the (a) annual cost and (b) total value of the empty properties owned by (i) his Department, (ii) his agencies and (iii) other public bodies for which he has had responsibility in each of the last two years. [200860]

Hilary Benn: There are no empty properties owned by DFID.

There are no other agencies or public bodies for which DFID is responsible.

Fair Trade

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, what estimate he has made of the percentage of British supermarket stock which is fairly traded; and what research his Department has carried out into fair trade products in the British market. [199547]

Hilary Benn: Over the past 10 years, the growth in sales of Fairtrade labelled goods in the UK has been rapid. There are now over 300 Fairtrade products which include coffee, tea, cocoa, chocolate, snacks and biscuits, sugar, honey, fruit juice and fresh fruit.

Sales of Fairtrade labelled products are expected to exceed £100 million for 2004 (out of an estimated £120 billion supermarket sales) and are increasing by 50 per cent. year on year. Fairtrade labelled products now account for 18 per cent. of the UK roast and ground coffee market, and over 3 per cent. of overall coffee sales. Fairtrade accounts for around 4 per cent. of the total UK banana market.

DFID has commissioned a number of research studies on Fair Trade, including a study on Understanding and Expanding Fair Trade, which focused on developing alternative coffee and cocoa markets for small sale farmers. In 2000, an overview and impact assessment study was commissioned to inform DFID's support to Fair Trade.

DFID supports the objectives of the Fairtrade Foundation and provides £300,000 to fund a number of activities, including annual Fairtrade Fortnight and public awareness raising campaigns.

Falluja

Glenda Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what action the UK is taking to ensure emergency water and electricity supplies

(2) what assistance is being provided by the United Kingdom to restore essential utilities infrastructure to Falluja; [199841]

(3) what resources the UK plans to provide to assist in the re-building of Falluja; [199842]

(4) what emergency (a) medical supplies, (b) personnel and (c) equipment will be provided by the United Kingdom to assist those injured by coalition force attacks upon Falluja. [199843]

Hilary Benn: The Interim Iraqi Government (IIG) is leading on humanitarian and reconstruction work in Falluja and has established a central team to co-ordinate its assistance to the people of Falluja. This assistance includes: supplying food, water and medical supplies, restoring essential services, and refurbishing medical facilities. The UK is in close contact with the IIG, and DFID is providing advice to its Falluja co-ordination team.

The IIG and the Multi-National Force operating in Fallujah have reported that there is no humanitarian crisis so far and humanitarian visits to Falluja by British military officials confirm this assessment. Multi-National Forces have reported that their stockpiles of humanitarian supplies have provided for the immediate needs of Falluja's civilians. Iraqi Government and Iraqi Red Crescent trucks containing humanitarian supplies are now entering the city and the distribution of food, water, and medical supplies has begun. Injured civilians are being treated in mobile hospitals in Falluja, or have been taken for treatment at hospitals in nearby towns.

The Interim Iraqi Government (IIG) has also set aside significant funds from the Iraqi government budget for reconstruction work. The IIG is being supported by the Multi-National Force, which also has considerable resources for immediate post-conflict reconstruction work in Falluja, including clearing rubble and the restoration of water, sewerage and electricity services. United States agencies have planned around 100 reconstruction projects in the Falluja area totalling $84.1 million. These are due to begin soon and should complete by the end of January.

DFID is maintaining close contact with the IIG, with representatives of Multi-National Force-Iraq, and with humanitarian organisations on the ground, to address the needs of Falluja's population. DFID is ready to respond positively to requests for humanitarian help or further advice in Falluja or elsewhere.

Government Procurement (Developing Countries)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had on including criteria on international labour standards in Government procurement procedures as a way of improving working conditions in developing countries. [201572]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: DFID is actively involved in discussions on the inclusion of social issues in public procurement processes. At the request of the inter-departmental Sustainable Procurement Group, the Office of Government Commerce (OGC) is preparing a guidance note on social issues in purchasing. DFID has provided detailed comments on the OGC's initial draft including comments on the inclusion of labour standards issues.

Iraq

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, if he will make aid available for charities to assist children orphaned by the war in Iraq who are in foster homes. [200221]

Hilary Benn: UNICEF, along with five other NGOs, undertook a study of the needs of Iraqi children made vulnerable by war and its aftermath during the summer of 2003. This study informed decisions on UNICEF project priorities (see below). UNICEF is also continuing its pre-war efforts of assisting children in particular vulnerable situations, such as children living and working on the street, orphaned or disabled children, and children in conflict with the law.

DFID support to the children of Iraq is currently channelled through two main mechanisms. The first is a Civil Service Fund (CSF—£5 million over two years), which is focused on strengthening the capacity of Iraqi civil society organisations (CSO) to better address the needs of the poor and vulnerable groups, especially women and young people. The second is the multi-donor trust fund managed by the United Nations, part of which supports the activities carried out by UNICEF to help vulnerable groups. DFID has made an initial contribution of £30 million to the trust fund.

Further information on DFID's Iraq programme can be found at http://www.dfid.gov.uk/countries/asia/iraq.asp

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, what aid he has made available to offer psychological care to people affected by the war in Iraq. [200223]

Hilary Benn: DFID's support for the health sector in Iraq, including psychosocial support, is being channelled through the multi-donor trust fund managed by the United Nations. UN work in this area will focus on the provision of technical assistance for the development of mental health and psychosocial support services at the primary level. DFID has made an initial contribution of £30 million to the UN managed trust fund.

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, how much money has been allocated by his Department for the provision of humanitarian aid to Iraq in each of the last two years. [200944]

Hilary Benn: Since the beginning of 2003, DFID has committed £333 million towards humanitarian and reconstruction work in Iraq. During 2003, over £132 million was allocated for humanitarian assistance, including contributions to United Nations agencies, the Red Cross and non-governmental organisations. So far, in 2004, DFID has allocated £201 million towards reconstruction and the restoration of essential services.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what projects his Department is supporting in Iraq. [201288]

Hilary Benn: Since March 2003, DFID has committed £333 million for humanitarian and reconstruction projects in Iraq, and disbursed approximately £251 million. This sum includes over £100 million disbursed through United Nations agencies, the Red Cross and non-governmental organisations in response to humanitarian appeals in 2003.

Current projects in Iraq supported by DFID are listed as follows.

Reconstruction in southern Iraq:

£20 million to an Emergency Infrastructure Programme, which is improving the supply of water, power and fuel to over five million people in the south.

£20.5 million capacity building programme in the four southern Governorates, aimed at supporting strategic planning and financial management in both the public and private sectors.

£16.5 million programme to generate employment and address weaknesses in essential services in the four southern Governorates.

Technical assistance to help co-ordinate reconstruction in the south, and ensure completion of former Coalition Provisional Authority projects. (£5.5 million).

Re-establishing radio and television broadcasting capacity in the south, through training programmes and supply of equipment. (£7 million).

Support to government, justice, media and civil society:

Technical support and training (£4 million) within Iraq's system of public administration; focused on the centre of government (Prime Minister's Office, Council of Ministers' Secretariat, and Presidency) and in key ministries for reconstruction.

Support to the justice sector (£2 million): training programmes in international human rights law to Iraqi judges, lawyers and prosecutors.

£4.3 million macro-economic reform project to support the Iraqi Government in developing and implementing pro-poor economic reform programmes.

£5 million Political Participation Fund; supporting the development of legitimate and inclusive political institutions in Iraq, and to enable potentially marginalized groups to participate in the political process.

£5 million Civil Society Fund: strengthening the capacity of Iraqi civil society organisations to better address the needs of the most vulnerable groups.

£1 million media project: training journalists, editors and media managers on humanitarian and independent reporting.

Multilateral contributions:

£70 million contribution to the International Reconstruction Fund Facility for Iraq (IRFFI), managed by the UN and the World Bank. Seventeen donors have committed around $1 billion to IRFFI. The UN and World Bank are implementing projects in a wide range of sectors including health, education, water and sanitation, electricity supply, support to refugees and internally displaced people, governance, and the electoral process.

Over £3 million to the IMF, to project support to the Interim Iraqi Government in economic governance and financial management.

Contribution of £8.5 million to the International Finance Corporation for a Small Business Fund Facility, designed to improve access to finance for small Iraqi businesses.

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, what expenditure has been allocated to treat victims of burns caused by the war in Iraq. [200108]

Hilary Benn: DFID's support for the health sector in Iraq is being channelled through the multi-door trust fund managed by the United Nations. DFID has contributed £30 million to the fund so far focusing on a range of development sectors including health. DFID has no plans to provide bilaterial support for the treatment of burns.

Multinationals

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with multinational companies on (a) their responsibilities for the environment and (b) employment of local people in developing countries; and if he will make a statement. [200722]

Hilary Benn: I talk to multinational corporations about a range of issues, including environment and employment.

DFID works in partnership with governments, the private sector, international financial institutions, non-government organisations and trade unions to encourage good corporate and public sector governance. DFID aims to help improve the business and investment climate so as to maximise the positive impact in developing countries.

If for example, DFID works closely with, among other partners, oil, gas and mining multinationals on the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative. This is increasing the transparency of revenues paid to governments by extractive industry companies and the receipts recorded by host governments. Transparency is not, however, an end in itself but will increase the accountability of those governments to use these revenues for sustainable development and poverty reduction goals.

DFID promotes adherence to the "Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises (published by the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development in 2000). The guidelines encourage multinationals to raise their environmental and social performance and call on them to:

(1) Commit to the continual improvement of environmental management performance, developing environmental management systems and ensuring better contingency planning to manage negative impacts.

(2) Ensure "to the greatest extent practicable" employment of local personnel and the provision of training to improve local skills and capacity in developing countries in which they operate.

The Guidelines do not replace local laws but promote standards of behaviour supplemental to local laws.

In addition, DFID continues to support specific labour and employment programmes within developing countries.

Through a Strategic Grant Agreement with the Trades Union Congress DFID is helping UK trade unions to support workers in developing countries. This may include ensuring preference being given to local people when multinationals operate in developing countries.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Artists Resale Right Directive

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, what plans she has to implement the Artists' Resale Right Directive in the UK. [201575]

Ms Hewitt: The Government plans to introduce Artists' Release Right on 1 January 2006, which is the deadline in the Directive harmonising the right. The Government intends to issue a formal consultation document on the implementation of the Directive shortly, accompanied by a draft statutory instrument. The consultation documents will be mounted on the Patent Office's website.

ATM Machines

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research she has commissioned on the cost to the general public of the introduction of transaction charges at ATM machines. [200741]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

The Government welcomes the recent increase in the number of ATMs as it has increased choice for consumers. Also, nearly all ATMs run by high street banks and building societies are now free. Only a few years ago this was not the case. The Government believes charging policy is a commercial matter for ATM operators.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions she has had with the major clearing banks in (a) Scotland, (b) England and (c) the rest of the UK on the effects on users of the sale of ATM machines to companies which charge transaction fees for their use. [202545]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have not held discussions with banks on the sale of ATMs to independent operators. The Government believe this is a commercial matter for individual banks.

Business Support

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many loans have been guaranteed through the Small Firms Loan Guarantee Scheme since 1995, broken down by (a) region and (b) sector; and what the value of grants was in each case in each year. [201112]

Nigel Griffiths: The Small Firms Loan Guarantee is not a grant scheme, but acts as guarantor.

I have placed in the Libraries of the House copies of tables that show the number of Small Firms Loan Guarantees issued since 1995 by region and sector.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what financial provision her Department has made for funding (a) grants for research and development and (b) collaborative research and development business support products. [201183]

Nigel Griffiths: I refer to the answer given on 16 November 2004, Official Report, columns 1299–1300W.

Business Support Initiatives

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many businesses have been assisted by (a) the UK High Technology Fund and (b) Regional Venture Capital Funds in each (i) region and (ii) constituency since 2000. [200533]

Nigel Griffiths: As at 31 October 2004 the Regional Venture Capital Funds (RVCFs) had assisted 140 businesses. This number can be broken down regionally as follows.

	Number
East Midlands	21
East of England	4
London	16
North East	23
North West	19
South East	26
South West	6
West Midlands	18
Yorkshire and Humber	7

A breakdown of constituencies that have one or more assisted businesses, for the most recent period available up until 31 December 2003, follows:

As at 30 June 2004 the UK High Technology Fund had invested in nine private equity partnerships, which in turn have assisted a total of 173 businesses. The information necessary to determine both a regional and constituency breakdown of assisted businesses is not made available to us by the UK High Technology Fund.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much public funding has been spent on Business Link in each (a) region and (b) constituency in (i) 2003–04 and (ii) 2004–05. [200544]

Nigel Griffiths: The total amount of public funding broken down by region is shown in the following table. It is not possible to provide a breakdown by constituency.

Business link operators breakdown of all public funding by region

Endeavour Resources

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, if she will launch an investigation into Endeavour Resources's trading links with Darfur, Sudan. [200649]

Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 30 November 2004]: Sudan is subject to a full EU arms embargo. Under the Trade in Controlled Goods (Embargoed Destinations) Order 2004, implemented under the Export Control Act 2002 on 3 March 2004, it is a criminal offence for anyone in the UK or any UK person anywhere in the world, to seek to trade, without a valid licence, in military equipment to destinations under a full arms embargo imposed by the EU, OSCE or UK (additional extraterritorial controls on trade to destinations subject to UN embargo are in place under the UN Act 1946). The UK Government would only issue a licence for the supply of or trade in military equipment to Sudan in line with the exemptions to the embargo, for example for humanitarian end-use.

Investigations into breaches of UK export control legislation are the responsibility of HM Customs and Excise. Should anyone hold evidence of, or information to, any breach of UK export control legislation, this should be referred to HMCE. For legal reasons, we are unable to comment further on the nature and extent of enquiries relating to the case of Endeavour Resources.

Environmental Contamination

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment her Department has made of the quantities of cadmium released to the environment from (a) phosphate fertilizer use, (b) iron and steel manufacture, (c) fossil fuel combustion and (d) nickel-cadmium batteries. [199683]

Mr. Morley: I have been asked to reply.

(a) Estimated annual inputs of cadmium to the environment from phosphate fertilizer use have fallen from 7.1 tonnes in 1990, to 4.8 tonnes in 2003. It is likely that levels of contamination were higher 10 years earlier (i.e. 1980), but comparable data are not available for that period.

(b) and (c) Information on atmospheric emissions of a range of substances is provided by the UK National Atmospheric Emissions Inventory (UKNAEI). Annual emissions of cadmium from iron and steel manufacture fell from less than five tonnes in 1970 to less than one tonne in 2002. Cadmium emissions from fuel combustion were 15.5 tonnes in 1970, falling to 3.5 tonnes in 2002.

(d) The recent targeted risk assessment commissioned by the Belgian Government under the existing substances regulation concluded that 75 per cent. of all refined cadmium (cadmium is a by product of zinc refining) goes into nickel cadmium batteries (NiCd). However, this accounts for only 1 per cent. of all cadmium released into the environment. NiCd batteries account for 0.0055 per cent. of municipal solid waste in the European Union.

ICSTIS

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations she has received about the operation of the Independent Committee for the Supervision of Standards of Telephone Information Services (ICSTIS) complaint line. [200989]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department has received approximately 80 complaints about Premium Rate Services (PRS) in the past year which have mentioned the operation of the ICSTIS helpline. No complaints about ICSTIS were received in the previous two years. Ofcom's current review of PRS regulation will include an assessment of whether ICSTIS has the right tools and resources to regulate the PRS industry.

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will carry out an inquiry into the operation of the regulation of the premium rate telephone industry. [200990]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 2 December 2004]: The Department has asked the communications regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), to review the role and powers of ICSTIS in premium rate regulation. Ofcom is due to report back shortly

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, what the average length of time was between the date of invoices issued to her Department from a supplier and payment by the Department of the invoice in the last 12 months for which figures are available; what percentage of these invoices were paid within 30 days of the date of issue of the invoice; what percentage of these invoices remained unpaid after 90 days; and if she will make a statement on the Department's policy on the payment of invoices issued to it. [200613]

Ms Hewitt: During the period a April 2003 to 31 March 2004 the core Department paid supplier invoices, on average, within 27 days (unaudited figure). During this period, the core Department paid 89.6 per cent. of undisputed invoices within 30 days or the agreed credit terms. Data on invoices remaining unpaid after 90 days is available only at disproportionate cost.

The Government is committed to improving the payment culture in the UK in order to create a fair and stable environment for business transactions. Government departments and their agencies should aim to pay all invoices not in dispute within 39 days or within the agreed contractual terms if otherwise specified. The Department supports this policy.

Pay Bargaining Units

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, how many times the appraisal system for each pay bargaining unit in her Department has been changed in the last five years; and how many staff are fully or partly employed in connection with pay negotiations in each pay bargaining unit, broken down by grade. [200346]

Ms Hewitt: The table shows the staff time by grade spent in pay negotiations for DTI HQ, and aggregated totals for DTI agencies and non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs).

Bargaining units	Time spent on negotiations annually, person days/grade
	SCS Grade 5	Senior Managers	Middle Managers	Total
DTI HQ	2.5	7.5	2.5	12.5
Agencies	9	36	26	81
NDPBs	9	76.5	28	113.5

The DTI Agencies are: Companies House, Employment Tribunal Service, Patent Office and Insolvency Service.

The NDPBs include: ACAS, the Equal Opportunities Commission, four regional development agencies and five research councils.

In the last five years, the appraisal arrangements DTI HQ have been changed once. In DTI Agencies and NDPBSs, listed above, the appraisal arrangements have been changed once on average, with two organisations changing them no more than three times and another two not changing them in that time.

Regional Development Agencies

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the change in her Department's contribution to the regional development agencies in 2005–06. [200558]

Jacqui Smith: The Department's contribution to the RDAs in 2005–06 was reviewed as part of Spending Review 2004. The Department's contribution to the RDA budget will increase by £229 million in 2005–06, from £234 million to £463 million. Of that, £169 million has been added to the RDA budget to allow the planned transfer of responsibilities for delivery of the Business Link services in their regions and Grant for Research and Development to the RDAs from April 2005.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, what the total Government funding for each of the regional development agencies is for 2004, broken down by contributing Government departments. [201953]

Jacqui Smith: The total Government funding for each of the Regional Development Agencies (RDAs) for 2004 is £1.847 million.

Five Departments contribute to a single budget which is allocated to RDAs using a funding formula. The funding formula is agreed between DTI and other contributing Departments The breakdown by each contributing Department to the single budget is:

Contributing Government Departments	(£million)
DTI	234
ODPM	1,511
DEFRA	46
DFES	42
UKTI	13
DCMS	2
Totals[1]	1,847

[1] Total does not sum due to rounding

Regional Development Agency	(£million)
Advantage West Midlands	225
East of England Development Agency	88
East Midlands Development Agency	118
London Development Agency	315
North West Development Agency	329
One North East	213
South East of England Development Agency	107
South West of England Development Agency	103
Yorkshire Forward	253
Central Reserves	96
Totals	1,847

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the criteria are for measuring (a) jobs created and (b) jobs safeguarded in assessing regional development agencies' performance. [201960]

Jacqui Smith: The total number of employment opportunities directly attributable to Regional Development Agency (RDA) activity(taking new and safeguarded jobs together(is one of the core output targets that England's RDAs are required to deliver in 2004–05.

As outlined in a Technical Note, the unit of account is a permanent full-time equivalent paid job (FTE). A job is created and is counted, when a post is filled. To be treated as permanent, the job should have a life expectancy of at least one year at the time of the forecast and at the time it is counted. Part-time jobs can be converted to FTE jobs on a pro rata basis with a job over 30 hours treated as full-time or, if the information is not available, two part-time jobs can equal a full-time job.

A job can only be forecast to be safeguarded if it exists at the time of the decision to commit to the project and is forecast by the RDA to be lost to the region within (normally) one year if the project does not go ahead. A job can be counted as safeguarded if it was forecast as at risk at the appraisal stage, is still in existence at the time of counting, and is no longer at risk of being lost within (normally) a year.

To arrive at the reported total, adjustments for multiple funding and additionality are made the RDAs. In addition, Foreign Direct Investment and Regional Selective Assistance/Selective Finance for Investment in England jobs are included in the reported figure only after the jobs have been delivered and can be counted in the relevant period.

Research and Development

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what contribution will have to be made by the private sector and charitable funding in order to achieve the public and private spending on research and development targets set out in the Spending Review 2004; and what contribution has been secured from (a) the private sector and (b) charitable funding. [200540]

Ms Hewitt: The Science and Innovation Investment Framework: 2004–2014 outlines the Government's ambition to increase the overall levels of R and D in the economy to 2.5 per cent. of GDP by 2014. This is a challenging target, and public and private expenditure on R and D will have to rise faster than the trend rate of GDP growth over the period if it is to be achieved. The Government has made extra resources available in SR 2004 in line with this objective, including an extra £1 billion for the UK science base by 2007–08, equivalent to a real-term increase of 5.8 per cent. This public investment will have to be matched by a similar commitment from business.

The Government is committed to working in partnership with business to raise the UK's investment levels in R and D, and has put in place a number of measures to encourage greater private sector investment in R and D, including the R and D tax credits and funding for collaborative research and knowledge transfer via the DTI's Technology Strategy.

Charity funding for R and D has grown steadily in recent years, and the Government is working in partnership with charities to improve the financial sustainability of university research. In SR 2004, the Government announced additional funding of up to £90 million by 2007–08 to help close the gap between the costs of charity-sponsored research and the funds currently available from universities and charities.

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures are being taken (a) to prevent the best young scientists from leaving (i) research and (ii) the UK and (b) to attract young scientific talent from abroad. [199952]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The evidence base for a brain gain/drain is uncertain, with some recent studies showing the UK as a net beneficiary of science, engineering and technology (SET) skills. Therefore, the Office of Science and Technology is taking forward a study to provide a clear and usable definition of the brain drain to ascertain whether the UK SET base is currently experiencing a net brain drain of SET personnel qualified to at least PhD level and to provide an analysis as to what the future balance of inward versus outward migration of SET personnel might be.

A number of schemes have been implemented in the UK which aim to attract scientific talent from abroad. For example, the Research Councils operate the Dorothy Hodgkin Postgraduate Awards scheme that provides PhD scholarship for students from India, China, Hong Kong and the developing world.

The Roberts Review (SET for Success, 2002) included recommendations that focused on the supply of scientists and improving the attractiveness of research careers. In its strategy for science, "Investing in Innovation", the Government made a commitment to implement measures based on these recommendations. These included increasing Research Council postdoctoral researchers' salaries by around £4,000 by 2005, increasing the average Research Council PhD stipend to £13,000 by 2005, providing young researchers with two weeks a year of transferable skills training, and establishing a new academic fellowship scheme that will provide more stable and attractive routes into academia. The 2004 Spending Review settlement will provide additional funding to extend the average duration of Research Council PhD awards to three-and-a-half years, and further increase the level of Research Council PhD stipends by at least inflation.

The work of the UK Resource Centre for Women in SET (science, engineering and technology) includes sharing good employment practices, and supporting women returners. A contribution from the Department for Education and Skills will enable the Resource Centre to develop a scheme dedicated to encouraging more female SET undergraduates to take up SET professions.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Adrenaline

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance is given to (a) schools, (b) other educational facilities and (c) local authority-run centres regarding the administration of adrenaline to children who suffer from severe allergies. [199756]

Margaret Hodge: The DfES and Department of Health have jointly produced guidance on "Supporting pupils with medical needs" in schools. This provides information on management and control of anaphylaxis and advises that training in the administration of adrenaline is given by a health professional. Specific guidance on the administration of adrenaline has not been issued to other educational facilities and local authority-run centres. However, all providers have health and safety responsibilities towards pupils and where staff administer adrenaline they must ensure that the staff are properly trained.

Child Care (Wandsworth)

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many new full day care places have been created in the London borough of Wandsworth in each of the past three years. [199674]

Margaret Hodge: 918 new full day care places have been created in Wandsworth since 2001. Taking account of turnover, 779 net new places have been created. This has resulted in an increase in the stock of places from 2,741 in March 2001 to 3,520 in March 2004. There are a variety of reasons why provision may close, ranging from childminders taking up other careers once their own children reach school age or changes in family circumstances resulting in career changes, to work-friendly full day care replacing other forms of provision.

Table 1 details the number of gross and net full day care places created in Wandsworth for each year since 2001. Table 2 shows the number of nursery education places taken up by 3 and 4-year-olds.

Table 1

	Gross childcare places	Net childcare places

2002–03	304	304
2003–04	615	447

Table 2

	Nursery education places taken up
2002	6,600

The number of nursery education places taken up in Wandsworth over the past three years has declined as the population of 3 and 4-year-olds has reduced.

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department is taking to monitor local authority spending on the promotion of nursery education in the London borough of Wandsworth. [199675]

Mr. Miliband: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Departmental Initiatives (Young People)

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if he will list each programme and initiative launched by his Department to help young people since 1997; and which of those programmes and initiatives remain in operation; [200260]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effects of Government policies relating to young people; [200262]

(3) if he will make a statement on his Department's efforts since 1997 in helping young people. [200264]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The Department for Education and Skills has launched the following programmes since 1997 to help young people through offers of advice, support and positive activities, all of which remain in operation: Connexions; Get REAL; Millennium Volunteers; Positive Activities for Young People; the Teenage Pregnancy Strategy; and Transforming Youth Work.

An important aspect of the Government's strategy is to involve local people in running activities for young people in their area. The Local Network Fund is managed locally by voluntary organisations and provides funding and capacity building support to community groups working with vulnerable young people. The Neighbourhood Support Fund supports local voluntary and community sector projects in delivering informal learning and self development for hard to reach young people.

The Government made an assessment of services for children, young people and families in the Green Paper "Every Child Matters" published in September 2003. It concluded that, while much progress has been made, there was scope for services to work together more effectively to help every child and young person achieve better outcomes. This view was supported in consultation.

The Government have now legislated through the Children Act 2004 to make changes that will lead to local services working together through children's trust arrangements to improve outcomes for all children and young people. These reforms will span the front line staff providing integrated services, through the processes that support them, to the plans that set their direction and the governance arrangements that sustain them. The Act is the legislative spine for a wider programme of change: we will shortly publish "Every Child Matters: Change for Children" setting out the national framework for local change programmes that will turn the Act into reality.

The Government remain fully committed to helping all children and young people achieve the best possible outcomes and especially to be healthy, to stay safe, to enjoy and achieve, to make a positive contribution to society, and to achieve economic well-being. That is why we have enshrined these outcomes in the Children Act 2004. A more detailed assessment of programmes and initiatives for young people is being undertaken in the course of developing the Youth Green Paper, which is due to be published in the new year.

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199627]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The DfES websites do comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines.

All sites comply with level 1 of the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines while some sites also comply with levels 2 and 3 of the guidelines.

Specific examples of sites that comply up to level 2 of the guidelines include:

http://www.need2know.co.uk

The young person's portal

http://www.parentcentre.gov.uk

The Parent Centre is for all parents and carers who want to help their child or children to learn.

http://www.connexions-direct.com

Are you 13–19? If so, Connexions Direct can offer you all the information and advice you need to make the decisions and choices in your life. Connexions Direct is part of Connexions. It offers you information on a wide range of topics as well as confidential advice and practical help.

The www.connexions-direct.com/jobs4U website is currently being developed to meet levels 2 and 3. It will go live in March 2005. Jobs4U is a searchable database which allows young people to find information on possible career paths and the qualifications and skills required to achieve these.

The DfES is currently reviewing our major sites with a view to bringing them all up to level 2 and 3 of the w3c standards.

The DfES is also responsible for delivering three sections on Directgov (www.direct.gov.uk) that meet the WAI "A" standard for accessibility and are Working towards "AA" standard for 2005.

Education (Lewisham)

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what changes have been made in the provision of services for children aged under five years in the Lewisham, Deptford constituency since 1997. [201103]

Margaret Hodge: Since 1997 we have created five Sure Start local programmes in Lewisham providing services for 3,676 children. Of these, three are based within Deptford: Honor Oak; Grinling Gibbons and Evelyn—providing services for 2,253 children. We have established 17 neighbourhood nurseries in Lewisham, delivering 586 nursery places. Of these, five are in Deptford, delivering 171 nursery places. There are six children's centres planned for Lewisham and each of Deptford's Sure Start local programmes will develop into a children's centre.

From April 1999—March 2004 Lewisham created 3,732 childcare places. This shows an increase in the stock of childcare places, taking into account turnover of 2,929 places.

In 1997 4,300 free nursery education places were taken up by three and four year old children. In 2004 5,700 children aged three and four years had taken up free nursery education places.

Education Bodies

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps the Government are taking to ensure consistency between advice given to schools by (a) the Specialist Schools Trust, (b) the National College for School Leadership, (c) the Teacher Training Agency and other advice from his Department. [201137]

Mr. Miliband: In April 2003 the Government established an Implementation Review Unit. The unit is an independent panel of headteachers and senior school managers whose remit is to cut unnecessary burdens on schools. Its responsibilities include advising the Department and national education agencies about the consistency and timeliness of advice and guidance to schools.

Education Finance

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what action he is taking to eliminate the funding gap between schools and further education colleges in Cambridge. [201271]

Mr. Miliband: The Government have already taken action to narrow the funding gap between school sixth forms and further education colleges. For the academic year 2003/04, base funding rates per qualification increased by 3 per cent. for school sixth forms and by 4.5 per cent. for further education colleges on a broadly comparable basis. In 2004/05, funding rates for colleges meeting their targets increased by 5 per cent., while those for school sixth forms rose by 4 per cent. We expect to see this trend continue in the 2005/06 academic year.

Educational Psychologists

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of future (a) demand for and (b) supply of educational psychologists in local education authorities; and if he will make a statement. [199775]

Margaret Hodge: Decisions on the recruitment, retention and deployment of educational psychologists (EPs) are matters for local authorities as employers to determine in light of local circumstances and available resources.

We are considering the future role and training needs of EPs within the context of wider discussions on children's workforce issues.

Exeter University

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance he will give to Exeter university chemistry students regarding the completion of their degrees in the event of the closure of their Department part-way through their degree course; and what assistance his Department will provide to these students. [199946]

Dr. Howells: Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) are autonomous organisations responsible for their own academic direction and strategic use of funds. It is for Exeter university to decide on how to support students affected by the closure. However, I understand that the university is working closely with the students to ensure that all their individual needs are met. The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) will monitor the situation closely.

Expenditure

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the expenditure per pupil was in the Bassetlaw constituency over each of the last 10 years for (a) nursery education, (b) primary schools, (c) secondary schools and (d) further education. [201093]

Mr. Miliband: The information requested for nursery education, primary schools and secondary schools is submitted to the Department according to local education authority areas, rather than districts within an LEA. Bassetlaw forms part of Nottinghamshire LEA. The information requested can be found in the following table:

	School based expenditure[4,5] per pupil[6]
	Pre-Primary Education[8,10]	Primary Education[9]	Pre-Primary and Primary Education[9]	Secondary Education	Combined LEA and school based expenditure[7] per pupil[5]

2001–02	16,270	2,410	2,430	2,970	3,040
2002–03[5,10]	n/a	2,500	n/a	3,030	3,120

[1] 1999–2000 saw a change in data source when the data collection moved from the RO1 form collected by the ODPM to the Section 52 form from the DfES. 2002–03 saw a further break in the time series following the introduction of Consistent Financial Reporting (CFR) and the associated restructuring of the outturn tables. The change in sources is shown by the dotted line.

[2] Financial data is collected at local authority level and not constituency level and as such figures provided are for Nottinghamshire LEA.

[3] Local government reorganisation (LGR) took place in Nottinghamshire during 1998 where pre-LGR Nottinghamshire was split into Nottinghamshire LEA and City of Nottingham LEA from 1998–99 onwards.

[4] School based expenditure includes only expenditure incurred directly by the schools. This includes the pay of teachers and school-based support staff, school premises costs, books and equipment, and certain other supplies and services, less any capital items funded from recurrent spending and income from sales, fees and charges and rents and rates. This excludes the central cost of support services such as home to school transport, local authority administration and the financing of capital expenditure.

[5] The 2002–03 calculation is broadly similar to the calculation in previous years. However, 2001–02 and earlier years includes all premature retirement compensation (PRC) and Crombie payments, mandatory PRC payments and other indirect employee expenses, while in 2002–03 only the schools element of these categories is included. In 2001–02 this accounted for approximately 70 per pupil of the England total, while the schools element of these categories accounted for approximately 50 per pupil of the England total in 2002–03. Also, for some LEAs, expenditure that had previously been attributed to the school sectors was reported within the LEA part of the form in 2002–03 and would therefore be excluded from school based expenditure, though this is not quantifiable from existing sources.

[6] To calculate school based expenditure per pupil, the pupil numbers include only those pupils attending maintained establishments within each sector and are drawn from the DfES Annual Schools Census adjusted to be on a financial year basis.

[7] The combined LEA and school based expenditure includes all expenditure on the education of children in LEA maintained establishments and pupils educated by the LEA other than in maintained establishments. This includes both school based expenditure and all elements of central LEA expenditure except youth and community and capital expenditure from revenue (CERA).
[8] To calculate combined LEA and school based expenditure per pupil, the pupil figures include all pre-primary pupils, including those under 5s funded by the LEA and being educated in private settings, pupils educated in maintained mainstream schools and other LEA maintained pupils. The pupil data for pupils attending maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools are taken from the DfES Annual Schools Census. Private voluntary and independent (PVI) under 5 pupil numbers are taken from the Early Years census but are only included for 1999–2000 onwards. For 1995–96 onwards other LEA maintained pupils are included in the pupil count. This includes all pupils attending schools not maintained by the Authority for whom the Authority is paying full tuition fees, or educated otherwise than in schools and pupil referral units under arrangements made by the Authority drawn from the Form 8b submitted to the DfES. Also included as other LEA maintained pupils are all pupils attending pupil referral units who are not registered at a maintained mainstream school drawn from the DfES Annual Schools Census.
[9] Expenditure was not distinguished between the pre-primary and primary sectors until the inception of Section 52 for financial year 1999–2000.
[10] School based expenditure in nursery schools was not recorded in 2002–03.
[11] Spending in 1997–98 reflects the transfer of monies from local government to central government for the nursery vouchers scheme. These were returned to local government from 1998–99.
[12] The 1999–2000 figures reflect the return of GM schools to local authority maintenance.
[13] Figures are rounded to the nearest £10.

(d) The Department does not collect information on the level of funding per pupil in further education at the local or regional level. However, the following table shows funding per full-time equivalent student in further education in England from 1994–95 to 2003–04:

	FE total funding per pupil
1994–95	3,080
1995–96	3,040
1996–97	3,050
1997–98	3,070
1998–99	3,090
1999–2000	3,380
2000–01	3,640
2001–02	4,050
2002–03 [1]	4,120
2003–04 [2]	4,240

[1] Provisional Data
[2] Planned Expenditure

Notes:
1. These are cash figures that show total funding for the further education (FE) sector.
2. The figures include moneys provided for participation and certain funding for earmarked purposes, including capital, the Standards Fund and other special grants to colleges.
3. The figures are consistent with those published in the DfES "Departmental Annual Report 2004".

Increased Flexibility Programme

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether the 14–16 Increased Flexibility Programme will be continued. [201265]

Mr. Miliband: An announcement will be made shortly.

Physical Education Teachers

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many qualified physical education teachers were teaching in (a) primary schools and (b) secondary schools in 2004; and what the figures were for 1997. [202720]

Mr. Miliband: Primary school teachers are trained to deliver all subjects in the national curriculum including PE.

Information on the numbers of teachers of PE in secondary schools and their qualifications was collected in November 1996 and 2002.

The following table gives the number of full-time teachers in maintained secondary schools who taught some PE, year groups seven to 13, and the highest post A level qualification held in the subject for those years.

Physical education

	2002	1996
Degree (percentage)	25	11
BEd (percentage)	31	34
PGCE (percentage)	6	5
Certificate of education (percentage)	13	23
Other qualification (percentage)	2	[1] —
No qualification (percentage)	22	26
Total teachers (thousand)	21	20

[1] Equals zero or less than 0.5 per cent.

Notes:
1. The sum of the percentages may not equal 100 due to rounding.
2. Teachers may also teach subjects other than PE.
3. The degree category includes higher degrees but exclude BEds.
4. Where a teacher has more than one post A level qualification in PE, the qualification level is determined by the highest level reading from left (Degree) to right (Other Qualification). For example, teachers shown under PGCE have a PGCE but not a degree or BEd in PE, while those with a PGCE and a degree are shown only under Degree.

Source:
Secondary Schools Curriculum and Staffing Survey.

The following table shows the proportion of subject periods taught in PE in maintained secondary schools, year groups 7 to 13, by teachers holding a post A level qualification. It shows that in 2002 and 1996 94 per cent. of PE periods were taught by a teacher with a post A level qualification in PE.

Physical education

Degree	35	15
BEd	37	47

Primary School Teachers

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many primary school teachers there are in (a) England, (b) each region and (c) each local education authority, broken down by (i) race and (ii) gender. [201678]

Mr. Miliband: Information on the ethnic origin of teachers in the maintained sector is collected annually, but cannot be split by gender or phase of education. A breakdown of the information available for January 2004 at national, regional and LEA level was published in SFR 34/2004, Table 18. A copy of this has been placed in the House of Commons Library. It is also available at the following URL: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000493/index.shtml

The following table gives the headcount number of qualified full-time and part-time primary teachers employed in maintained nursery and primary schools by gender for England, by region and LEA at March 2003, (the latest information available by gender).

The information is taken from the Database of Teachers' Records a database maintained primarily for pensions purposes. 10 to 20 per cent. of part-time teachers may not be included. LEAs are shown as not available where data are insufficiently complete to be reliable. National and regional totals show data for all LEAs.

Primary Schools (Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland)

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, how many primary schools in Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland are planned to be closed due to falling rolls. [201502]

Mr. Miliband: Middlesbrough local education authority is responsible for planning school places in the area. It has to ensure that schools serve the needs of their local communities and provide good quality education in a cost effective way.

I understand that Middlesbrough LEA is consulting on a number of options for reorganising schools to deal with falling pupil numbers and hopes to publish statutory proposals early in 2005. Any proposals to close Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland schools will be decided locally by the school organisation committee, or by an independent schools adjudicator if the committee cannot reach an unanimous decision.

School Meals

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent discussions he has had on the nutritional standards for food provided at breakfast clubs. [201534]

Mr. Stephen Twigg [holding answer 2 December 2004]: We are taking forward a number of projects to improve school food and provide consistent messages about healthy eating across the curriculum. We plan to extend our standards for school lunches to cover food consumed in schools throughout the day, which will include food provided at breakfast clubs.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, what steps he is taking to encourage the formation of school nutritional action groups. [201535]

Mr. Stephen Twigg [holding reply 2 December 2004]: The Healthy Living Blueprint was launched on 6 September 2004. It contains guidelines for schools to develop and implement a whole-school food policy, and school nutrition action groups have helped many schools improve the standard of food provided and consumed throughout the school day. Further information can be found on the website: http://www.teachernet.gov.uk/wholeschool/healthylivina/wholeschoQlapproach/rmks/

The headteacher and governing body of a school decide whether or not to form and support a school nutritional action group.

Students

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what financial assistance is available in other EU countries to British students studying there. [201126]

Dr. Howells: Higher education students from England and Wales do not qualify for financial assistance under the Department's student support arrangements if they are undertaking their entire course at an overseas institution. However, students who are attending a course offered by a UK institution in conjunction with an overseas institution, and who are required to spend a period of study at that overseas institution as part of their UK course, are eligible for financial assistance for the period spent overseas.

UK students who spend a period overseas under the Erasmus exchange scheme normally receive an Erasmus grant, provided by the European Commission, which contributes towards the extra costs arising from studying abroad.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many non-British students are studying in British universities; [201127]

(2) how many EU students are studying in British universities. [201128]

Dr. Howells: The available information has been taken from the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) Student Record. In 2002/03, there were 250,195 non-UK domiciled students enrolled on higher education courses at HE institutions in Great Britain and of these, 87,090 were from the EU and 6,390 were from the EU accession countries.

Sure Start

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what consultation exercise has been undertaken to review Sure Start's independent funding. [201040]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 30 November 2004]: Sure Start local programmes were originally intended to be time limited. However, we are now intending, in discussion with local programme managers and local authorities to continue funding Sure Start children's centres as part of ongoing mainstream funding for children's services. We will tell the Sure Start children's centres what their continued funding will be as soon as final discussions are taken.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether the funding for Sure Start will be ring-fenced when the programme is administered by local authorities. [201071]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 30 November 2004]: We will be discussing with local authorities and Sure Start programmes how to ensure that key services and ways of working successfully delivered by the programmes are maintained as local authorities take on increasing responsibility for planning of children's services including Sure Start local programmes. We expect to begin this process in April 2006, and hope that all programmes will be administered through local authorities by April 2008. We will ensure that ring-fencing remains until we have agreed ways of ensuring that funding mechanisms support the transition from Sure Start local programmes to Sure Start children's centres without jeopardising the quality of services for local families.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many full-time equivalent posts were being funded by Sure Start programmes on the latest date for which figures are available; and what proportion of these posts are occupied by men. [201526]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 2 December 2004]: The information is not collected centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Tuition Fees (Art Degrees)

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether prospective students who are required to undertake a one-year foundation course prior to commencing an art degree in 2006 will be liable to pay top-up tuition fees for their art degree; and if he will make a statement. [202017]

Dr. Howells: Students taking art or other foundation courses in 2005/06 (prior to starting their higher education course in 2006/07) will come within the variable deferred fees regime. Such students will be able to take advantage of the new system under which tuition fees do not have to be paid until after graduation (and only then while the individual is earning above a certain level, currently set at £15,000), and of the enhanced student support package in 2006/07, including the new means-tested £2,700 grant.

Universities (Ethnic Minorities)

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many black and minority ethnic young men went to university in 2002. [200467]

Dr. Howells: The available information has been taken from the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) Student Record and is given as follows.

UK domiciled, young[1], male entrants[2] to undergraduate HE courses at UK HE institutions, 2002/03

Video Conferencing Units

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many video conferencing units are installed in (a) the Department and (b) each agency of the Department; what percentage of offices have these facilities in each case; and what plans there are to increase the number. [201590]

Mr. Stephen Twigg [holding answer 2 December 2004]: Every DfES building has a number of videoconferencing units installed within it as follows:

	Number of video units installed
Darlington	7
London	[1]19
Runcorn	5
Sheffield	11

[1] 13 Sanctuary Buildings/6 Caxton House

As the Department no longer has agencies, no figures have been included in respect of that part of the question.

At the present time, there are no formal plans to increase the number of videoconferencing units in the Department but we constantly monitor the amount of use made of the studios to inform decisions about the potential need for extra facilities.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many departmental mobile telephones were used by Ministers, special advisers and officials in his Department in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202174]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 18 November 2004, Official Report, columns 1739–40W, to the hon. Member for Hertford and Stortford (Mr. Prisk). The replacement cost of the one lost mobile phone was £144.

Timber

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans his Department has to fund the establishment and maintenance of the Central Point of Expertise on Timber. [201143]

Mrs. McGuire: The funding of the Central Point of Expertise for Timber Procurement is a matter for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. The Scotland Office is not involved in the funding arrangements.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

IT Contracts

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesborough, representing the Church Commissioners, what the (a) projected cost at the time of tender and (b) actual cost at the time of completion was for each IT contract commissioned by the Commission over the last five years. [201615]

Sir Stuart Bell: The Church Commissioners do not generally tender for IT services; these are provided under a common service agreement by the Archbishops' Council.

The exception is a project to register the Commissioners' rural property interests in compliance with the Land Registration Act 2002, whose IT element is projected to cost £163,000 plus VAT. This will not be completed until December 2007 but we expect actual cost to match this projection.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Voter Participation

29. Kevin Brennan: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what action the Electoral Commission has taken to increase the percentage of those from less well-off households who vote. [201755]

Mr. Viggers: The Electoral Commission aims to be inclusive of the entire electorate in its provision of public awareness information. It produces materials in a variety of formats and uses a wide selection of media outlets. In addition, the Commission has a programme targeting hard to reach groups, including 16 to 24-year-olds outside formal education, and a grants programme.

Overseas Voter Registration

30. Mr. Evans: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, what discussions the Electoral Commission has had with British embassies and high commissions on assisting them to encourage overseas voters to register for general elections. [201756]

Mr. Viggers: Electoral Commission staff have had discussions with officials at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on the provision of information to overseas posts about electoral registration and voting. The Commission informs me that the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has offered to circulate publicity material produced by the Electoral Commission (such as leaflets and posters) through its network of overseas posts and via its website.

TREASURY

ATM Machines

Mr. Weir: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what research he has commissioned on the incidence of use of ATM machines by (a) pensioners and (b) benefit recipients in areas in the immediate vicinity of closed former sub-post offices; [202547]

(2) what research he has commissioned on the number of ATM machines in the vicinity of closed former sub-post offices which make charge for use. [202546]

Mr. Timms: None. The Government are committed to tackling financial exclusion and have announced a Financial Inclusion Fund of £120 million to support measures to address financial exclusion as well as establishing a financial inclusion taskforce to monitor progress in three key areas: access to banking services, access to affordable credit and access to face to face money advice. In addition, Postwatch works closely with the Post Office to assess the implications of each proposed post office closure.

Average Earnings

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the level of national average earnings has been in each year since 1974 at (a) current prices and (b) today's prices; and what the real terms increase was each year. [199553]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Michael Meacher, dated 6 December 2004:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the level of national average earnings has been in each year since 1974 at (a) current prices and (b) today's prices; and what the real terms increase was each year. (199553)

Currently average earnings are estimated from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE). Prior to 1998 average earnings were estimated from the New Earnings Survey (NES), and are provided for full time employees on adult rates of pay whose pay was unaffected by absence during the pay period. This is the standard definition used for ASHE and NES tables. The ASHE does not collect data on the self employed and people who do unpaid work.

I attach a table showing the Average Gross Weekly Earnings of full time employees for 1974 to 2004 based on current and today's prices. Earnings data at today's prices has been calculated with reference to the all items Retail Prices Index (RPI). The RPI is an average measure of the change in prices of goods and services bought for the purposes of consumption by the majority of UK households. For the purposes of this calculation, it is assumed that RPI is an adequate measure of changes in retail prices faced by those particular groups covered by the ASHE.

The ASHE, carried out in April of each year, is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom. It is a one per cent sample of all employees who are members of pay-as-you-earn (PAYE) schemes, but because of its sampling frame, it has difficulty capturing data on people with very low pay. It is therefore likely to under-represent relatively low paid staff earning below the tax threshold.

The Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings publication criteria ensures that all estimates are undisclosive. A number of estimates have been removed from the published tables for these reasons.

Cancer Treatment (Bassetlaw)

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what the survival rate for patients with cancer at Bassetlaw hospital was in each of the last 20 years. [201091]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. John Mann, dated 6 December 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question concerning what the survival rate for patients with cancer at Bassetlaw Hospital was in each of the last 20 years. (201091)

Cancer survival rates are only available for specific cancers and hence do not indicate overall survival rates for all cancer patients. Rates are not available for individual hospitals, NHS Trusts or Primary Care Organisations. However, figures for the major cancer sites are available for current Strategic Health Authorities and were previously produced for the former Health Authorities.

The latest available one and five-year survival rates at the sub-national level are for patients[1] diagnosed during 1994–96 and followed up to 31 December 2001. These data are available for Trent strategic health authority, which contains Bassetlaw primary care trust.

Figures for earlier years were for North Nottinghamshire health authority (which included Bassetlaw Hospital). These covered: patients diagnosed during 1992–94 and followed up to the end of 1999,

Carers

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many carers (a) under the age of 18 years and (b) between five and 15 years in (i) England, (ii) each constituency and (iii) each local authority are providing unpaid care for (A) up to 20 hours, (B) between 20 and 49 hours and (C) 50 hours or over a week. [201222]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Paul Burstow, dated 6 December 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking for the number of carers (a) under the age of 18 years and (b) between five and 15 years in (i) England, (ii) each constituency and (iii) each local authority, providing unpaid care for (A) up to 20 hours a week, (B) between 20 and 49 hours and (C) 50 hours or over a week. (201222)

Figures from commissioned table C0399 indicate that on Census day (29 April 2001) there were 139,199 people aged under 18 years providing unpaid care in England of which 90,431 were aged between 5 and 15 years. The extract below shows the distribution of these carers according to the number of hours of care provided per week.

Correspondence

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Paymaster-General will reply to the letter of 10 November from the hon. Member for Spelthorne, about a constituent, Miss K. McDermott. [202735]

Dawn Primarolo: I have done so.

Departmental Advertising/Expenditure

Keith Vaz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in which Muslim newspapers the Department advertises; and what kinds of advertising the Department places in Muslim newspapers. [201698]

Mr. Timms: In the last two financial years, the only advertisements placed by the Treasury have been for the purpose of staff recruitment and the Treasury has not placed adverts in any media aimed at specific religious or ethnic minority groups.

The Treasury uses a wide variety of different publications for recruitment advertising, tailored according to the nature of the vacancy to be filled. This includes the use of professional journals and magazines, national and local newspapers, and websites.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost of refurbishing each ministerial private office was in the last two years. [202493]

Mr. Timms: None.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost has been of criminal damage to his Department's buildings in each of the last two years. [202495]

Mr. Timms: None.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total cost to his Department was for the use of external consultants in each of the last two years. [202503]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 25 October 2004, Official Report, columns 1055–56W, to the hon. Member for Stratford-upon-Avon (Mr. Maples) and the hon. Member for New Forest East (Dr. Lewis)

Departmental Mobile Phones

Andrew Selous: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many departmental mobile telephones were used by Ministers, special advisers and officials in his Department in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202168]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 20 October to the hon. Member for Hertford and Stortford (Mr. Prisk).

Drug-related Deaths

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many drug-related deaths there were in (a) Blyth Valley and (b) South Northumberland in each of the last five years. [202056]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Ronnie Campbell, dated 6 December 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many drug-related deaths there were in (a) Blyth Valley and (b) South Northumberland in each of the last five years. (202056)

Available figures relate to deaths from drug poisoning, not the total number that were drug-related. Figures are available for the Shire County of Northumberland and local authorities within the county. The most recently available information is for deaths in 2002. Figures are shown in the table below for these areas for the calendar years 1998 to 2002.

Number of deaths from drug-related poisoning[1], local authorities within the Shire County of Northumberland[2], 1998 to 2002[3]

Local authority	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002
Northumberland Shire County	12	20	19	16	24
Alnwick	*	*	*	*	*
Berwick-upon-Tweed	*	*	*	*	*
Blyth Valley	*	6	5	5	8
Castle Morpeth	*	*	*	*	*
Tynedale	*	*	*	*	*
Wansbeck	5	8	7	6	6

* Small numbers (Figures between 0 and 4) have been suppressed to protect patient confidentiality.
[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes 292, 304, 305.2–305.9, E850-E858, E950.0-E950.5, E962.0 and E980.0-E980.5 for 1996 to 2000, and the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes FJ1-F16, F18-F19, X40-X44, X60-X64, X85 and Y10-Y14 from 2001 onwards.
[2] Usual residents.
[3] Data are for deaths occurring in each calendar year.

EU Institutions

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with (a) Ministers in other Departments, (b) representatives of other member states and (c) the European Commission regarding the quality of accounting practices in the EU institutions. [202660]

Mr. Timms: The Chancellor and other Treasury Ministers have had a number of discussions about the Commission's accounting practices and need for reform with other member states and the European Commission, most recently at the Budget ECOFIN on 25 November on the occasion of the presentation of the European Court of Auditors' annual report. Other UK Government Departments contribute to the briefing for these meetings.

External Trade Commissioner

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he next plans to meet the European Commissioner for External Trade. [199807]

Mr. Timms: The Chancellor and other Treasury Ministers have already met several of the new Commissioners including Charlie McCreevy, Dalia Grybauskaite and Danuta Hubner meetings with other members of the new Commission will follow in due course as part of normal Treasury business.

Government Administration (Staff Numbers)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, if he will make a statement on the change in the number of people employed in central Government administration between 1997 and 2004. [201508]

Mr. Timms: Data concerning Civil Service numbers between 1997 and 2004 has been published annually in Civil Service Statistics. Current information for 2004 can also be found online at: http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/index.asp.

International Finance Facility

Tony Baldry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer to whom 'the International Finance Facility will be accountable. [202665]

Mr. Timms: The UK's proposal is that the IFF will be a temporary financing framework specifically designed to raise and allocate money needed to meet the millennium development goals by 2015. It will be subject to a set of overarching principles, which will govern disbursement and will be agreed at the establishment of the IFF, and which could include, for example, conditions that funds must be used for poverty reduction and not tied to contracts using suppliers from the donor country. Participating donors will therefore control the IFF's mandate on poverty reduction and its accountability. Reflecting the partnership between donor countries and developing countries, recipient countries would have a significant role within the facility.

Job Vacancies (Pendle)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many unfilled job vacancies there were in Pendle in the last period for which figures are available. [203039]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl to Mr. Gordon Prentice, dated 6 December 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about job vacancies in Pendle. I am replying in his absence. (203039)

Figures for vacancies in total are only available from the Office for National Statistics Vacancy Survey, which provides information at national level only. For local areas, figures for vacancies held by the Jobcentre Plus administrative system are available for periods up to April 2001. However, due to changes to that system, more recent figures are only available on a reliable basis for newly notified vacancies.

In April 2001 there were 601 unfilled vacancies which had been registered to Jobcentres in the Nelson and Colne travel to work area. An equivalent figure for Pendle is not available.

The Jobcentre Plus vacancy figure represents only those vacancies notified to Jobcentres, not all vacancies in an area.

Minimum Wage

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what estimate he has made of how many people in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland are being paid below the minimum wage. [201496]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Dr. Ashok Kumar, dated 6 November 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question about how many people in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland are being paid below the minimum wage. (201496)

The Office for National Statistics calculates estimates of the number of jobs paid less than the minimum wage, and below various other earnings thresholds, for the United Kingdom and Government Office Regions. A guide to measuring low pay and associated articles and data can be found on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=5837&Pos=1&ColRank=272

Estimates for Parliamentary Constituencies are not available.

Mortgage Lenders (Dual Interest Rates)

Ross Cranston: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many customers benefited following the ruling by the Financial Ombudsman Service in the lead cases involving dual interest rates by mortgage lenders; what the total amount involved was; and whether this is the largest sum awarded to customers following a ruling on a particular issue. [201598]

Mr. Timms: The Financial Ombudsman Service tell me that they first started to receive complaints about dual variable interest rates, in 2001. The Financial Ombudsman Service continued to receive these types of complaints until early 2004. In total, the Financial Ombudsman Service has received 7,256 such complaints. Of the 7,256 complaints received, the Financial Ombudsman Service upheld approximately half of them in favour of the consumer. Where the Financial Ombudsman Service upheld cases, the remedy was to require the lenders concerned to recalculate borrowers' mortgage rates, based on the lower standard rate. In some cases, the remedy also took into account any early repayment charge that a borrower may have paid. The Financial Ombudsman Service does not have a record of the monetary value of these awards.

MRSA

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how often the MRSA virus was listed as a cause of death on a death certificate in the most recent period for which figures are available. [201518]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 2 December 2004]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl to Mr. Derek Wyatt, dated 6 December 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many times the cause of death at the Medway Maritime Hospital has been recorded as being due to the MRSA bacterium. I am replying in his absence. (201533)

The latest year for which figures are available is 2002. The figure for Medway Maritime Hospital was provided in a written answer published in Hansard on 22 July 2004, column 471W.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many written questions for his Department were unanswered when Parliament Prorogued; and how many of the unanswered questions were tabled in each of the previous months of the 2003–04 Session. [201561]

John Healey: One written question, which first appeared on the day before Prorogation, did not receive a substantive answer in the 2003–04 session. The hon. Member concerned retabled the question on 23 November and it was answered substantively by the Financial Secretary on 30 November.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what target his Department sets for the maximum acceptable time to respond in full to a parliamentary question; and what percentage of answers given by his Department failed to meet this target in each parliamentary session from 1997–98 to 2003–04. [202550]

John Healey: Treasury Ministers are committed to answering parliamentary questions promptly: that is to say, on the day nominated by the questioner, in the case of named day questions; and, for ordinary written questions, within a working week of tabling. No target exists for the maximum acceptable response time.

In the 2003–04 session, 79 per cent. of House of Commons written questions to the Treasury were answered on time.

Savings

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, if he will make a statement on the change in personal and retirement saving between 1997 and 2004. [201291]

Mr. Timms: Individuals save in a variety of assets, from deposit accounts, pensions, stocks and shares, to homes and businesses.

Total household assets—including savings, pensions, life insurance and housing—currently stand at over £6 trillion. Total household net wealth—the excess of household assets over debt—has risen by around 50 per cent. in real terms since 1997.

The Government are committed to a policy framework that enables people to choose how and when to save across the full range of asset-building activities.

Government policy on saving and pensions has had a very positive effect. The Government provides tax support of £2 billion every year for savers through Individual Savings Accounts (ISAs) and other products, resulting in increased take-up of ISAs by both low-income groups and the young. The Government also provides generous tax relief for pension saving worth over £11 billion per year in net terms to individuals and employers and is simplifying the pensions regime by replacing eight regimes with just one, providing greater choice and flexibility to 15 million pension savers.

The Government's wide-ranging support for saving and pensions includes: empowering individuals with financial information; promoting simpler, fairer and more trusted savings and pensions products, including through the suite of 'Stakeholder' products; and providing targeted incentives and support for saving throughout people's lives—from childhood, to working life and into pension age, including through the Child Trust Fund, Individual Savings Accounts, pensions and the use of matching, as in the Saving Gateway.

Unemployment (Bassetlaw)

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) unemployed claimants and (b) long-term unemployed claimants there were in the Bassetlaw constituency in each year since 1990. [201088]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. John Mann, dated 6 December 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about how many unemployed claimants and long term unemployed claimants there were in the Bassetlaw constituency in each year since 1990. (201088)

For the years 1990 to 2003, the attached table shows annual averages of: (a) All Job Seeker's Allowance claimants resident in the Bassetlaw constituency; and (b) among those, the numbers claiming for over 12 months.

JSA claimants resident in the Bassetlaw constituency

Annual average	All claimants	Claimants over 12 months[1]
1990	2,946	617
1991	3,565	793
1992	4,168	1,223
1993	4,512	1,519
1994	4,729	1,639
1995	4,019	1,491
1996	3,488	1,270
1997	2,639	870
1998	2,246	625
1999	2,060	485
2000	1,788	390
2001	1,854	310
2002	1,570	225
2003	1,195	140

Video Conferencing

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many video conferencing units are installed in (a) the Department and (b) each agency of the Department; what percentage of offices have these facilities in each case; and what plans there are to increase the number. [200726]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is as follows:

HM Treasury

The Treasury's five video conferencing units (VCs) provide facilities for all the department's staff. There are no plans to increase the number of VCs.

HM Customs and Excise

Eight VC units provide facilities to approximately 25 per cent. of Customs' staff. There are plans to install three or four additional VCs.

Inland Revenue

123 of the Inland Revenue's 716 offices (17 per cent.) have VC facilities. The department aims to have 300 units by 2007.

Royal Mint

One VC is available at the Royal Mint's site. There are no current plans to acquire more VCs.

Office of Government Commerce

There are 13 VCs serving all of OGC's offices. A review of existing facilities is planned for 2005.

Office for National Statistics

Seven VCs serve 80 per cent. of ONS offices. Two further units are at present planned and a review of VC facilities is under way.

National Savings and Investments

Four units cover all of NS&I's sites. There are no plans to extend VC facilities.

Valuation Office Agency

No VC facilities at present, but plans to install VCs in six locations by April 2005.

Debt Management Office

Government Actuary's Department

No VCs installed and none planned for the foreseeable future.

Wage Levels

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the lowest living wage in the UK. [201541]

Mr. Timms: Because costs of living vary between households of different types and across the country it is not possible to estimate a definitive living wage for the UK.

The Government have introduced the national minimum wage to ensure a fair minimum income from work, and the working and child tax credits which enhance work incentives and provide financial support to families. The tax credits respond to family size and circumstances, providing additional income on top of earnings targeted on those who need it most.

CABINET OFFICE

Anti-war Protesters

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office pursuant to her answer of 29 November 2004, Official Report, column 4W, on anti-war protesters, whether the three intruders who reached an office within the building were detected immediately on entering the building; and what measures are being put in place to prevent a similar incident in future. [202828]

Ruth Kelly: All four protesters were detected on entering the building; one was challenged immediately, the other three were stopped and challenged a few minutes later once additional security staff had been deployed to the scene. Following the incident immediate measures were taken to reinforce security at the front entrance of the building as a necessary precaution. The Cabinet Office is also reviewing all security procedures.

Cabinet Committee Meetings

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many meetings of each Cabinet Committee of which he is a member have been held since his appointment; and how many of these meetings he has attended. [201874]

Mr. Milburn: I sit on 19 Cabinet Committees.

It has been established practice under successive Governments not to disclose information relating to the proceedings of Cabinet Committees under Exemption 2 of Part II of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many departmental mobile telephones were used by (a) Ministers, (b) special advisers and (c) officials in her Department in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202758]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave to the hon. Member for Hertford and Stortford (Mr. Prisk) on 4 November 2004, Official Report, column 838W.

Ministerial Cars

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office (1) what (a) instructions and (b) guidance her Department has issued to the Government Car Service concerning the procurement of ministerial cars, with particular reference to purchasing British-manufactured automobiles, where British models offer at least as good value-for-money as equivalent overseas models; [202524]

(2) if she will make a statement on her Department's procurement policy with regard to ministerial cars manufactured by British firms. [202565]

Ruth Kelly: The responsibility for the provision of ministerial cars and drivers has been delegated under the terms of the Framework Document to the Government Car and Despatch Agency. I have asked its Chief Executive Mr. Nick Matheson to write to the hon. Member. Copies of his letter will be placed in the Library, and is printed as follows:

Letter from Nick Matheson to Mr. Oliver Heald, dated 6 December 2004:

The Minister of State for the Cabinet Office has asked me in my capacity as the Chief Executive responsible for the Government Car and Despatch Agency to reply to your Parliamentary Questions about procurement of ministerial cars.

In establishing whether a particular car is suitable for use by the Government Car Service I have to be satisfied that I am achieving value for money, that I meet the guidelines set by the Prime Minister and that I comply with European Union procurement regulations. I cannot favour one manufacturer over another purely on the grounds of the country of manufacture of a particular vehicle.

Special Advisers/Civil Servants

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his policy is on using (a) the services of civil servants, (b) departmental e-mails and (c) the services of his special adviser for party political fundraising. [202158]

Mr. Milburn: Civil servants and special advisers carry out their duties in accordance with the requirements of the Civil Service Code and the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers as appropriate.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether (a) his special adviser and (b) civil servants who report to him have sent e-mails in respect of (i) fundraising and (ii) celebrity or other endorsement purposes to Ministers or their advisers since his appointment. [202159]

Mr. Milburn: I refer the hon. Member to a letter from the Cabinet Secretary to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox) on 30 November 2004. A copy of the letter has been placed in the Library of the House.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what her policy is on using the services of (a) special advisers and (b) civil servants in her Department in relation to party political (i) fundraising campaigns and (ii) celebrity or other endorsements. [202160]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Mr. Milburn) gave him today.

PRIME MINISTER

Climate Change (UK Presidencies)

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister, if he will list the outcomes he aims to achieve in terms of progress on climate change from the UK presidency of (a) the G8 and (b) the EU. [202152]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 22 June 2004, Official Report, column 1295W.

Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Prime Minister, if he will require Government departments replying to hon. Members' constituency casework to address their responses to hon. Members' House of Commons offices, when the correspondence raising the case has issued from the hon. Member's office in the House. [201256]

The Prime Minister: Replies to Members' correspondence should be sent to the originating office unless hon. Members specifically request otherwise.

This will be made clear in the next edition of Cabinet Office guidance on the Handling of Members' Correspondence.

Equatorial Guinea

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Prime Minister whether (a) he, (b) Ministers and (c) officials had discussions in an official capacity with the former right hon. Member for Hartlepool during the last 12 months concerning Equatorial Guinea. [200919]

The Prime Minister: I have had no discussions at any time about Equatorial Guinea with the former right hon. Member for Hartlepool. Officials in No. 10 discussed with him on one occasion recent media reports that named him in connection with the attempted coup.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Prime Minister, when he first learned of the attempted coup in Equatorial Guinea. [201703]

The Prime Minister: As my Official Spokesman made clear on Monday 29 November 2004, I did not have prior knowledge of an attempted coup in Equatorial Guinea. I first became aware of this issue when media reports of an attempted coup surfaced in March.

Europe Day

Mr. Brady: To ask the Prime Minister how he plans to celebrate Europe Day on 9 May 2005. [202659]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Minister for Europe (Mr. MacShane) on 30 November 2004, Official Report, column 64W.

Iraq Survey Group

Llew Smith: To ask the Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the final copy of the Iraq Survey Group's Report. [202755]

The Prime Minister: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary (Jack Straw) on 12 October 2004, Official Report, columns 151–55, to the answers I gave at the Prime Minister's questions on 13 October 2004, and to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Croydon, South (Mr. Ottaway) at Prime Minister's questions on 3 November 2004, Official Report, column 308.

Ministerial Committees

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister, on how many occasions since 1 January 2004 the Ministerial Committee on Intelligence Services has met. [202107]

The Prime Minister: This information is withheld under Exemption 2 of the Code of Practice on Access to Information as it relates to the Proceedings of a Cabinet Office.

Special Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Prime Minister (1) if he will list the attributable interviews that his Office's special advisers gave to (a) newspapers, (b) journals, (c) books and (d) other media in their official capacity between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004; [201397]

(2) if he will list the attributable (a) articles and (b) contributions that his Office's special advisers made to (i) newspapers, (ii) journals, (iii) books and (iv) other media in their official capacity between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004. [201458]

The Prime Minister: The information is not held in the format requested.

All Special Advisers' contacts with the media are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the code of Conduct of Special Advisers.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Bichard Report

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps the Chief Constable of the Police Service Northern Ireland is taking to implement the recommendations of the Bichard report. [200517]

Mr. Pearson: It is clear that this is an important challenge for the whole of the UK and I welcome Sir Michael's recommendations. Although his report does not specifically apply to Northern Ireland, we recognise its importance and we have therefore taken the initiative across Government as a whole to ensure they are appropriately applied to Northern Ireland. As a key partner in this critical work, the Police Service of Northern Ireland has established an internal working party to explore the implementation of the Bichard recommendations in the Northern Ireland policing context. The working party comprises operational detectives, staff with particular experience in child protection issues and the investigation of sexual offences, as well as officers with expertise in IT systems and data protection legislation. In addition, a core of staff is working full-time on this project under the direction of the working party.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on implementing the recommendations of the Bichard and Kelly reports as they apply to Northern Ireland. [201095]

Mr. Pearson: Although neither the Bichard report nor the Kelly report apply explicitly to this jurisdiction, it is clear that both contain vital lessons for Northern Ireland. The Government welcome the important protections for children and vulnerable adults contained within the recommendations of these reports, and recognises that it is critical that they should be given the appropriate effect in Northern Ireland. We are therefore taking positive steps to ensure that Northern Ireland benefits from these new measures.

Urgent work is being taken forward across Government to implement the recommendations of the Bichard Report. In Northern Ireland, a range of organisations are working in partnership to achieve this, including: the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety; the Department of Education; the Office of the First and Deputy First Ministers; the Police Service of Northern Ireland; the Northern Ireland Commissioner for Children and Young People and the Northern Ireland Office. A key part of this work will be supporting the implementation of the Kelly Report.

In addition, we are also working closely with colleagues in the Home Office, the Department for Education and Skills, and others to ensure that work in Northern Ireland is effectively coordinated with the wider UK implementation programme. In driving this work forward, however, it will clearly be crucial to take the particular needs of Northern Ireland into account.

Civil Service

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many civil service jobs have been relocated from the Greater Belfast area to each of the constituencies outside Belfast and North Down in the past five years. [200083]

Mr. Pearson: 40 civil service jobs were relocated from the Greater Belfast/North Down area to the constituency of Foyle in the financial year 2001–02 as a result of a decision to centralise the NICS superannuation functions formerly carried out within Departments. In the year 2002–03 the Department for Social Development relocated 36 jobs to Foyle as a result of the creation of a new Pension Service co-located in Londonderry and Belfast.

Consultants

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department has spent on external consultants in each of the last 10 years. [201946]

Mr. Pearson: I refer the hon. Lady to the answer I gave on 17 November 2004, Official Report, column 1633W.

Derelict Buildings (Derry)

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many buildings in Spencer road in Derry are classified as derelict; what estimate he has made of the value in rates that these buildings would contribute if they were brought back into use as business premises; and how many of these buildings are in Government ownership. [201264]

Mr. Spellar: Government do not hold information on the number of buildings on Spencer road that are classified as derelict. Valuation and Lands Agency has confirmed that derelict property does not appear in the Valuation List, as it is not capable of occupation. The Valuation and Lands Agency only assesses the rateable value of such property if and when it becomes capable of occupation. No estimates are made of potential rates liability except in the case of buildings which are to be refurbished for future Government occupation and which are to be subject to an economic appraisal. No such estimates have been prepared for buildings on Spencer Road.

In relation to property in Government ownership, the Department for Social Development owns the Distillery Brae site, which fronts onto Spencer road and comprises 11 vacant and derelict buildings, and a site at the junction of Spencer road and Lower Fountain Hill, comprising 350 sq m of land.

Driver and Vehicle Testing Centres

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, what the average waiting time is for people applying to take a driving test at each driver and vehicle testing centre in Northern Ireland. [201133]

Angela Smith: The following table shows the average waiting time between 9 August and 29 November 2004 for all driver test categories.

Test centre	Average (days)
Armagh	33
Ballymena	36
Balmoral	16
Coleraine	39
Cookstown	36
Craigavon	25
Dill Road	17
Downpatrick	43
Enniskillen	62
Larne	47
Lisburn	41
New Buildings	18
Newry	54
Newtownards	44
Omagh	43
Waterside	50

The overall average waiting time for all driver test categories from 9 August to 29 November 2004 was 38 calendar days.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, how many people are waiting on the list for a driving test in (a) Northern Ireland and (b) each of the driver and vehicle testing centres in Northern Ireland; and what the average time is that people are on the pending list in each case. [201134]

Angela Smith: At 1 December 2004 there was a total number of 675 people on the pending list—defined as applications received but not yet appointed—for all driver categories. The following table shows the breakdown by test centre.

The average time for customers on the pending list is not available for each centre, but the average for all centres is 26 days.

Test centre	Applications pending
Armagh	6
Ballymena	11
Balmoral	327
Coleraine	15
Cookstown	1
Craigavon	51
Dill Road	121
Downpatrick	11
Enniskillen	4
Larne	8
Lisburn	5
New Buildings	47
Newry	27
Newtownards	3
Omagh	12
Waterside	26

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what additional resources have been allocated to the Driver and Vehicle Testing Agency in Northern Ireland to help with the backlog of MOT tests following recent industrial action and to reduce the waiting time for people applying for a driving test in Northern Ireland. [201135]

Angela Smith: The Agency is working to restore normal services as soon as possible. Steps being taken include the recruitment from 1 November 2004 of 30 additional staff, the introduction from 1 October 2004 of a more efficient booking programme, and additional overtime working. Certificates of temporary exemption, which allow vehicles to be taxed and driven legally until they can be tested, are being issued where appointments cannot be offered within 21 days. The measures introduced for vehicle testing have the effect of removing some vehicles temporarily from the testing cycle and freeing up capacity to allow the Agency to focus on priority vehicle testing categories and driver testing.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200172]

Mr. Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. MacShane) on 29 November 2004, Official Report, column 10W.

Illegal Drinking

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to review the legislation relating to illegal drinking in public in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [202877]

Mr. Spellar: A review of legislative measures to control drinking in designated public places is currently being undertaken by the Department for Social Development. A proposal for new primary legislation giving district councils and the police new tougher and more effective powers to deal with this problem will be published in 2005.

People Trafficking

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information he has received regarding the trafficking of people to the Province for prostitution. [202042]

Mr. Pearson: The Police Service of Northern Ireland has conducted a number of inquiries into suggestions of people-trafficking to Northern Ireland for the purposes of prostitution. There is presently no evidence to suggest that this is taking place in Northern Ireland. The Police Service of Northern Ireland is acutely aware of the problems experienced in other jurisdictions and they continue to monitor the situation closely.

Resources

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the impact the level of resources available in 2004–05 will have on (a) education and (b) health provision. [200188]

Angela Smith: A total of £1.655 billion has been allocated for Education in 2004–05, a 7.9 per cent. increase on 2003–04. This is to maintain service levels, provide for ongoing costs of teachers' pay progression, support for special education pupils, and schools in interface areas, as well as measures to take forward the reform of post-primary education and the new Northern Ireland Curriculum. It will also provide for significant investment in the schools estate.

In light of overspending by two Education and Library Boards in 2003–04, these Boards are having to take measures to contain expenditure within their 2004–05 allocations. Containment plans received from both Boards are being examined carefully to assess the impact that their proposed actions are likely to have and the scope there might be to minimise any impact on front-line services.

In health and social services, a total of £3.125 billion has been allocated for 2004–05. This investment has enabled levels of services delivered in previous years to be maintained and is also providing for a range of service development across a number of key priority areas. These include, for example, action designed to improve access to GPs and other primary care professionals, an increase of the number of people being supported in community settings, continued action to reduce hospital waiting lists and waiting times, an increase of the number of patients with arthritis who have access to drug therapies, the provision of better support for children and young people in need and the continued promotion of healthier lifestyles.

Unemployment (Lagan Valley)

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the unemployment levels for the Lagan Valley constituency were in each year since 1997. [202747]

Mr. Gardiner: Claimant count unemployment numbers and rates for the Lagan Valley Parliamentary Constituency Area (PCA) for the month of October of each year from 1997 to 2004 are as follows.

October each year	Number unemployed	Rate
1997	1,914	3.1
1998	1,787	2.9
1999	1,333	2.1
2000	1,122	1.8
2001	1,122	1.8
2002	1,020	1.6
2003	982	1.5
2004	878	1.4

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Dobson Report

10. Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects her Department to respond to the report "Getting serious about play" by the committee chaired by the right hon. Member for Holborn and St Pancras (Mr. Dobson). [201766]

Estelle Morris: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State will write to the right hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras shortly setting out her response to his review.

Cricket (Zimbabwe)

11. Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether she has met the England and Wales Cricket Board to discuss future matches in Zimbabwe. [201767]

Mr. Caborn: Neither my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State nor I has met the ECB to discuss future matches in Zimbabwe and we have no plans to do so in the near future. As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said on 6 May, at a joint press conference with David Morgan, Chairman of the ECB, and myself: "It is appropriate for the Government to express a view about issues of this kind. We would have preferred the tour to be postponed until the situation in Zimbabwe improves. But it is right that in our system it is for sporting authorities to make the decisions in cases such as this".

ITV Regional Companies

14. Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has held with Ofcom regarding ITV's regional television commitments. [201770]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon Member for Selby (Mr. Grogan) regarding regional commitments.

National Lottery/Grants

15. Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what contribution grants from Lottery distributors have made to combating social exclusion in Glasgow. [201771]

Estelle Morris: Lottery distributors are required to take into account the need to reduce economic and social deprivation in making awards.

It can be difficult to determine precisely the extent of their contribution to reducing social exclusion but a significant number of Lottery-funded projects have helped to regenerate inner cities, create employment and strengthen communities. Glasgow, Maryhill has received over 300 awards totalling over £46,000,000 from the Lottery.

20. Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the areas of the country that have received the lowest Lottery funding. [201776]

Estelle Morris: The Government want to see all areas of the country and all sections of the population benefiting from the huge success of the National Lottery.

We consulted widely on the Lottery and our reforms will provide a more streamlined and transparent application process for applicants, so that more communities can benefit.

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment her Department has made of the use of National Lottery grants in combating social exclusion in Lancashire and the north-west. [201769]

Estelle Morris: Lottery distributors are required to take into account the need to reduce economic and social deprivation in making awards.

It can be difficult to determine precisely the extent of their contribution to reducing social exclusion but a significant number of Lottery-funded projects have helped to regenerate inner cities, create employment and strengthen communities. Burnley has received over 200 awards totalling over £12,000,000 from the Lottery.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on lottery tickets in Pendle constituency in the latest 12-month period for which figures are available; and what the total for lottery awards in Pendle was during the same period. [201711]

Estelle Morris: The National Lottery operator, Camelot, do not collect ticket sales information on a constituency basis and do not routinely collect ticket sales on a postcode basis. They have however been able to provide an updated table detailing sales by postcode area since the lottery began. I am arranging for copies of the updated table to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses. In 2003–04 there were 26 awards in Pendle to a total value of £998,482.

Disability Discrimination Act (Compliance)

17. Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what guidance she has given to English Heritage on the advice it gives to those responsible for bringing town and village halls into compliance with the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. [201773]

Estelle Morris: The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport has not issued formal guidance to English Heritage (EH) in relation to implementation of the DDA 1995 to historic properties. EH is the statutory advisor on all aspects of the historic environment. They are fully responsible for assisting owners and occupiers of historic buildings and sites in complying with the requirements of the 1995 Act.

BBC (Regional Services)

18. Kevin Brennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what account she will take during BBC charter renewal of the services provided by the BBC to the nations and regions of the UK. [201774]

Tessa Jowell: The BBC's services to the nations, regions and communities of the UK are central to Charter Review—indeed my independent adviser, Lord Burns, recently hosted a public seminar on exactly this subject. Full transcripts and video are available from the Charter Review website.

Children's Activities

19. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made on her Department's target on activity for children. [201775]

Estelle Morris: We share with the Department for Education and Skills a Public Service Agreement target to increase the percentage of school children spending a minimum of two hours each week on high-quality PE and school sport within and beyond the curriculum to 75 per cent. by 2006 and 85 per cent. by 2008. A survey of over 6,000 schools in school sport partnerships, published this April, showed that we are making good progress with over 62 per cent. of pupils taking up two hours.

Creative Partnerships

James Purnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the progress made by Creative Partnerships towards the Government's plans to offer a universal cultural entitlement to all children and young people. [199733]

Estelle Morris: The aim of Creative Partnerships is to give children and young people, particularly those living in disadvantaged areas, access to rich and diverse cultural experiences through working directly with artists and other creative professionals. 25 Creative Partnerships have been established so far, with a further 11 due to begin in September 2005. By this time coverage will have extended to 65 local education authority areas. Creative Partnerships is already having a significant impact. By November 2004, there had been over 217,000 attendances by young people at more than 2,500 projects, and the programme had also provided over 141,000 hours of professional development to teachers and creative professionals.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many departmental mobile telephones were used by Ministers, special advisers and officials in her Department in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202153]

Mr. Caborn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Hertford and Stortford (Mr. Prisk) on 19 October 2004, Official Report, column 605W.

Digital Television

Mr. Peter Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has had with (a) the BBC and (b) other analogue television providers about the extension of digital television services in rural Britain. [201768]

Tessa Jowell: Discussions are currently taking place between the Government, Ofcom, the BBC, and the other Public Service Broadcasters on the detailed plans for switchover.

The Government are committed to ensuring that all households who can currently get public service broadcasting channels in analogue form, including those in rural areas, can continue to receive them on digital systems at switchover.

Everest (Sagarmatha) National Park

Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will support the proposal that UNESCO place the Everest (Sagarmatha) National Park on the World Heritage Danger List. [201934]

Mr. Caborn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker) on 1 December 2004, Official Report, column 173W. As a member of the World Heritage Committee we will consider the information requested at the 29th session and whether the threats justify recommending that the site be placed on the World Heritage in Danger list.

Gambling Commission

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the budget to set up the proposed Gambling Commission will be found from within the departmental budget for 2005–06. [202062]

Mr. Caborn: Assuming enactment of the Gambling Bill currently before the House, provision will be made from the departmental budget in 2005–06 to enable the Gambling Commission to be established; but additional provision will be needed in the following year to enable the commission to take on all the responsibilities which the Bill gives it.

Museums and Galleries

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the Reform and Modernisation Funding Budget for (a) 2005–06 and (b) future years within the National Museum and Galleries division of her Department has been (i) partially and (ii) fully diverted elsewhere. [202063]

Estelle Morris: The Reform and Modernisation budget is a small fund of £10 million held centrally by DCMS. It is not held by the Museums and Galleries Division and it is available to all the Department's funded bodies, although funds have been allocated to Museums and Galleries from this source in 2004–05. The allocation of funds for 2005–06 has yet to be determined. No decision has yet been taken about the size of the fund in future years.

School Sport

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much of the £750 million pledged by the Prime Minister to school sport has been (a) committed and (b) spent. [202718]

Mr. Caborn: The Government have invested £750 million in the New Opportunities for PE and Sport Programme across the United Kingdom. £581 million was allocated to England, of which £25 million was passed to the Space for Sport and the Arts Programme and £30 million set aside for football projects to be distributed via the Football Foundation. Of the remaining £526 million, £336.9 million had been committed and £22.4 million spent by October 2004. 1,000 awards have been made across all local education authorities.

The programme is ahead of schedule and is on course to have the great majority of new facilities in place by spring 2006, as planned. We expect that the majority of funding will be committed by the end of 2004, ahead of the 2005 deadline set in the Policy Directions.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sportwhat the target for participation in school sport is in (a) the UK, (b) France, (c) Germany, (d) Spain, (e) Italy, (f) Denmark and (g) Sweden. [202741]

Mr. Caborn: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport and the Department for Education and Skills share a Public Service Agreement target to increase the percentage of 5–16 year olds who spend a minimum of two hours each week on high quality PE and school sport to 75 per cent. by 2006; and to 85 per cent. by 2008. This Department does not hold information about the targets set in other countries.

Sports and Community Clubs

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sportwhat action she is taking to reduce the costs of compliance with the provisions of the Licensing Act 2003 for sports and community clubs. [202719]

Mr. Caborn: The Government's policy is for licensing fees to be set at a level that allows full recovery of the administration, inspection and enforcement costs falling on licensing authorities. It would be wholly wrong for the taxpayer to subsidise the consumption of alcohol, and it would be difficult to argue that the best way to promote sport is through Government subsidising sports club bars. To ensure fair and equitable arrangements, the fees will be in graduated bands based on the non-domestic rateable value of the premises concerned. Most sports and community clubs will fall at the lower end of these variable fee levels. The draft fees for the new licensing regime were published on 4 November and are open to consultation until 23 December. We have invited comments from sports and community clubs as part of that consultation and will carefully consider all responses before the fee levels are finalised.

Swimming Pools

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps she is taking to prevent closures of (a) indoor and (b) outdoor swimming pools in London. [201772]

Mr. Caborn: There are currently 104 swimming pools in London open to the public.

The Government accept that all sports facilities eventually come to the end of their useful life and need to be closed or replaced. However, it is important that we continue to provide new or replacement swimming facilities where there is a gap in local provision.

In the last ten years Sport England has awarded lottery grants for the construction of 92 swimming pools in this country, and eight of these were London projects.

DEFENCE

Anthrax (Gulf War)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the anthrax supplied by the American Type Culture Collection was the same strain as that used to treat United Kingdom service personnel during the first Gulf War. [200077]

Mr. Caplin: As far as we are aware the American Type Culture Collection does not currently hold any strain of anthrax on its catalogue.

Anthrax is not used and has never been used to treat British Troops.

Army Recruitment

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what control measures on recruitment have been placed on each level of the Army over the past three years. [200015]

Mr. Caplin: Minor adjustments to recruiting are made routinely from time to time, in order to achieve required Army manpower numbers and to ensure a correct balance between individual Arms and Services. Occasionally this results in some individuals who successfully pass through the selection process being given delayed dates to commence their Phase One (basic) training.

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total cost to his Department was for the use of external consultants in each of the last two years. [200813]

Mr. Ingram: Summaries of Ministry of Defence expenditure on external assistance, of which consultancy is a part, are available in the Libraries of both Houses for financial years 1995–96 to 2003–04. However, expenditure on external consultants is not recorded as a specific category, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Telephones

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of unauthorised personal calls made by members of staff to (a) domestic numbers and (b) international numbers in the last year for which figures are available. [201111]

Mr. Caplin: This information is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost. Bills are scrutinised by individual sites and further investigations made if abuse of the telephone service is suspected.

EU Military Staff

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list UK personnel serving on the EU military staff; and what the role of each is. [201570]

Mr. Hoon: On 16 November 2004 the UK had 18 personnel employed in the EU Military Staff.

1. Brigadier—Policy and Plans Division—Assistant Chief of Staff

2. Captain (RN)—Chief of Staff's Office—European Defence Agency Establishment Team

3. Colonel—Logistics and Resources Division—Head of Logistics Section

4. Commander—Operations and Exercises Division—Staff Officer Exercises

5. Commander—Logistics and Resources Division—Staff Officer Logistics

6. Commander—Policy and Plans Division—Staff Officer Concepts

7. Lieutenant Colonel—Chief of Staff's Office—Liaison to EU Special Representative Office, Sarajevo

8. Lieutenant Colonel—Operations and Exercise Division—Staff Officer Crisis Management

9. Lieutenant Colonel—Communications and Information Systems Division—Staff Officer Policy and Requirements Section—Geo-spatial

10. Wing Commander—DG BUMS Executive Office—Staff Officer EUMS Coordination

11. Wing Commander—Intelligence Division—Staff Officer Intelligence Production

12. Wing Commander—Logistics and Resources Division—Staff Officer Resources Support

13. Wing Commander—Communications and Information Systems Division—Staff Officer Policy and Requirements Section

14. Warrant Officer—Intelligence Division—Warrant Officer Production

15. Sergeant—Policy and Plans Division—Administrative Assistant

16. Corporal—Communications and Information Systems Division—Administrative Assistant Policy and Requirements Section

17. Civilian Grade C—Chief of Staffs Office—PA

18. Civilian Grade C—Logistics and Resources Division—Secretary

EU Political and Security Committee

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence to whom the UK's representative to the EU Political and Security Committee is responsible. [201666]

Mr. Hoon: The United Kingdom's representative on the EU Political and Security Committee is responsible for conveying the views of the Government. Ultimately he is responsible, through the line management chain, to the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs.

European Defence Agency

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the UK joined the European Defence Agency. [201665]

Mr. Hoon: The European Defence Agency was formally established on 12 July 2004, under the Council Joint Action 2004/551/CFSP, whereupon the United Kingdom became a participating member state.

Frontline Capability

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effect that the proposed reductions in (a) Commander-in-Chief Fleet, (b) Commander-in-Chief Land Command, (c) Commander-in-Chief Strike Command and (d) Chief of Defence Logistics will have on frontline capability; and if he will make a statement. [200476]

Mr. Hoon: The alterations to budgetary allocations for the CinC Fleet, CinC Land, CinC Strike and DLO included in Winter Supplementary Estimates represent decreases in depreciation and cost of capital charges relating to previously planned fixed asset holdings. The changes bring these Top Level Budgets into line with the revised defence programme announced on 21 July 2004.

Future Surface Combatant Vessels

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what decisions have been made about the prospects for the Future Surface Combatant vessel for the Royal Navy; and if he will make a statement. [199532]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The Future Surface Combatant (FSC) project is still in its concept phase. No decisions have yet been taken about the timescale for delivering the FSC capability, and studies continue to develop ideas for the platform solution.

HMS Daring

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the expected in-service date is for HMS Daring; and when he expects it to be fully operational. [201638]

Mr. Ingram: The current forecast for the in-service date of the first of class T45, HMS Daring, is mid 2009. The ship is planned to be fully operational shortly after this date once the Ship's company have completed the necessary Operational Sea Training.

Iraq

Mrs. Mahon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether napalm or a similar substance has been used by the Coalition in Iraq (a) during and (b) since the war. [201991]

Mr. Ingram: No napalm has been used by Coalition forces in Iraq either during the war-fighting phase or since.

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what roles Iraqi troops are undertaking in Iraq. [201285]

Mr. Ingram: Iraqi Security Forces, including the Iraqi Police Force, the Iraqi Army, the Iraqi National Guard, the Facilities Protection Service and the Department of Border Enforcement are undertaking a wide range of law-enforcement and internal security tasks in Iraq, in combination with coalition forces. Recent operations have demonstrated that they are becoming increasingly capable at fulfilling these duties.

Military Operations (EU)

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where provision will be made within the UK public expenditure arrangements for the cost of the UK contribution to EU military operations. [200378]

Mr. Hoon: The cost of the United Kingdom contribution to military operations will be met from within total planned public expenditure. It is likely that most of the agreed UK costs will be met from within the contingency provision set aside in spending reviews to cover such eventualities.

Missile Defence System

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will make a statement on discussions between US Lieutenant General Obering and his Department in relation to the UK hosting interceptor missiles for the US missile defence system; [202082]

(2) which UK military bases have been considered for the citing of interceptor missiles as part of the US missile defence system. [202083]

Mr. Hoon: The Government have not yet decided whether the United Kingdom requires its own missile defence, and has not received a request from the US to base interceptors in the UK as part of the US missile defence system. It would therefore be premature to consider specific military sites for basing interceptors, or any other part of a missile defence system for the UK. Contacts with the US, including Lieutenant General Obering and other US officials, cover a wide range of issues related to missile defence but do not involve discussions about specific sites.

Parachute Pay

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) officers and (b) soldiers in the Army are in receipt of parachute pay. [201001]

Mr. Ingram: According to the Army records on pay and allowances, there were around 330 officers and 2,640 soldiers in receipt of parachute pay as at 26 November 2004.

Private Land (Military Exercises)

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on (a) the use of private land by his Department for military exercises and (b) the mechanism for obtaining consent for such use from private landowners. [200742]

Mr. Caplin: The use of private land for military training generally involves long standing relationships between the Ministry of Defence and private landowners. Consent for the use of private land is obtained via a variety of means ranging from formal leases to periodic ad-hoc agreements with the owners.

Staffing

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) established and (b) non-established personal staff support (i) the Chief of the Defence Staff and (ii) the Chief of the General Staff, broken down by (A) rank, (B) job title, (C) regiment and (D) annual salary. [201076]

Mr. Caplin: CDS' Personal Office consists of the following:

1. Commodore, Personal Staff Officer to CDS, Royal Navy, Salary band for rank: £78,226.80 to £81,562.90.

2. Group Captain, Deputy Personal Staff Officer to CDS, Royal Air Force, Salary band for rank: £65,218.20 to £72,083.85.

3. Lieutenant Colonel, Military Assistant to CDS, Royal Artillery, Salary band for rank: £56,315.85 to £62,254.40.

4. Captain, Aide-de-Camp to CDS, Army Air Corps, Salary band for rank: £31,853.55 to £37,883.35.

5. Civil Service Band D, Personal Assistant to CDS, Civil Servant, Salary range for payband D: £16,672 to £26,002.

CGS' Personal Office consists of the following:

1. Lieutenant Colonel, Military Assistant 1 to CGS, Royal Artillery, Salary band for rank: £56,315.85 to £62,254.40.

2. Major, Military Assistant 2 to COS, Royal Dragoon Guards, Salary range for rank: £40,124.45 to £48,055.90.

3. Captain, Aide-de-Camp to COS, Adjutant General's Corps, Salary band for rank: £31,853.55 to £37,883.35.

4. Warrant Officer 2, Personal Assistant, Adjutant General's Corps, Salary band for rank: £30,287.70 to £36,335.75.

All of these are established posts.

Timber

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans his Department has to fund the establishment and maintenance of a central point of expertise on timber. [200577]

Mr. Caplin: We are currently considering our position on the funding of a central point of expertise for timber.

UK-US Mutual Defence Agreement

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the amendments to the US/UK 1958 Mutual Defence Agreement on atomic energy matters will enter into force; and what opportunities there will be for hon. Members formally to object to the coming into force;. [201184]

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the Mutual Defence Agreement with the United States to be renewed. [202006]

Mr. Hoon: The Amendment to the 1958 US/UK Mutual Defence Agreement, including the renewal of Article III (bis) for a further 10 years, was laid before Parliament on 21 June for a period of 21 days under the Ponsonby Rule. This period ended on 22 July. The Amendment has also now completed the period it was required to lie before Congress and will shortly be brought into force by an Exchange of Notes. The Government has previously made clear that it would not undertake to find time to debate renewal of a longstanding agreement such as this.

Veterans' Illnesses (Gulf War)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the report of the US Research Advisory Committee on Gulf War Veterans' Illnesses; and if he will make a statement. [200076]

Mr. Caplin: The Ministry of Defence is aware of the report of the US Research Advisory Committee on Gulf War Veterans' Illnesses and has noted its findings. The report is a review of some existing research and we were already familiar with most of the material presented.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Departmental Costs

Mr. Edward Davey: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what steps he has taken to ensure that telephones in his Department are not used by staff for making unauthorised personal calls to international numbers. [201022]

Phil Hope: Access to all international numbers is only granted to staff who have a business need to make such calls. Calls to some foreign mobile networks, are barred completely. Call logs are monitored to ensure compliance.

Mr. Edward Davey: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the estimated cost is to his Department of unauthorised personal calls made by members of staff to (a) domestic and (b) international numbers. [201023]

Phil Hope: Automatic logs are kept of all calls and regular reviews carried out. From those reviews there is little evidence of unauthorised use by members of staff. When any has been identified the cost has been recovered.

Fidlers Ferry Power Station

Helen Jones: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, if he will make a statement on the effect of the transfer of Fidlers Ferry power station from the national list to the local list on the Local Authority Business Growth Incentive Scheme; and how much money was lost to Warrington borough council as a result. [201514]

Mr. Raynsford: Warrington has made representations about the effect of the transfer of the power station on its ability to benefit from Local Authority Business Growth Incentive Scheme (LABGI), as part of the recent consultation exercise. These and other representations will be considered very carefully in deciding the final shape of the scheme.

An authority's ability to benefit from LABGI will depend not only upon the final design of the scheme but crucially on how well it performs in generating economic growth. No authority will lose money as a result of LABGI since the funding, which is worth up to £1 billion in England and Wales in the first three years, is entirely additional.

Fire Service

Kate Hoey: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what changes have occurred to the entry level fitness tests for the fire service since 2000. [201856]

Phil Hope: The 1978 regulations which included entry level fitness tests were replaced on 25 March 2004 by the Fire Services (Appointments and Promotion) Regulations (England and Wales) 2004. These included a general requirement that an appointee's general state of health and fitness should be satisfactory to carry out the duties of the role. Consultants who are experts in the field of physical and psychological testing were appointed by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister to draw up new advisory point of entry selection tests in consultation with stakeholders. Concerns that previous fitness tests may have had specific adverse impact on the recruitment of women are being addressed in the development of the new tests, which are expected to be available in May 2005. Pending the completion of these tests, it is the responsibility of each fire and rescue authority to ensure that any tests or procedures used for the selection and appointment are relevant to the job and do not unfairly discriminate on any grounds.

Gypsies and Travellers

Mr. Luff: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, if he will make it his policy to license caravans used by Gypsies and Travellers to facilitate identification of the owner when this is needed to enforce planning law and policy. [201594]

Keith Hill: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister does not intend to introduce such a policy. If licensing and registration of caravans was to be introduced, it is very difficult to see how it could be restricted to particular categories of keeper, such as "Gypsies" or "Travellers".

Mr. Luff: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, under what ethnic status Gypsies and Travellers are classified in relation to planning law. [201668]

Keith Hill: The planning definition of a gypsy does not rely on ethnicity. Gypsies are defined in section 16 of the Caravan Sites Act 1968 as persons of nomadic habit of life, whatever their race or origin, who wander or travel for the purpose of making or seeking their livelihood.

Mr. Luff: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether regional spatial strategies are required to take account of provisions for Gypsies and Travellers; and whether they will specify pitch numbers that must be provided by each local authority in the region. [201670]

Keith Hill: Gypsy and Traveller accommodation needs must, in the future, be assessed by each local authority as part of the overall local housing assessment process. Data from these assessments will feed into the evidence which underpins Regional Housing and Spatial Strategies. The Regional Planning Body will consider overall regional need and put into the Regional Spatial Strategies (RSS) the amount of site provision needed in each local authority area during the RSS period.

High Hedges

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what progress has been made since the completion of the consultation process on the implementation of the provisions of the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 relating to high hedges; and if he will make a statement. [202628]

Phil Hope: In the light of the responses to the consultation the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is currently revising the guidance for local authorities and the Regulations to bring Part 8 of the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 into force. We intend to issue the guidance to local authorities at the same time as we lay the Regulations before Parliament and expect the complaints system to be fully operational early in 2005.

Home Ownership

Ms Buck: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many shared ownership properties were sold in Westminster and Kensington and Chelsea in each year since 1997; and how many of those properties were purchased by someone (a) already in social housing in that area, (b) on the single housing register in that area and (c) a key worker. [201963]

Keith Hill: A table containing this information for every local authority in England has been made available in the Library of the House.

The table includes, for each financial year from 1997–98 to 2003–04 and for every English local authority and Government Office Region:

- the number of shared ownership sales;
- how many shared ownership sales were to people who were previously social tenants in the area;
- how many shared ownership sales were to people who were registered on a local authority waiting list/common housing register.

Note that the figures relate to the sales of initial shares only. Subsequent purchases of additional equity are not included.

It should be noted that figures on the number of key workers that bought shared ownership properties during the period 1997–98 to 2003–04 are not available. This is because the purchaser's occupation was not collected as part of CORE Sales during this period.

Homelessness

Mr. Paul Marsden: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many homeless households were in temporary accommodation in Shrewsbury and Atcham (a) in May 1997, (b) in June 2001 and (c) at the latest available figures. [200286]

Keith Hill: Local authorities report their activities under homelessness legislation quarterly, and this includes the number of homeless households in various forms of temporary accommodation as on the last day of the quarter. Information reported by Shrewsbury and Atcham DC is tabled as follows. At the 30 June 2004, 70 per cent. of households were accommodated in stock owned by a Registered Social Landlord; and 29 per cent. were in hostel accommodation. There was only one household in B&B type accommodation.

Homeless households[1] in temporary accommodation arranged by Shrewsbury and Atcham district council

	Number
31 March 1997	39
30 June 1997	40
30 June 2001	121
30 June 2004	77

[1] Households in accommodation either pending a decision on their homelessness application or awaiting re-allocation of a settled home following acceptance. Excludes those households designated as "homeless at home" that have remained in their existing accommodation and have the same rights to suitable alternative accommodation as those in accommodation arranged by authorities.

Data are not available for the position in May 1997

Housing

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister which authorities have decided their stock options appraisal in favour of (a) stock transfer, (b) arm's length management organisation, (c) private finance initiative and (d) stock retention by the council; how many homes each authority has in each case; which authorities have yet to advise his Office of their intentions; and how many homes they own in each case. [200319]

Keith Hill: The tables made available in the Library of the House show what options each of the 233 authorities that owned stock at 1 of April 2004 have chosen in order to meet the decent homes target. Prior to this date 131 had authorities transferred their stock. Private Finance Initiative (PFI) is never a whole stock solution and so authorities that have chosen PFI for part of their stock are listed separately. Some authorities have more than one PFI scheme.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what estimate he has made of the total amount spent over the last two years by councils in (a) consultancy fees, (b) other fees, (c) information, (d) videos and (e) other ways in ballots for large-scale voluntary transfers or arm's length management organisations (ALMOs); what proportion of this sum was accounted for by funding provided to councils by his Department; how much was charged to successful registered social landlords and ALMOs; and how much was lost in unsuccessful ballots. [200560]

Keith Hill: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister does not collect information on the amount spent by local authorities on activities in preparation for ballots for large scale voluntary transfers or arms length management organisations. It is up to individual authorities to decide how much they will spend on these activities.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what estimate he has made of the amount of private capital brought into social housing by large-scale voluntary transfers in each of the last four available years. [200561]

Keith Hill: The estimated amount of private finance investment available to large scale voluntary transfers that have taken place in the last four years is tabled.

	Amount of private finance (£ billion)
2001	1.39
2002	1.59
2003	1.10
2004	0.71
Total	4.79

Housing (Overcrowding)

Ms Buck: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when he expects to issue a consultation paper on the revision of standards for determining levels of overcrowding. [201966]

Keith Hill: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister hopes to publish a consultation paper on the overcrowding standards in March.

Housing Stock

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list local authorities that have transferred their housing stock to a registered social landlord, giving in each case (a) the date of the ballot and (b) the percentage for and against transfer. [201797]

Keith Hill: The details of local authorities who have transferred their housing stock to Registered Social Landlords (RSLs), the date of transfer and the percentage of tenants who voted in favour and against has been made available in the Library of the House.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the average amount spent renovating a property in each of the Pathfinder areas in England was in the latest period for which figures are available. [201798]

Keith Hill: The information requested is not available. Information about the average dwelling costs for elements of market renewal Pathfinders' programmes—including refurbishment—will be collected annually. Data for the year ending 31 March 2005 will be submitted by 15 July.

Local Government Pension Scheme

Tony Cunningham: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make it his policy to postpone changes to the local government pension scheme until after the consultation for a new scheme to be introduced in April 2008 has been completed. [201664]

Phil Hope: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Normanton (Mr. O'Brien) on 1 December 2004, Official Report, column 125W.

Millennium Dome

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much (a) the maintenance of and (b) security at the Millennium Dome (i) cost in 2003–04 and (ii) has cost to date in 2004–05. [199566]

Keith Hill: In 2003–04, expenditure incurred on maintenance of the Dome site was £755,000 and £580,000 was incurred on security.

In 2004–05, up to the end of September, expenditure incurred on maintenance of the Dome site was £261,000 and £285,000 was incurred on security.

Ministry of Defence Land

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what role English Partnerships is playing in the disposal of Ministry of Defence land; which sites are involved; and if he will make a statement. [200034]

Keith Hill: English Partnerships and Defence Estates announced on 10 November the agreement of a framework document setting out arrangements to work closely together on the future use of surplus defence land. These joint working arrangements are intended to allow Defence Estates to deliver its disposal programme and for English Partnerships to help deliver the objectives set out in the Government's Sustainable Communities Plan (February 2003).

Following the publication of the Communities Plan, the Government have put in place arrangements through English Partnerships to make better use of surplus public sector land, including setting up a Register of surplus land held by central government bodies.

The agreement between English Partnerships and Defence Estates covers sites that are or will become surplus to Defence requirements. The use of these sites to help deliver the Government's Sustainable Communities Plan will now be considered before they are put on the open market. This is in line with arrangements established for the Register of surplus public sector land and procedures set out in Government Accounting.

Official Visits

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list each foreign country he has visited on an official visit since 1997, broken down by date. [202574]

Phil Hope: The Government publishes a list of all visits overseas by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500 on an annual basis. The list for the period 1 April 2003 to 31 March 2004 was published by the Prime Minister on 22 July 2004, Official Report, column 465W. The next list for the period 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005 will be published at the end of the financial year.

Regional Assemblies

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether his announcement on 1 November of new transport powers for elected regional assemblies represented an addition to the powers set out in the Draft Regional Assemblies Bill. [201961]

Mr. Raynsford: This announcement was made by the Labour Party and made clear that an elected regional assembly would have a significantly greater role and say in transport issues than the present regional chamber.

My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister confirmed in a statement to the House on 8 November 2004, Official Report, columns 587–89, that the Regional Assemblies Bill would not be introduced in this session of Parliament.

Regional Government

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the total cost was of the activities performed by the Electoral Commission in connection with (a) the regional referendum in the North East and (b) preparation for the referendums in the North West and Yorkshire and the Humber. [201812]

Mr. Raynsford: Questions on the Electoral Commission's expenditure should be directed to the Commission itself.

South West Regional Spatial Strategy

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the cost was of producing and publishing, "What will the South West be like in 2026? Regional spatial strategy for the South West 2006–2026", issued by the South West Regional Assembly. [201958]

Mr. Raynsford: The consultation document on the Regional Spatial Strategy was produced as a result of South West Regional Assembly's role as the designated regional planning body.

The document starts the consultation process for the statutory Regional Spatial Strategy which will set the framework for development in the South West between 2006 and 2026 and supersede County Structure Plans.

The total cost of producing and publishing the Regional Spatial Strategy Options consultation documents was in the order of £12,000. This comprises £4,300 for producing the executive summary, £4,700 for producing the technical document, and £3,000 for distribution.

Street Cleanliness

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, what steps his Department is taking to promote business-community partnerships to tackle graffiti, litter and street cleanliness. [200604]

Mr. Raynsford: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 1 December 2004, Official Report, column 124W.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has put in place the necessary legislation to enable businesses to vote to improve their trading environments by becoming business improvement districts (BIDs). The additional services or activities that would be funded by a BID levy will be decided by local businesses.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister will also publish guidance to the BIDs regulations in spring 2005, which will incorporate the good practice and lessons learnt from the 22 pilot BIDs in the Association of Town Centre Management's National BIDs Pilot project.

HEALTH

Bassetlaw Primary Care Trust

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much Bassetlaw Primary Care Trust has received in each year of its existence. [201086]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The information requested is shown in the table.

Allocation for Bassetlaw primary care trust

	£ million	Increase in real terms Percentage	Increase in cash terms Percentage
2002–03	80.4	6.0	8.6
2003–04	87.9	6.9	9.3
2004–05	96.7	7.4	10.1
2005–06	107.7	8.6	11.3

Carers

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the varying provision which local authorities make for assisting carers. [202914]

Dr. Ladyman: It would be short sighted of councils not to support their carers. Councils should be taking the needs of carers into account when planning and commissioning all services. To encourage councils to improve carers' services further we are in discussion with Social Care Institute of Excellence to develop a good practice area on the Department's carers website. We anticipate that it will serve as a benchmark for councils.

We have introduced a new carers' performance indicator, which will ensure that councils recognise that support for carers continues to be a priority for the Government.

Chernobyl

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will examine the research report by Martin Tondall and his colleagues, published in the British Medical Journal in November, on cancer incidence and the Chernobyl accident. [201185]

Miss Melanie Johnson: Departmental officials and National Radiological Protection Board (NRPB) colleagues are aware of the report published in the Journal of Epidemiology and Community Health by M. Tondall et al. The NRPB continues to monitor research in this area.

Child Health

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action he is proposing to control (a) obesity among and (b) alcohol consumption by children; and if he will make a statement. [200051]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The foundation for all future work to tackle childhood obesity will be taken forward through the recently published Government White Paper, "Choosing Health: making healthy choices easier", tackling the risk factors of diet and physical inactivity. The Government will publish a delivery plan for the White Paper next year. As part of this delivery programme, we will also publish national delivery plans focusing on nutrition and activity, including the food and health action plan and the physical activity plan.

The Government has also introduced a new public service agreement target, jointly owned by the Department for Health, Department for Education and Skills and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, to halt "the year-on-year rise in obesity among children under 11 by 2010 in the context of a broader strategy to tackle obesity in the population as a whole".

Regarding alcohol consumption by children, a social responsibility code is being developed with industry that will provide a code of best practice around manufacturing and sale of alcohol. One of its elements is to stop the sale of alcohol to children. The Department for Education and Skills, in consultation with the Department of Health and the Home Office, will use the findings of the blueprint research programme to ensure that future provision of alcohol education in schools addresses attitudes and behaviour as well as providing information.

Childhood Asthma

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children were diagnosed with asthma in (a) England, (b) Gloucestershire and (c) Stroud constituency in (i) 1974, (ii) 1980, (iii) 1990, (iv) 2000 and (v) the latest year for which figures are available. [202774]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not available.

The new primary medical care contracting arrangements from April 2004 include the use of indicators and information management across specific chronic disease areas, including asthma, to deliver improved outcomes for patients. In time, we expect that this data will provide an invaluable source of information on the disease areas covered.

Eye Tests (Lancashire)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many free eye tests for pensioners there have been in Burnley, Pendle and Rossendale in each year since 2000. [200994]

Miss Melanie Johnson: Figures for the number of sight tests by constituency or by pensioners are not collected centrally.

The table shows the number of national health service sight tests paid by East Lancashire health authority (HA) for the years ending 31 March 2000 to 2003 and the three primary care trusts (PCTs) covering the old East Lancashire HA for the year ending 31 March 2004.

General ophthalmic services: number of sight tests paid by East Lancashire HA for patients aged 60 and over for the years ending 31 March 2000 to 2004

	HA name–PCT name	Number of sight tests for aged 60 and over (000)
1999–2000	East Lancashire HA	24.5
2000–01	East Lancashire HA	39.8
2001–02	East Lancashire HA	40.8
2002–03	East Lancashire HA	43.6
2003–04	Blackburn with Darwen PCT	13.3
	Burnley, Pendle and Rossendale PCT	19.9
	Hyndburn and Ribble Valley PCT	10.8
Total	East Lancashire HA	44.0

Notes:

1. Eligibility for NHS sight tests was extended to patients aged 60 and over from 1 April 1999. PCTs took over responsibilities from HAs in October 2002.

2. Sight tests can not be equated to the numbers of patients. Although most people do not come back for a sight test within the year, some patients suffering from medical conditions are advised to have re-examinations sooner. However, some patients aged 60 and over will be eligible for sight tests for other reasons as well, for example, on income grounds. The classification for such patients will depend on the patient and the practitioner.

Fitness Trainers (NHS)

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether those who pay membership of private health clubs will qualify for a fitness trainer on the national health service. [201354]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The service to be provided by accredited national health service health trainers will be available to all NHS users in England and will provide advice, motivation and practical support for people to define the changes in lifestyle they want to make, what they can do and how they can access other help and services in making and sustaining changes.

Five a Day Logo

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which (a) organisations and (b) products have adopted the Department of Health's 5 A DAY logo. [199458]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The 5 A DAY logo was launched in March 2003. To date, over 400 organisations have adopted the logo of which over 100 are commercial organisations, the remainder being national health service trusts, local authorities and not-for-profit bodies. 65 of these organisations have been granted a licence to use the 5 A DAY logo on product packaging; and between them feature the logo on over 700 products.

Well-known organisations and brands using the 5 A DAY logo include Asda, Co-op, Iceland and Aldi supermarkets, Costcutter, Nisa-Today's and T & S convenience stores, Boots' Shapers range, Tropicana fruit juice, Julian Graves health food stores, Whitworth's and Sundora dried fruit, McDonald's fruit bags, and Sodexho, Compass and Avenance caterers.

Food Poverty

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions he has had on tackling food poverty. [201520]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 2 December 2004]: The consultation process for the "Choosing Health" White Paper involved discussions between departmental Ministers and a number of stakeholders, both within and outside Government, on diet and nutrition issues, including the issue of inequalities in access to a healthy diet.

"Choosing Health" has set out a range of measures for improving diet and nutrition, with an emphasis on engaging with disadvantaged communities.

Planning for the implementation of this and a number of other initiatives announced will be covered in a delivery plan for the White Paper and the food and health action plan, to be published early in 2005.

Food Supplements

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, (1) when Ministers last met representatives of Consumers for Health Choice to discuss strategies for achieving the addition to the lists of permitted ingredients set out in the Annexes of the Food Supplements Directive of ingredients on the United Kingdom market that are omitted from those lists; and what progress has been made in securing the addition of such ingredients to the lists; [200243]

(2) what advice his Department plans to give to enforcement authorities on the bringing of prosecutions against the manufacturers and retailers of safe food supplements which contain ingredients that become illegal under the Food Supplements (England) Regulations after July 2005; [200244]

(3) how many products he estimates will be affected by the implementation of the Food Supplements Directive and the Food Supplements (England) Regulations 2003; and what assessment he has made of the impact of the removal of food supplements by this implementation on (a) the businesses of the manufacturers and retailers of such products and (b) consumer choice. [200371]

Miss Melanie Johnson: I met with Consumers for Health Choice on 7 September 2004 to discuss the implications of the Food Supplements Directive (FSD).

Since that meeting the Health Food Manufacturers Association and Food Standards Agency (FSA) officials have met with officials from the European Food Safety Authority (EFSA) and the European Commission to discuss the implications of the FSD. It was made clear at those meetings that before further ingredients may be added to the lists in the FSD they must be assessed for safety through submission of a dossier and have received a positive opinion from the EFSA.

The United Kingdom Government has nevertheless made clear that providing an ingredient was on the market before July 2002 and a dossier has been submitted to a member state that ingredient can remain on sale in the UK pending an opinion by EFSA following its safety evaluation.

The FSA will advise enforcement authorities of those vitamins and minerals, and their permitted sources, listed in the regulations and products where derogation has been provided by the UK following submission of a dossier to a member state and where the product was on sale before July 2002. Such vitamins and minerals will be able to be sold legally in the UK after 1 August 2005 pending an opinion from the EFSA. Enforcement of the Regulation and decisions regarding prosecutions is a matter for the Authorities.

A regulatory impact assessment was carried out on the FSD and before the Food Supplements (England) Regulations 2003 were signed and laid in Parliament. This assessed the impact of the Directive on businesses and consumer choice.

The Directive and Regulation list 28 vitamins and minerals and 112 sources from which they may be derived for use in food supplements. The UK will allow additional ingredients to continue to be used as food supplements after 1 August 2005 providing they were on sale before July 2002 and a dossier containing safety data has been submitted to a member state by 12 July 2005.

Free Personal Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will estimate the number of people in England who receive free personal care; [200597]

(2) if he will estimate the total cost for the Government to provide free personal care in England for those people whose income levels mean they are currently eligible for this care. [200598]

Dr. Ladyman: No information is held centrally on the numbers of people who receive personal care services but do not make a contribution towards the cost of those services.

Greater Manchester Surgical Centre

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) on what date he expects the Greater Manchester Surgical Centre to open; [201871]

(2) what assessment he has made of the impact on hospitals in Greater Manchester of the Greater Manchester surgical centre. [201872]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Greater Manchester strategic health authority reports that the Greater Manchester surgical centre will see its first patients for pre-operative assessment in January 2005, with treatment beginning in February. The centre expects to treat 44,800 patients over the next five years.

The centre will provide additional capacity, which will help other hospitals in the area to improve their waiting lists and waiting times.

Health Services (Lewisham, Deptford)

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) doctors and (b) nurses were employed by the NHS in health facilities in the Lewisham, Deptford constituency in (i) 1997, (ii) 2001 and (iii) 2004. [201100]

Dr. Ladyman: The information is not available in the format requested. Information for Lewisham hospital NHS trust and Lewisham primary care trust is shown in the following table for the years 1997, 2001 and 2003, which is the latest year available.

Health White Paper

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the percentage of pubs in the (a) Northern region and (b) Tees Valley area which serve food which will cease to do so when the smoking ban is implemented. [201503]

Miss Melanie Johnson: In the White Paper we estimated that 10 to 30 per cent. of pubs in England might fall into the category of "do not prepare food". A regional breakdown of this figure has not been made. We believe that with food providing an increasing proportion of most pubs' turnovers, it is reasonable for the Government to proceed on the assumption that it makes good business sense for pub owners to continue to serve food. We will consult widely on this area in drawing up the detailed legislation.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research he has commissioned on the introduction of a food signposting system as described in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 26; and when he expects this research will be completed. [199457]

Miss Melanie Johnson: On Thursday 25 November the Food Standards Agency published research showing that consumers would strongly support a front of pack signposting scheme to make informed and healthier food choices easier. The research tested five signposting options, two of which consumers felt had significantly more promise than the others. The Agency will now work with stakeholders to examine a number of these options in more detail to identify which is most likely to be helpful in practice.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the competency framework for NHS professionals outlined in Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 16, to become part of the training programme; whether it will include all NHS staff; and if he will make a statement. [199469]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The implementation of this and a number of other initiatives announced will be covered in a delivery plan for the White Paper to be published early in 2005.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis is for the statement in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 77, that profitability of providing food will outweigh any incentive for pub owners to stop serving food in order to exclude their premises from a ban on smoking. [199471]

Miss Melanie Johnson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, South and Cleveland, East (Dr. Kumar) today.

Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many copies of the Annual Report of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (HFEA) were printed; and how many (a) hits and (b) unique visits were made to the annual report pages on the HFEA website in the four days following its publication. [200635]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (HFEA) has advised that 1,500 copies of its 2003–04 annual report were printed. The report appeared on the HFEA's website on the afternoon of 25 November. During the following four days, 26 to 29 November, a total of 513 hits were made on the website to view the report. Data is not available on the number of unique visitors. Copies of the report are available in the Library.

Jobs Website

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the companies which submitted bids to his Department to develop and run the jobs.nhs.uk website project. [200748]

Mr. Hutton: The companies which submitted bids were:

Guardian Media Group
Parity Group PLC
Northgate Information Systems
Methods Application Ltd.

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what charges have been paid by NHS organisations for the use of the jobs.nhs.uk website to date; and how much he expects to be receiving from NHS organisations for use of the website in (a) 2005–06 and (b) 2006–07. [200751]

Mr. Hutton: The Department has not made any charges and does not expect to do so. We are providing this as a central service to the national health service. Responsibility for managing the service will move to the NHS employers' organisation from April 2005.

Mental Health

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many young people are waiting to access Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services, broken down by region; what the average waiting time to access Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services is; and if he will make a statement. [199745]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is shown in the table. This information is taken from the Department's 2003 child and adolescent mental health service (CAMHS) mapping exercise.

Information on average waiting times for patients to see CAMHS staff is not collected centrally.

The Government are committed to improve access to CAMHS and to reduce waiting times. The Department is investing an additional £300 million into CAMHS during the period from 2003–04 to 2005–06. The recently published children's national service framework sets out the standard for CAMH services.

CAMHS—cases waiting and length of wait as at December 2003

Region	0–13 weeks	14–26 weeks	Over 26 weeks	Total
London	3,465	895	581	4,941
South East	3,004	1,080	1,434	5,518
South West	1,550	813	704	3,067
East	1,905	695	263	2,863
West Midlands	1,946	957	889	3,792
East Midlands	1,381	426	462	2,269
Yorkshire and Humber	1,765	633	569	2,967
North West	2,397	801	781	3,979
North East	859	275	153	1,287
Total	18,272	6,575	5,836	30,683

Notes:
1. CAMHS are defined for the purposes of this table, means specialist CAMHS or, as often referred to, Tiers 2 to 4 CAMHS. The numbers include referrals from all sources, including general practitioners, social services and education.
2. Length of wait is the period from the date that the patient is referred to CAMHS to the date that the patient is first seen by CAMHS for an initial assessment.

Mental Health Services (Buckinghamshire)

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether Wycombe Primary Care Trust has recently withdrawn funding from Wycombe Mind. [201866]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In accordance with our policy of "Shifting the balance of Power", primary care trusts (PCTs) are responsible for commissioning care to get the best services for local people, subject to the highest clinical standards and best value for money. It is for each PCT to decide what money it allocates to each particular strand of their local health service according to its assessment of local need.

I therefore suggest that the hon. Member liaises directly with his local PCT on this matter.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether Buckinghamshire Mental Health Trust and Wycombe Primary Care Trust has recorded changes made to the provision of services by charities and voluntary groups to people with mental health problems in south Buckinghamshire; [201867]

(2) what representation Buckinghamshire Mental Health Trust and Wycombe Primary Care Trust has received about the recent closure of the Fixiquip programme. [201868]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In line with our policy of "Shifting the Balance of Power", it is now for primary care trusts (PCTs), in partnership with strategic health authorities and other local stakeholders to plan, develop and improve services for local people. We recognise that health services are better when management is devolved to the frontline. Within the framework set out in the "NHS Plan" and other policy documents, PCTs, with their specialised knowledge of the local community are effectively able to manage and improve local services.

I therefore suggest that the hon. Member liaises directly with the local national health service on this matter.

NHS Cleaners

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cleaners, as distinct from other ancillary staff, were employed by the NHS immediately prior to the introduction of market testing for these services in 1983. [199949]

Mr. Hutton: Data on the number of cleaners employed by the national health service in 1983 is not held centrally.

Ozone

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what evidence he has gathered to support a connection between levels of ozone in the atmosphere and premature deaths; and if he will make a statement. [200689]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Department's Committee on the Medical Effects of Air Pollutants (COMEAP)[1] summarised the evidence on the connection between levels of ozone in the atmosphere and premature deaths in 1998. It was concluded that an association existed and was reasonably consistent across Europe and the United States. Further research has been published since that time, including, very recently, two large studies combining results from groups of European cities and groups of US cities. An updated review of the health effects of ozone, under preparation by COMEAP, will address this new evidence and will be published next year.

[1] Department of Health Committee on the Medical Effects of Air Pollutants Quantification of the Effects of Air Pollutants in the United Kingdom—The Stationery Office London 1998.

The Department has also commissioned researeh in the United Kingdom on this issue. Details are included in the list of Department's funded air pollution research projects at the website address given below and a copy has been placed in the Library[2].

Peninsula Medical School

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding has been made available to establish the Peninsula Medical School. [199865]

Mr. Hutton: The Department's funding for medical schools takes the form of the Service Increment for Teaching (SIFT). This reimburses national health service organisations for the extra costs they incur by providing clinical placements for medical and dental undergraduates. SIFT funding for the Peninsula Medical School is shown in the table. Investment by the Higher Education Funding Council for England is a matter for my hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Department for Education and Skills.

	SIFT (£000)
Capital
2000–01	483
2001–02	2,046
2002–03	4,994
2003–04	12,286
2004–05	742
Revenue
2000–01	0
2001–02	325
2002–03	2,963
2003–04	6,518
2004–05	11,830

Between 2001 and 2003, £2 million was allocated non-recurrently from the NHS research and development budget to the local NHS partners of the Peninsula Medical School to invest in facilities for research associated with the school, and in 2002–03 £146,250 was allocated recurrently to mobilise and support research in the school.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list primary care trusts which have taken over management of local social services. [201992]

Dr. Ladyman: Care trusts are established on a voluntary basis where there is a joint agreement at a local level that this model will offer the best way to deliver better health and social care services. Partner organisations then delegate agreed functions to the care trust, but can withdraw if they so choose.

To date, eight such partnerships have been forged, leading to the establishment of care trusts in Sandwell; Sheffield, Bexley, Bradford, Camden and Islington; Manchester, Northumberland; and in Witham, Braintree and Halstead. The local primary care trusts are partners in two of these agreements: in Bexley, and in Witham, Braintree and Halstead.

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the budgets for this financial year are for the five primary care trusts in Suffolk; and what budget has been set for managerial and administrative costs of each. [201325]

Dr. Ladyman: The allocations for the five primary care trusts (PCTs) in Suffolk are shown in the table.

PCT	Amount (£ million)
Ipswich	137.5
Waveney	123.6
Suffolk Coastal	88.0
Suffolk West	195.0
Central Suffolk	80.2

As PCTs now have responsibility for planning the provision for health care services locally, they also have responsibility for deciding what part of their budgets are allocated to management and administrative costs.

Psychiatric Wards (Young People)

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps he is taking to ensure safeguards are in place to protect young people held on adult psychiatric wards; [200341]

(2) how many cases of assault have occurred against young people held in adult psychiatric wards in each year since 1997. [200342]

Dr. Ladyman: The children's national service framework (NSF) sets a standard that:

"services ensure that attention is paid to child protection needs (in line with Area Child Protection Committee policies) and the dignity and safety of young people cared for in adult psychiatric beds".

The NSF also recommended that a protocol must be agreed between the child and adolescent mental health service and the adult service that will safeguard the young person's safety and dignity.

In February 2004 we published Developing Positive Practice to Support the Safe and Therapeutic Management of Aggression and Violence in Mental Health Inpatient Settings to enable mental health service providers to review their current policies and procedures relating to education, training and practice in the safe and therapeutic management of aggression and violence.

The National Patient Safety Agency has also identified patient safety in acute mental health settings as a priority and launched its mental health programme of work in June 2004.

Strategic Health Authorities

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the most recently estimated 2004–05 year-end financial position is for each strategic health authority as forecast (a) by each strategic health authority itself and (b) as a total of all of the forecasts of each strategic health authority's component health trusts. [201836]

Mr. Hutton: The audited information in respect of the 2004–05 financial position of all strategic health authorities, primary care trusts and national health service trusts will be published in their individual annual accounts and will be available centrally in autumn 2005. We have no plans to publish un-audited in year financial information. This information is considered to be exempt under Part 2 of the code of practice on access to Government information.

Tuberculosis/Hepatitis

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of the population of England he estimates to be undiagnosed for (a) tuberculosis and (b) hepatitis C. [200103]

Miss Melanie Johnson: It is not possible to generate reliable estimates on numbers of undiagnosed active tuberculosis cases in England. Most undiagnosed cases present to the health service at some point during their illness. Delays to diagnosis will result in either recovery, eventual presentation to health services with advanced disease or death.

The number of active tuberculosis cases who recover is unknown and numbers of cases who present with advanced disease are not routinely collected. The number of cases of tuberculosis diagnosed on post-mortem is collected by the Health Protection Agency's (HPA) enhanced tuberculosis surveillance system. This data represents the number of tuberculosis cases per annum who are found to have tuberculosis at post mortem. Tuberculosis is however not necessarily the cause of death or a contributory factor to death. In a large proportion of these cases, tuberculosis is likely to be an incidental finding.

The number of cumulative hepatitis C laboratory diagnoses reported, 38,000, to the HPA is lower than the estimate for the overall population prevalence. This suggests that the majority of hepatitis C infections have not been diagnosed. The estimate of the number of individuals infected with hepatitis C is 250,000, but the figure for those who have gone on to develop chronic hepatitis C infection in England is 200,000, as in some cases the infection clears spontaneously.

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in how many cases hepatitis C was recognised as an underlying cause of death in the latest year for which figures are available; and what his assessment is of the contribution of hepatitis C to mortality from chronic liver disease. [200104]

Miss Melanie Johnson: Hepatitis C was the underlying cause for 129 deaths in England and Wales in 2003. Hepatitis C is believed to contribute to some of the deaths each year from the complications of chronic liver disease, including cirrhosis and primary cancer. However, there are no routine data on the extent of this contribution.

Vending Machines

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department gives to (a) hospitals and (b) NHS trusts installing vending machines in hospitals on the type of products which should be sold; and if he will make a statement. [200425]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Department has issued no guidance to the national health service regarding the types of products, which should be available in public areas. Public procurement of food through the NHS offers an opportunity to demonstrate best practice in influencing access to healthier foods. We have made a commitment in the Government's White Paper, "Choosing Health: Making health choices easier" to develop nutritional standards for all foods provided by the NHS, increasing access to a range of healthier foods and taking account of the different formats of provision including restaurant, fast food and vending. Planning for the implementation of this and a number of other initiatives are under way and more details will be announced early in 2005 when the Government will publish its Delivery Plan for the White Paper.

Walnuttree Hospital (Risk Assessments)

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library the two most recent Suffolk Fire and Rescue Service risk assessments of Walnuttree hospital in Sudbury. [201605]

Dr. Ladyman: I regret that Suffolk fire and rescue services have not undertaken any risk assessments at Walnuttree hospital in Sudbury. West Suffolk hospital undertook a fire risk assessment in 2003 and I understand that copies are available from the trust.

The trust recently commissioned an independent review of Walnuttree hospital at the end of October 2004. The independent review was carried out by Auditing Investigating Management Services. The report was published on 18 November 2004 and copies can be obtained from West Suffolk hospital.

West Suffolk Hospitals National Health Service Trust met with the Suffolk divisional fire officer to agree a way forward following the recommendations made in the independent report. Suffolk fire service stated

> "they would need more time to consider the findings of the independent report. However, the service's recommendations would be aimed at ensuring that fire safety measures at Walnuttree hospital were robust enough to provide a satisfactory level of fire safety until December 2007, the expected date of the opening of the new building".

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Criminal Justice Act

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of the implementation of Section 329 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003. [201395]

Mr. Lammy: Section 329 relates to civil proceedings for trespass to the person brought by offenders, and was introduced on 20 January 2004. Figures relating to any subsequent proceedings affected by this section are not available. However, the Government are unaware of any such cases having been reported.

Legal Aid/Services

Ross Cranston: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what estimate he has made of the administrative savings which would arise for those receiving legal aid no longer being required to pay court fees. [201915]

Mr. Leslie: My Department is currently seeking to rationalise the arrangements for the payment of court fees in proceedings where the claimant/applicant is legally aided. Revised procedures have yet to be developed and it is therefore impossible to quantify the administration savings at present.

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs when a Government report on the conclusions of Sir David Clementi's current review of the regulatory framework of legal services is expected. [201475]

Mr. Lammy: Sir David Clementi is due to make his recommendations by 31 December 2004. The Government will set out our plans for responding to those recommendations after the report is published.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what budget has been allocated to the Office of the Legal Services Complaints Commissioner in each of the last two years; and how many staff have been employed by the Office in each year. [201901]

Mr. Lammy: The Legal Services Complaints Commissioner was appointed on 21 February 2004. The budget for the Commissioner's office for 2004–05 is £1.34 million. 12 staff are currently employed including the Commissioner. This could rise to 16 staff pending successful recruitment campaigns. At the Secretary of State's request, the Law Society will meet all appropriate costs of the OLSCC. It has been agreed that DCA will meet the costs of: the consultants who scoped the work of the OLSCC; DCA corporate overheads; and the LSCC's salary.

LINK Project

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) what progress has been made with the LINK project since it started; [201480]

(2) if he will make a statement on the Department's progress towards meeting each of its targets under the three-year LINK project; [201481]

(3) how many courts are linked as a result of the LINK project; [201482]

(4) how much (a) has been spent to date on implementing the targets set under the LINK project and (b) will need to be spent to complete the LINK project; [201483]

(5) whether the Department is on course to meet its target of rolling out the Criminal and Civil LINK infrastructures to (a) Crown courts and (b) civil and family courts by March 2006. [201910]

Mr. Leslie: There are two LINK projects, one covering criminal business, and one covering civil business. As at 30 November 2004, on the criminal court side, 73 courts had received the new infrastructure. The target to deliver to 56 courts by the end of 2003–04 was achieved, and the project is on schedule to achieve its final objective of 110 sites in total. As at 30 November 2004, £116.61 million had been spent on the project. A further £57.04 million will be required to complete the rollout.

As at 30 November 2004, on the civil court side, 26 courts had received the new infrastructure. The target to deliver to four courts by the end 2003–04 was exceeded (nine courts were live by the end of 2003–04), and the project is on schedule to achieve its final objective of 60 sites in total. As at the 30 November 2004, £9.23 million had been spent on the project. A further £11.95 million will be required to complete the rollout.

Mr. Djanogiy: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many witnesses have provided evidence by video link from suites in courts for vulnerable and intimidated witnesses introduced under the LINK scheme since the introduction of such suites; and if he will make a statement. [201484]

Mr. Leslie: The LINK Infrastructure Project has been set up to deliver a comprehensive IT infrastructure to court staff and the Judiciary in the Crown court. It does not directly provide video link equipment in courts although it does enable these links where equipment is provided. 89 per cent. of Crown court centres now have some form of video link. Records are not being kept centrally of how many witnesses have used the video links since they were introduced for vulnerable and intimidated witnesses.

Magistrates Courts

Hywel Williams: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many people work for the magistrates' courts services (a) in Wales and (b) in England, broken down by workplace. [202007]

Mr. Leslie: On 31 March 2004, the date of the most recent data collection, the Magistrates' Courts Service employed 11,156 people in England and 755 in Wales.

Bob Spink: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many appeals against closure of magistrates' courts there were in each of the last three years. [202296]

Mr. Leslie: The number of appeals made by paying authorities pursuant to section 56 (3) of the Justice of the Peace Act 1997 against the closure of magistrates' courts over the last three years is as follows.

In 2002 there were two appeals lodged;

In 2003 there were 15 appeals lodged; and

In 2004 five appeals have been lodged so far.

Money Claim Online Scheme

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many claims have been issued online in each year since the introduction of the Money Claim Online scheme. [201477]

Mr. Lammy: Since its launch in February 2002, the number of claims issued each year through Money Claim Online was:

	Claims
2002	14,446
2003	34,137
2004[1]	47,916

[1] (Up to and including November)

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much the Money Claim Online scheme has cost the Department to run in each calendar year since its introduction. [201478]

Mr. Lammy: The cost to the Department of running Money Claim Online software systems in the first quarter to March 2002 was £221,286; in 2002–03 the cost was £885,144 and for the period April 2003 to September 2004 the cost was £442,572.

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans the Department has to increase the amount for which fixed claims can be made by means of the Money Claim Online scheme. [201479]

Mr. Lammy: My Department currently has no plans to increase the limit on the value of claims which can be made using Money Claim Online. This reflects present indications that only a small proportion of claims issued online are of a value close to the £100,000 limit.

Office of Public Guardianship

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) how many staff have been employed by the Office of Public Guardianship in each of the last two years; [201727]

(2) what budget has been allocated to the Office of the Public Guardianship in each of the last two years; and how many staff have been employed by the Office in each year. [201902]

Mr. Lammy: The budget allocated to the Public Guardianship Office for the current financial year is made up of net administration costs of £17,540,000 and a capital budget of £1,500,000. These costs are offset against a projected net fee income of £13,960,000. In 2003–04 the Public Guardianship Office employed an average of 304 whole-time equivalent permanent civil servants, 116 agency staff and nine contract staff. In 2002–03 the Public Guardianship Office employed an average of 295 whole-time equivalent permanent staff. 159 agency staff and 14 contract staff. Full details of the Public Guardianship's financial position and staffing numbers are included in the Annual Reports and Accounts which were laid before Parliament on 26 October.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many written questions for the Department were unanswered when Parliament prorogued; and how many of the unanswered questions were tabled in each of the previous months of the 2003–04 Session. [201547]

Mr. Leslie: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Ribble Valley (Mr. Evans) on 29 November 2004, Official Report, column 29W.

Property Prices

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many properties in (a) Nelson and (b) Colne have sold for less that £20,000 in each year since 1997. [201012]

Keith Hill: I have been asked to reply.

Separate figures below local authority level are not readily available. However, since Nelson and Colne are both within Pendle district council, the annual sales figures for the whole of Pendle from 1997 to 2003 were as follows.

	Number of residential property sales within Pendle district council at less than £20,000
1997	341
1998	452
1999	443
2000	473
2001	522
2002	679
2003	484

Note:
The figures exclude sales to sitting tenants and any other sales believed to be below market value.

Small Claims

Ross Cranston: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans he has to extend the small claims jurisdiction; and if he will make a statement. [201599]

Mr. Lammy: The Better Regulation Task Force in its report, 'Better Routes to Redress' recommended that research should be carried out into the potential impact of raising the small claims limit for personal injury cases from the current limit of £1,000. In its response to the report, published on 10 November, the Government indicated its acceptance of this recommendation. The Government also indicated that it intended to review all the financial limits that define the small claims and fast tracks, and to also consider other options in addition to raising the small claims limit for personal injury.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefit Call Centres

Vera Baird: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) whether benefits claimants who attend at Jobcentre Plus offices must claim benefits by telephoning a call centre elsewhere; [202673]

(2) whether benefits call centre staff are able to make decisions about eligibility for benefit. [202674]

Jane Kennedy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive, David Anderson. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from David Anderson to Vera Baird, dated 6 December 2004:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions concerning whether benefits claimants who attend at Jobcentre Plus offices must claim benefits by telephoning a Call Centre elsewhere, and whether benefit Call Centre staff are able to make decisions about eligibility for benefit. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

We are establishing a number of contact centres that allow customers the flexibility of using many of the services Jobcentre Plus provides without the need to travel to local offices. In areas where this new process has already commenced, customers are asked to telephone the relevant Contact Centre to make their initial claim to benefit. If a customer has already travelled to the Jobcentre Plus office, they can use a 'warm phone' in that office to make the call. In exceptional circumstances, customers may have a face-to-face interview.

Contact Centre officers do not make decisions regarding eligibility to benefits. They collect information for benefits to which customers have potential eligibility. This information is forwarded to Decision Makers for decisions on entitlement to benefits.

I hope this is helpful.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many local authority benefit fraud investigators have (a) commenced and (b) completed the Professionalism in Security Accredited Counter Fraud Officer Scheme. [200116]

Mr. Pond: Up until April 2004, 283 local authority benefit fraud investigators had commenced but not completed the Professionalism in Security (PINS) training scheme and 1,826 had completed it.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many local authority benefit fraud investigators there were in each year since 1997. [200164]

Mr. Pond: The overall aim of the Department's anti-fraud strategy is to have a benefit system which is secure from first claim to final payment. The implementation of this strategy means than an anti-fraud focus is integral to the work of all staff working in the administration of housing benefit, as is dealing with the wider agenda of error and incorrectness in benefit payments.

The number of full-time equivalent fraud investigators is in the table.

Number of full-time or equivalent benefit fraud investigators employed by local authorities

	Number
1996–97	1,900
1997–98	2,000
1998–99	2,200
1999–2000	2,100
2000–01	2,200
2001–02	1,700
2002–03	1,900
2003–04	1,400

Notes:

1. The figures have been rounded to the nearest hundred.
2. Figures for any non-responding authorities have been estimated.

Housing Benefit Management Information System Quarterly Administration Returns April 1996 to March 2004.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, on how many occasions the new powers to obtain information from third party organisations established under the Social Security (Fraud) Act 2001 have been used. [200165]

Mr. Pond: The Social Security Fraud Act 2001 introduced powers that required the private sector, and some public sector bodies, to give authorised DWP and local authority officers information on their customers where it relates to suspicions of fraud against the benefit system.

From April 2003 until September 2004 there have been 36,181 occasions when we have asked third party organisations to provide information using powers granted by the Act. Figures are not available before then, as information was not collated centrally.

Bereavement Benefit

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how much has been paid in bereavement benefit in each of the last 10 years. [201716]

Mr. Pond: The information is in the table.

Annual expenditure on widows and bereavement benefits

	£ million
1993–94	1,145
1994–95	1,111
1995–96	1,070
1996–97	1,009
1997–98	1,005
1998–99	968
1999–2000	984
2000–01	965
2001–02	1,065
2002–03	984

Notes:

1. Figures are in real terms 2004–05 prices.
2. Bereavement benefits replaced Widows benefits on 9 April 2001.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many departmental mobile telephones were used by Ministers, special advisers and officials in his Department in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202156]

Maria Eagle: Information is not available in the format requested.

Central records of mobile phones were not held until 1 November 2003. At that date, nine were used by Ministers and special advisers, and 11,950 were used by the Department's officials.

As of November 2004, eight mobile phones were used by Ministers and Special Advisers, and 13,786 used by officials.

Information on costs, which includes the cost of new phones, contract costs and call charges is available only for the last two quarters. These costs amounted to £409,017 for quarter ending August 2004, and £405,258 for quarter ending November 2004.

Information on the number and associated costs of mobile phones lost or stolen is not collected.

Disability Benefits

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many people have claimed disability living allowance, broken down (a) by nation and (b) by region, in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement; [200234]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of people who are eligible for disability living allowance. [200235]

Maria Eagle: Entitlement to disability living allowance (DLA) can only be reliably established after a claim has been made and the care and mobility needs of the individual customer fully assessed. For this reason it is not possible to estimate the number of people who may be entitled. The requested information about DLA claims is not available. The available information is set out in the table.

DLA: Number of initial claims made in Great Britain in each year 2001–02 to 2003–04

	Number
2001–02	407,810
2002–03	433,345
2003–04	442,150

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people appealed against decisions made regarding the award of (a) incapacity benefit, (b) severe disablement allowance and (c) disability living allowance in each quarter in each year since 2001; how many of these appeals were successful; and if he will make a statement. [200246]

Maria Eagle: This is a matter for Christina Townsend, Chief Executive of the Appeals Service. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Christina Townsend to Mr. Paul Holmes, dated 6 December 2004:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to reply to your question regarding how many people appealed against decisions made regarding the award of (a) incapacity benefit, (b) severe disablement allowance and (c) disability living allowance; how many of these appeals were successful, in each quarter in each year since 2001.

The information in table 1 give details of claims for incapacity benefit, severe disablement allowance and disability living allowance. Table 2 shows the number of successful appeals made against the rejection of severe disablement allowance and disability living allowance, whilst table 3 shows the figures relating to incapacity benefit.

Table 1: Severe disablement allowance, disability living allowance and incapacity benefit caseloads at November 2001, 2002, 2003

	Caseload
Disability living allowance
November 2001	2,298.0
November 2002	2,418.5
November 2003	2,549.8
Incapacity benefit claimants
November 2001	2,342.9
November 2002	2,384.2
November 2003	2,409.2
Severe disablement allowance claimants
November 2001	362.3
November 2002	325.9
November 2003	311.3

Benefit Data Notes:

1. Benefit caseload figures are taken from a 5 per cent. sample 30 November of each year; they are not caseloads for quarters as Appeals.
2. Figures are rounded to the nearest hundred and are represented in thousands.
3. Incapacity benefit and severe disablement benefit figures include "credits only" cases.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost was of administering the appeals system for (a) incapacity benefit, (b) severe disablement allowance and (c) disability living allowance in each quarter in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [200247]

Angela Eagle: This is a matter for Christina Townsend, Chief Executive of the Appeals Service. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Christina Townsend to Mr. Paul Holmes, dated 6 December 2004:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to respond to your question asking what the cost was of administering the appeals system for (a) incapacity benefit (b) severe disablement allowance and (c) disability living allowance in each quarter in each year since 2001.

The table below shows the estimated cost for administering incapacity benefit, severe disablement benefit and disability living allowance appeals. We do not hold exact figures for each benefit type, so the amounts quoted are calculated on average administrative and judicial costs, including overheads.

Disused Petrol Stations

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the number of disused petrol stations which do not meet the requirements of the Public Health Act 1961; how many improvement notices have been issued under the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974; and what further steps are planned to deal with the potential detrimental effects to the environment of disused petrol stations. [200914]

Jane Kennedy: The local Petroleum Licensing Authority enforces the safety of disused petrol stations. There is no statutory obligation on them to keep records of how many sites do not meet the requirements of the Public Health Act 1961. There is also no statutory obligation on them to keep records on how many improvement notices they have issued under the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 in relation to disused petrol stations. As such, it is not possible to provide the statistics requested.

The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs groundwater protection code on filling stations contains advice on decommissioning underground storage tanks, and the Environment Agency has powers to enforce the code. In general, the agency expects risks to groundwater from decommissioned tanks to be lower than from active tanks since, at worst, only residual fuel would be likely to remain. The Environment Agency's risk-based approach to groundwater protection and improvement will be taken forward under the Water Framework Directive. Local authorities also have duties under Part 11A of the Environmental Protection Act to identify contaminated land and secure remediation which may involve the Environment Agency.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if he will make it his policy (a) to pool the remaining assets of pension schemes which fall within the scope of his financial assistance scheme and to (b) instruct such schemes not to purchase annuities with such balances; [202013]

(2) what the maximum percentage is of lost occupational pension rights that will be replaced by the Financial Assistance Scheme. [202016]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to the written statement I gave on 2 December 2004, Official Report, columns 64–66WS on the Financial Assistance Scheme.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to ensure that recipients of payments under the financial assistance scheme continue to receive such payments after the initial 20-year funding period has ended. [202014]

Malcolm Wicks: The timing of payments and hence the precise funding arrangements will depend on how the financial assistance is delivered. As I said in a written ministerial statement on 2 December 2004, Official Report, columns 64–66WS, options for delivery including a top-up pension, a cash lump sum, or purchase of an annuity at age 65, are still being considered.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, on how many pension schemes he has so far successfully collected data in connection with his development of a financial assistance scheme; and what percentage this represents of all the schemes for which he is collecting data. [202015]

Malcolm Wicks: The current data collection exercise has received information from over 100 pension schemes. The exercise is not due to finish until 10 December 2004, and we expect to receive more information immediately prior to that deadline. The earlier data collection exercise received information from some 250 pension schemes. It is not possible to say what percentage this represents of all the schemes for which we are collecting data, because there is no adequate central source of data with which to identify all schemes potentially eligible for the Financial Assistance Scheme.

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the full liability of the Financial Assistance Scheme for people whose occupational pension funds have collapsed. [202194]

Malcolm Wicks: The Financial Assistance Scheme has no liability in respect of people whose occupational pension funds have collapsed. Through the Financial Assistance Scheme the Government have committed £400 million to provide assistance to members of pension scheme winding up under-funded prior to the introduction of the Pension Protection Fund.

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate has been made of the level of assistance to be awarded through the financial assistance scheme to each person who has lost their occupational pension funding. [202195]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement given on 2 December 2004, Official Report, volume 428, columns 64–6WS.

IBM UK Pension Fund

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will establish an independent inquiry into the handling by the Pensions Ombudsman of the complaint by members of the IBM UK pension fund; and if he will make a statement. [200257]

Malcolm Wicks: The Pensions Ombudsman is an independent statutory Commissioner and I cannot comment on his determinations or on actions taken during his investigation of complaints. Copies of his determinations are available on the Pension's Ombudsman's websitewww.pensions-ombudsman.org.uk.

Complainants who are unhappy with the Pensions Ombudsman's determinations have the option of appealing to the High Court on a point of law. They must do this within 28 days of receiving the determination in England and Wales and 14 days in Scotland. They could also ask for the determination to be judicially reviewed, and must make an application within three months of the determination being issued.

If complainants are unhappy about the service received from the Pensions Ombudsman, an MP can refer the matter to the Parliamentary Ombudsman. She may review the way that the case was handled but will not consider formal decisions (i.e. determinations) made by the Pensions Ombudsman or his staff.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the criteria are for assessing the performance of staff of JobCentre Plus in respect of the payment of jobseeker's allowance. [201741]

Jane Kennedy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Jobcentre Plus, David Anderson. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from David Anderson to Mr. Peter Ainsworth, dated 6 December 2004:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question concerning the criteria for assessing the performance of Jobcentre Plus staff in respect of Jobseeker's Allowance. This is something, which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus performance is assessed against the levels set within the targets agreed annually with the Minister of State for Work. Underpinning these headline targets, we have a series of Key Management Indicators.

For Jobseekers Allowance (JSA), performance is measured against:

The percentage of cases processed accurately within a selected sample (profile 94 per cent.);

The amount of JSA lost due to fraud and error expressed as a percentage of programme spend (to be no more than 6 per cent. of Income Support and JSA combined programme spend);

The percentage of cases that cannot be regarded as fully checked within the selected sample (no more than 1 per cent. of variance from actual accuracy)

The average clearance time to process both new claims (12 days) and changes in circumstances (4 days); and

The speed with which we submit appeals against decisions on JSA to The Appeals Service (90 per cent. in 60 working days)

I hope this is helpful.

Vera Baird: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the average time from claiming jobseeker's allowance and income support to receiving payment has been in (a) the area covered by Eston JobCentre Plus and (b) each of the other areas of the Redcar constituency not covered by the Eston JobCentre Plus in the last period for which figures are available; [202634]

(2) what procedure is followed in processing applications for (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) income support in the Redcar constituency; [202672]

(3) how many financial advisers are allocated to (a) Eston Jobcentre Plus and (b) the other areas of Redcar constituency. [202675]

Jane Kennedy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Jobcentre Plus, David Anderson. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from David Anderson to Vera Baird, dated 6 December 2004:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions concerning the processing of claims for Jobseeker's Allowance and Income Support in the Redcar constituency, and the number of financial advisers in the Redcar constituency. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Information on speed of processing is expressed as the Average Actual Clearance Time (AACT). This measures the time from when a claim to benefit is received until the processing has been completed. If a payment is due it would normally be sent to the customer on the date that processing is completed, so should be received by the customer either one or two days later.

Locally gathered information is available in different formats for Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA) and for Income Support (IS). JSA figures can be broken down on a site by site basis, however IS is processed by one team covering the 9 Jobcentre/Jobcentre Plus service delivery sites in the Stockton, Middlesbrough and Redcar/Cleveland areas, referred to as the Middlesbrough Site. Figures are thus only available on that basis. Figures for Tees Valley (which includes Darlington and Hartlepool) are also available, so are included for information.

The latest AACT figures held are for October 2004 and are expressed in days, as shown in the tables.

	Days
Jobseeker's allowance
Eston	16.6
Guisborough	12
Redcar	18.9
Loftus	18.8
Income support
Middlesbrough Site	9.9
Tees Valley	10.2

The offices in the Redcar constituency are Eston, Redcar, Loftus and Guisborough. While Eston, Redcar and Loftus are Jobcentre Plus service delivery sites, Guisborough has yet to convert to the new integrated Jobcentre Plus service, so remains a standard Jobcentre, and, as such, processes claims to benefits in a different way.

Under Jobcentre Plus operations, a claim to JSA or IS usually starts with a telephone call to the Contact Centre. After obtaining initial details, Contact Centre staff call the customer back to obtain the necessary information to complete a claim to benefit. They also arrange an appointment for the customer to attend their local office to see both a Financial Assessor (FA) and a Personal Adviser (PA).

During this face-to-face interview, the FA obtains the information from the customer that is needed to process the claim to benefit. The FA also initiates requests for other information, which may also be needed to determine the benefit position, for example, details of final payments from an employer. Once all the information has been obtained, the FA produces a document, which is sent by courier to the central processing site where the benefit processing officers make the final determination and process the claim.

In Guisborough the pre-Jobcentre Plus process is in operation, and customers wanting to claim JSA usually contact a Customer Call Centre in order to make an appointment with a Personal Adviser in their local office. Benefit Processing Officers in the local office take all action to gather information and process some claims. Any they cannot deal with are sent to the central processing site for final determination and processing. Customers wanting to make a claim to IS do so by post and send their claim form directly into the processing site. For IS there is no requirement for an interview with an FA or PA.

Jobcentre Plus service delivery sites have Financial Assessors and Personal Advisers. The number of Financial Assessors in the offices in the Redcar constituency are in the table.

	Number of financial advisers
Eston	3.5
Redcar	5.18
Loftus	2
Guisborough	2 (Benefit Processing Officers)

I hope this is helpful.

National Insurance

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 29 November 2004, Official Report, columns 43–4W, on contracted-out rebates, what his assumptions are of the number of people who are contracted out in 2004–05; and if he will make a statement. [201933]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is in the table:

Million

Type of Scheme	Number of people contracted out in 2004–05
Contracted-out Salary Related Scheme	7.0
Contracted-out Money Purchase Scheme Contracted-out Mixed Benefit Scheme	0.6
Appropriate Personal Pension Scheme	3.3
Total	[1]11.0

[1] Numbers do not sum to total due to rounding to the nearest hundred thousand

Note:

1. The estimates are based on the numbers contracted-out in 2000–01, the latest year for which information is available; they are for Great Britain and are consistent with those used by the Government Actuary to estimate the cost of the rebate for the 2004 pre-Budget report.
2. The numbers are based on those shown in the departmental publication "Second- Tier Pension Provision" published in March 2004 but exclude:
(a) data for Northern Ireland as estimates for the pre-Budget report are based on Great Britain only; and
(b) people earning below the lower earnings limit.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether immigrants to the UK are entitled to be issued with national insurance numbers if they (a) have entered the UK on false passports, (b) have had their applications under the regularisation of overstayers scheme refused with no right of appeal and (c) have had their applications under the Home Office's marriage policy refused. [201810]

Mr. Pond: Possession of a national insurance number (NINO) does not constitute proof of the right to work, and the onus for establishing right to work rests with employers. The 1996 Asylum and Immigration Act prohibits the use of illegal migrant labour and requires employers to carry out certain specified document checks on prospective employees. The NINO is only acceptable as evidence of entitlement to work if produced in combination with other specified documents. Alternatively, job applicants can demonstrate their entitlement to work by producing specified secure documentation, such as the British passport, EEA passports and other foreign passports endorsed to show the holder can work in the UK.

The allocation of NINOs to adults affects almost exclusively people entering the UK from abroad. People who have entered the UK on false passports; have had their applications under the regularisation of overstayers scheme refused with no right of appeal; and have had their applications under the Home Office's marriage policy refused, but have met the criteria for a NINO to be allocated, would be issued with a NINO.

We have well established processes in place to notify the Home Office Immigration and Nationality Directorate where it becomes apparent that an individual requesting a NINO has immigration restrictions. This process protects the benefit systems from undue loss when a person's immigration status excludes the right to access public funds and provides the Immigration Service with up to date information on the individual.

Pensions

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will strengthen the powers of the pensions ombudsman to take action against providers of pension schemes when he finds evidence of malpractice or poor service; and if he will make a statement. [202751]

Malcolm Wicks: The pensions ombudsman is an independent statutory commissioner. His powers are quite wide ranging. He can investigate complaints of injustice caused by maladministration and disputes of fact or law brought by members of occupational pension schemes, and their spouses and dependants, against trustees, managers or administrators of those schemes or employers. He may direct any person responsible for the management of the scheme to take or refrain from taking such steps as are specified in his determination. His determination is final and binding and is enforceable in a county court as if it was a judgement or order of the court.

The pensions ombudsman can also investigate complaints of injustice from members of personal pension schemes, who have suffered as a result of maladministration carried out by people responsible for provision in the scheme's administration.

The Pensions Act 2004 further strengthens the pensions ombudsman's powers by ensuring that where the management or administration of the scheme is outsourced, those with such responsibility should be subject to the pensions ombudsman's jurisdiction. This provision will come into force shortly.

This will enable him to deal with complaints or disputes relating to "one off" acts of administration. An example of this would be an insurance company carrying out a single act, e.g. calculating a transfer value for an insurance policy.

Social Fund

Sir Archy Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many full-time staff equivalents have worked on the administration of the Social Fund for Edinburgh, Lothians and the Borders district in each of the last five years; what the ratio of staff to relevant potential claimants was in each of the last five years; and what the ratio of staff to claims was in each of the last five years;. [199577]

(2) how many telephone lines there are at Bathgate to receive calls about Social Fund crisis loans; what the average length of time taken to answer a call is; how many and what percentage of calls were abandoned by the caller in the last period for which figures are available; and how many calls a day on average were received in the last period for which figures are available;. [199579]

(3) how many complaints have been received about the administration of the Social Fund in Edinburgh, Lothians and the Borders in each of the last five years. [199580]

(4) whether the telephony system used for the administration of the Social Fund is part of the Customer Management Services IT project; how many (a) errors and (b) change requests have been reported to the supplier of the system; what criticisms have been made to the supplier about the telephony system; what changes have been made to improve the telephony system; whether payments for the telephony system have been withheld; and if he will make a statement. [199582]

Mr. Pond: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Jobcentre Plus, David Anderson. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from David Anderson to Sir Archy Kirkwood, dated 6 December 2004:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions concerning the Social Fund delivery in Edinburgh, Lothian and Borders Jobcentre Plus district. This is something, which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

It may be helpful if I first explain that Jobcentre Plus Direct uses an advanced call centre telephony system to support the customer services delivered by Jobcentre Plus Direct Contact Centres. These services, which include first customer contact in making claims for working age benefits, do not include the administration of the Social Fund. The administration of the Social Fund is currently delivered from within the district field network, using standard telephony, which is available in almost all Jobcentre Plus local offices. The telephony used to deliver the Social Fund is not part of the Customer Management System IT project.

I am in a position to provide the statistical information you request only for the periods 2003–04 and 2004–05. This is partly because of the district restructuring which occurred in April 2004 and merged the former separate Edinburgh and Lothian and Borders districts and makes earlier data comparison invalid, and also our staff information database which would have confirmed staffing levels only came into operation in April 2003.

By way of background, Crisis Loan applications by telephone was introduced in Bathgate Jobcentre Plus office on 18 November 2002 and subsequently rolled out to the remainder of the old Lothian and Borders district by August 2004. In what is now the new restructured district, crisis loan applications by telephone have been in operation for approximately one year.

Turning to your specific questions, firstly, during the operational year 2003–2004, 59.9 full time equivalent staff were engaged in the administration of Social Fund and this figure has been increased to 61.4 for 2004/05. I regret I am unable to estimate the potential number of Social Fund customers, this is because applications are open to non-Jobcentre Plus customers. However, the actual number of Social Fund Claims received claims received in 2003–04 was 89278, and this year to date, we have received 52172. I am also pleased to say that additional staff are currently working on Crisis Loans in the District to help deal with this volume of activity. In terms of a staff to claims ratio, I regret that data is not available which would fully reflect all aspects of Social Fund activity, for example appeals or abortive claims. I should like to mention that Crisis Loan productivity in Edinburgh, Lothian and Borders District is the highest in Scotland, and above the Jobcentre Plus national average.

There are currently 9 telephone lines available within Bathgate Jobcentre Plus office to deal with Crisis Loan applications. The average time taken for the end to end process from the point of call receipt is between 30 to 45 minutes. Unfortunately due to the nature of the telecommunication system in place, I am not able to answer your other call-type questions.

Finally, during 2003/04, 30 formal complaints were received through our official channels. This number has fallen to 17 complaints this year to date. Unfortunately, at present, I am unable to provide figures for complaints received direct to the district. I will, however, forward this information to you as soon as it is available.

I hope this is helpful.

State Pensions (Exception Service)

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what arrangements have been made to publicise the existence of an exception service for state pension payments; [201517]

(2) how a person eligible for a state pension can apply to be included in the exception scheme for its payment; [201529]

(3) what recent estimate he has made of the number of people who will use the exception service for the payment of their pension; and what estimate he has made of the cost of the service; [201530]

(4) what arrangements have been made to ensure continuity of payment to pensioners who do not respond to the request to nominate a new method of payment when the pension book is discontinued. [201531]

Mr. Pond [holding answer 2 December 2004]: The cheque payment was designed in consultation with a range of customer representative groups and detailed information was circulated to them and to all hon. Members in May of this year.

Existing customers, including pensioners, who are not paid direct into an account, are being contacted to provide details of the account they would like to use to receive their payment. The current order book contract ends early in 2005. Customers who are still being paid by order book will be notified when their last book is issued.

Cheque payments will automatically be made, to those customers who we are unable to pay into an account. There is no application procedure.

The precise number of cheques will depend on customer responses. We will not know until the conversion process is completed.

Telephone Response Times

David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to improve response times to the Department's free telephone number. [200218]

Mr. Pond: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, David Anderson. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from David Anderson to Mr. David Hamilton, dated 6 December 2004:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question concerning plans to improve response times to the Department's free telephone number. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

It may be helpful if I first explain that Jobcentre Plus Direct uses an advanced call centre telephony system to support the customer services delivered by Jobcentre Plus direct contact centres. These services, which include first customer contact in making claims for working age benefits, do not include the administration of the Social Fund. The administration of the Social Fund is currently delivered from within the district field network, using standard telephony, which is available in almost all Jobcentre Plus local offices. The telephony used to deliver the Social Fund is not part of the Customer Management System IT project.

By way of background, Crisis Loan applications by telephone was introduced in Bathgate Jobcentre Plus office on 18 November 2002 and subsequently rolled out to the remainder of the old Lothian and Borders district by August 2004. In what is now the new restructured district, crisis loan applications by telephone have been in operation for approximately one year.

There are currently 9 telephone lines available within Bathgate Jobcentre Plus office to deal with Crisis Loan applications. The average time taken for the end to end process from the point of call receipt is between 30 to 45 minutes.

A review of this system is currently in progress which is expected to report by mid January 2005; however as an interim measure the hours of the telephone service have been extended from 9.30am to 4pm to 8.30am to 4.30pm (Monday to Friday).

BT has also been asked to evaluate the current telephone system and invited to offer suggestions for improvement.

I hope this is helpful.

TRANSPORT

A303/A358

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library a copy of the detailed technical work which assessed the options of improving the A303 or the A358 to the west of Ilminster. [202161]

Mr. Jamieson: The detailed technical work is summarised in the report prepared for the South West Regional Assembly by the Highways Agency and published on the Regional Assembly website. A copy of the Report has been placed in the House Library.

A5

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans there are for the detrunking of the A5 through Dunstable once the A5-M1 link/Dunstable and Hongleton Regis northern bypass is built. [200609]

Mr. Jamieson: The development of the proposed A5-M1 Link (Dunstable Northern Bypass) is at an early stage and responsibility for the A5 through Dunstable on completion of the bypass has not yet been agreed.

Aircraft Pollution

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the environmental consequences of production by aircraft of nitrogen oxides; and what steps he is taking to limit such emissions. [202738]

Charlotte Atkins: Evidence of climate effects from increased ozone concentrations in the atmosphere is well established and emissions of nitrogen oxides (NOx) from aircraft are an ozone precursor. The Government have supported several research projects aimed at improving the level of scientific understanding of aircraft NOx effects and the sensitivity to where aircraft fly, most recently the collaborative EC TRADE-OFF project. Around airports, aircraft are one of many contributors to NOx concentrations. Nitrogen dioxide (NO2)—formed by NOx—is a target pollutant in the UK Air Quality Strategy and health-based limit values become mandatory in 2010. The Government presses for technology advances and tighter standards that will reduce aircraft source emissions. A 12 per cent. tightening of the international standard for aircraft emissions of NOx for new aircraft types from 2008 was agreed by the International Civil Aviation Organisation recently. This will be incorporated into UK regulations.

Dartford/Thurrock Crossing (Toll)

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much income was received by his Department from the toll revenue from the Dartford to Thurrock river crossings in each year since the new Dartford to Thurrock crossing charging scheme came into force; [199425]

(2) how much funding local transport schemes have received via his Department from the toll revenue from the Dartford to Thurrock river crossings in each year since the new Dartford to Thurrock crossing charging scheme came into force, broken down by scheme; [199426]

(3) if he will make funding derived from the toll revenue from the Dartford to Thurrock river crossings available to local transport schemes in Kent Thameside on a permanent basis. [199427]

Mr. Jamieson: The Dartford-Thurrock Crossing charging scheme came into force on 1 April 2003. Subject to verification by the Comptroller and Auditor General, the outturn for the year ended 31 March 2004 was £69.1 million.

All income from the charging scheme is taken into account in the funding for the 10 year plan.

With regard to funding for use on local transport schemes, it is for local authorities to apply for such funding in the normal way through the Local Transport Plan process.

Driving Tests

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many drivers with a provisional licence took a driving test in the last three years for which data is available; and how many failed at the first attempt. [201619]

Mr. Jamieson: The information requested is as follows.

Practical car tests

Financial year	Car tests conducted	Car tests pass rate
2001–02	1,217,479	43
2002–03	1,348,190	43
2003–04	1,399,385	43
April 2004 to October 2004	[1]947,076	[1]42

[1] Provisional.

The Driving Standards Agency (DSA) has not previously collated information on pass rates by attempt. The Agency started collecting this information at the beginning of the current financial year, but the data is not yet sufficiently reliable to be meaningful.

EU Directives

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the European Union directives and regulations relating to his Department that have been implemented in each of the last two years, specifying (a) the title and purpose of each, (b) the cost to public funds of each and (c) the cost to businesses of each. [202425]

Mr. McNulty: The information is as follows:

(a) This information is not held centrally and could be assembled only at disproportionate cost.

(b) Information is not held in the form requested, and could be assembled only at disproportionate cost.

(c) Departments are required to produce regulatory impact assessments (RIAs) for proposals, including those originating in European legislation, likely to impose costs on business, charities or voluntary organisations. Copies of these are placed in the Library, and on departmental websites.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200175]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 29 November 2004, Official Report, columns 10–11W, by my hon. Friend the Minister for Europe.

Grantham-Skegness Branch Line

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will make a statement on the economic viability of the Grantham to Skegness branch line; [201979]

(2) how many passengers have travelled on the Grantham to Skegness branch line in each year since 1995. [201980]

Mr. McNulty: The Skegness line forms part of a network of rail services operated by Central Trains. Subsidy per passenger kilometre for these services in aggregate is set out in the Strategic Rail Authority's National Rail Trends (copies of which are in the House Library). Information on the number of passengers that have travelled on the Grantham to Skegness line each year since 1995 is not held centrally.

Highways Agency

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will break down the budget of the Highways Agency for 2004–05 by major category. [200641]

Mr. Jamieson: The indicative Capital and Resource budgets of the Highways Agency are identified, in total and by main categories of expenditure, in the Agency's published Business Plan for the year 2004–05, which is available in the Libraries of the House.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the frequency and schedule under the 30 year contract is between the Highways Agency and Highway Services (UK) Limited for contract review. [200643]

Mr. Jamieson: The Secretary of State does not have any contract with the company mentioned but the M40 DBFO contract is with UK Highways (M40) Ltd. Performance of the contract is reviewed on an ongoing basis but there are no provisions for formal contract review.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what mechanisms there are under the 30 year contract between the Highways Agency and Highway Services (UK) Ltd. for cost recoveries through changes to the per vehicle charge. [200644]

Mr. Jamieson: The Secretary of State does not have a contract with the company mentioned but the M40 DBFO contract is with UK Highways (M40) Ltd. The Shadow Tolls payments in the 30-year contract between the Secretary of State and UK Highways (M40) Ltd. are calculated annually and indexed to protect the contractors against inflation using the Retail Price Index as the basic factor.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what environmental terms were in the initial 30 year contract between the Highways Agency and Highway Services (UK) Ltd. [200645]

Mr. Jamieson: The Secretary of State does not have any contract with the company mentioned but the M40 DBFO contract is with UK Highways (M40) Ltd. The contract required the company to incorporate into the construction work all of the environmental features included in the approved design. The attached extract from the Design, Build, Finance and Operate Contract between the Secretary of State for Transport and UK Highways (M40) Ltd. details further general and specific environmental terms.

"Core Operation and Maintenance Requirements

In the design, planning and execution of all works and functions associated with the operation and maintenance of the Project Facilities, the DBFO Co shall take all such action and do all such things (including, without limitation, organising itself, adopting measures and standards, executing procedures, including inspection procedures and safety patrols, and engaging and managing contractors, agents and employees) as will and in such manner as will secure . . . risk of adverse effects on the environment and on the amenity enjoyed by the owners and occupiers of land adjacent to the Project Road and to adjoining roads and facilities is minimised.

Scheme Specific Core Operation and Maintenance Requirements

The DBFO Co shall cultivate and maintain the landscaped areas of the Project Road so as to enhance the appearance and aesthetic quality of the Project Road and to mitigate its adverse environmental effects.

The DBFO Co shall operate and maintain the Site and the Operation and Maintenance Adjacent Areas so as to enhance nature conservation."

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what environmental issues have been negotiated in reviews of the 30 year contract between the Highways Agency and Highway Services (UK) Ltd. [200646]

Mr. Jamieson: The Secretary of State does not have any contract with the company mentioned but the M40 DBFO contract is with UK Highways (M40) Ltd. There are no provisions in the Design, Build Finance and Operate Contract between the Secretary of State for Transport and UK Highways (M40) Ltd. for any formal review of environmental issues.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how the Highways Agency is able to agree additional works with contractors under the terms of its 30 year contract with Highway Services (UK) Ltd. [201822]

Mr. Jamieson: The Department for Transport does not have a contract with the company mentioned but the M40 DBFO contract is with UK Highways (M40) Limited. All the Department's DBFO contracts make provision for Additional Works and other Additional Services. Where the Department through its Highways Agency proposes Additional Works to be carried out it notifies the DBFO Company of such an intention by means of an Additional Works Notice:

The Additional Works Notice includes a description and/or specification of the Additional Works.

The specification should include the time by which the proposed Additional Works are to be completed.

The Additional Works Notice should specify the Additional Works Services (if any), which the Secretary of State requires the DBFO Co. to perform in respect of the Additional Works.

The Additional Works Notice should also specify the time by which any comments from the DBFO Company on the contents of the Additional Works Notice must be received.

Road Accidents (A303/A30)

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people have been (a) killed and (b) seriously injured in road accidents on the A303/A30 between Ilminster and Honiton in each of the last seven years. [202163]

Mr. Jamieson: The numbers of people killed or seriously injured on this section of the A303/A30 for each of the last seven years are set out as follows:

	Number of fatalities	Number of seriously injured
1998	3	5
1999	2	12
2000	2	7
2001	2	8
2002	2	10
2003	0	10
2004 (until end September)	2	0
Total	13	52

Road Furniture

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what quantity of (a) street lights and (b) other road furniture was replaced in the last year for which figures are available; what the cost of such replacement was; and what proportion of the (i) quantity and (ii) cost of such replacement was as a result of collisions on (A) Highways Agency roads and (B) local authority roads. [202769]

Charlotte Atkins: Highway maintenance, including the upkeep of street lighting, is the responsibility of local highway authorities in respect of local roads and the Highways Agency in respect of the trunk road network. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Wheel Loss

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library the results of the wheel loss survey completed on 30 April 1997; and what steps have been taken in the light of these results. [201196]

Mr. Jamieson: Copies of the report have been placed in the House Library. Although the report was aimed primarily at assessing the size of the problem, it also indicated that a major contributing factor was lack of adequate maintenance and checking of wheel fixings. The then Department for the Environment, Transport and the Regions issued a leaflet, in association with relevant stakeholders such as the Freight Transport Association, giving guidance on appropriate measures to reduce wheel loss. Copies of the leaflet are available in the Library. A further piece of research into the incidence of heavy goods vehicle wheel loss, commissioned by my Department, will report soon, and more work is under consideration for launch next year. In addition, there are a number of initiatives such as the Heavy Vehicle Accident Study in which wheel loss will form one of a variety of issues investigated.

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding his Department has made available to investigate incidents of wheel loss involving heavy goods vehicles. [201200]

Mr. Jamieson: A contribution of £35,000 was made by the Department for Trade and Industry to research carried out in the late 1980s. In 1997 the then Department of Environment, Transport and the Regions prepared a report based upon surveys carried out by the Vehicle Inspectorate and the Association of Chief Police Officers. No figures are available for this work. A new project is currently under way to update the accident statistics of wheel loss from heavy vehicles. This project is part of the present Department for Transport's wide ranging programme of research into vehicle safety which is currently valued at £7.1 million. There is not a specific sum in this budget for investigation of wheel loss incidents.

Roadworks

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which roads are being considered by the Highways Agency for treatment for non-maintenance reasons in (a) 2004–05, (b) 2005–06 and (c) 2006–07. [200637]

Mr. Jamieson: It is the Government's intention to bring forward resurfacing of concrete roads ahead of maintenance need, as resources allow, as announced by the Secretary of State on 1 April 2003. The following roads are being resurfaced ahead of maintenance need in 2004–05:

A27 Chichester—Havant, Emsworth and Chichester sections.

In addition the following sections of concrete road are being resurfaced in 2004–05 for maintenance reasons:

A1(M) junction 1

A180 Harborough—Stallinborough

M69 junction 2 to M1 junction 21

A1 Carlton to Muskham phase 2.

It is too early to say which roads might be brought forward for resurfacing ahead of maintenance need in 2005–06 and 2006–07. The Highways Agency is currently developing its detailed programme following the spending review settlement.

Rolling Stock Companies

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to his oral answer of 25 November 2004, Official Report, column 252, on the Railways Bill, if he will make a statement on the nature and purpose of the discussions under way with the rolling stock companies. [202147]

Mr. McNulty: As set out in the 'Future of Rail' White Paper, the Department for Transport is currently considering further whether and how the operation of the rolling stock market can be improved. The White Paper also said that to support this the Department would prepare a rolling stock strategy to help the industry plan more effectively.

Sheerness Port

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will ensure that the Harbourmaster at Sheerness Port restricts the opening of the Kingsferry Bridge to a single lift during rush hours; and if he will make a statement. [201070]

Mr. Jamieson: Responsibility for the operation of Kingsferry Bridge is a matter for Network Rail. The Harbour Master has no authority to restrict its opening.

Slam-door Trains

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the oldest slam-door trains have received a waiver allowing them to run beyond the statutory deadline of 31 December for removing them from the network; and when they will be replaced by new trains. [202539]

Mr. McNulty: The exemption issued by the Health and Safety Executive on 22 October does not apply to a specified number of vehicles. It says, instead, that all Mark 1 slam door trains must be removed from passenger service by November 2005. By 13 November 2004, 889 Mark 1 slam door vehicles had been withdrawn from service across the three south-of-the-Thames train operating companies, leaving another 849 available for service and covered by the exemption. We expect them all to have been removed by August 2005.

Speed Cameras

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many speed cameras have been in operation in each year since 1999, broken down by (a) region and (b) class of road. [201195]

Mr. Jamieson: Cameras have been in use since the early 1990's. Prior to the start of the Safety Camera Programme in April 2000, there was no requirement for local authorities or Police authorities to report on the number or location of safety cameras. Since the Safety Camera Programme started in 2000, partnerships have been required to provide the information requested and the current Department for Transport database shows the data, copies of which have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Stations (Crime)

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what criteria stations need to meet to be designated secure stations under the Secure Stations scheme; and how much money has been spent advertising the scheme. [202767]

Mr. McNulty: The Secure Stations scheme is designed to improve and standardise good security practices at overground and underground stations. The scheme awards Secure Stations status to those stations that have worked with their local British Transport Police Crime Reduction Officer to reach specified standards in crime management, station design, station management, and passenger perceptions. Criteria covered include lighting, maintenance procedures, passenger information, incident reporting, and staff training.

Approximately £15,000 has been spent on the printing and distribution of the Secure Stations scheme guidance. The scheme is also "advertised" through various meetings, presentations, magazine articles, seminars and conferences with relevant interested parties. Accredited stations are also able to make their own advertising through local news features and their own publicity materials (eg posters, company magazines).

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many stations with Secure Station status have subsequently had their designation removed in each year since the scheme's inception; and which stations have been designated secure stations under the Secure Station scheme. [202768]

Mr. McNulty: Stations are awarded Secure Stations status for a two year period once they have met the required accreditation standards on station design, station management, crime management, and passenger perceptions. There is provision for the accreditation to be withdrawn if there is a clear breach of standards during that time. No stations have breached the standards during their accreditation period.

Accredited stations can apply for reaccreditation after their two year award period has expired. As shown as follows, although a large number of stations have become reaccredited, 59 stations have not sought or achieved reaccreditation and, therefore, their accreditation status has been removed. There were two of these stations during 2000, three during 2001, 18 during 2002, 21 during 2003, and 15 during 2004.

A total of 225 stations have been accredited under the Secure Stations scheme. Of these 81 are first time accreditations, 85 have been reaccredited and 59 have lapsed. A list of accredited stations has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Approximately two thirds of all overground rail journeys and approximately one half of all London Underground journeys involve passengers starting or finishing their journeys at a Secure Station.

Transport Fuels (Renewables Obligation)

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to introduce a renewables obligation for transport fuels. [202106]

Mr. Jamieson: The Government are considering whether an obligation might be an appropriate mechanism to support the introduction of renewable road fuels into the long term, but no decision has yet been taken. The pre-Budget report announced that we will undertake a feasibility study and consultative process with stakeholders to inform our judgment.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter to him dated 11 October from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Pauline Clear. [201350]

Mr. Blunkett: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 2 December. I am sorry for the delay in replying.

Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on manning levels at the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority. [200149]

Paul Goggins: The Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority currently has some 452 staff. 328 of these are employees of the Scottish Executive on special assignment to the Authority in its Glasgow office: 124 are employees of the Home Office on secondment to the Authority in its London office.

Drink-Driving

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will reduce the drink-drive blood alcohol limit to 50mg. [201499]

Mr. Jamieson: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have no plans at present to lower the drink-drive legal limit.

We feel that it would be more effective to maintain our emphasis on enforcement and education through publicity. This approach, backed by strong penalties which are among the toughest in Europe, has led to a significant reduction in drink-drive fatalities since the 1970s and given this country one of the best overall road safety records in the EU.

We are taking further steps to deal with drink driving in the new Road Safety Bill.

Fines

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to link the level of a fine to a defendant's income. [201017]

Paul Goggins: Fines are currently imposed on the basis of the seriousness of the offence and the offender's ability to pay. The Government have accepted the recommendation made in the Carter Report, "Managing Offenders, Reducing Crime", that a "day fines" system should be introduced. This would offer a more transparent link with ability to pay so that fines should bear more equally on offenders of differing means.

Gateway Zero Reviews

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice his Department has received from the Office of Government Commerce on the timing of Gateway Zero reviews. [200011]

Paul Goggins: The Office of Government Commerce was fully consulted and the time scale of the Gateway Zero review was agreed with them.

National Offender Management Service

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what risk assessment has been carried out on co-ordination and integration across the sub-programmes of the National Offender Management Service; [199787]

(2) what risk assessment has been carried out on the scale and scope of the change programme of the National Offender Management Service. [199786]

Paul Goggins: As part of the setting up of the National Offender Management Service (NOMS), a comprehensive risk management strategy has been established, providing for the assessment, monitoring and managing of risks across the Change Programme. Risk assessments have been carried out at detail and strategic level across the Programme. The results have been agreed with the NOMS Directors and reported to the NOMS Board and to other governance bodies within the Home Office.

The assessments cover all aspects of the Programme, including policy, implementation, people and process issues. The result of any risk assessment is a risk register, which contains not only the risk, with scores for probability and impact, but importantly the counter measures which have been identified to mitigate the risks. The registers are continually updated as the Programme evolves and the risks change.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what training staff will receive in respect of the National Offender Monitoring Information Project. [199984]

Paul Goggins: The National Offender Management Information System (NOMIS) Project formally started on 1 June 2004. The first phase is a 12 month detailed design and pilot which covers the business changes necessary to implement new IT support facilities for the prisons and probation services. This will enable them to meet the new sentencing provisions under the Criminal Justice Act 2003. Targeted training is a vital component of the programme and a training strategy and plan for all potential users of NOMIS will be one of the key outputs of this phase.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the National Offender Management Service business case will be published. [199993]

Paul Goggins: The National Offender Manager Service detailed business case is currently being prepared. In keeping with normal practice across the Government it is not intended to publish the results.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether a business case existed prior to the announcement of the National Offender Management Service in January. [199995]

Paul Goggins: The case for establishment of the National Offender Management Service was outlined in Patrick Carter's independent report "Managing Offenders-Reducing Crime".

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department who was consulted and what advice his Department has received on the preparation of the business case for the National Offender Management Service. [199996]

Paul Goggins: The National Offender Management Service business case is being prepared according to the Home Office standards and the experience gained from preparing business cases for other Change Programmes.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the terms of reference are for the National Offender Management Information Project. [199997]

Paul Goggins: The terms of reference for the National Offender Management Information Project are: to design a shared offender database as recommended in the Carter Review "Managing Offenders and Reducing Crime"; to develop IT functionality in order to meet the specific operational needs of the Prisons and Probation Services; and to support interfaces to other criminal justice organisations such as the police and courts, as part of a more joined up approach to reducing re-offending.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many civil servants are employed on the National Offender Management Information Project, broken down by grade. [200001]

Paul Goggins: From the Prison Service, there are currently 17 civil servants directly engaged on the National Offender Management Information System Project working alongside suppliers. These comprise one senior civil servant (Project Director), one senior manager B (G6 equivalent), two senior manager D (G7 equivalent), four manager E (SEO equivalent), three manager G/F (HEO equivalent), six principal/senior officers (EO equivalent). In addition, there are seven assistant chief officers or senior probation officers engaged either on a full or part-time basis from the probation service.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the estimated cost of the National Offender Management Information Project is for the (a) current financial year and (b) next three financial years. [200002]

Paul Goggins: The cost of the project in 2004–05 is £7.9 million. This covers expenditure on staff, supplier costs, equipment and licensing charges for the pilot phase. This phase will determine the build, implementation and support costs over the life of the project when the scope and requirements have been confirmed and the technical solution finally agreed.

National Offender Manager

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the National Offender Manager will be assuming responsibility for core National Probation Directorate functions. [199956]

Paul Goggins: No decision has yet been made on when the National Offender Manager will assume responsibility for core National Probation Directorate functions.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department to whom the National Offender Manager in the National Offender Management Service will be accountable. [199957]

Paul Goggins: The National Offender Manager is accountable to the Chief Executive of the National Offender Management Service.

New Prisons

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will list the sites which are under consideration for the building of new prisons; [199443]

(2) if he will publish the site evaluations of the potential new sites for prison establishments that have been carried out in the past 12 months. [199444]

Paul Goggins: The process of identifying suitable sites is still in progress. Details of the sites and evaluations cannot be disclosed for commercial reasons.

Prison Service Resettlement Survey

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the key findings were of the Prison Service's Resettlement Survey 2003; and if he will place a copy of the survey in the Library. [199530]

Paul Goggins [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The survey was conducted to measure progress towards the Key Performance Target for increasing the number of prisoners having employment or training arranged on release. The Prison Service Annual Report 2003 states that the number of prisoners in the last two or three weeks of sentence who had employment, training or education (ETE) arranged was 25,906, as measured by the 2003 resettlement survey.

In addition, the report states that there were an additional number of cases counted toward the target of 28,200 which comprised:

7,086 from Jobcentre Plus data (14,173 prisoners attended a FRESHSTART interview at their local Jobcentre on release, scoring half a point each towards the target to build in incentives to this joint initiative).

Publications are placed in the Library as a matter of course. The detailed results of the 2003 resettlement survey are due for publication this financial year.

Prison Suicides

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many reports on suicides in prison have been completed by the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman in the last 12 months; and when each was published. [200464]

Paul Goggins: Investigation of all deaths in custody (whether apparently self-inflicted or otherwise) became the responsibility of the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman on 1 April 2004. Since that date, investigations have begun into 163 deaths in prisons, immigration detention and probation approved premises. This includes 59 apparently self-inflicted deaths in prison. Three reports into apparently self-inflicted deaths in prisons have been through all their stages and submitted to the respective Coroner. Nine reports into other deaths have also been completed and a further 10 are drafts upon which the relevant service is commenting in line with the Ombudsman's reporting procedure. To avoid prejudice, it is not anticipated that reports will be published until after the inquests are heard.

During 2003–04, the Ombudsman was commissioned to investigate three prison deaths, two of which were apparently self-inflicted. Those reports have also not been published as the inquests have yet to be held.

Prisoners (Sexual Abuse)

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the percentage of the prison population who were victims of sexual abuse. [199509]

Paul Goggins: It is estimated that 10 per cent. of male prisoners and a third of female prisoners report having suffered sexual abuse at some time in their lives. This is based on figures from Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons' (HMCIP) thematic reviews and an Office for National Statistics' study of psychiatric morbidity among prisoners (Singleton et al, 1999). In an HMICP thematic Inspection of Young People in Custody in October 1997, 17 per cent. of the young people interviewed admitted having suffered abuse of a violent, sexual or emotional nature.

Many factors prevent the disclosure of sexual abuse and it is the least reported of all forms of abuse. Disclosure of sexual abuse is recorded on individual records but not routinely collected. Data is recorded and analysed on the history of all forms of abuse through the Offender Assessment System.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps are being taken to provide victim support-based treatment for prison inmates who were victims of sexual abuse prior to incarceration. [199510]

Paul Goggins: The steps taken to provide support-based treatment for prisoners who were sexually abused prior to imprisonment vary between prison establishments, reflecting local circumstances. Prison psychologists, for example, may be able to offer one-to-one help in some cases although any sort of psychological or therapeutic work done with victims of sexual abuse is a long process. Help may have to be limited to information and advice, or referring victims to appropriate agencies in their local communities on release. Some prison programmes, such as anger management, may address the impact of abuse indirectly. Prisoners who have a history of sexual abuse are at a greater risk of suicide or self-harm and guidance to staff on managing prisoners who self-harm has been circulated to establishments.

The Women's Team at Prison Service Headquarters is currently working with a small group of local practitioners (including prison staff and voluntary agencies) to develop Good Practice Principles so that they can achieve consistency in the standard of support offered to women prisoners who report they have suffered abuse. This work will be completed by late 2005 and will draw on a published literature review by Carol-Ann Hooper (2003), University of York on "Abuse, Interventions and Women in Prison".

Probation Hostels

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hostels run by (a) the probation service and (b) the voluntary sector are available in England and Wales, broken down by number of places. [199981]

Paul Goggins: The number of approved premises (hostels) run by the National Probation Service (NPS) is currently 88, and by the voluntary sector 12. Total number of beds (approximate as it can vary) is 1,977 for NPS and 261 for the voluntary sector.

Probation Service

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reason the Probation Service Pay and Reward Review was not implemented in April. [199413]

Paul Goggins: The Pay and Reward Review for staff in the National Probation Service (NPS) could not be implemented in April 2004 because at that date no agreement had been reached with the trade unions. Negotiations are continuing between the employers' side of the NPS National Negotiating Council (NNC) and the trade union side about the introduction of affordable new pay and grading arrangements for the service. The discussions cover wide-ranging and complex issues and have been necessarily prolonged.

Sex Offenders

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many sex offenders are in sex offender treatment programmes in (a) overcrowded prisons and (b) non-overcrowded prisons. [199512]

Paul Goggins: The table sets out the 2004–05 completion targets for the Sex Offender Treatment programme (SOTP) for those prisons defined as overcrowded and uncrowded as at 31 October 2004.

	Overcrowded	Uncrowded
Number of prisons delivering SOTP	17	8
Total number of expected completions 2004–05	800	380

Information is not recorded on how many of those prisoners undergoing sex offender treatment are currently occupying cells designated as overcrowded.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on (i) inmate and (ii) prison staff perceptions of sex offenders and the influence of such perceptions on sex offenders' participation and completion of Sex Offender Treatment Programme. [199514]

Paul Goggins: The Prison Service has undertaken research into the reasons why offenders choose not to participate in the Sex Offender Treatment Programme in prison. As part of this work, the perceptions of both staff and prisoners and their influence on participation in the programme were considered. The Prison Service is implementing a strategy to address the issues identified by the research, with the aim of reducing the numbers refusing treatment.

Young Offenders

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of young offenders were (a) illiterate and (b) innumerate (i) at assessment on entry to young offenders institutions, (ii) 25 per cent. of the way through their custodial sentence, (iii) 50 per cent. of the way through their custodial sentence, (iv) 75 per cent. of the way through their custodial sentence and (v) on completion of their custodial sentence in the latest year for which statistics are available. [200261]

Paul Goggins [holding answer 29 November 2004]: For the period April 2002 to March 2003 the results of the basic skills assessment screening tests at male young offender establishments were as follows:

2002–03: Young offender establishments

	Number tested	Percentage
Spelling	14,742	47.9	38.8	13.3

Reading	17,721	38.7	28.5	32.8
Numeracy	18,442	46.4	31.7	21.9

Information regarding progression relative to the proportion of sentence served is not available; however, the number of achievements gained by juvenile and young offenders for the same period is as follows:

	Number
Entry Level	2,227
Level 1	2,673
Level 2	1,326
Total	6,226

For the period April 2004 to August 2004 information on the basic skills level at induction is available for juveniles only and is as follows:

April to August 2004

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

British Citizens Killed Abroad

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial assistance his Department provides to families of British citizens killed abroad to assist with (a) legal and (b) other costs. [201744]

Mr. Mullin: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not usually provide financial assistance for legal costs or other expenses incurred by the families of British nationals killed abroad.

As part of our assistance to victims of terrorism, we can in certain circumstances—eg if the victim's employer, insurance company or others cannot do so—offer practical support to victims of terrorism and their families.

Where a legal case overseas raises issues of human rights or due process, the FCO will consider referring the case to a member of the UK based FCO Pro Bono Lawyers Panel. In such cases, an appointed Panel member would be expected to work alongside a lawyer retained and instructed locally by the family.

Cyprus

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what steps his Department is taking to warn UK nationals of possible legal challenges to purchases of properties in the northern part of the island of Cyprus; and what his Department's policy is on (a) the ownership of properties constructed on illegally occupied land in the northern part of the island of Cyprus and (b) compensation to be paid in respect of such properties. [202794]

Mr. MacShane: The Cyprus travel advice on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) website: www.fco.gov.uk has very clear language on purchasing property in the north of Cyprus. We strongly advise anyone considering buying property to seek independent qualified legal advice. We also draw attention to the political situation in Cyprus. The same advice is given to those who telephone the FCO or the British High Commission.

The UN Secretary General's comprehensive settlement plan contained provisions for the return of property and compensation in respect of properties. We continue to believe that the best way of resolving these property issues is as part of a comprehensive, just and lasting settlement on the basis of the UN Secretary General's plan.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, if he will (a) obtain from the British High Commission in Nicosia and (b) place in the Library the names and addresses of British companies engaged in the construction or marketing of properties in the occupied territory of Northern Cyprus. [202795]

Mr. MacShane: The British High Commission in Nicosia does not hold records of UK companies active in Cyprus. In line with our consular policy worldwide, we encourage all British citizens living overseas to register with their local Embassy, Consulate or High Commission. But this register does not include details of business activities.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if his Department will take steps to ensure that UK companies are not engaged in the construction or marketing of properties on land in the northern part of Cyprus legally owned by Greek Cypriots and mis-appropriated. [202796]

Mr. MacShane: We strongly advise all those considering purchasing property in northern Cyprus to seek independent qualified legal advice before making any purchase—this is clearly stated in the Cyprus travel advice on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website: www.fco.gov.uk. This advice applies equally to individuals and to UK companies. However, the UK Government is not in a position to intervene with or prevent UK companies from making commercial transactions with individuals or companies in northern Cyprus.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many departmental mobile telephones were used by (a) Ministers, (b) special advisers and (c) officials in his Department in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202757]

Mr. Rammell: There are currently a total of 65 mobile phones in use by Ministers, Special Advisers and civil servants in ministerial offices. Records held are cumulative and reflect live numbers only, and they do not contain a summary of costs per mobile phone used. Information on charges could, therefore, be provided only at disproportionate cost. Details of old phones disconnected or replaced are not kept and it is not therefore possible to provide a breakdown for previous years.

The cost for mobile phone services, in UK, up until 2003 was based on line rental with new or replacement handsets provided to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office free of charge. While suppliers are now charging for handsets, there are no records held centrally detailing those that were lost or stolen, and the resultant cost to replace them.

Drugs (Central Asia)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the Government have contributed to the Central Asian Drugs Action Plan in each of the last three years; and what benefits to the UK have resulted. [200030]

Mr. Rammell: In addition to assistance to Afghanistan and contributions to the European Commission's assistance programmes in the region, the UK has spent approximately £1 million on counter narcotics activities in Central Asia since 2002. We have plans to increase the level of support and assistance provided. Increasing counter narcotics capacity on the borders of Afghanistan helps reduce the incentive to cultivate opiates in Afghanistan and improves the effectiveness of law enforcement activity aimed at reducing the flow of opiates to Europe and the UK.

Equatorial Guinea

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what discussions (a) he and (b) officials from his Department have had with their French counterparts concerning external threats to Equatorial Guinea since January 2003; [199866]

(2) what discussions (a) he and (b) officials from his Department have had with (i) Spanish and (ii) Nigerian counterparts concerning external threats to Equatorial Guinea since January 2003. [199869]

Mr. Straw: We do not comment on confidential diplomatic exchanges under exemptions 1*(b)* and 1*(c)* of Part 2 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) the security services and (b) a UK police force is conducting an investigation into the Equatorial Guinea attempted coup. [199912]

Mr. Straw: It is the policy of successive Governments not to comment on the activities of the security services. The security and intelligence agencies are outside the scope of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information (Part 1, paragraph 6). The Equatorial Guinean authorities have passed documents relating to the alleged coup attempt in March 2004 to the Metropolitan Police, who are assessing the material.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when (a) he and (b) his officials received information from US (i) counterparts and (ii) security agencies concerning attempted coups in Equatorial Guinea during the last 18 months. [201705]

Mr. Straw: I refer the right hon. Gentleman to my written statement of 1 December 2004, Official Report, columns 37–39WS. Under exemption 1 (c) of Part 2 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information, I am not prepared to comment on the detail of confidential exchanges between governments.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what dates within the last 18 months (a) his Department and (b) the security services received information, including electronic information, concerning attempted coups in Equatorial Guinea. [201706]

Mr. Straw: I refer the right hon. Gentleman to my written statement of 1 December 2004, Official Report, columns 37–39WS.

External Trade Commissioner

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to press for a review of the European Commissioner for External Trade's mandate with a view to increasing democratic accountability. [200032]

Mr. MacShane: There are no plans to press for a review of the EU Trade Commissioner's mandate. There is already significant democratic accountability. In trade negotiations, the Commissioner works within the terms of a mandate set by member states and reports to the Council of Ministers on a regular basis.

At his hearing before the European Parliament on 4 November, Mr. Mandelson, the Trade Commissioner designate, stated that he would continue the practice established by his predecessor, Pascal Lamy, of going beyond his legal obligations when informing the European Parliament on trade issues. We welcome that as we do the recent establishment of a European Parliamentary Committee on International Trade.

As with the other Commissioners, democratically elected Members of the European Parliament (MEPs) questioned Mr. Mandleson before voting to approve the new Commission as a whole. The European Parliament voted with a large majority to approve the new European Commission on 18 November.

In addition, throughout the Commission's term of office, it is subject to the scrutiny of the European Parliament, which examines reports sent to it by the Commission. Moreover, Commissioners are obliged to answer written and oral questions tabled by MEPs.

Falluja

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) embedded and (b) independent journalists were permitted access by the interim Iraqi Government to the Fallujah general hospital from 7 November following its capture by the Iraqi security forces. [199695]

Mr. Rammell: We are unaware of any restrictions placed on journalists entering Fallujah general hospital from 7 November.

Guantanamo Bay

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which (a) British nationals and (b) former British residents are detained by the US Administration in Guantanamo Bay; where each was first taken into custody by US forces; how long each has been detained; what steps have been taken to obtain visitation rights for detainees' families; and how many letters each has been allowed to send in the last 12 months. [199615]

Mr. Mullin: There are four british nationals detained by the US at Guantanamo Bay, Feroz Abbasi, Moazzam Begg, Richard Belmar and Martin Mubanga. We are aware of five former British residents also in detention there but the Government is not in a position to provide consular or diplomatic assistance to them and I therefore cannot comment on their situation.

The four British detainees in Guantanamo Bay and their places and length of detention are:

Feroz Abbasi: Detained in Afghanistan. Transferred to Guantanamo Bay in January 2002.

Moazzam Begg: Detained in Pakistan. Transferred to Guantanamo Bay in February 2003.

Richard Belmar: Detained in Pakistan. Transferred to Guantanamo Bay in October 2002.

Martin Mubanga: Detained in Zambia. Transferred to Guantanamo Bay in April 2002.

We know from our frequent contact with the US authorities on the situation of the detainees at Guantanamo Bay that family visits are not permitted to those detainees not currently proceeding through the Military Commissions process. We have, however, made a request for Azmat Begg (Moazzam Begg's father), Dr. James MacKeith and Lord Rea to visit Moazzam Begg for the purpose of carrying out an independent psychiatric assessment. We await the US response.

We do not know how many letters each British detainee has written in the last 12 months. However, we are unaware of any limits on the number of letters detainees are permitted to write.

Hamas

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of

1 December 2004, Official Report, columns 174–75W, on Hamas, if he will list the Governments and other parties on the ground which conveyed soundings and impressions between the EU High Representative and Hamas stating in each case whether they acted at the specific request of (a) the High Representative and (b) his officials; and under what authority these requests were made. [202787]

Mr. Rammell: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Iran

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether during recent discussions with the Government of Iran on its compliance with obligations under the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, Iranian Government representatives raised the United Kingdom's obligations under Article 6 of the Treaty. [199663]

Mr. MacShane: No.

Iraq

Glenda Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will request that the Iraqi Ministry of Health furnish him with the (a) name, (b) location and (c) type of hospitals referred to in the paragraph Casualty Estimates in his written Ministerial Statement of 17 November, on Iraq: Casualty Estimates. [199844]

Mr. Rammell: We have requested this information from the Iraqi Ministry of Health. However it will take time for the information to be obtained, translated and compiled. Once compiled I will write to my hon. Friend and place a copy of the list in the Library of the House.

Glenda Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will request that the Iraqi Ministry of Health furnish him with a breakdown of the number of civilians killed and injured, as referred to in his Written Ministerial Statement of 17 November, on Iraq: Casualty Estimates, by (a) age, (b) gender, (c) type of injury and (d) cause of death. [199845]

Mr. Rammell: The Iraqi Ministry of Health statistics on casualties do not include details of age. We have asked the Ministry of Health for a breakdown of their casualty statistics by child/adult categories as well as by gender. I will provide my hon. Friend with this compiled information and will place a copy in the Library of the House, if and when it is made available by the Ministry of Health. I understand that the Ministry of Health does not hold any further information centrally about types of injury or the precise cause of death (i.e. other than by military or terrorist action).

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what percentage of the Iraqi population are classified as Christians; and how many Christian organisations from outside Iraq are working within Iraq. [201473]

Mr. Rammell: Estimates of the number of Iraqi Christians vary. The commonly held view is that they make up around 3 per cent. of the Iraqi population. However, an accurate estimate will have to await a new Iraqi census. As far as we are aware, a small number of international organisations with a Christian affiliation have been involved in humanitarian work and promoting inter-faith dialogue in Iraq. There are also some long-standing links between Christian communities in Iraq and those in other countries.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what assessment his Department has made of the treatment of Christians in Iraq; and what steps the Iraqi authorities are taking to ensure their safety. [201474]

Mr. Rammell: I refer my honourable Friend to the reply I gave to my honourable Friend, the Member for Pendle (Mr. Gordon Prentice) on 17 November 2004 (Official Report, column 1552W).

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many written questions for his Department were unanswered when Parliament Prorogued; and how many of the unanswered questions were tabled in each of the previous months of the 2003–04 Session. [201551]

Mr. Straw: Seven. Of the seven, two were tabled in October 2004. Five were tabled in November 2004.

Thailand

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the establishment of staff at the British Embassy in Thailand is; how many posts are filled; and how many staff are involved in assisting British tourists needing assistance in Thailand. [201742]

Mr. Alexander: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office currently has 27 UK based and 108 locally engaged staff at our Embassy in Bangkok, Thailand. The section primarily responsible for providing assistance to British nationals comprises one UK based officer and three local staff, one of whom is part-time. The section is supervised by the Consul. The Ambassador and Deputy Head of Mission also spend some of their time on consular policy matters.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions British Embassy staff in Thailand have had with the (a) Prime Minister, (b) Foreign Minister, (c) Chief Prosecutor and (d) Chief of Police of Thailand in relation to the killing of Vanessa Arscott of Ashburton. [201743]

Mr. Mullin: My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister raised the killings of Vanessa Arscott and Adam Lloyd with the Thai Prime Minister on 7 October. My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at the Ministry of Defence (Lord Bach) raised the case with the Thai Foreign Minister on 1 October and our Ambassador to Thailand also raised it with him on 11 November. Our Ambassador also raised the case with the Thai Police Commissioner on 16 November. Our Consul sought clarification on a number of issues associated with the case with the Chief Prosecutor on 25 November. Embassy staff have also had numerous discussions regarding the case with a wide range of police officers and officials in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Ministry of Justice, Ministry of Interior and Attorney General's Office.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will appoint a specific member of staff in the British Embassy in Thailand to deal with the Vanessa Arscott case. [201745]

Mr. Mullin: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him today by my hon. Friend the Minister of State at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (Douglas Alexander) (UIN 201742). Our Embassy in Bangkok has a team of UK and locally engaged staff working on this and other consular cases. Our Consul, reporting to the Ambassador and Deputy Head of Mission, is responsible for the specific deployment of their staff.

Ukraine

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of the Ukrainian election result on the wider region. [201863]

Mr. MacShane: The Governments and peoples of Ukraine's neighbours will undoubtedly be watching the Ukrainian election closely. However, while events are still evolving, and in the absence of an agreed outcome, it is too early to make an overall assessment of the implications.

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the legitimacy of the Ukrainian election result. [201864]

Mr. MacShane: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made to the House on 29 November 2004, Official Report, column 359 by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions have taken place between the Government, the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe and the EU regarding the Ukrainian election result. [201865]

Mr. MacShane: On 22 November, the Organisation for Security and Co-operation for Europe's (OSCE) International Election Observation Mission to Ukraine issued its preliminary findings and conclusions on the Ukrainian Election result. The UK with EU partners continues to discuss the election result, and the OSCE's future role in Ukraine, within the OSCE. The UK expects further discussion on Ukraine at the OSCE Ministerial Council on 6 and 7 December in Sofia.

Zimbabwe (UN Resolution)

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress is being made with the United Kingdom sponsored resolution on Zimbabwe in the United Nations; and in which institution of the United Nations it is being tabled. [201123]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 2 December 2004]: Prompted by the UK, the EU tabled a resolution on Zimbabwe at the General Assembly's Third Committee, which covers human rights. It fell on 24 November to a "no action" motion tabled by the African Group. Following the result of the vote my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (Bill Rammell) and our international partners, the EU, USA and Australia, issued statements condemning this block on a proper UN debate on the serious human rights situation in Zimbabwe.

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 7 December 2004

DEFENCE

Astute Class Submarines

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which submarines are to be replaced by the three Astute class submarines on order; and what their planned dates for decommissioning are. [201633]

Mr. Ingram: We are not directly replacing our existing nuclear attack submarines platform by platform. The capability currently provided by the Swiftsure and Trafalgar classes will in future be met by the Astute Class.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date he expects HMS Astute to become fully operational. [201632]

Mr. Ingram: HMS Astute is expected to become fully operational in 2009 after a period of extensive weapon system proving trials. The Submarine will be available to the Fleet for limited operations before these trials complete.

Budget Reductions

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what effect the proposed reductions in budgets of (a) Commander-in-Chief Fleet, (b) Commander-in-Chief Land Command, (c) Commander-in-Chief Strike Command and (d) Chief of Defence Logistics will have on frontline capability; and if he will make a statement. [203281]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 6 December 2004, Official Report, columns 338–39W.

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost has been of criminal damage to his Department's buildings in each of the last two years. [200798]

Mr. Caplin: The information required to answer this question is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Future Rapid Effects System

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what time scale has been written into the contract with Atkins for the systems house role for the Future Rapid Effects System. [200016]

Mr. Ingram: The Systems House, under the strategic direction of the Ministry of Defence, will be leading the programme of studies during the Assessment Phase designed to inform MOD's future investment decisions on Future Rapid Effect System. The Assessment Phase is scheduled to last for two years and will complete in November 2006. The contract with Atkins reflects this time line.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the new family of medium vehicles will be operational. [200019]

Mr. Ingram: The Future Rapid Effect System (FRES) is now in its initial Assessment Phase. A contract has now been awarded to Atkins who, under the strategic direction of the Ministry of Defence, will be leading a number of key activities designed to inform MOD's major programme decisions. Part of this Assessment Phase work will be to identify and reduce risk in the programme to enable us to define an appropriate In-Service Date (ISD) in both capability and programme terms for endorsement at Main Gate. The ISD will not be formally endorsed until then, but our initial planning assumption is to introduce the early variants of FRES around the end of the decade, with a phased approach to achieving full operational capability thereafter.

Iraq

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what training Army units deploying to Iraq receive (a) before deployment and (b) in-theatre in Iraq. [199568]

Mr. Ingram: British armed forces deploying to Iraq receive one of two comprehensive pre-deployment training packages, covering a wide variety of mandatory briefings, skills training and theatre acclimatisation, dependent upon whether they are deployed on an individual basis or as part of a group deployment. Once in theatre they receive refresher and specific-to-theatre training designed to prepare them for their respective jobs, and allow them to be deployed acclimatised, and trained in the tasks that they are to perform.

Military Operations (EU)

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what large scale co-operative exercises organised by EU Military Staff he expects will take place in the next five years; and from what budgets UK participation will be funded. [200380]

Mr. Hoon: The EU Military Staff currently have no plans for a large-scale co-operative exercise involving the field deployment of troops. However, EU and/or joint EU-NATO crisis management exercises, involving command structures and headquarters, are envisaged in each of the years 2006 to 2009, and will involve exercising arrangements for the augmentation of the relevant HQ. They will focus on how the EU responds to crises using both civilian and military instruments in an EU-led operation.

The majority of costs for EU exercises are funded on a "costs lie where they fall" basis. In practice, therefore, the cost to the UK of hosting an exercise would be met by the Permanent Joint Headquarters (PJHQ), as it was for this year's exercise; and the cost of providing staff for an exercise hosted by another member state would be met by the Top Level Budget Holder providing the staff.

There are also a few additional costs, such as costs incurred by EU recourse to NATO common assets, that are shared by member states on a Gross National Income key. This is the same approach as for other exercises involving comparable international institutions.

Type 45 Destroyers

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many type-45s will be capable of deploying simultaneously when they are all in-service. [201641]

Mr. Ingram: With eight Type 45 destroyers in service, a minimum of five units would be available to the Fleet, at various states of readiness, for deployment.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bees

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consultation she (a) has had and (b) proposes to have with the Harrogate and Ripon Beekeepers Association regarding the Bee Health Programme. [200428]

Alun Michael: My officials are consulting the national beekeeping associations in England about our future plans for the bee health programme. These associations include the British Beekeepers' Association, of which the Harrogate and Ripon Beekeepers' Association is a member.

Civil Servants

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many civil servants worked for her Department in each of the last five years. [201129]

Alun Michael: Defra was created in June 2001 and the figures shown in the following table relate to the period since then.

	Defra	Executive agencies	Total
1 October 2001	7,970	2,520	10,490
1 April 2002	6,980	5,580	12,560
1 April 2003	6,690	5,630	12,320
1 April 2004	6,910	6,070	12,980

Numbers shown are permanent staff in full-time equivalents.

These changes were mainly due to the creation of the Rural Payments Agency on 16 October 2001. RPA took over all 1,080 staff from the Intervention Board Executive Agency (which has not been included in Defra staff in post statistics) and around 1,860 staff from the core Department.

Correspondence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her target time is in 2004–05 (a) to reply to letters from hon. Members and (b) for the officials in her Department to reply to letters received directly from members of the public. [202359]

Alun Michael: The Department's target time for answering such letters is 15 working days.

Deer Management Options Report

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the report Current and Future Deer Management Options, published in December 2003. [202034]

Mr Bradshaw: I asked my officials to assess the report and they found it to be excellent.

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether her Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if she will make a statement. [199628]

Alun Michael: The quality and accessibility is not as high as I would like but it is our policy that our websites should comply fully with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Accessibility Initiative's guidelines (as detailed in the Guidelines for UK Government websites). I am told that our current website designs are intended to meet in full the Priority 1 (level A) standards. Work is now being undertaken to update older content on our website that may not meet current standards in full, while further work on both technical and authoring issues is intended to raise our standards.

GM Crops

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress she has made on establishing coexistence measures for the growing of GM crops. [201269]

Mr. Morley: In collaboration with the Devolved Administrations we held a series of stakeholder workshops between August and October. We are now developing a package of specific proposals and options for general consultation. Our original aim was to publish the written consultation package this year, but as there are aspects we need to explore further it will not now be issued until 2005. We plan to have co-existence measures in place before there is any commercial GM cultivation in the UK. This is not expected before 2008 at the earliest.

Hunting

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the impact of the Hunting Act 2004 upon those whose livelihoods are (a) directly and (b) indirectly dependent on hunting; and if she will review the commencement date for the hunting ban to take account of the Minister for Rural Affairs' expressed concerns about the potential impact of implementation in February 2005. [200730]

Alun Michael: The Government do not expect that significant numbers of people will find themselves out of work as a result of the Act and many will be able to divert into other activities. Lord Burns estimated that around 700 jobs were directly dependent on hunting and that, overall, between 6,000 and 8,000 jobs could be affected by a ban, although evidence given to the Portcullis House hearings suggested that this may be an overstatement. The Government have not made any further assessment of the economic impact of the Act.

The Government believe that a longer implementation time would have helped businesses and individuals to prepare for the ban. Our proposal to defer commencement until July 2006 was, regrettably and perversely, rejected by the House of Lords.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many written questions for her Department were unanswered when Parliament prorogued; and how many of the unanswered questions were tabled in each of the previous months of the 2003–04 Session. [201550]

Alun Michael: I can confirm that we did not have any written questions unanswered when Parliament prorogued.

Four parliamentary questions had not been responded to with a substantive answer when the House prorogued. Each received a response promising to write to the MP with a reply. All four questions were tabled in November 2004.

Sugar

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions she has had with the European Commission about the development of an action plan for ACP sugar producers as envisaged in the EC Communication on sugar published in July. [200241]

Alun Michael: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has stressed the importance of the early delivery of a credible and effective action plan to provide appropriate adjustment aid for existing preferential sugar suppliers in the African, Caribbean and Pacific group of countries throughout discussion of the European Commission's Communication on sugar reform. As already reported to the House, she welcomed the commitment given by the Commission at the November meeting of the Agriculture and Fisheries Council to bring forward a draft by the end of the year.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations her Department has made to the European Commission on the (a) delivery, (b) timing and (c) package of measures for ACP sugar producers in the Caribbean. [200242]

Alun Michael: Officials from both the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and from the Department for International Development have participated in a number of meetings with the European Commission on these issues. They have stressed the priority the UK attaches to the early delivery of a credible and effective action plan to provide appropriate adjustment aid for existing preferential sugar suppliers in the African, Caribbean and Pacific group of countries. They have also offered to share with the Commission the results of three pieces of independent research we have commissioned to help analyse the impacts of reform and determine how to address them. We hope these studies will contribute to discussions between the Commission and the countries concerned and help to ensure that the adjustment process is properly managed.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Correspondence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his target time is in 2004–05 (a) to reply to letters from hon. Members and (b) for the officials in his Office to reply to letters received directly from members of the public. [200766]

Fiona Mactaggart: The information is as follows:

(a) My colleagues and I aim to reply to letters from hon. Members within 15 working days unless the correspondence relates to Her Majesty's Prison Service or immigration and nationality matters when we aim to reply within 20 working days.

(b) Officials aim to reply to letters and e-mails from members of the public within 20 working days.

National Offender Management Service

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the objectives are of the National Offender Management Information Project. [200000]

Paul Goggins: The National Offender Management Information Project will provide the National Offender Management Service with a centralised offender database. This will help to achieve its central aim of reducing re-offending, as well as support new sentencing provisions, replace aged IT systems in Prisons and Probation, and contribute to better communication and co-operation with other Criminal Justice Organisations.

New Prisons

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what dates in the last 12 months he has met right hon. and hon. Members to discuss potential sites for the building of new prison establishments; and which right hon. and hon. Members attended each meeting. [199445]

Paul Goggins: I met with the hon. Member for Elmet (Colin Burgon) to discuss the possible development of a site for a new prison on 18 November 2004.

Prisons (Fires)

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many fires there were in Her Majesty's prisons from 1 January to the end of October, broken down by prison; and whether (a) prison staff and (b) prisoners were hurt. [199789]

Paul Goggins: There have been 919 fires in Her Majesty's prisons from 1 January to 31 October 2004. A breakdown by establishment is provided in the table.

Information is not held centrally on the number of staff or prisoners injured as a result of these incidents and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria are used to determine which fire authority is responsible for prisons and detention centres. [199793]

Paul Goggins: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is responsible for fire legislation and is the enforcing authority. Fire Crown Premises Inspection Group is the fire authority responsible for prisons and detention centres.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will commission an independent review of Prison Service fire advisors. [199795]

Paul Goggins: There is no need for an independent review. The Prison Service has already commissioned the Building Research Establishment (Fire) to undertake an independent Fire Safety Survey and Review of the prison estate. Those undertaking this work will assess the current situation with regard to fire safety, report their findings and make appropriate recommendations. The Prison Service will review the provision of professional technical advice on fire safety related issues.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how the Fire Safety Section of the Prison Service has been restructured; and what new arrangements for the operation of the Section came into force on 4 October. [199796]

Paul Goggins: The Building Research Establishment (BRE) Fire was commissioned as an independent specialist body in September 2004 to carry out a survey and review of fire safety issues across the prison estate. This work concentrates primarily on fire safety risks in prison cells.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria are used to determine what firefighting equipment is available in each prison; and what assessment he makes of (a) the materials used in the construction, (b) the location and (c) the water pressure available in the vicinity of prisons and detention centres in making such decisions. [199797]

Paul Goggins: Fire legislation and risk assessments determine the requirements for firefighting equipment. The materials used in construction comply with Building Regulations, Fire Regulations and British and European Standards for fire, and prison operational and security needs.

At the building design stage, the need for appropriate location and water pressure for firefighting equipment is taken into account. Measures are taken to provide adequate firefighting facilities. There may include the installation of separate water tanks, ponds, lakes; and where necessary the water system is pressurised.

Prosecutions

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether more people were prosecuted in 2002 than were arrested. [199640]

Paul Goggins: The estimated number of persons arrested for at least one notifiable offence in England and Wales 2002 is 1,308,800. In the same period 642,800[1] persons were prosecuted for at least one notifiable offence.

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Department of the Serjeant at Arms

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for Roxburgh and Berwickshire, representing the House of Commons Commission what factors underlie the increase in the number of staff employed in the Serjeant at Arms Department between 2000 and 2004; and if he will make a statement. [202085]

Sir Archy Kirkwood: A major factor contributing to the increase in staff numbers in the Serjeant at Arms Department has been the growth in responsibilities of the Parliamentary Communications Directorate (PCD), to deal with the provision of IT to both Houses and associated support services. Furthermore, following the Braithwaite Review of the Department in 2000–01, new posts were identified in the Parliamentary Works Services Directorate. Various other posts were created, including posts of procurement manager, IT security officer and head of finance. The Central Tours Office was set up in 2003.

Parliamentary Communications Directorate

Mr. Forth: To ask the hon. Member for Roxburgh and Berwickshire, representing the House of Commons Commission what the cost was of (a) producing and (b) distributing the Parliamentary Communications Directorate information folder; how many were distributed; to whom; and if he will make a statement. [201077]

Sir Archy Kirkwood: 1,000 information folders have been produced in response to customer feedback showing that Members wanted to have a single point of reference for Member information. The folders cost £5.72 each. The folders are being issued to all Members of the House of Commons. Some folders were handed out in person at a recent Parliamentary Communications Directorate (PCD) customer service event and the remainder are being distributed via the internal mail service. Neither approach has resulted in readily attributable distribution costs.

Special Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the hon. Member for Roxburgh and Berwickshire, representing the House of Commons Commission whether he has been informed of breaches of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers in his Department since its implementation. [201275]

Sir Archy Kirkwood: The Code of Conduct for Special Advisers applies to temporary civil servants appointed under Article 3 of the Civil Service Order in Council. No staff in this category are employed in the House of Commons Service.

State Opening of Parliament

Lynne Jones: To ask the hon. Member for Roxburgh and Berwickshire, representing the House of Commons Commission what the estimated cost to the House was of the State Opening of Parliament on 23 November. [201717]

Sir Archy Kirkwood: The final cost of the 2004 State Opening of Parliament is not yet known but is forecast to be similar to that of 2003 which, for Parliament as a whole, was £127,660. 60 per cent. of the cost, £76,596, is attributed to the House of Commons.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Contaminated Industrial Land

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department (a) provides and (b) plans to provide to (i) Armenia, (ii) Azerbaijan and (iii) Georgia to remediate contaminated industrial land; and what assessment he has made of the recent combined report on this matter by the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe, the United Nations Development Programme and the UN Environment Programme. [202815]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: DFID is not involved in contaminated industrial land remediation in the countries of the South Caucasus. DFID's bilateral assistance programmes in Armenia and Georgia provide support for poverty reduction through improved governance and sustainable economic growth. DFID does not have a bilateral assistance programme in Azerbaijan but is assisting the Government to participate in the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI).

DFID has no plans to provide direct support to assist remediation of contaminated industrial land. DFID is aware that the Organisation of Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE), the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), and the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) are supporting a joint initiative on Environment and Security (ENVSEC). They have published a recent report on "Environment and Security, Transforming Risks into Cooperation—The Case for the Southern Caucasus". The report provides a useful overview of related environment, security and development issues in the region. It includes challenges presented by contaminated industrial land, resulting from complete or partial closure of old soviet era industrial facilities.

DFID understands that the OSCE, UNDP and UNEP are developing a work programme to address the challenges presented in the report. DFID intends to use its involvement in international networks to encourage effective action to address this issue.

Crèche Facilities

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what crèche facilities are provided by his Department; and at what cost. [200867]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not provide crèche facilities. However, DFID does provide holiday playschemes for it's staff in its offices in London and East Kilbride. The costs of the holiday playschemes are as follows:

East Kilbride

£10 annual registration fee for first child and £5 for each additional child plus £10 per child per day, paid wholly by the parents.

London

£30 per child per day of which the parent and DFID each pay £15 each. For financial year 2003–04, the cost to DFID for subsidising DFID parents' use of the Whitehall Holiday Playscheme was £2,295.

The Department for International Development is also intending to conduct a review of the childcare support provided and whether there is sufficient demand for other provisions, for instance an on-site nursery, childcare vouchers or salary sacrifice schemes.

Darfur

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what measures the Government are taking to ensure the safety of British aid workers in the Darfur region. [201973]

Hilary Benn: Humanitarian agencies in Darfur are operating in a very difficult and insecure environment. DFID deplores the recent upsurge in violence in Darfur which is worsening the insecurity in certain parts.

Along with the UN and others, the UK Government continue to press both the Government of Sudan and the rebels to stop the fighting and implement the Abuja humanitarian and security protocols, to allow unfettered and secure access throughout Darfur.

The UK has provided significant support to UN agencies and NGOs for security and communications to help agencies operate safely. DFID has recently provided further funding of £820,000 to the United Nations Security Co-Ordinator (UNSECOORD) to ensure that their full funding needs are met. This will allow it to expand its capacity and presence in Darfur, supporting it's security co-ordination and management of UN operations as well as to assist non-governmental-organisations. DFID has also provided £1.5 million to the UN's 'Fast IT and Telecommunications Emergency and Support Team' (FITTEST) to enhance security communications in North Sudan (including Darfur). This will help the UN operations to become 'Minimum Operational Security Standard' (MOSS) compliant. More broadly, the UK provides on-going support to 'Registered Engineers for Disaster Relief' (Red R) for security training for NGO staff globally. This year it has included a Security and Staff Safety Management training course in Nyala (South Darfur).

The African Union mission has a key role to play in improving the security situation on the ground. They are specifically mandated to "contribute to a secure environment for the delivery of humanitarian relief".

DFID is not looking at military protection for the aid convoys beyond this. NGOs and the UN consider that they would be more at risk of being targeted if they travelled under armed escort. We are keeping this situation under review.

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the total cost to his Department was for accountancy services in each of the last two years. [200856]

Hilary Benn: DFID has not bought-in or outsourced any accountancy services, within our central finance function, over the last two years because we have sufficient in-house capacity.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the cost of (a) new builds, (b) demolition rebuilds and (c) private finance initiative projects in his Department in each of the last two years. [200857]

Hilary Benn: The cost of new builds for DFID overseas office in the last two years was as follows:

Country	Planned estimate (£)
Democratic Republic of Congo	3,000,000
Ethiopia	2,800,000
Pakistan	2,229,000
Rwanda	896,000

There were no demolition rebuilds or Private Finance Initiative (PFI) projects.

Iraq (Humanitarian Assistance)

Glenda Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 29 November 2004, Official Report, column 345, to the hon. Member for Lewisham, Deptford (Joan Ruddock) what the (a) number and (b) locations of civilians in and around Fallujah to whom humanitarian assistance could be provided. [202128]

Hilary Benn: The International Organisation for Migration (IOM) reports that around 210,000 civilians from Fallujah are currently living in the area around Fallujah: 120,000 in and around Amiriyah, 24,000 in Hababniyah, 21,000 in and around Karma, 21,000 in Nieamiyah, 12,000 in and around Saklawiya, and 12,000 spread across the smaller towns of Heet, Aana, Rawa, and Hadeatha. Assessments by the Interim Iraqi Government (IIG) and non-governmental organisations (NGOs) indicate that a further estimated 35,000 civilians from Fallujah are currently situated in Baghdad. It is estimated that only a few thousand civilians remain in the city of Fallujah.

The IIG reports that the majority of Fallujah's displaced civilians are staying with family and friends. Some are in schools, mosques, and Government buildings, and a small number are in tents. The IIG, the Multi-National Force, and humanitarian agencies agree that there is no humanitarian crisis in and around Fallujah.

The IIG is monitoring the situation and co-ordinating humanitarian work in the area. A cross-ministry Core Co-ordination Group has been established, and representatives from key Iraqi Ministries are now on the ground, conducting assessments and distributing essential supplies. The IIG is also working with the Multi-National Force, UN agencies, and NGOs to ensure safe access to Fallujah's displaced civilians, and to plan for their return to the city. DFID is providing technical advice to the IIG Fallujah Core Co-ordination Group and is maintaining close contact with representatives from the Multi-National Force and with humanitarian organisations on the ground.

Training Courses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by his Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98. [200397]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: DFID does not hold these costs centrally. However, in the last seven years we are aware of spending on training as follows:

Financial year	£ million
2003–04	4.4
2002–03	2
2001–02	1.4
2000–01	1
1999–2000	.85
1998–99	.58
1997–98	.88

DFID is committed to ensuring staff have the right skills and expertise to meet our commitment to the internationally agreed Millennium Development Goals.

We manage numerous external training providers covering a range of subjects such as economics, working with Ministers and Parliament, language training, leadership and management.

A more definitive answer could only be obtained at a disproportionate cost.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200417]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: DFID does not hold all the information centrally. However, in the last three financial years we are aware of the following money paid to training providers for courses that we have cancelled:

2004–05	12,750
2003–04	13,750
2002–03	18,430

DFID values its staff. We are committed to providing training and learning opportunities and developing staff to their full potential.

A more definitive answer could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Turkmenistan/Armenia

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what development aid has been provided by the Government to the governments of (a) Turkmenistan and (b) Armenia in each year since 2000; what conditions have been attached in each case; and what assessment has been made of the effectiveness of those conditions. [201976]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: DFID's bilateral assistance to Armenia and Turkmenistan for the period 2000–04 was as follows:

Financial year	£ million
Armenia
2000–01	1.935
2001–02	1.491

Financial year	£ million
2002–03	1.191
2003–04	2.753
2004–05	[1]2.500

2003–04	0.036
2004–05	[1]0.036

[1] Planned disbursements in the current 2004–05 financial year.

Additionally, the UK's attributed share of multilateral assistance to: (i) Armenia; (ii) Turkmenistan was as follows:

All figures in £ million

	EC	Other[1]	UN	World bank	Total
(i) Armenia
2000	1.8	0.0	0.2	2.5	4.5
2001	1.2	0.0	0.2	4.9	6.3

[1] EBRD and Asian Development Fund

DFID's bilateral technical assistance is untied as set out in rules and regulations governing the delivery of DFID's development assistance—there are no general or specific conditions placed on recipient countries. In the period from 2000 DFID's bilateral assistance programme in Armenia has been provided in the form of technical assistance through a range of projects to support the Armenian Government's reform agenda.

Development assistance to Turkmenistan has been provided through a small grants scheme administered by the British embassy.

TRANSPORT

A30

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how long the inquiry into the A30 improvement at Goss Moor lasted; what period has elapsed since the conclusion of the inquiry; and when he expects a decision to be announced. [203076]

Mr. Jamieson: The local inquiry sat for seven days between Tuesday 13 January 2004 and Tuesday 3 February 2004. The Inspector's report was received on 30 April 2004 and the decision announced on Monday 29 November 2004.

Airline Pilots (Chemical Exposure)

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether UK airline captains experiencing cockpit or cabin air contamination event serious enough for pilots to use emergency oxygen have a responsibility to inform passengers to which chemicals they might have been exposed. [202745]

Charlotte Atkins: Pilots are required to use oxygen as a precautionary measure in all cases of suspected cockpit air abnormalities irrespective of severity of event. Flight crew are not professionally qualified to verify the cause of air contamination or identify what chemicals if any, passengers may have been exposed to. The captain has discretion to inform passengers of an event.

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment his Department has made of the findings of the 1999 UK Committee on Toxicity of Chemicals in Food, Consumer Products and the Environment that neuropsychological abnormalities can occur as a long-term complication of acute organophosphate poisoning, with particular reference to aviation lubricant Exxon Mobil Jet oil. [202744]

Charlotte Atkins: The report concluded that acute organophosphate poisoning occurs mainly in sheep dipping or orchard spraying. There is no convincing evidence that it also occurs in relation to aviation lubricants, where organophosphates may be present only as trace elements.

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Civil Aviation Authority records incidents of UK pilots flying with (a) headaches, (b) eye, nose and throat irritation, (c) concentration difficulties and (d) dizziness and nausea. [202743]

Charlotte Atkins: The CAA has a Mandatory Occurrence Reporting (MOR) system in place and any form of incident leading to incapacitation while on duty has to be reported by the pilot.

Jubilee Bridge

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effects of traffic congestion over the Jubilee Bridge across the Mersey on investment and economic growth in the North West. [202053]

Charlotte Atkins: These issues are addressed in Halton borough council's appraisal of the proposed New Mersey Crossing recently submitted to my Department. We are now considering this appraisal.

London Gateway, Shell Haven

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he received the inspector's report of the inquiry into proposals for port and commercial development at London Gateway, Shell Haven; and when he expects to announce a decision. [203088]

Mr. Jamieson: The inspector's report of the inquiry into proposals for port and commercial development at London Gateway, Shell Haven was received by Government at the end of February. The report is receiving careful attention in my Department in respect of the port and in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister in respect of the commercial development. Decisions will be announced when consideration has been completed in accordance with statutory procedures.

Mobile Phones

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the level of compliance by drivers with the legislation forbidding the use of hand-held mobile phones while driving. [202282]

Mr. Jamieson: The Department has been undertaking regular surveys of the use of mobile phones while driving. The last survey carried out in September 2004 showed that 1.1 per cent. of car drivers surveyed on weekdays were using a hand-held phone. This compares with 1.5 per cent. in September 2003. Further details are set out in a leaflet "Mobile phone use by drivers, 2002–04", available on-line at www.trl.co.uk/abstracts/lf2094.pdf.

Motorway Closures

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on which occasions in November (a) 2004 and (b) 2003 motorways in England were closed to traffic for more than three hours. [203091]

Mr. Jamieson: Motorways in England were closed to traffic for more than three hours 39 times in November 2003 and 85 times in November 2004. Of the 2004 closures, at least 30 closures were due to major maintenance works and communications system upgrades. All of these closures were implemented in off-peak hours to minimise disruption to road users.

Road Improvements

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reasons he rejected the advice of the South West Regional Assembly on the options for improving the A303 and A30 to the west of Ilminster; and if he will make a statement. [202114]

Charlotte Atkins: The decision in favour of the A358 from near Ilminster to the M5 at Taunton follows completion of detailed technical work by the Highways Agency comparing the options of improving the A303 through the Blackdown Hills or improving the A358. The decision followed very careful consideration given to the full range of issues raised by the choice between these two alternative routes, including the scheme costs, economic benefits and environmental impacts. This also took into account the views of the Regional Assembly and other stakeholders.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his estimate is of the total cost to public funds of seeking the advice of the South West Regional Assembly on alternative options for improving the A303 or A358 to the west of Ilminster. [202115]

Charlotte Atkins: Information on the costs incurred by the South West Regional Assembly is not held by the Department for Transport.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the basis was for his conclusion that improving the A358 provides better value for money than improving the A303 west of Ilminster. [202116]

Charlotte Atkins: All candidate schemes for the Targeted Programme of Improvements are assessed in accordance with the New Approach to Appraisal. This looks at the scheme's overall performance against our five appraisal criteria, namely Environment, Safety, Economy, Accessibility and Integration. The Highways Agency assessed both the A303 west of Ilminster and the A358 schemes on this basis. This showed that the A358 would cost around £90 million less than the A303 option, had a higher benefit to cost ratio and performed significantly better in terms of impacts on landscape, townscape, heritage of historic resources, biodiversity and the water environment. The A303 option performed better in relation to greenhouse gas emissions.

The performance of the schemes against other appraisal criteria was broadly similar. The overall assessment was that the A358 option performed significantly better against our appraisal criteria and therefore gave the higher value for money.

Road Safety Grants

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many grants for the promotion of road safety have been made by his Department under section 40 of the Road Traffic Act 1988 in each of the last seven years; and what the total cost has been. [203090]

Mr. Jamieson: Grant given between 1997–98 and 2003–04 is shown in the table:

Financial year	Number of grants	Cost of grants (£)
1997–98	6	312,755
1998–99	2	281,250
1999–2000	11	335,037
2000–01	13	377,129
2001–02	11	339,578
2002–03	18	360,231
2003–04	18	384,975
Total	79	2,390,955

So far 20 grants have been given during 2004–05, totalling £522,669. Further applications are still being considered for this current financial year.

Wheel Loss

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road fatalities arising from the loss of road wheels from heavy commercial vehicles occurred in each of the last five years; how many wheel loss incidents there were in that period; what research his Department has (a) commissioned and

(b) evaluated on this issue; and what assessment he has made of the effects of safety wheel nuts in reducing accidents. [201197]

Mr. Jamieson: Figures are not currently recorded in the form requested, but I attach a table showing the statistics available. It should be noted that there may sometimes be delays in listing figures while the findings of coroners' courts are awaited.

Heavy goods vehicles and trailers—wheel detachment—January 1997 to August 2003

	Wheel detachment cases	Fatalities
HGV rigids and tractor units	175	3
HGV semi-trailers	44	3
HGV drawbar trailers	10	0

Some research was undertaken in 1997, following which a guidance leaflet was issued. More investigation is currently in hand with findings expected shortly, and further research to look at wheel fixings and methods of tightening is under consideration for next year. The Department has not commissioned research into locking wheel nuts, but work on behalf of the British Standards Institution indicated that a loss of clamp force—due to settlement between the interfaces of the wheel-fixing assembly—can take place without rotation of the nut. Thus, although use of locking devices can prevent loss of wheel nuts the devices cannot counteract a loss of clamp force, and excessive wear as a consequence of this could result in the loss of a wheel while nuts were still attached. Nonetheless there might be benefit in some cases, with such equipment preventing or delaying total loss of a wheel.

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the number of fatalities caused by the loss of wheels from heavy commercial vehicles; what estimate he has made of the number of (a) fatalities and (b) incidents caused by such losses; what research he is undertaking into this problem; what assessment he has made of the availability of safety wheel nuts; and if he will make a statement. [201198]

Mr. Jamieson: On (a) and (b) , figures relating to heavy goods vehicle wheel detachment cases and fatalities have already been given in an associated response given today "(UIN 201197)". Some research was undertaken in the late 1990s and further research is currently under way with more under consideration. While research has concentrated on the extent, rather than the causes, of wheel loss the results have shown that a major factor is lack of regular and effective maintenance. In the Department's view, while locking wheel nuts can prevent loss of wheel nuts and might in some cases prevent total loss of a wheel, they cannot prevent the loss of clamp force as a result of which it would be possible for wheel loss to occur, through excessive wear, while wheel nuts were still attached.

Roadworks

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what criteria are used by the Highways Agency to determine whether (a) treatment of stretches or routes for non-maintenance reasons is included in the annual budget of the Highways Agency and (b) such treatment includes noise barriers. [200638]

Mr. Jamieson: The annual budget of the Highways Agency is agreed by Ministers taking account of the resources available for transport and competing priorities from the different programmes. Within that budget, priority is given to maintaining the strategic network, reducing congestion and improving safety, in accordance with the key targets set the Highways Agency. A ring-fenced annual budget of £5 million is allocated to treating noise problems at identified sites. Priorities for resurfacing of concrete roads ahead of maintenance need, subject to the availability of funding, were set out in the Secretary of State's announcement of 1 April 2003. The Highways Agency's budget and programme will be set out in its Business Plan, due to be published in the new year.

CABINET OFFICE

Civil Service Pensions

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office if she will allow members of the pre-October 2002 Civil Service Pension Scheme to remarry without losing their original pension entitlement; and if she will make a statement. [202956]

Ruth Kelly: For clarification, members of the pre-October 2002 Civil Service Pension Scheme do not lose their pension on remarriage. However, the surviving spouses of deceased former members do have their widows'/widowers' pensions stopped on remarriage or cohabitation. I presume that it is these widows' and widowers' pensions to which the hon. Member's question relates.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Portsmouth, South (Mr. Hancock) on 13 October 2004, Official Report, column 317W.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Age Discrimination

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her Department's policy is towards age discrimination. [202341]

Mr. Caborn: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport, in line with the rest of the civil service, does not discriminate against staff or eligible applicants for posts on the grounds of age. Decisions on recruitment, selection, training, promotion and career management are based solely on objective and job related criteria.

Correspondence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her target time is in 2004–05 (a) to reply to letters from hon. Members and (b) for the officials in her Office to reply to letters received directly from members of the public. [202339]

Mr. Caborn: The Department's current target date for answering all correspondence is 18 working days.

Information on the departmental handling of correspondence from Members of Parliament/Peers is published annually by the Cabinet Office. The 2003 annual report is available in the Library of the House.

Crèche Facilities

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what crèche facilities are provided by her Department; and at what cost. [202340]

Mr. Caborn: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport does not provide crèche facilities. The Department provides support to working parents by participating in the Westminster Holiday Play scheme. The scheme provides holiday child care for children aged between four and 12 years. The cost per day is £30 and DCMS contributes half.

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of the cost of (a) new builds, (b) demolition rebuilds and (c) private finance initiative projects in her Department in each of the last two years. [202330]

Mr. Caborn: DCMS has not been involved in any new builds, demolition rebuilds or private finance initiative projects in the last two years.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her estimate is of the (a) annual cost and (b) total value of the empty properties owned by (i) her Department, (ii) agencies and (iii) other public bodies for which she has had responsibility in each of the last two years. [202333]

Mr. Caborn: There are no empty properties owned or leased by DCMS. The information requested in respect of agencies and non-departmental public bodies could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her estimate is of the cost of building refurbishment carried out by her Department in each of the last two years. [202334]

Mr. Caborn: During 2002–03 £120,000 was spent on building fabric in compliance with lease requirements and £102,000 to redecorate and re-carpet a floor vacated by a tenant to enable occupation by departmental staff. The sum of £8,088 has also been spent in 2003–04 decorating to repair the effects of fair wear and tear.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost of refurbishing each Ministerial Private Office was in the last two years. [202335]

Mr. Caborn: Work carried out for fair wear and tear on private offices during the last two years has been at a cost of £8,801.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost has been of criminal damage to her Department's buildings in each of the last two years. [202337]

Mr. Caborn: There have not been any incidents of criminal damage, including graffiti, involving DCMS property during the last two years.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her estimate is of the cost of (a) ministerial cars and drivers and (b) taxis for her Department in each of the last two years. [202331]

Mr. Caborn: Ministerial cars are provided by the Government Car and Despatch service, at a cost of:

2002–03	280,079
2003–04	250,183

The cost of taxis in the last two full years is as follows:

2002–03	21,878
2003–04	22,235

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on energy costs incurred by her Department in each of the last two years. [202332]

Mr. Caborn: The cost of energy procured by DCMS is as follows:

2003–04
Electricity	253,616
Gas	52,015
2002–03
Electricity	276,019
Gas	59,503

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost was of (a) in-house canteen and (b) other catering services provided by her Department in each of the last two years. [202336]

Mr. Caborn: The staff restaurant and meetings hospitality are a single contract, the cost of which over the last two full years was:

2002–03
Restaurant	75,516
Hospitality	85,666
2003–04
Restaurant	67,431
Hospitality	85,967

A new catering contract was let in October 2004 at a saving for restaurant services of almost £20,000.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the equipment leasing arrangements entered into by her Department in each of the last two years; and what the cost is to public funds in each case. [202343]

Mr. Caborn: The only equipment leases are those for multi-function copier printers, at a leasing cost of £52,355 per annum including maintenance and software support but excluding cost per copy.

Gender Pay Gap

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the gender pay gap among staff in her Department. [202342]

Mr. Caborn: DCMS completed an equal pay review in 2002 and has since taken action to narrow the gaps in pay between men and women. As a result of our equal pay action the percentage difference in salaries between men and women has reduced in all grades, except grade D where the average salary is higher for women than that for men.

IT Contracts

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the (a) projected cost at the time of tender and (b) actual cost at the time of completion was for each IT contract commissioned by her Department over the last five years. [201613]

Mr. Caborn: The Department has let four IT contracts in the past five years. The costs of the first are set out as follows. The remainder are for ongoing services so it is not possible to give a completion cost, however the costs of operation have been as per the original estimates.

NCC for IT security testing—projected cost £26,500, actual costs £26,500.

National Sports Foundation

Ms Shipley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when Patrick Carter's report on the Government's proposed National Sports Foundation will be published. [202526]

Mr. Caborn: Paragraph 6.50 of the Chancellor of the Exchequer's pre-Budget report presented to Parliament on 2 December sets out the provisional interim findings of Lord Carter's Review of funding for sport and states that his report will be published in spring 2005.

Olympic/Paralympic Athletes

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of Great British Olympians and Paralympians (a) medal winners and (b) squad members were educated at secondary level within the state system; and what the figures were for the previous Olympics. [202918]

Mr. Caborn: This information is not held by Sport England or UK Sport.

Sports and Community Clubs

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her most recent estimate is of the number of sports clubs that will face an increase in their licensing fees as a result of the implementation of the Licensing Act 2003; and what estimate she has made of the average percentage increase in the size of the licensing fees to be paid by sports clubs following the implementation of the Act. [202797]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 6 December 2004]: We have looked at the position for registered members' clubs (sports and others) of which there are 20,000. The cost of a premises licence or club premises certificate represents a saving for most sports clubs over a period of 10 years depending on the scope and regularity of the club's activities. The fee of £16 currently paid for registered members' clubs is only one of the fees that they currently pay. If they have music and dancing after normal opening hours they require certificates of suitability (ranging from £50 to £500); special hours certificates (£25); and special orders of exemption (£10 a time). Each of these is charged individually and some are required on multiple occasions in a year. Under the Licensing Act 2003 they would all be included in the fee for a single club premises certificate. Any percentage increase or decrease in fees for a club will therefore depend on the range of certificates currently held. The Government's policy is that licensing fees must be set at a level that allows full recovery of the administration, inspection and enforcement costs falling on licensing authorities. It would be wholly wrong for central or local taxation to subsidise the consumption of alcohol, and it would be difficult to argue that the best way to promote sport is through Government subsidising sports club bars.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Correspondence

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when the Minister for Children will acknowledge the letter sent to her by the Lowe Syndrome Trust. [203270]

Margaret Hodge: I received a letter from the Lowe Syndrome Trust on 19 October. I have since made contact with the Trust and am due to meet with representatives of the organisation in the new year.

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the total cost to his Department was for accountancy services in each of the last two years. [200816]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The total of costs classified as purchased accountancy services in the accounts of the Department in 2002–03 and 2003–04 respectively is £69,584.00 and £190,990.28.

Education Funding

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the (a) average primary formula spending share per pupil and (b) average secondary formula spending share per pupil is in each local education authority in 2005–06, listed in descending order of secondary formula allocations. [202671]

Mr. Miliband: In England, the formula for the primary and secondary sub-blocks comprises a basic entitlement for each pupil, which is the same across the country, plus a top-up for each pupil with additional educational needs, which is again the same across the country, plus top-ups for areas where it costs more to recruit and retain teachers. Local education authorities with a greater proportion of pupils with additional educational needs or higher average earnings will receive a higher level of funding per pupil. The following table shows the average School Formula Spending Share for primary and secondary pupils, as announced on 2 December 2004 in the provisional Local Government Settlement for 2005–06. The figures are set out in descending order.

Education, Youth and Culture Council

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the outcome was of the Education, Youth and Culture Council held on 15 and 16 November; what the Government's stance was on the issues discussed, including its voting record; and if he will make a statement. [201337]

Dr. Howells: I attended the Education session of this Council. Peter Peacock, Minister for Education and Young People at the Scottish Executive, also attended and led on Youth issues. Lord McIntosh, Minister for Heritage and the Media attended the Culture Council. Colleagues at DCMS will write directly to my hon. Friend, with a short summary of what happened on their agenda items.

During the Education session, Ministers discussed the Commission's proposals on the new Integrated Lifelong Learning Programme, and welcomed the commitment to simplify administration. The UK submitted a paper calling for SMART (Specific Measurable Achievable Relevant Timed) objectives, effective evaluation, a flexible approach to languages, a separate cross-cutting strand and a focus on disadvantaged groups.

The Council 'adopted' the Presidency Report on Citizenship in Education, which calls on member states to develop citizenship curricula and to exchange best practice on citizenship education. This will now be transmitted to the Spring European Council.

Conclusions on Vocational Education and Training were 'adopted' without comment. They call for better links between vocational training and academic education, to allow individuals to move more freely between the two.

Will Hutton, member of the Lisbon mid-term review group, presented the Kok Report on preparations for the mid-term review of the Lisbon Strategy in March 2005. He reported slow progress towards achieving the Lisbon goals: only three member states had achieved 70 per cent. employment, 60 per cent. employment of older workers and 50 per cent. employment of women.

There were three items under Any Other Business: Commission proposals for a Recommendation on Quality Assurance in Higher Education; a paper from Portugal about an initiative to encourage more sport in Higher Education, as part of the European year of Education through Sport; the European Parliament's "adoption without amendment" of the Council's Common Position on the Decision to establish Europass at Second Reading.

In the afternoon session, the Council discussed the Commission's proposals for the "Youth in Action" Programme 2007–2013, and called for greater emphasis on helping those less advantaged. The majority supported the proposals to extend the age range from 13 to 30 years.

Conclusions on the current Youth Programme 2000–06 were "adopted without Comment". They called for the Commission to refocus the remainder of the programme—e.g. to include more young people with fewer opportunities, simplify procedures, improve evaluation, increase publicity and consider including more third countries.

Ministers "agreed two Council Resolutions" on priorities for the Youth Open Method of Co-ordination in the areas of Youth and Volunteering, and a better understanding of the issues affecting young people. The Commission presented its recent Communication evaluating the first two years of the Youth Open Method of Co-ordination.

A copy of the Council Minutes will be placed in the Library in due course.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the effect of the coming into force of the European Constitution on the operation of his Department, with reference to (a) changes in legislative competence, (b) the extension of qualified majority voting, (c) the increased legislative role of the European Parliament, (d) the cost of implementation of regulations, (e) the requirements of adherence to the Charter of Fundamental Rights and (f) the quantity of legislation originating in the EU institutions. [200169]

Mr. Charles Clarke: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 29 November 2004, Official Report, columns 10–11W, by my hon. Friend the Minister for Europe.

GCSE Grades/Results

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of pupils in England achieved five GCSEs at grades A* to C, including (a) mathematics, (b) English and (c) mathematics and English in each year since 1997, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [199917]

Mr. Miliband [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The information requested has been placed in the Libraries.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of examinees failed the GCSE in each of the last 10 years in (a) physical education, (b) history, (c) mathematics and (d) physics. [202294]

Mr. Miliband: The information requested is as follows:

	Number of pupils entered for GCSE			Percentage achieved no passes

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of GCSE results reported in league tables for schools were GNVQ passes in the last year for which figures are available. [200443]

Mr. Miliband: The 2003 Secondary School Performance Tables incorporated results in GCSEs, GCSE short courses, Full and Part 1 GNVQs. The following table shows the number of attempts and passes in GCSEs and GNVQs:

GCSE and GNVQ attempts and passes by 15 year old pupils in 2003

	Attempts	Passes (A-C)*	Passes (D-G)
GCSE	5,030,588	2,894,241	1,996,723
Part 1 intermediate GNVQ	68,011	47,100	—

GCSE and GNVQ attempts and passes by 15 year old pupils in 2003

	Attempts	Passes (A*-C)	Passes (D-G)
Full intermediate GNVQ	44,130	33,361	—
Part 1 Foundation GNVQ	16,654	—	8,913
Full Foundation GNVQ	4,634	—	2,540

Note:
Intermediate GNVQs are equivalent to grades A*-C at GCSE and foundation GNVQs are equivalent to grades D-G at GCSE.

The contribution made by GNVQs to the percentage of 15 year old pupils achieving five or more grades A*-C nationally is shown in the table:

2002/03

Academic year	Number/percentage
Number of 15 year old pupils	622,122
Percentage of 15 year old pupils achieving 5+A*-C GCSE/GNVQ	52.9
Percentage of 15 year old pupils achieving 5+A*-C by GCSE only	49.9
Percentage of pupils needing GNVQs to achieve 5+ A*-C	3.0

Office for Fair Access

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people are employed by the Office for Fair Access; what the running cost of the Office was in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement on its future. [203112]

Dr. Howells: In addition to the Director of Fair Access to Higher Education, who was appointed by the Secretary of State in October this year, the number of staff employed at the Office for Fair Access is five, of which two are part-time. The cost of the Office will average £500,000 a year. The role of the Office for Fair Access in approving and monitoring access agreements is critical to ensuring that access is widened not narrowed when higher variable fees are introduced from 2006.

Sixth-form Education

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what action he is taking to close the funding gap between schools and colleges for the provision of sixth-form education. [201859]

Dr. Howells: The Government have already taken action to narrow the funding gap between school sixth forms and further education colleges. For the academic year 2003–04, base funding rates per qualification increased by 3 per cent. for school sixth forms and by 4.5 per cent. for further education colleges on a broadly comparable basis. In 2004–05, funding rates for colleges meeting their targets increased by 5 per cent., while those for school sixth forms rose by 4 per cent. We expect to see this trend continue in the 2005–06 academic year.

Training Courses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by his Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98. [200384]

Mr. Charles Clarke: My Department is responsible for encouraging and supporting learning and development throughout England. It has set itself the objective of becoming an exemplar learning organisation and is committed to providing access to training for its staff and to developing them to their full potential. To this end it has established leading edge e-learning facilities and continues to develop this and other learning solutions for its staff.

Most provision is now delivered by external Strategic Partners. Learning events are available on all four sites in Sheffield, London, Darlington and Runcorn. They include the following programmes:

- Management and Leadership
- Introduction to Leadership
- Management and Improving Performance
- Communicating Policy
- Contract Management
- Programme and Project Management
- Skills for Life
- Finance and Resource Management
- Language Training

We are unable to provide all of the information requested as retained records go back only to 2002. Details after this period are provided as follows:

	£ million
2002/03	2.179
2003/04	2.429

These figures cover most of the formal aspects of learning and development funded by the Department from centrally-held budgets. They do not include, for example, such areas as coaching by line managers, interchange or secondment. Nor do they include training identified and paid for from other devolved budgets, for example towards degree courses.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200404]

Mr. Charles Clarke [holding answer 29 November 2004]: We do not collate centrally the total cost of financial penalties incurred as a result of course or event cancellation.

We do however keep cancellations of centrally-run events to a minimum by:

- strongly encouraging attendance on events that have been booked by individuals or groups
- identifying in advance the minimum number of people for which it is cost effective to run an event
- identifying as early as possible when it does, untypically, become unfeasible to run events, and
- agreeing wherever possible with our strategic partners to postpone rather than cancel events.

Veterinary Medicine

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many undergraduate places were (a) available for and (b) filled by students wishing to study veterinary medicine in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [200733]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 30 November 2004]: For English HEIs veterinary science numbers are not subject to any quota. The number of places available is determined independently by each institution from within their block grant.

The available information on numbers of students studying veterinary science has been taken from the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) Student Record and is follows:

All domiciled undergraduate entrants on veterinary science courses at UK HEIs

Academic year	Total undergraduates
1994/95	540
1995/96	580
1996/97	590
1997/98	690
1998/99	730
1999/2000	750
2000/01	790
2001/02	940
2002/03[1]	900

[1] For the academic year 2002/03 HESA uses a different method of allocating students to subject groups and so figures are not comparable to earlier years.

Note:
Figures are a snapshot as at 1 December and are rounded to the nearest 5.

TREASURY

Benefit Costs

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will assess the cost to public funds of a 24-year-old man (a) drawing invalidity benefit and disability living allowance but not entering employment for 40 years, assuming 2004 prices and current benefit rates and (b) the contribution to public funds of a 24-year-old man working for 40 years, assuming average earnings and current tax rates. [202857]

Dawn Primarolo: The details of any calculation depend on assumptions about individual circumstances. Comparing a single childless person receiving long-term incapacity benefit of £74.15 a week and a lower rate disability living allowance of £15.55, with a similar person with median full-time earnings of £422.10 a week paying £68.12 income tax and £36.42 employee national insurance contributions with associated employer national insurance contributions of £42.38, could give a differential impact on public funds of £236.62 a week. Multiplying this by 52 weeks and 40 years would give a figure of around £492,000.

Civil Service

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what estimate he has made of the number of Civil Service jobs which will be dispersed to Liverpool; what the nature of the jobs will be; and what the timescale is. [203082]

John Healey: As announced in Spending Review 2004, the Government are committed to relocating over 20,000 public sector posts out of London and the South East by 2010. It is not possible to say at this stage how many Civil Service jobs will be relocated to Liverpool. Departments are currently working through detailed implementation planning in consultation with stakeholders including unions, staff and local stakeholders. Only a small proportion of location choices have so far been determined. Where location choices have been decided, the numbers of new posts being created in the area have not been finalised.

We are monitoring the progress of the relocation programme closely.

As the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced in his PBR speech, the Department of Work and Pensions and Inland Revenue and Customs and Excise have reported that some posts have been relocated to Liverpool.

Correspondence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his target time is in 2004–05 (a) to reply to letters from hon. Members and (b) for the officials in his office to reply to letters received directly from members of the public. [202497]

John Healey: The Treasury's target for replying to all correspondence is 15 working days from receipt.

Information on the departmental handling of correspondence from Members of Parliament/Peers is published annually by the Cabinet Office. The 2003 annual report is available in the Library of the House.

Film Industry

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether it is his intention that films already in their principal photography stage and entered into in good faith under existing section 42 arrangements should be excluded in the changes to sale and leaseback arrangements under section 42 relief for film-making investment. [R] [202144]

Dawn Primarolo: In his pre-Budget report on 2 December the Chancellor announced two measures targeted at film tax avoidance schemes that typically use sale and leaseback arrangements. These measures do not apply to films that were in principal photography at the date of the PBR announcement.

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he intends to take to ensure that the achieved relief for film investment under the new section 48 arrangement should amount to 20 per cent. [R] [202146]

Dawn Primarolo: The Inland Revenue issued a technical note on 21 September 2004 with details of a proposed new tax credit for British qualifying films with a budget up to £20 million. In his pre-Budget report on 2 December, the Chancellor confirmed that the Government are engaged in discussions with industry representatives to increase its understanding of the industry and to develop the detail of the operation of the credit.

Gender Pay Gap

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the gender pay gap among staff in his Department. [202506]

Mr. Timms: HM Treasury has undertaken two gender pay reviews. These reviews take place within three months of the pay settlement. Both reviews have shown no significant differences in pay between the genders.

Government Borrowing

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Government have borrowed from the national insurance fund in each year since 1998–99. [201907]

Dawn Primarolo: Most of the national insurance fund account is invested in gilts. This reduces the need for Government borrowing elsewhere. Details of investments from the national insurance fund account are in the annual accounts of the national insurance fund investment account published annually by the Stationery Office.

Inland Revenue

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what efficiency savings have been made in the Inland Revenue in each of the last seven years; and if he will make a statement; [202960]

(2) what the cost was of running the Inland Revenue in each of the last seven years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [202961]

Dawn Primarolo: Details of the costs of running the Inland Revenue together with information on efficiency savings and productivity improvements are available in Inland Revenue annual reports on the Inland Revenue website at http://www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk and the House Library.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff have been employed by the Inland Revenue in each of the last seven years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [202962]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 1 December 2004, Official Report, columns 126–27W.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent efficiency assessments have been made of working practices in the Inland Revenue; and if he will make a statement. [202963]

Dawn Primarolo: The Inland Revenue has a broad, proactive and continuous approach to the assessment of the efficiency of our working practices.

Staff and managers are encouraged to continually improve the efficiency of their work. In addition, major current programmes such as Modernising Payroll Processes for Customers (MPPC) and the e-Services Programme will focus on improving working practices, thus delivering efficiencies and improving the quality of services and the choice offered to our customers.

Recent reviews of business practices covered a wide range of services and operations across the Inland Revenue as part of the Modernising Government and Public Service Reform agendas. Although the prime focus of this work was not efficiency but better quality service, potential efficiencies were identified. The reviews included a focus on the processes and behaviours surrounding the channels by which customers contact and transact with the Department, to enable customers to fully meet their obligations and receive their entitlements.

A series of pilot process reviews has been implemented, following latest international best practices, of the Revenue's major processes and activities with the aim of delivering improvements in customer services and operational efficiency.

International Finance Facility

Tony Baldry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which G7 countries support the International Finance Facility; [202664]

(2) what discussions he has had with the Secretariat for the Commission for Africa regarding the International Finance Facility; [202666]

(3) what discussions he has had with the (a) World Bank and (b) African Development Bank on the International Finance Facility; [202667]

(4) what discussions he has had with (a) UN agencies and (b) non-governmental organisations regarding the International Finance Facility. [202668]

Mr. Timms: The UK is building a broad coalition of support for the International Finance Facility (IFF) in preparation for the UK presidencies of the G7/8 and EU in 2005. As part of this process, the IFF has been widely discussed within the G8 group of leading industrialised nations, the European Union, the United Nations, the G20 group of leading and emerging economies, the Commonwealth, at international meetings of the IMF and World Bank, with emerging market and developing countries, and with international organisations such as the UNDP, the UN Economic Commission for Africa, the WHO and NEPAD.

40 countries—including France and, last week, Italy—have given their support to the IFF. We have also received the support of a wide range of non-governmental organisations, faith groups and the business community.

Discussions at the recent annual meetings of the World Bank and IMF increased support for the IFF, which was affirmed in the World Bank's final paper on Aid Effectiveness and Financing Modalities to be both technically feasible and the most advanced proposal for frontloading aid.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer who will assess the poverty reduction plans of recipient countries for them to receive funds from the International Finance Facility. [202670]

Mr. Timms: The detailed mechanics of how disbursement decisions are made would depend on the IFF's governance structure, which would be for agreement by donors at the establishment of the IFF. The UK's proposal is that the IFF will use existing disbursement mechanisms that have been tried, tested and shown to be effective. It will not seek to become a new body for disbursing aid with new criteria that developing countries will need to meet.

Job Vacancies (Strathkelvin and Bearsden)

Mr. Lyons: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many unfilled job vacancies there were in Strathkelvin and Bearsden in the last period for which figures are available. [202544]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl to Mr. John Lyons, dated 7 December 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about job vacancies in Strathkelvin and Bearsden. I am replying in his absence. (202544)

Figures for vacancies in total are only available from the ONS Vacancy Survey, which provides information at national level only. For local areas, figures for vacancies held by the Jobcentre Plus administrative system are available for periods up to April 2001. However, due to changes to that system, more recent figures are only available on a reliable basis for newly notified vacancies.

In April 2001 there were 11,258 unfilled vacancies which had been registered to Jobcentres in the Glasgow travel to work area. An equivalent figure for Strathkelvin and Bearsden is not available.

The Jobcentre Plus vacancy figure represents only those vacancies notified to Jobcentres, not all vacancies in an area.

National Insurance Contributions

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people with a shortfall in earnings for national insurance contributions were not sent a deficiency warning notice in each of the past five years; and if he will make a statement. [202268]

Dawn Primarolo: Deficiency notices for the six-year period from 1996–97 to 2001–02 were issued in a single exercise. A total of 10.02 million notices were issued between October 2003 and September 2004. Everyone of working age who should have received a deficiency notice during the six-year interval was sent one during the recent exercise. DWP are undertaking a similar exercise for pensioners. We do not routinely keep statistics about people who have not been sent a deficiency notice and this would be available only at disproportionate cost.

Northern Ireland Statistics

Mr. Trimble: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what the levels of (a) gross domestic product per head expressed as a percentage of the UK average and (b) average weekly earnings are in Northern Ireland. [202865]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl to Mr. David Trimble, dated 7 December 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about (a) GDP per head in Northern Ireland expressed as a percentage of UK and (b) average weekly earnings in Northern Ireland. I am replying in his absence. (202865).

The estimates in table A are based on the regional Gross Value Added[1] (GVA) estimates published in April 2004. These are available on the National Statistics website at http ://www. statistics. gov.uk/StatBase/Product. asp? vlnk = 7359

GVA figures for 2003 are not yet available, the latest published information is for 2002 and can be seen in table A.

Table A

Northern Ireland GVA[1] per head as a percentage of UK GVA per head 2002

Region	GVA per head 2002 (£)	Percentage of UK GVA per head
Northern Ireland	12,081	79.2
United Kingdom less Extra Regio[2]	15,259	—

[1] Information presented here is Gross Value Added (GVA) which is Gross Domestic Product (GDP) less taxes (plus subsidies) on products.

[2] Extra Regio is that part of the UK's economic territory which cannot be allocated to any specific region.

Tax Credits (Overpayment)

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases of overpayment for child and working tax credit there have been in (a) Bassetlaw and (b) England in 2004. [203145]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to my reply to the hon. Members for Northavon (Mr. Webb) and for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 15 November 2004, Official Report, columns 946–48W.

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what percentage of families have been overpaid working tax credit due to incorrect assessment by the Inland Revenue in each of the last two years. [202281]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Members for Northavon (Mr. Webb) and for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 15 November 2004, Official Report, columns 946–48W.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Civil/Family Courts

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what progress has been made in the development of new online services for the civil and family courts, with particular reference to (a) Possessions Claim Online and (b) online forms. [201909]

Mr. Leslie: Possession Claims Online (PCOL) will be a public facing service for the issue of county court claims for repossession of property due to arrears of rent or mortgage. Development of the new service started in October 2004. National Rollout is planned in two phases: the first will commence in early 2006, the second in mid 2006. The timings are subject to the evaluation of proving phases.

PCOL will provide benefits in a substantial area of civil business. These include the extension of the range of court services on line for claimants, defendants and advisers; reducing operational costs; creating two-way electronic channels whereby claimants, defendants, advisers, judiciary and court staff can share claims dates; and providing around the clock remote access for claimants, defendants and advisers.

The Online Forms Pilot Project is planned to go live in early 2005, subject to successful testing, which commences in mid- December. It will deliver a number of interactive civil court forms over the internet and allow the customers in nine geographically spread, pilot courts to complete them online, pay the court fee online, and submit the form online. The forms will have built-in validation and navigation together with online help to assist customers and provide real-time feedback, ensuring "right first time" submission of forms.

The aim of the project is to improve access to justice. It achieves this by enabling customers to carry out transactions electronically, including at locations where they can receive advice and help with form completion (e.g. Citizens' Advice Service), negating the need to attend court offices. Customers using Llangefni county court will be able to use Welsh versions of the forms.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Antisocial Behaviour

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what funding has been set aside for costs resulting from antisocial behaviour orders in the [201942]

Mr. Spellar: The Anti-social Behaviour Order (Northern Ireland) 2004 was made on 27 July 2004 and allows the three designated partners ie, the Police, Northern Ireland Housing Executive or a district council to apply for an antisocial behaviour order (ASBO) to be made in respect of anyone aged 10 or over where the person has acted in a manner that has caused or was likely to cause harassment, alarm or distress to one of more persons not of the same household as himself; and that such an Order is necessary to protect relevant persons from further antisocial acts by that individual. Implementation guidelines are currently being drawn up by the Criminal Justice Directorate and the designated agencies.

In relation to funding for antisocial behaviour orders, it has been agreed that the costs of applying for an Order would be borne by the agency making the application within the first 12–18 months of the process and until such times as the true resource implications can be established. Evidence has shown that the costs of applying for an Order in England and Wales has reduced considerably as experience of the system has been gained.

Asthma

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what action he has taken to ensure that employees in the Province are protected from (a) asthma triggers at work and (b) causes of occupational asthma. [202026]

Mr. Gardiner: The Control of Substances Hazardous to Health Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2003 requires employers to control exposure of employees and others to hazardous substances to prevent ill health, including occupational asthma. These Regulations are supported by a range of guidance materials and Approved Codes of Practice, one of which relates specifically to occupational asthma. Occupational asthma has been recognised as a significant cause of work-related ill health in the "Working for Health" strategy published in March 2003 and actions under the strategy are continuing to tackle this and other occupational health issues. A copy of this publication can be found in the House of Commons Library.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many individuals developed asthma in the Province because they were exposed to dangerous substances at work in the last year for which figures are available. [202028]

Mr. Gardiner: Accurate information on the number of individuals that have developed asthma due to working conditions is not available for Northern Ireland. However, for information, latest figures from the Winter 2003–04 Labour Force Survey estimated that in the previous year 3,000[1] individuals suffered from breathing or lung problems that were caused or made worse by a job or work done in the past.

[1] This estimate is based on a small sample size and is therefore subject to a higher than usual degree of sampling variability. It should therefore be treated with caution.

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total cost to his Department was for accountancy services in each of the last two years. [200876]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Northern Ireland Office has spent the following on accountancy services:

2002–03	161,354
2003–04	103,748

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total external spending by his Department was on public private partnership (PPP) consultants in each of the last two years; how many full-time equivalent consultants were employed over this period; how many billed consultancy days there were per year; what the implied average cost of each PPP consultant was; how many consultancy firms were used by his Department over this period; and if he will make a statement. [200883]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The only Public Private Partnership (PPP) consultants employed by the Northern Ireland Office were for the 'Causeway Programme'.

In 2003–04.

The total external spending by the Department on public private partnership (PPP) consultants was £72,633.

There were eight full-time equivalent consultants employed.

There were 79 billed consultancy days that year.

The implied average cost of each PPP consultant was £3,394.10.

Two consultancy firms were used by the Department.

There were no PPP consultants employed in 2004–05.

Education Funding

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the implications for education funding of the results of the recent ruling regarding the educational entitlement of autism sufferer, Mr. Paul Murray. [202585]

Mr. Gardiner: The hon. Member will understand that I cannot comment on individual cases. However, in relation to children in Northern Ireland with special educational needs, it is the Education and Library Boards which are responsible under special education legislation for identifying, assessing and, in appropriate cases, making special educational provision for these children in their areas. This legislation does not give the Department of Education any role in the identification and assessment of children's special educational needs, nor any power to intervene in the process, which is intended to be conducted between parents, schools and boards.

It is the statutory responsibility of each board to manage costs within the budget allocated to it.

Education Underspend

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the underspend was for the Department of Education in cash terms in 2003–04; and what the projected underspend is in cash terms for the same Department in 2004–05. [203074]

Mr. Gardiner: Since the introduction of Resource Accounting and Budgeting arrangements from 2001–02, budgets and budgetary underspends have been on an accruals basis. Therefore underspend figures on a cash basis are not available for the years in question.

I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply I gave on 17 November 2004, Official Report, column 1635W.

Winter Fuel Payments

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans the Government have to increase fuel poverty payments in line with recent fuel costs increases. [202892]

Mr. Spellar: The Government introduced winter fuel payments as part of their commitment to alleviate fuel poverty by providing help to older households towards their winter fuel bills. Older people are targeted because they are more vulnerable to the effects of cold weather during the winter months than other groups. The Winter fuel payment is not intended to cover the total cost of a household's fuel bills, but to provide a significant contribution.

The winter fuel payment was £20 when it was first made in 1997–98. It was increased to £100 in 1999–2000 and to £200 in 2000–01. These increases are well above inflation. When the payment was increased to £200, the Chancellor announced that it would remain at that level for the remainder of this Parliament. An additional £100 for households with someone aged 80 or over was introduced from 2003–04.

This year the Government are also making a one-off, tax free, lump sum payment of £100 to all eligible households with someone aged 70 or over. This payment is intended to provide extra help with living expenses and pensioners are free to use the payment as they wish. In the majority of cases it will be paid along with this year's winter fuel payment.

Health and Safety

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what obligations employers in the Province have regarding surveillance of the health of their staff at work. [202027]

Mr. Gardiner: Employers have obligations under regulation 6 of the Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2000 to ensure that their employees are provided with such health surveillance as is appropriate. The employer's risk assessment should identify the circumstances in which health surveillance is necessary, including those circumstances in which health surveillance is required by other specific health and safety regulations such as the Control of Substances Hazardous to Health Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2003.

Housing

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to extend those parts of the Housing Act 2004 relating to park homes to Northern Ireland. [202886]

Mr. Spellar: I have no plans to extend the provisions as they make amendments to the Mobile Homes Act 1983, which does not cover Northern Ireland.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are being taken by the Northern Ireland Housing Executive to prevent the practice by tenants in receipt of housing benefit sub-letting the property to others who also claim housing benefit for the same address; and what estimate he has made of the scale of this problem in Northern Ireland. [202890]

Mr. Spellar: The practice of sub-letting part of a property can be legitimately undertaken in the social and private-rented sectors with the permission of the main landlord. If a property is sub-let with the landlord's permission housing benefit may be claimed by both of the approved tenants but only on their proportion of the rent and all such claims are assessed in accordance with the regulations. Where two claims are made from the same property they are automatically identified as "duplicate claims" and the apportionment of rent charged is thoroughly investigated before any payment of benefit is made. Where a tenant sublets the whole property, housing benefit would only be payable to the sub-tenant.

Details of the numbers of sub-tenants in receipt of housing benefit are not readily available.

Identity Cards

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to make identity cards an acceptable form of identification at polling stations in Northern Ireland. [202885]

Mr. Spellar: There are no plans to make any changes to the current list of specified documents a voter must produce in order to obtain a ballot paper at elections in Northern Ireland.

Ministerial Meetings

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many meetings have been held in the past 12 months between the Minister for Social Development and (a) Mr. Brian Rowntree, Chairman of the Housing Board, (b) Mr. Sidney McDowell, former Chairman of the Housing Board and (c) Mr. Paddy McIntyre, Chief Executive of the Northern Ireland Housing Executive. [202893]

Mr. Spellar: In the past 12 months I have formally met the past and present chairman of the Northern Ireland Housing Executive as follows:

	Number of meetings
Mr. McDowell	1
Mr. Rowntree	2

During this period I have had four formal meetings with Mr. McIntyre.

Occupational Illness

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will estimate the number of working days lost in the Province as a result of occupational illness in each of the last three years. [202029]

Mr. Gardiner: Information on the number of working days lost as a result of occupational illness is not available for Northern Ireland.

However, for information, the Labour Force Survey (LFS) can be used to estimate the number of people that suffered from an illness in the previous year that was caused or made worse by a job or work done in the past. There are only two consistent estimates of this nature available from the LFS and they are as follows:

Number of people that suffered from a work-related illness in the previous year

Period (Winter)	Number
2001–02	49,000
2003–04	33,000

Public Expenditure Projects

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether Her Majesty's Treasury Green Book Appraisal and Evaluation in central Government standards has been adopted to evaluate public expenditure projects in Northern Ireland. [202888]

Mr. Pearson: Yes, Northern Ireland Departments are required to apply the principles of the HM Treasury Green Book when assessing policies, programmes and projects in receipt of public expenditure.

In addition the Department of Finance and Personnel has produced additional appraisal guidance to assist Northern Ireland Departments implement the requirements of the Green Book. The NI Practical Guide to the Green Book takes the requirements of the Green Book Guidance and tailors it specifically to the needs of NI Departments. All Accounting Officers have been informed of the publication of the NI Practical Guide, drawing attention to the latest developments and requirements.

Relationship and Sexuality Education

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what relationship and sexuality education is provided to school pupils in the Province. [202586]

Mr. Gardiner: Relationships and Sexuality Education (RSE) is included on a statutory basis in the NI Curriculum through the Science Programme of Study and the Health Education cross-curricular theme. The Department of Education has provided guidance to help schools in developing a policy on delivering a programme of RSE that is in harmony with the ethos of the school and appropriate to the level of maturity of their pupils.

RUC Reserve

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many members of the Part-Time RUC Reserve were awarded the RUC Reserve Long Service Medal based solely on service to the RUC Reserve; and what the average length of service was of members of the Part-Time RUC Reserve since 1974. [202895]

Mr. Pearson: 1,048 members of the Part-Time RUC Reserve were awarded the Special Constabulary Long Service Medal, based on their service within the RUC Reserve.

The average length of service of members of the Part Time RUC is 4.8 years for those who joined between 1 January 1974 and left before 7 December 2004 and 18.65 years for members who joined after 1 January 1974 and who are still serving.

All members of the Part-Time Reserve who served for 18 months were also eligible for the RUC Service Medal.

Shankill Community Convention

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what Government support (a) has been and (b) will be given to the Shankill Community Convention, established as part of the Community Convention Pilot Schemes; and if he will make a statement. [202891]

Mr. Spellar: A letter of offer has been issued to the Greater Shankill Partnership for a grant of up to £33,000 to cover the costs of the Shankill Community Convention. This is the first of four planned pilots to take place in Protestant working class communities over the next 18 months. The community convention proposal came from elected representatives and community leaders and is part of a wider process of transformation within Protestant working class areas.

Tourism and Leisure Industry

David Burnside: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on progress on the Runkerry Golf Course, Hotel and Leisure project; and what representations he has received (a) in support of and (b) opposed to the project from (i) Moyle District Council, (ii) the National Trust and (iii) Northern Ireland Tourist Board. [202308]

Angela Smith: The Department is still considering the application for this major proposal close to the Giant's Causeway World Heritages site. The proposal raises complex planning policy issues, particularly the impact on the setting of the World Heritage site. The Department's Environmental Heritage Service is strongly opposed to the proposal. Environmental considerations need to be balanced against the tourist and other economic benefits of the proposal. Additional information has been requested from the applicant. Once received the Department will deal with this application as expeditiously as possible.

(I) Moyle District Council

The Council supports this application as it considers that the provision of these facilities will add considerably to the tourism assets of the Causeway Coast and wider area.

(II) The National Trust

The National Trust objects to the proposed development and has requested that the application be refused. Its major concern with the application is the affect on the setting of the Giants Causeway World Heritage site which is substantially under custodianship of the National Trust.

(III) Northern Ireland Tourist Board. (NITB)

NITB supports this proposal on condition that it satisfies all the other relevant planning and conservation criteria including that there is no threat of any adverse impact on the World Heritage site.

Warm Homes Scheme

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many jobs are on waiting lists for (a) insulation measures and (b) heating systems to be fitted under the Warm Homes Scheme managed by the Eaga Partnership, broken down by constituency. [202847]

Mr. Spellar: The information is as follows:

Constituency	Homes waiting for insulation measures	Homes waiting for heating measures
Belfast, East	2	32
Belfast, North	11	53
Belfast, South	14	26
Belfast, West	12	28
East Antrim	8	51
East Londonderry	3	21
Fermanagh and South Tyrone	5	31
Foyle	8	12
Lagan Valley	5	12
Mid Ulster	18	6
Newry and Armagh	6	4
North Antrim	1	69
North Down	14	40
South Antrim	57	82
South Down	8	20
Strangford	9	20
West Tyrone	12	12
Total	193	519

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps (a) have been taken and (b) will be taken by the Department for Social Development to increase the number of people making use of the Warm Homes Scheme managed by the Eaga Partnership in those areas where uptake has been lowest. [202849]

Mr. Spellar: The Department is keen to ensure that all those eligible for assistance under the Warm Homes Scheme are fully aware of their entitlement and can access the scheme with the minimum amount of bureaucracy. For this reason management of the scheme has been passed to Eaga Partnership, which has been working with a variety of organisations across the statutory, private and voluntary sectors to ensure that Warm Homes information is passed on to those most vulnerable and who may be eligible for the grant. This activity includes a variety of methods including local press releases, information sessions for community groups, training sessions for healthcare professionals and targeted mail shots. Time is also spent briefing MLAs and local authorities on Warm Homes, discussing local approaches to promote the Scheme in individual areas where uptake may be low and performance statistics generally.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Building Regulations

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what representations he has received concerning Part P of Building Regulations due to come into effect on 1 January 2005. [R] [202118]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister issued a public consultation document on proposals for Part P in May 2002 and received 490 responses from bodies such as trade associations, safety organisations, local authorities, individual electrical contractors and members of the public. Since that time the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has received a large number of letters seeking clarification on detailed points.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what discussions he has had with the insurance industry on the implementation of part P of the Building Regulations from 1 January 2005. [R] [202123]

Phil Hope: Officials in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister have had discussions with the Financial Services Authority, the Association of British Insurers and a number of insurance brokers and underwriters.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what (a) plans he has and (b) action he has taken to introduce competent person schemes, other than that concerning electrical safety, into building regulations. [R] [202124]

Phil Hope: There are currently four other authorised schemes which began operation on 1 April 2002: FENSA for replacement glazing, CORGI for the installation of heat-producing gas appliances, OFTEC for the installation of oil-fired combustion appliances and HETAS for the installation of solid fuel combustion appliances. A number of applications to run schemes, mostly in the plumbing, heating, ventilating and air-conditioning sectors, are under consideration.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what preparations he has made for the process of monitoring electricians for six months to ensure their competence in compliance with part P of Building Regulations after 1 January 2005; and what the cost has been. [R] [202127]

Phil Hope: Electricians who are registered with a competent person scheme will be monitored by their scheme operators, with at least one initial on-site inspection and a further inspection within the first year of membership. This cost is covered by the annual membership fee of a competent person scheme.

Those not registered with a scheme will be monitored by the building control body for all notifiable electrical installation work. The cost of this monitoring is included in the building control fee paid.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what discussions he has held with interested groups concerning part P of Building Regulations due to come into effect on 1 January 2005. [R] [202131]

Phil Hope: Officials in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister have had many discussions over the past four years with bodies including electrical safety organisations, electrical trade associations, the electrical trade press, potential competent person scheme operators, Government Departments, the Scottish Executive, the National Assembly for Wales, the Health and Safety Executive, the Office of Fair Trading, the insurance industry and local authorities.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the likely impact of part P of Building Regulations on the cost to the consumer of hiring an electrician. [R] [202132]

Phil Hope: Where a householder employs an electrician who is a member of a competent person scheme the extra cost should be minimal. Where the electrician is not a member of such a scheme the extra cost will be the amount of the building control fee payable. The regulatory impact assessment for part P showed that the extra costs were fully justified by the reduction in deaths, injuries and fires form defective fixed electrical installations.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will amend part P of the Building Regulations to exempt people with significant practical experience of fitting electrical installations from the self-certification regime. [R] [202133]

Phil Hope: No. The purpose of self-certification schemes is to assess the competence of members of the scheme to ensure that they are sufficiently competent to self-certify their own work without having to submit a building notice to the local authority.

Correspondence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what his target time is in 2004–05 (a) to reply to letters from hon. Members and (b) for the officials in his Office to reply to letters received directly from members of the public. [202460]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's target in 2004–05 for replying to hon. Members and letters received directly from members of the public is 15 working days.

Information on the departmental handling of correspondence from Members of Parliament/Peers is published annually by the Cabinet Office. The 2003 annual report is available in the Library of the House.

Council Tax

Mr. Amess: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister over how many months of a year council tax payers may pay their council tax (a) by standing order and (b) direct debit; and if he will make a statement. [202058]

Mr. Raynsford: Regulation 21 and schedule 1 of the Council Tax (Administration and Enforcement) Regulations 1992 (SI 1992/613) provide that billing authorities can offer a scheme of 10 instalments, but also allow them to offer greater frequencies up to 52 instalments if they wish. Billing authorities can also make individual agreements with taxpayers which set out payment dates and the amount of each instalment. The regulations do not specify which payments methods authorities must offer. It is for individual billing authorities to decide whether to offer other frequencies and which payment methods to offer and promote in the light of local circumstances.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether the estimate of average council tax per dwelling in England in 2004–05 of £967 includes a measure of the effect of council tax benefit in reducing the amount of council tax paid. [202290]

Mr. Raynsford: No. The figure of £967 per dwelling is the average before the effect of council tax benefit is taken into account.

Departmental Telephones

Mr. Edward Davey: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what his policy is on the use of telephones in his Department by members of staff for their own personal use relating to (a) domestic and (b) international calls; and if he will make a statement. [201021]

Phil Hope: Staff in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister are allowed to make occasional and reasonable use of official telephones for personal reasons. Automatic logs are kept of all calls and regular reviews carried out. Access to all international numbers is only granted to staff who have a business need.

Departmental Estate

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what his estimate is of the (a) annual cost and (b) total value of the empty properties owned by (i) his Department, (ii) agencies and (iii) other public bodies for which he has had responsibility in each of the last two years. [202454]

Phil Hope: None of the properties owned by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister and its agencies have been empty in the last two years.

Information relating to non-departmental public bodies with their own land holding powers is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Events

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the (a) conferences, (b) seminars, (c) workshops, (d) exhibitions and (e) press conferences which have been sponsored by his Department and which took place on non-departmental premises in each of the last two years giving the (i) title, (ii) purpose, (iii) date and (iv) cost of each. [202468]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many departmental mobile telephones were used by (a) Ministers, (b) special advisers and (c) officials in his Department in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202760]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was created on 29 May 2002. Since then the number of mobile phones used by Ministers and Special Advisers, and the associated costs (including purchase, line rental, and call charges) are as follows:

	Number of mobile phones used	Cost (£)
30 May 2002 to 31 March 2003	3	2,071
1 April 2003 to 31 March 2004	6	3,756
1 April 2004 to 30 November 2004	6	2,600

The number of these lost and stolen, and the cost of replacement, is as follows:

	Number lost	Number stolen	Cost of replacement (£)
30 May 2002 to 31 March 2003	0	1	213.56
1 April 2003 to 31 March 2004	1	0	82
1 April 2004 to 30 September 2004	1	0	82

Information on mobile phones used by officials is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Staff

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many staff there are within each of the Groups/ Directorates within the ODPM. [200960]

Phil Hope: The following table sets out the number of staff in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister by Group and Directorate, as at 31 October 2004.

Group	Number of staff
Sustainable Communities Group:	523
Tackling Disadvantage Group	273
Homelessness Directorate	68

East of England Regional Chamber

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the budget of the East of England Regional Chamber was in each of the last two years; and what its source was. [202020]

Mr. Raynsford: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister made a grant of £1,874,000 to the East of England Regional Chamber in the 2003–04 financial year and £2,112,000 in 2004–05. The Regional Chamber may also derive additional revenue from other sources including members' subscription.

Fire Control Centres

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will estimate when the location of 95 per cent. of calls will be available to fire control centre staff. [202746]

Mr. Raynsford: Control room staff currently determine the location of the caller by asking suitable questions. Facilities to automatically locate the caller to the control room operator form part of the FiReControl project which will deliver a network of resilient regional control centres. Currently this is scheduled for completion in early 2009.

Government Office for London

Ms Buck: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many full-time equivalent staff were employed by the Government Office for London in each year from 2000; and what the forecast is for 2005. [202002]

Phil Hope: The Government Office for London staffing figures from 2000 are as follows:

As at April:	Number	FTE
2000	370	[2]—
2001	240	236
2002	260	256
2003	288	285
2004	325	320
2005	325	[1]320

[1] This is an estimate. GOL staffing may change in 2005, but it is difficult to predict accurately as decisions on future workstreams for government offices have yet to be made by central departments
[2] No data held.

Ms Buck: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the running costs for the Government Office for London were in (a) 2003–04 and (b) 2004–05; and what the forecast is for 2005–06. [202003]

Phil Hope: Government Office for London (GOL) running cost (admin) expenditure is as follows:

	£ million
2003–04	[1]16.7
2004–05	[2]18.6
2005–06	[3]17.3

[1] Total yearly spend.
[2] Projected forecast for the year as at November 2004.
[3] Notified budget.

Ms Buck: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the real terms change in the total programmes budget of the Government Office for London was in each year between 2001–02 and 2004–05; and what the projected change is for 2005–06. [202004]

Phil Hope: Government Office for London (GOL) programme budget/expenditure changes are as follows:

	£ million
2001–02	[1]2,094
2002–03	[1]2,530
2003–04	[2]2,711
2004–05	[2]3,027
2005–06	[3]—

[1] Outturn.
[2] Budget.
[3] Budget not yet known.

GOL centralised its Programme management information in 2003–04. The outturn figures reflect spend in 2001–02 and 2002–03—as there is not a centralised record of Programme budgets dating back to 2001–02. The 2003–04 and 2004–05 figures reflect Programme allocations. Information on the 2005–06 Programme budgets is not yet available.

Housing

Ms Buck: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) if he will break down the low cost home ownership units planned for Westminster and Kensington and Chelsea in the Housing Corporation's 2004–06 Approved Developed Programme by (a) one-bed, (b) two-bed, (c) three-bed and (d) four-bed or more; [201964]

(2) if he will break down the low cost home ownership units planned for Westminster and Kensington and Chelsea in the Housing Corporation's 2004–06 Approved Developed Programme by (a) conventional shared ownership, (b) Do-It-Yourself shared ownership, (c) Homebuy and (d) other forms of low cost home ownership. [201965]

Keith Hill: The Housing Corporation have so far allocated resources to fund a total of 52 shared ownership dwellings in Westminster, and 43 in Kensington and Chelsea over the years 2004–06. Homebuy replaced Do-It-Yourself shared ownership schemes in the Housing Corporation's Approved Development Programme in 1999.

Homebuy (other than new-build Homebuy) is allocated via Zone Agents to the sub-regions of London.

The north Sub-region, including Westminster, Islington, Haringey, Enfield, Camden and Barnet, has allocated 155 Homebuy, and 296 Keyworker Homebuy (including 100 higher value equity loans specifically for teachers with potential for leadership). The West sub-region, including Kensington and Chelsea, Hounslow, Hillingdon, Harrow, Hammersmith and Fulham, Baling, and Brent, has allocated 296 Keyworker Homebuy (including 100 higher value equity loans specifically for teachers with potential for leadership).

Other forms of low-cost Home Ownership enable tenants to buy their rented home. They are the Right to Acquire, which is demand-led; and the Voluntary Purchase Grant, of which none are planned in Westminster or Kensington and Chelsea.

The table shows the split of low cost homeownership schemes by one, two, three and four or more bedrooms for each authority in London and has been made available in the Library of the House. The figures for Homebuy Market Purchase, allocated by Zone Agent to the sub-regions, cannot be broken down by bedroom numbers until the individual properties are purchased.

Bob Spink: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the (a) average, (b) greatest and (c) smallest proportion of tenants on the arms length management company is where a housing stock transfer has been achieved using an arms length management company. [202299]

Keith Hill: Councils who set up an arms length management organisation (ALMO) to manage their housing stock retain ownership of the properties and no stock transfer is involved. Most ALMO boards are made up of one third tenants, one third local authority nominees and one third independent members. No ALMO boards have less than one third tenant members. One ALMO board has a tenant majority, with 11 tenants, five local authority nominees and five independent members. However, this is an exception, agreed because the ALMO was created from a Tenant Management Organisation which formerly managed the council's stock.

Bob Spink: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what guidance he has given to councils seeking housing stock transfers to an arms length management company (ALMC) on the proportion of (a) tenants and (b) nominees on the Board of the ALMC; and if he will make a statement. [202300]

Keith Hill: Councils who set up an arms length management organisation (ALMO) to manage their housing stock retain ownership of the properties and no stock transfer is involved. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's "Guidance on Arms Length Management of Local Authority Housing", published in October 2004, sets out that the board should include tenants, local authority nominees and independent members. It does not specify proportions, but makes it clear that no one group should normally be in a majority.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many shared ownership properties were sold in Southwark in each year since 1997; and how many of those properties were purchased by someone who was (a) already in social housing in that area, (b) on the single housing register in that area and (c) a key worker. [202969]

Keith Hill: A table containing this information for every local authority in England has been made available in the Library of the House.

The table includes, for each financial year from 1997–08 to 2003–04 and for every English local authority and Government Office Region:

the number of Shared Ownership sales;

how many Shared Ownership sales were to people who were previously social tenants in the area;

how many Shared Ownership sales were to people who were registered on a local authority waiting list/common housing register.

Note that the figures relate to the sales of initial shares only. Subsequent purchases of additional equity are not included.

It should be noted that figures on the number of key workers that bought Shared Ownership properties during the period 1997–08 to 2003–04 are not available. This is because the purchaser's occupation was not collected as part of CORE Sales during this period.

Local Government Pension Scheme

Mr. Bill O'Brien: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment has been made of the financial effects of changes to the retirement ages of members of the Local Government Pension Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [200498]

Phil Hope: Amendments to the Local Government Pension Scheme Regulations 1997, designed to mitigate employers' future costs by approximately £200 million per year from 2005–06, are programmed to come into force on 1 April 2005.

Mobile Phone Masts

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what plans he has to provide protectors under planning procedures for (a) special landscape areas and (b) areas of outstanding natural beauty with regard to the erectors of new mobile phone masts; and if he will make a statement. [203019]

Keith Hill: Current planning guidance on electronic communications is set out in Planning Policy Guidance Note 8 (revised) (PPG8). The general policy is to facilitate the growth of electronic communications systems while protecting the environment. This includes national policies for the protection of the countryside and residential areas, in particular our National Parks, Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty, conservation areas and Sites of Special Scientific Interest. The installation of any communications mast in such areas, is subject to a full planning application. Any such application will be decided by the local planning authority (or the Secretary of State, my right. hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister on appeal) in the light of development plan policies and any other material considerations, including any relevant representations either for or against the proposal.

Planning

Mr. Chope: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the current average waiting time is between the making of a planning appeal and the announcement of the outcome; what action is being taken to reduce waiting times; and what sanction is being applied to the Planning Inspectorate for failure to meet its targets. [203079]

Keith Hill: The current average waiting time, for planning appeals determined in October, was 30 weeks; for appeals submitted in October the appellants can expect to receive a decision in about 52 weeks.

To help reduce waiting times the government has allocated additional resources to the Planning Inspectorate. The Inspectorate's Chief Executive has set up a task force to tackle the backlog of appeals, to help improve productivity and to find ways of reducing the demands that are made for the Inspectorate's services.

Rather than sanctions for failing to meet targets, the Inspectorate, and its Chief Executive, are to be congratulated on the way they have managed to deal with the recent growth in the number of appeals. In the period to 31 October 2004 receipts were 21 per cent. more than in the same period last year (i.e. to 31 October 2003). Receipts in the period to 31 October 2003 were themselves 10 per cent. more than in the period to 31 October 2002.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the financial effects on (a) business and (b) UK competitiveness of delays in processing planning appeals and planning inquiries. [203089]

Keith Hill: The Government recognise that delays in planning decisions add to costs for all parties. It is committed to addressing the delays in processing planning appeals which have resulted from the sharp rise in the numbers of appeals received over the last two years. There has been no detailed estimate made of the economic cost caused by such delays.

Planning Regulations (Noise Levels)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will include the decibel level of amplified calls to prayer as a criterion under planning regulations; and if he will make a statement. [201799]

Keith Hill: Planning Policy Guidance Note 24 on Planning and Noise outlines the considerations to be taken into account in determining planning applications for development which will either generate or be exposed to existing noise sources. The guidance states that noise impacts can be a material consideration in the determination of planning applications.

A local planning authority may impose planning conditions which could specify a limit of new noise sources. The guidance does not set noise limits for any particular type of development and there are no plans to specify the decibel level of amplified calls to prayer in planning guidance.

Of course, such conditions can only be imposed on new developments. Complaints about noise from pre-existing sources would have to be dealt with by a local authority under the regulations for statutory noise nuisance. These regulations are the responsibility of the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Research Projects

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the research projects commissioned by his Department since June 2001; who was commissioned to undertake each project; and what the total cost of each project was. [201957]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was created in May 2002. Since then, the majority of the information requested is available on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's Research Management Database. This can be accessed via the public interface on the internet at: www.rmd.odpm.gov.uk/programmes.asp

The only projects not included are in the Civil Resilience research programme and these are listed as follows. They are to be added to the Research Management Database in December 2004

Civil Resilience Research

Defence Science and Technology Laboratory, Porton Down

Research to inform the preparation of guidance on the decontamination of buildings and infrastructure following a CBRN incident—£61,000.

National Radiological Protection Board, Chilton

Briefing on current knowledge with regard to decontamination of buildings and infrastructures after dispersion of radioactive material—£7,000.

Building Research Establishment

Development of precautions to minimise effects of a CBRN event on buildings and infrastructures—£100,000.

National Chemical Emergency Centre

Scoping study to define requirements for the development of decision making support tools for HAZMAT incidents—£29,000.

Health Safety Laboratory

Effectiveness of casualty showering as a decontamination process for CBRN incidents—£24k

Defence Science and Technology Laboratory, Porton Down

Testing of protective ensembles—£400,000.

Special Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) if he will list the attributable interviews that his Department's special advisers gave to (a) newspapers, (b) journals, (c) books and (d) other media in their official capacity between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004; [201396]

(2) if he will list the attributable (a) articles and (b) contributions that his Office's special advisers made to (i) newspapers, (ii) journals, (iii) books and (iv) other media in their official capacity between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004. [201457]

Phil Hope: All special advisers' contacts with the media are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers.

Sport and Recreation

Kate Hoey: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many local authorities have placed their sports facilities within a charitable trust. [201855]

Mr. Caborn: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not held centrally by Government.

Training Courses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by his Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98. [200396]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff but which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200416]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was established on 29 May 2002. To date no project commissioned by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister via the training framework has been withdrawn and no penalty has been incurred.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Arms Embargo (China)

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the Government support the lifting of the arms embargo on China; and if she will make a statement. [200368]

Mr. Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Guildford (Sue Doughty) today (UIN 200354).

British Energy

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when her Department agreed to a three month extension to the financial restructuring support agreements for British Energy; until what date the extension will run; what its value is; and if she will place in the Library a copy of the extension agreement. [202810]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The extension of the backstop date in the Government Restructuring Agreement from 31 January 2005 until 30 April 2005 was agreed to in, and put into effect by, a letter dated 29 November 2004. I have placed a copy of that letter in the Library of the House. As explained in the written statement made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on 30 November 2004, Official Report, column 28–30WS, the Department granted the extension as the best means of ensuring the Government's overarching objectives of safety, security of supply and value for money for the taxpayer. No further drawings can, of course, be made on the Credit Facility Agreement following the European Commission's decision to approve the Government's restructuring aid to British Energy on 22 September 2004.

Business Links

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures she is taking to enable Business Links to continue to deliver all the services they currently deliver after 1 April 2005 when they will no longer be able to claim full recovery of VAT on their services. [202052]

Nigel Griffiths: The Small Business Service is supporting Business Link Operators and the Regional Development Agencies, which from April 2005 will be responsible for Business Link services in their region, as they work through the implications on VAT recovery on future BL service delivery.

Under the Business Link transformation programme, Business Link branded activity will be moved increasingly toward the delivery of information, diagnostic and brokerage services. However, these services will only represent one aspect of the licensed operators overall activities and consequently the VAT implications will vary across different BL licensed organisations depending on the mix of their overall activities.

BLOs have still to provide the information to enable an assessment of the impact of irrecoverable VAT on service delivery.

Business Support Initiatives

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many people have visited her Department's website promoting Access to Business Practice; and what other material is available as part of this business support product; [200526]

(2) what the uptake has been of each Support to Implement Best Practice in each region; and if she will make a statement; [200525]

(3) what the take-up has been in each region in the current financial year of (a) Access to Best Business Practice and (b) Support to Implement Best Business Practice; and if she will make a statement. [200599]

Nigel Griffiths: Regional take-up of the Access product is not recorded. However from 1 April 2004 to 31 October 2004 there have been over 300,000 visits to the Access to Best Practice pages on the DTI's website. During this period 100,000 hard copy publications have been ordered and dispatched. In October alone there were 50,000 downloads of electronic documents from the site. Information on the site is grouped under a number of key themes: Management; Operations; Sales and Marketing; People; Design and Innovation; and Communications and IT. There are over 300 downloadable documents on the website covering aspects of business best practice as well as case studies. The website also provides a range of on-line self-assessment tools.

Since the release of the Support to Implement Best Business Practice product in April 2004 until week ending 27 November 2004 some 1,956 in-depth diagnostics had been undertaken. The regional breakdown is as follows.

	Number
East	191
East Midlands	92
London	284
North East	12
North West	347

	Number
South East	226
South West	339
West Midlands	278
Yorkshire and Humberside	187

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry with what financial support products UK Trade and Investment assists UK businesses. [200559]

Mr. Alexander: UK Trade and Investment (UKTI) products which offer an element of financial assistance to companies include: Passport to Export; Support for Exhibitions and Seminars Abroad (SESA); and Export Marketing Research Scheme (EMRS). Core UKTI services, however, also include a range of free or subsidised products, aimed at boosting UK business competitiveness.

Carbon Emissions

Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the carbon emission levels were (a) in the UK and (b) in other EU member states at the latest date for which figures are available. [200229]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The following table contains carbon emission levels published by Eurostat. 2002 is the latest year for which figures are available for European member states.

Note that these figures reflect the fact that the economies of some states are larger than others and not necessarily the extent to which they take steps to reduce the generation of emissions.

Country	Carbon emissions in 2002 (million tonnes)
Germany	235.7
United Kingdom	146.6
Italy	127.9
France	110.7
Spain	88.8
Poland	86.7
Netherlands	48.2
Belgium	34.5
Czech Republic	33.6
Greece	28.8
Austria	19.0
Finland	19.0
Portugal	18.4
Hungary	15.6
Sweden	14.9
Denmark	14.8
Ireland	12.5
Slovak Republic	11.8
Estonia	4.7
Slovenia	4.5
Lithuania	3.3
Luxembourg	2.8
Latvia	2.0
Malta	0.7
Cyprus	n/a

These figures exclude land use change and forestry. The latest published UK Greenhouse Gas Emissions Inventory figure for 2002 is 150.3 million tonnes of carbon including land use change and forestry.

Combined Heat and Power

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what support her Department is making available to encourage micro combined heat and power generation. [200651]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 30 November 2004]: I have been asked to reply:

The Department sponsors the Carbon Trust, who are conducting field trials of micro-CHP units to better understand their potential energy and carbon savings. Our proposal for the Energy Efficiency Commitment 2005–08 includes an incentive for innovative technologies, such as micro-CHP with a electrical capacity of up to 50 kilowatts. This year the Chancellor announced the possibility of widening the Budget 2002 VAT reduction on some micro-CHP installations. The Government are also formulating a strategy for microgeneration, with input from Defra.

Electricity Blackouts

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the possibility of electricity blackouts due to a lack of gas this winter. [201589]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 2 December 2004]: Gas supplies are likely to be tighter this winter than in previous years. This is mainly due to the long-term decline of production from the North sea.

However, National Grid Transco's assessment in their "Winter Outlook Report" published by Ofgem on 20 October, is that supplies of gas, including for electricity generation, can be maintained from the UK Continental Shelf, gas imports, storage and demand management where necessary, even in a winter of a severity expected only once every 50 years.

Electricity Generation (Renewables)

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps she is taking to increase the amount of electricity generated by renewable sources; and if she will make a statement. [203072]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government's main mechanism for supporting renewable energy is the Renewables Obligation. Electricity supply companies are required to source a percentage of their electricity sales (increasing each year) from eligible sources. The Obligation for the 2004–05 period is 4.9 per cent. It will remain in place until 2027.

The RO is supported by around £500 million of spending between 2002–08 to help develop emerging technologies. This will take the form of spending on R and D and funding for capital grants. This includes among other things grants of £117 million for offshore wind, over £60 million for energy crops and biomass, £31 million for PV and £12.5 million for community schemes. In August 2004 it was announced that a special £50 million Marine Renewables Development Fund would be set up to help bridge the funding gap between pre-commercial and supported commercial technologies.

Renewable energy is also exempt from the Climate Change Levy (a tax on non-domestic energy use disaggregated by fuel type). For renewably generated electricity this adds £4.3/MWh of support.

EU Competitiveness Council

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many times she has (a) attended and (b) been absent from meetings of the EU Competitiveness Council since 2001; and which ministers attended in her absence on each occasion. [200956]

Mr. Alexander: The following table outlines DTI ministerial attendance at Competitiveness Council meetings since it was established in 2002.

Date	Attendee(s)
30 September 2002	Melanie Johnson (Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Competition, Consumers and Markets)
14 November 2002	Melanie Johnson
26 November 2002	Patricia Hewitt (Secretary of State for Trade and Industry), Lord Sainsbury of Turville (Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Science and Innovation) and Iain Gray (Scottish Executive Minister for Enterprise, Transport and Lifelong Learning)
3 March 2003	Patricia Hewitt
13 May 2003	Alan Johnson (Minister of State for Employment Relations, Industry and the Regions)
19 May 2003	Alan Johnson
22 September 2003	Lord Sainsbury of Turville
10 November 2003	Jacqui Smith (Minister of State for Industry and the Regions and Deputy Minister for Women and Equality) and Andy Kerr (Scottish Executive Minister for Finance and Public Services)
26–27 November 2003	Patricia Hewitt and Jacqui Smith
3 December 2003	No Minister [Anne Lambert (Deputy Permanent Representative) attended. Only one item debated.]
11 March 2004	Patricia Hewitt
17–18 May 2004	Jacqui Smith
24 September 2004	Patricia Hewitt
25–26 November 2004	Patricia Hewitt and Lord Sainsbury of Turville

Export Credits Guarantee Department

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much cover was made by the Export Credits Guarantee Department to (a) Nepal, (b) Zimbabwe, (c) Nigeria, (d) Rwanda, (e) Sierra Leone, (f) South Africa, (g) Pakistan, (h) Mozambique, (i) Zambia, (j) China, (k) Ethiopia, (l) Kenya, (m) Malawi, (n) Uganda, (o) Ghana, (p) Bangladesh, (q) India and (r) Tanzania in the last two years for which figures are available. [200933]

Mr. Alexander: The following table shows the value of issued guarantees on these specified markets at current exchange rates, during the last two full financial years. (Zero values shown where applicable):

Market	2002-03	2003-04
Bangladesh	8,410,073	6,237,569
China	31,074,304	13,468,853
Ghana	0	0
Ethiopia	0	0
India	76,970,096	67,497,505
Kenya	0	0
Malawi	0	0
Mozambique	0	0
Nepal	0	0
Nigeria	138,823,252	0
Sierra Leone	0	0
South Africa	82,693,692	139,882,828
Tanzania United Republic of	0	2,129,291
Uganda	0	0
Zambia	0	0
Zimbabwe	202,500	202,500
Total	338,173,917	229,418,546

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many applications for cover from Kellogg, Brown and Root the Export Credits Guarantee Department has considered since October 2003. [201117]

Mr. Alexander: ECGD has received one formal application for cover from Kellogg, Brown and Root, as well as an additional application from its subsidiary, Granherne.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list the guarantees issued to subsidiaries of Halliburton by the Export Credits Guarantee Department since 1 January 2003; and on what dates they were issued. [201118]

Mr. Alexander: The only ECGD guarantee issued in connection with the business of a Halliburton subsidiary since 2003 relates to Kellogg, Brown and Root's application for oilfield services contracts for the Alibekmola field in Kazakhstan. ECGD's Offer of Cover was issued on 8 September 2004 and accepted on 3 November 2004.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry for what reasons her Department and the Export Credits Guarantee Department revised the anti-corruption procedures brought into force on 1 May. [201119]

Mr. Alexander: The procedures were revised to take account of concerns expressed by customers and their representative trade associations about the practicality of some aspects of the procedures.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many applications for cover from M. W. Kellogg the Export Credits Guarantee Department has considered since October 2003. [201122]

Mr. Alexander: None.

Fur Imports

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate she has made of the amount of cat and dog fur being imported into (a) the UK and

(b) other EU states; if she will make it her policy to ban such imports into the UK; and if she will make a statement. [200975]

Mr. Alexander: Establishing whether domestic cat or dog fur is entering the UK is difficult because any such fur entering the UK and other EU states would fall under the commodity codes for "other fur" which includes rabbit, musk-rat and beaver. It is not possible to identify what proportion of the "other fur" figure, if any, represents domestic dog or cat fur. Figures for fur imports into the UK were given in my answer to my hon. Friend's question on 13 July 2004, Official Report, columns 1020–24W.

The Government are committed to establishing the facts about this issue and to taking practical and proportionate action in response. The Government invited interested stakeholders to come forward with evidence that domestic dog and cat fur is on sale in the UK. No hard evidence has been provided to us. The Government therefore cannot support an import ban at this time.

A full update will be made in a written statement in the new year, "other fur".

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions she has held with (a) EU member state Governments and (b) others, over the importation of cat and dog fur. [200976]

Mr. Alexander: This year, the Department has written to all official contacts in member states to update them on the UK position on domestic cat and dog fur. We continue to raise this issue in dialogue with the EU Commission and we maintain particularly close contacts with officials from Sweden, Denmark and the Netherlands.

The Department also liaise with interested stakeholders from the NGO and the business community.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent assessment she has made of the accuracy of scientific testing to determine whether products contain (a) cat and (b) dog fur; and if she will make a statement. [200977]

Mr. Alexander: The DTI has been working with the Laboratory of Government Chemist Limited (LGC) to establish a scientific test which can readily determine between different species of fur. As reported by the then Minister for Trade and Investment, the hon. Member for East Ham (Mr. Timms) in a written statement to the House on 28 January 2004, Official Report, columns 11–12WS, the first test trialled was unsatisfactory because industrial processing of fur tends to destroy its DNA. LGC Limited went on to test a technology which requires less DNA. Initial tests were disappointing but suggested that this method should not be discounted. During the course of this year, we understand the methodology has been refined and I have commissioned work to test the method again to establish whether its reliability has improved. I will report on the results of these tests in a written statement to the House in the new year.

Hidden Charges

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans the Government have to introduce restrictions on hidden charges imposed by secondary lenders which apply when the borrower falls into arrears. [201504]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Consumer Credit (Agreements)(Amendment) Regulations 2004 require that from 31 May 2005 all lenders must provide detail on arrears charges under the heading "Key Information" up front in the credit agreement form. The Consumer Credit (Disclosure of Information) Regulations 2004 also require that, from the same date, these charges are flagged in pre contract information that must be given to the consumer to assist them shop around for the best deals. In addition, as part of the Consumer Credit Bill, we intend to introduce requirements for all lenders to provide annual statements and notices about fees and charges. This will mean that borrowers will be aware of the state of their accounts throughout the life of their loan.

Internet

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures she intends to take to protect the public from the unwanted installation of premium rate dialler programmes on computers connected to the internet; and if she will make a statement. [201873]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 6 December 2004]: The Department has asked the communications regulator the Office of Communications (Ofcom) to review the role and powers of ICSTIS in premium rate regulation in view of the consumer harm caused by fraudulent dial-up internet scams. Ofcom is due to report back shortly.

Joint and Several Liability

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what representations she has received on amending the law on joint and several liability in construction cases in so far as it affects consulting engineers; and what discussions she has had with other Departments on this matter; [202303]

(2) if she will make it her policy to amend the law on joint and several liability in construction cases to ensure that defendants' liability is limited to a fair proportion of the plaintiff's loss, having regard to the relative degree of blame. [202304]

Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 6 December 2004]: My right hon. Friend has received representations from the Association of Consulting Engineers and individual consulting engineering practices. The Government have no plans to amend the law on joint and several liability in construction cases.

Liquidations/Bankruptcies

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) company compulsory liquidations and (b) personal bankruptcies there were in each quarter since Q4 2003, broken down by region. [200546]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Table 1 records the number of company compulsory liquidations in England and Wales by region classified according to groupings of Official Receivers' Offices from Q4 2003 to Q3 2004.

Table 2 records the number of bankruptcies in England and Wales by region classified according to groupings of Official Receivers' Offices from Q4 2003 to Q3 2004.

Mersey Docks and Harbour Company

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the Government retain a golden share in the Mersey Docks and Harbour Company. [202723]

Mr. Jamieson: I have been asked to reply.

No, the Government have held no shares in the Mersey Docks and Harbour Company since 1998.

Miners' Compensation Schemes

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many contracts the Department holds with Capita in relation to the miners' compensation schemes; what the nature of each contract is; and how long each contract is set to run. [199518]

Nigel Griffiths: The Department holds a Claims Handling Contract with Capita/IRISC, which expires on 31 July 2006, and the Vibration White Finger Services medical assessments contract with Capita Health Services, which expires on 31 March 2005. The Department has a two years option on this contract, which it plans to exercise.

Minimum Wage

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures are being taken to prevent companies paying their staff below the minimum wage. [201497]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Inland Revenue is responsible for enforcing compliance with the national minimum wage. Its minimum wage compliance officers respond to complaints about underpayment and take action to ensure that the appropriate minimum rates, and any arrears of wages due, are paid to the worker. The Inland other sources, for risk assessment purposes and make proactive visits to employers to help improve compliance with the minimum wage. In the Low Pay Commission's last full report (March 2003) they concluded that most employers continue to comply with the minimum wage and the evidence they received welcomed the Inland Revenue's work in enforcing it.

It is of course important that workers and employers are aware of their rights and obligations under the minimum wage. My Department, in partnership with the Inland Revenue, run a publicity campaign every autumn which advises on the minimum rates including any increases to help ensure workers are aware of their rights and employers of their obligations under the minimum wage legislation. Independent research commissioned after the 2002 campaign showed that awareness of the minimum wage by employers and low-paid workers was at almost universal levels.

Mobile Phone Companies

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which mobile phone companies have signed up to the 10 commitments; and what discussions she has held with those that have not. [203118]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: There are a total of five mobile phone companies who operate mobile phone networks in the UK. These are Vodafone, Orange, O2, T-Mobile and "3". All five have signed up to the "10 Commitments".

Ofgem

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to review the offshore licensing regime for gas producers operating on the UK

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I keep the offshore petroleum licensing regime under continuous review. However, I have no plans to extend Ofgem's powers in this area.

Premium Rate Telephone Industry

Linda Perham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has (a) to review and (b) to amend the regulation of the premium rate telephone industry. [201827]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department has asked the communications regulator the Office of Communications (Ofcom) to review the role and powers of ICSTIS in premium rate regulation. Ofcom is due to report back shortly. I will consider Ofcom's recommendations, and the Department will be involved in implementing them.

Regulatory Impact Assessments

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate she has made of the aggregate cost to business of regulations imposed by her Department since 1997, based on figures in the relevant regulatory impact assessments. [202009]

Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 6 December 2004]: All proposals which impact on business, charities or the voluntary sector require a Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) which includes details of the costs, benefits and risks of the proposal. RIAs are subject to public consultation and copies of final RIAs are available from the Libraries of the House and on departmental websites.

Religious Festivals

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will bring forward proposals to mark the important festivals of minority communities, with particular reference to Eid and Divali, with (a) public holidays and (b) other official recognition. [201494]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government receive a variety of suggestions for new or different bank holidays and celebrations. Bank and public holidays in Great Britain do not, by tradition, commemorate particular individuals, events, or institutions, other than those associated with Christmas and Easter. The present pattern of bank holidays in the United Kingdom is well established and accepted, and the Government have no current plans to change the arrangements. Although the Government do not get involved in contractual matters between employers and employees with regards to taking time off, our policy is to encourage employers to respond flexibly to such requests for leave bearing in mind business needs.

In addition, the Government already mark religious festivals from a variety of minority faiths in different ways and will continue to do so in the future. Ministers and senior officials attend receptions and events where possible and also send messages of good will and celebratory cards in some instances.

Renewable Energy

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what sums the Government have spent on (a) solar and (b) wind-powered forms of renewable energy since 2001; and if she will make a statement. [201585]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 2 December 2004]: The Government have committed £117 million in capital grant support for Round 1 offshore wind projects. To date £7.5 million of this has been spent.

For solar, £31 million has been committed to the Major PV demonstration programme, which runs to March 2006. To date £18.8 million has been confirmed for projects and £3.3 million of this has been spent.

In addition the following has been spent on research on wind and solar technologies:

£ million

	Solar	Wind
2000–01	1.7	1.3
2001–02	2	1.7
2002–03	5.3	1.7

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent assessment she has made of the future of photovoltaic (PV) technology within the UK energy market; and what plans she has to promote the use of PV technology. [201586]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 2 December 2004]: We have already funded PV installations to the tune of £25 million through our Major PV demonstration programme and £10 million through the Large Scale and Domestic Field Trials. We have seen a number of successes from the programme such as a growing number of renewable installations at a variety of scales. The installer base increasing significantly costs reducing and recent investments in manufacturing capacity in solar power in the UK.

The Government have listened to the calls for an extension of the Photovoltaics Major Demonstration Programme to give sufficient time for the development of a Low Carbon Buildings Programme (as recommended in the Renewables Innovation Review: February 2004). The Government have acted on these calls and my Department announced on 15 September a further £6 million for the PV Major Demonstration programme to enable the programme to be extended for a further year.

The DTI has also put effort into removing a number of barriers to the deployment of very small generators such as PV. These include reduction of VAT to 5 per cent. for professionally installed systems, a new PV Annex to Planning Policy Guidance Note (PPG22), simplified connection agreements to the local network (G77 and G83/1) and Installer Training and Accreditation Schemes. In addition the Government have amended the Renewables Obligation to enable very small generators like PV to accumulate their production over a year, rather than a month, so as to qualify for ROCs.

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps she is taking in respect of Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 2 December 2004]: The Energy Act 2004 laid the foundation for the creation of a single GB market for wholesale electricity trading and transmission. Charges to connect to and use the GB transmission system, and therefore access the GB market, are still being developed by National Grid. Ofgem considered NGC's proposals last month, and concluded that further work was required in respect of use of system charges. It did, however, approve National Grid's proposed connection charges, i.e. the charges that relate to the specific assets provided at each site to connect to the network.

NGC's proposal for the use of system charges will be revised and resubmitted to Ofgem for approval in February 2005. The transmission charging methodology is planned to take effect when BETTA is implemented.

Ofgem also recently announced that, following approval of a use of system charging methodology, it is minded to implement a discount against transmission charges of approximately £4 per kilowatt for smaller generators connected to the transmission system at 132KV. This is expected to encompass a number of larger wind-farm developments, particularly in the north of Scotland.

Further, the Government took a legislative power in the Energy Act 2004 to allow the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry to introduce a dispensation regime in order to limit the transmission charges to renewable generators in a specified area of Great Britain, if the transmission charges would otherwise materially hinder renewable development in that area. DTI recently commissioned an independent study to examine the likely impact of GB transmission charges on renewable development, in particular Scotland.

The establishment of the GB market will also remove charges for using the Anglo-Scottish interconnector currently paid by Scottish generators including windfarms, exporting to England and Wales. It will also give Scottish generators including renewables access to the GB market as a whole rather than their development being constrained by the limited size of the electricity market in Scotland.

Small Business Research Initiative

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many research and development procurement opportunities were disseminated by her Department to small and medium-sized enterprises registered through the Small Business Research Initiative web portal in each year since 2001–02, including figures for 2004–05 to date; and what the value of such opportunities was in each case. [201303]

Nigel Griffiths: Since 2001–02 the Small Business Research Initiative web portal has provided information on 98 research and development procurement opportunities, with a total value of £5,720,030. Information for each year is given in the table:

	Number of proposals	Value (£)
2001–02	10	367,000
2002–03	41	2,404,000
2003–04	33	1,999,030
2004–05	14	950,000

Supermarket Code of Practice

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when the Office of Fair Trading will publish the report of its audit of the Supermarket Code of Practice. [202041]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This is a matter for the Chairman of the OFT and I have asked him to write to the hon. Member directly.

Wind Farms

Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate has been made of the likely reduction in emissions from the use of modern wind turbines; and on what research this estimate was based. [201329]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government's target of 10 per cent. of electricity supply from renewables in 2010 would save approximately 2.5 MtC per year if the equivalent amount of energy were generated from gas. We expect around 7–8 per cent. of that 10 per cent. total to come from wind.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Arms Embargo (China)

Sue Doughty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the UK Government supports the lifting of the arms embargo on China; and if he will make a statement. [200354]

Mr. Rammell: The Government support the decision of the European Council in December 2003 to review the EU Arms Embargo on China. This review is ongoing—it was last discussed by EU Foreign Ministers at the 22 November General Affairs and External Relations Council. The Government do not wish to exclude any options for the review, nor to pre-empt the conclusion of the review.

The Government continue to implement the Arms Embargo as set out by the then Minister of State at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the late Derek Fatchett, in his reply on 3 June 1998, Official Report, columns 240–41, to my hon. Friend the Member for Gedling (Vernon Coaker).

Arms Sales (Code of Conduct)

Sue Doughty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he supports the introduction of a more stringent EU Code of Conduct for Arms Sales; and if he will make a statement. [200355]

Mr. MacShane: The United Kingdom instigated the ongoing review of the Code of Conduct, in which we continue to play an active role. We are keen to ensure developments, such as controls on brokering and intangible military technology transfers, and increases the transparency of member states' arms exports. This will increase the ability of the Code properly to regulate EU defence exports.

Correspondence

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will instruct the Visa Correspondence Section of UKvisas to respond to the correspondence of 4 October from the hon. Member for Edinburgh West regarding Mr. Thomas William Case. [200367]

Mr. Mullin: UK visas replied to the hon. Member on 25 November.

David Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will reply to the letter from the right hon. Member for Walsall, North of 1 November regarding a constituent. [200607]

Mr. Mullin: I replied to the hon. Member on 30 November.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will instruct the Visa Correspondence Section of UKvisas to respond to the correspondence by email of 15 November and 16 November from the hon. Member for Edinburgh, West regarding Mr. Muhammad Tariq. [200369]

Mr. Mullin: UKvisas replied to the hon. Member on 26 November.

Cyprus

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he is having with the Government of the Republic of Cyprus on the clearing of minefields in the UN buffer zone in Cyprus; whether this action is supported by the British Government; and if he will make a statement. [200305]

Mr. MacShane: We welcome the decision of the Government of Cyprus in June 2004 to work with the United Nations to start mine clearance in the buffer zone. The de-mining programme has the support of member states of the European Union and the European Commission and is funded by the European Union through its 'Partnership for the Future' programme at an estimated cost of €2.5 million. Work began on 18 November, conducted by two British companies, and is estimated to last for just over a year.

We also welcome a statement made by Mr. Talat, elected leader of the Turkish Cypriot Community, on 18 November in which he said that the Turkish Cypriots would soon sign an agreement with the United Nations which would allow them also to begin mine clearing operations.

The UK Government welcome any contribution to normalisation of the situation on the island. De-mining is an important step towards this.

Darfur

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the supply of logistical and communications support to the African Union monitoring force in Darfur; and whether equipment supplied to the monitoring force as part of that support has been accompanied by instructions comprehensible to the troops comprising that force. [201978]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

The UK is in the process of flying out 143 vehicles it has purchased for the African Union (AU) monitoring mission headquarters in El Fasher, North Darfur. The vehicles (131 Toyota 4/4 Landcruisers and 12 three tonne trucks), have been purchased following the Prime Minister's announcement of a further £12 million of support for the African Union (AU) monitoring mission on 7 October 2004. Almost half of these vehicles are already on the ground, and the full number is expected to arrive by mid-December. They are fully fitted with the equipment requested by the AU, including communications equipment. All instruction manuals for this equipment are in English.

These vehicles will make the AU mission more effective, enabling the observers and troops to carry out more proactive monitoring, and to respond to specific incidents more quickly. This is part of DFID's ongoing support to the AU's efforts to resolve the crisis in Darfur: DFID has now committed more than £14 million to their operation, from the joint DFID-FCO-MOD Africa Conflict Prevention Pool. We continue to work closely with the AU to ensure that they have all the support they require.

DFID understands that there have been problems with communications equipment for the land bases which operates in German. This has caused problems for the AU but is being resolved by the donor who provided it.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on reports that 31 adults and two minors resident in Kalma Camp, Darfur, have been sentenced to death; and if he will intervene on behalf of those so sentenced. [202706]

Mr. Mullin: On 22 November five people were arrested in Kalma Camp, and charged with supporting one of the Darfur rebel groups, the Sudan Liberation Army. In a separate incident on 28 November, 28 people from Kalma Camp were charged with murder. Under Sudanese law, all could face the death penalty.

All those under arrest are receiving legal advice from the Sudanese Organisation Against Torture, which received funding for some of its activities from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Our embassy in Khartoum regularly raises abolition of the death penalty and the detention of Internally Displaced Persons with the Government of Sudan, and had detailed discussions during the joint Sudan/EU dialogue meetings in September 2004. We will continue to follow these cases closely.

Departmental Websites

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department's .gov.uk websites comply with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines adopted by the Government in 2001; and if he will make a statement. [199631]

Mr. Mullin: All websites on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) web platform have been designed to meet both W3C Web Content Accessibility Guidelines 1.0 and Cabinet Office Guidelines for UK Government websites. The FCO has additionally implemented recommendations from the Royal National Institute for the Blind about enhancing website accessibility for the partially sighted.

DR Congo

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the reports of misbehaviour by UN troops in the Democratic Republic of Congo; what action he has taken as a result; and whether he has taken up the issue of abuse with the governments of the troops concerned. [202703]

Mr. Mullin: The UK and other Security Council members urged the UN to make a quick response to allegations of sexual exploitation by personnel in the UN Mission to the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUC). The UN initiated an investigation into the allegations and called for troop contributing countries to ensure that the UN's investigations are followed up by appropriate disciplinary action.

In UN Security Council resolution 1565, adopted on 1 October 2004, the Security Council voiced its concern at the allegations. It requested the UN Secretary General to continue to investigate the allegations and for the UN and troop contributing countries to take appropriate disciplinary action in cases of misconduct. In November, the UN Secretary-General issued a statement voicing his outrage at the accusations and pledging to stamp out such behaviour. We support the resolution and the Secretary General's statement and, while there have been no allegations made against UK personnel serving in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), any such allegation would be thoroughly investigated and the appropriate action taken.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on recent reports of Rwandan troops operating within the Democratic Republic of Congo. [202705]

Mr. Mullin: We are very concerned by reports that Rwanda plans to send troops into the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). The UK and the wider international community have made clear to Rwanda that any incursion into the territory of the DRC would be unacceptable. We are working with the Security Council, EU and regional partners to seek an urgent solution to the problem through a process of dialogue between Rwanda and DRC. My right hon. Friend the International Development Secretary has spoken to President Kagame to emphasise that unilateral military action is not the answer to the problem of disarming the Ex-Forces Armées Rwandaises/Interahamwe armed

Drugs (Burma)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of how much (a) heroin and (b) methamphetamine was produced in Burma in each of the last three years; what estimate he has made for the current year; how much he estimates will reach the UK; and if he will make a statement. [200031]

Mr. Rammell: The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) estimates that opiate cultivation in Burma has declined from 81,000 hectares in 2002 through 62,000 in 2003 to 44,000 hectares in 2004. UNODC reports indicate that Burma is a major source country for the production and trafficking of methamphetamines. But there are no reliable estimates for production.

There is no evidence that drugs produced in or smuggled via Burma reach the UK in significant quantities.

Equatorial Guinea

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his written ministerial statement on Equatorial Guinea of 1 December 2004, Official Report, columns 37–39WS, whether British officials received the Johann Smith notes after May. [202894]

Mr. Straw: On 24 May 2004 a Foreign and Commonwealth Office official received a fax, to which was attached a report, claimed to be written by Mr. Johann Smith and dated December 2003.

Ethiopia/Eritrea

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to help resolve the boundary dispute between Ethiopia and Eritrea. [200144]

Mr. Mullin: The UK is in close touch with Ethiopia and Eritrea and welcomes the recent announcement by Ethiopia of a five-point proposal for resolving the boundary dispute between Ethiopia and Eritrea. The acceptance in principle of the decision of the Boundary Commission is an important indication of Ethiopia's commitment to the Boundary Commission's final and binding decision. We remain ready to help in any we can.

European Union

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many European Community directly applicable (a) regulations and (b) directives requiring United Kingdom legislation or action have become applicable in each year since 1974; how many (i) became time expired, (ii) were replaced and (iii) became redundant in each year; and what the total figures in each category were up to December 2003. [200098]

Mr. MacShane: Information relating to the number of European Community directly applicable regulations and directives requiring United Kingdom transposition only at disproportionate cost. Government Departments record individually the primary and secondary legislation introduced to implement EU requirements. Only a small proportion of Foreign and Commonwealth Office legislation is introduced to implement EU requirements.

Similarly there is no centrally held information by the Government on European Community regulations and directives which became time expired, were replaced or became redundant in each year. However, the Commission is building up a body of knowledge in this area—it has identified more than 450 pieces of legislation which it considers could be repealed or formally recognised as obsolescent and is working to take this forward. Furthermore, we welcome Commissioner Verheugen's announcement at last week's Competitiveness Council to withdraw 100 pending Commission legislative proposals. As EU regulatory reform champions, we have strongly supported the Commission's work in this area and will continue to do so.

General Affairs and External Relations Council

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the outcome was of the General Affairs and External Relations Council held on 22 and 23 November; what the Government's stance was on the issues discussed, including its voting record; and if he will make a statement. [199753]

Mr. MacShane: The answer is as follows:

Outcome of the 22/23 November 2004 General Affairs and External Relations Council

My right hon. Friends the Foreign Secretary, the Defence Secretary and the International Development Secretary, John Grant (UK's Permanent Representative to the EU) and I represented the UK at the General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) in Brussels on 22 and 23 November.

Conclusions were agreed on: Africa—Peace and security action plan, ESDP, Middle East Peace Process, Iran, Belarus, Sudan, Ivory Coast, Somalia, and Great Lakes.

General Affairs Session

Preparation for the 17 December European Council

The Council examined an annotated draft agenda prepared by the Presidency for the European Council meeting to be held in Brussels on 16 and 17 December. It will prepare the meeting in greater detail at the GAERC on 13 and 14 December. The main agenda items are: EU enlargement, Terrorism, EU financial framework for 2007–13, EU area of freedom, security and justice, and external affairs (expected to include Middle East Peace Process, Iran, Iraq, Sudan, Afghanistan and the EU Strategic Partnership with the Mediterranean and the Middle East). The Government are largely content with the current agenda, but will discuss in greater depth at the 13 December GAERC.

Financial Framework For 2007–13 (Including External Actions)

The Council took note of a progress report on preparation of the EU's financial framework for the Commission's proposals as regards financing of the EU's external actions policies. The Presidency noted that most delegations agreed with the proposal to simplify the structure of the EU budget. Many delegations considered that the proposed new financing instruments for external relations would allow the Council adequate political control, although a number highlighted conditions to be respected and emphasised the role to be played by the member states. The Government emphasised the need for a budget structure which enabled the EU to meet its priorities flexibly. The Presidency's aim is for the European Council in December to define the principles and guidelines for further work on the new financial framework with the aim of achieving political agreement next year.

The Government have argued that the Commission's proposal for real terms spending increases of 35 per cent. from 2007 to 2013 are unrealistic and unacceptable. We believe that the priorities of an enlarged Union can be met within a budget of 1 per cent. EU GNI. We have therefore argued for a robust assessment of the value added of EU spending in order to ensure that EU spending is focussed and effective.

External Relations Session

ESDP

Defence Ministers approved the six-monthly Single Progress Report on capability development and their declaration on development of military capabilities. In particular, this declaration included commitments from member states to hold battlegroups at very high readiness from 2005. The GAERC also approved the 2005 budget and work programme of the European Defence Agency, and Defence Ministers (meeting in Agency Steering Board format) also agreed conclusions on the European Commission's Green Paper on defence procurement. The GAERC also agreed to launch the EU operation in Bosnia (EUFOR) on 2 December.

Improving European defence capability is one the Government's key aims for ESDP, and the Government have played a major role in the capability development commitments which the Council approved, in particular the battlegroups concept. The UK has offered one national battlegroup and one joint battlegroup with the Netherlands to the EU's co-ordinated pool of battlegroups for full operational capability from 2007. Together with France, the UK will provide the EU's initial operational capability in the first half of 2005. The Government supports the agreed European Defence Agency work programme, and the UK is providing the EU Force Commander in Bosnia for the first year.

Middle East Peace Process

Foreign Ministers discussed the Middle East Peace Process over lunch. The Council expressed its condolences to the Palestinian people on the occasion of President Arafat's death and commended the approach of the current leadership in organising a smooth transition. The Council reiterated its commitment to pursue the short-term programme of action proposed by High Representative Solana to the European Council and concluded that immediate action is required to support the presidential elections, to improve the security situation and to provide financial support to the Palestinian Authority. The Foreign Secretary agreed opportunity to play a stronger role. He briefed the Council on my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's positive discussion with President Bush in Washington.

Iran

Foreign Ministers also discussed Iran over lunch. They welcomed the agreement on nuclear issues and future cooperation following talks with France, Germany and the UK (E3) supported by the High Representative. The Council welcomed Iran's decision to suspend fully all enrichment related and reprocessing activities, and to sustain this suspension while negotiations are underway on an agreement on long-term arrangements. It expected Iran to take the steps necessary to enable the IAEA to report on 25 November that full suspension was in place. The Council confirmed the EU's readiness to explore ways to develop political and economic co-operation with Iran. It recalled the conclusions of the European Council on 5 November that negotiations on a Trade and Co-operation Agreement would resume as soon as suspension was verified. As part of the E3, the Government played a major part in negotiating Iran's decision to suspend fully all enrichment related and reprocessing activities.

Eu-China Relations

Over lunch Ministers addressed EU-China relations, in preparation for the EU-China Summit on 8 December 2004. A large number of subjects will be discussed at the summit with a view to raising the relationship between the EU and China to a higher level. More specifically, with regard to the arms embargo, the Presidency confirmed, following the discussion, that the EU was ready to give a positive signal to China. However, at the same time a number of concerns must be addressed, including in the field of human rights, and work must continue on strengthening the EU Code of Conduct on arms exports.

The Government support the decision of the European Council in December 2003 to review the EU Arms Embargo on China. This review is ongoing—it was last discussed by EU Foreign Ministers at the 11 October GAERC. The Government do not wish to exclude any options for the review, nor to pre-empt the conclusion of the review. The Government continues to implement the Arms Embargo as set out by the then Minister of State at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the late Derek Fatchett, in his reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Gedley (Vernon Coaker) on 3 June 1998, Official Report, columns 240–41.

Ukraine

There was widespread concern within the Council over the Ukrainian electoral process, as well as at the likely outcome. The Council considered next steps and they issued a Presidency statement calling on the Ukrainian authorities to review together with OSCE/ODIHR the electoral process and results.

Subsequent to the GAERC the Foreign Secretary made a statement on 23 November urging the Ukrainian authorities to cooperate with the OSCE to ensure that all proper procedures, including legal challenges to the results, are fully followed before declaring a final result. A copy of the Statement is available on the FCO website: www.fco.gov.uk/policy/news/press-releases. The Ukrainian authorities should investigate all allegations of fraud to ensure that the result reflects the democratic will of the Ukrainian people. We will closely monitor the situation with our EU partners.

Belarus

The Council called upon President Lukashenko and his government to reverse their present policies and to embark on fundamental democratic and economic reforms. The Council noted with concern that the 17 October 2004 parliamentary elections and referendum in Belarus were not conducted in a free and fair manner. The Council strongly condemned the attacks on peaceful demonstrators, individual opposition leaders and journalists that took place after 17 October. The Council agreed to continue to follow developments in Belarus closely and will take further action as appropriate. The Government support this approach.

Athena Financing Mechanism

The Council examined if the ATHENA mechanism for the financing of the common costs of EU-led military operations could better meet the needs of EU Rapid Response, in terms of transportation of the forces and early provision of funds to ATHENA. It came to no agreement and tasked the relevant Council bodies, in relation with the EU Military Staff and the ATHENA administrator, to continue reflecting on the most appropriate ways and means to finance EU Rapid Response.

The Government believe the the costs of deployment should normally fall to member states and should not automatically be financed in common. It is important to maintain incentives on member states to improve their capabilities in this area and to find the most effective means of deploying their forces. The Government's position received considerable support from the other partners. The Government are able to provide funds rapidly to the ATHENA mechanism when required, and therefore does not intend to participate in a common fund for this purpose.

Cote D'Ivoire

The French Foreign Minister, Michel Barnier, briefed on recent events. Almost all French nationals had now departed. The Dutch Foreign Minister Bot, speaking as the Presidency, informed Foreign Ministers that South African President Mbeki had debriefed him on his recent discussions with the key figures in the Cote d'Ivoire crisis. The Government shares the international community's condemnation of the Government of Cote d'Ivoire's breach of the cease-fire and the ensuing attacks on foreign residents. The Government continue to believe that there can be no military solution to the conflict and supports the UN and AU in their efforts to find a political settlement.

Great Lakes

The Council welcomed the outcome of the First Summit for Heads of State of the AU-UN International Conference for peace and security in the Great Lakes region. The Council stressed the importance of this process leading to a final outcome that will lead to lasting peace and stability, good governance, democracy and respect for human rights, socio-economic development and regional integration. The Council reiterated the willingness of the EU to continue its support, through the Group of Friends of the Conference, to the preparatory process for the second summit to ensure its successful outcome. The Government will do what they can to assist this process and is planning to contribute US$1 million to the Conference.

Sudan

The Council welcomed the urgently needed deployment of the military elements of the expanded African Union (AU) force in Darfur (AMIS II) and the leading role of the AU. It will consider, in close discussion with the AU, possible support for the implementation of the policing elements of AMIS II. The Council welcomed the progress achieved at the peace talks in Abuja and noted that there is urgent need for additional humanitarian assistance. The EU has already provided more that €325 million from bilateral and Community funds for 2004 but substantial additional amounts need to be raised. The EU will consider increasing its humanitarian support, while encouraging other donors to provide additional support for humanitarian operations.

The Government welcome the unanimous UN Security Council Resolution 1574. There is an urgent need for progress in resolving the Dafur crisis and to maintain the pressure on both sides (Government of Sudan and rebels) to abide by the commitments they have given. The Government welcome the AU's efforts to resolve the crisis in Darfur both through the peace talks in Abuja and through its monitoring mission on the ground. The Government will continue to press the EU to consider actively what it can do to assist and reinforce the AU's efforts.

Somalia

The Council reviewed recent developments in Somalia, in particular the establishment of the Transitional Parliament, the election of Abdullahi Yusuf Ahmed as President and the appointment of Ali Mohamed Ghedi as Prime Minster. The Council would welcome the early establishment of a broad-based government in Somalia. The Council reiterated its support for the efforts of all parties seeking peace and reconciliation in Somalia and stands ready to work with the United Nations and all relevant international organisations in supporting the peace and reconciliation process and the transition to a federal state. The Government feel it is important that the international community actively support the framework for a UN led dialogue with the Transitional Federal Government.

AOB—Guinea Bissau

Portuguese Foreign Minister Monterio gave an update on the mission of the Lusophone Community which had the objective of promoting dialogue between the government and the military and whose conclusions would focus on security sector reform. Further funding was requested. The Government currently provide multilateral support through the UN, EU and International Financial Institutions. It supports the initiative for the Lusophone Community to send a small mission to promote dialogue between the military and political communities in Guinea-Bissau.

Development Agenda—23 November 2004

2005 Millennium Development Goals Stocktake

Conclusions were adopted which outlined a collective EU approach to the 2005 Millennium Summit's stocktake on achieving the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), via a joint EU report focused on aid resources and new financing mechanisms, coherence of aid and other polices, plus a new initiative on Africa. The Government stressed that the Summit must acknowledge that progress in meeting the MDGs was much too slow, and that changes in policies were needed. The key issues were to increase aid resources; debt relief, where the UK hoped others would follow our initiative to pay off the outstanding debts of the poorest countries for the IFIs; innovative financing mechanisms; and improving trade opportunities for developing countries.

Follow up to the International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD)

Member states adopted two sets of Conclusions giving the Commission a renewed mandate to pursue its policy on these issues. The EU has played a prominent role in the ICPD context from the start and its policy and approaches are now fully aligned with the Cairo (ICPD) agenda. But more funding was needed to implement the Cairo action plan. Also, poverty diseases, especially HIV/AIDS, remain a major cause of death as indicated by shocking new figures recently revealed by UNAIDS. The Government are particularly pleased to see the links that the Conclusions make between Sexual and Reproductive Health HIV. HIV and AIDS will be a priority during the UK Presidency of the EU and G8 next year.

Monterrey Follow Up

Conclusions and the Action Plan on harmonisation were agreed. The Action Plan was drawn up by a special working party of member states' experts and will be submitted to the Second OECD Development Assistance Committee (DAC) High Level Forum on Harmonisation and Alignment for Aid Effectiveness in Paris 2005. The Government welcomed the Action Plan. It sets out minimum standards for member states and the Commission when working with one another and partner countries. But the Government consider that the EU should still strive to do more and learn from successes such as in Mozambique and Vietnam, and initiatives in conflict countries such as Sudan and Democratic Republic of Congo.

Annual Report 2004 on EC Development Policy and External Assistance

This is one of the principle tools available to assess EC's external actions programmes. The Government welcome this report as a marked improvement on previous years. However, it is still not the strategic management tool we would like it to be. It should be more analytical and focus on progress against strategic objectives, such as global poverty reduction, the MDGs and EC's Development Policy Conclusions, reflecting the UK's concerns, were agreed.

Genocide Convention

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what obligations the signatories to the Genocide Convention are required to fulfil in a situation where genocide is taking place. [199504]

Mr. Rammell: Under Article 1 of the Genocide Convention 1951, the Parties undertake to prevent and punish the crime of genocide whether committed in time of peace or war. Under Article 5, they undertake to provide effective penalties for persons guilty of genocide or genocide-related crimes, and Article 6 provides that persons charged with such acts shall be tried. In addition, in Article 7, the Parties 'pledge themselves . . . to grant extradition' in cases of genocide or genocide-related crimes.

Guantanamo Bay

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK citizens (a) are held and (b) have been held in each year since 2001 in Guantanamo Bay; and if he will make a statement. [200251]

Mr. Mullin: Eight British nationals were transferred to Guantanamo Bay in 2002 and one in 2003. Five were released and returned to the UK in March 2004. There are currently four British nationals detained at Guantanamo Bay.

The Government's position has been clear. The British detainees should either be tried fairly in accordance with international standards or they should be returned to the UK. Discussions are continuing on the situation of the remaining four.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of (a) the conditions in which detainees are held at Guantanamo Bay and (b) the prospects for detainees at Guantanamo Bay receiving a fair trial; and if he will make a statement. [200252]

Mr. Mullin: British officials have made nine welfare visits to the British detainees at Guantanamo Bay, most recently in October.

Detainees are housed in indoor accommodation with individual sleeping, toilet and washing facilities and air-ventilation. They are able to practise their religion and have access to reading and writing material. The detainees and their families can send letters to each other. Our visits have found that medical facilities at Guantanamo Bay are of a high standard.

We have had concerns about the conditions of detention of some of the British detainees, which we have actively pursued with the US authorities. We have secured improvements to the conditions in which they have been held. We continue to pursue outstanding issues.

I also refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to him today (UIN 200251).

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the UK citizens detained at Guantanamo Bay have had their cases reviewed by the Combat Status Review Tribunal; and if he will make a statement. [200253]

Mr. Mullin: The US has established a Combatant Status Review Tribunal (CSRT) process to determine whether Guantanamo Bay detainees are properly classified as enemy combatants and to permit each detainee the opportunity to contest this classification. We are following the progress of the CSRTs and are monitoring the British detainees' cases. We understand that the CSRT for Mr. Abbasi has been completed with the conclusion that he is an enemy combatant.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he intends to meet his new US counterpart to discuss UK detainees held at Guantanamo Bay; and if he will make a statement. [200254]

Mr. Mullin: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to him today (UIN 200251).

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had frequent discussions with his current US counterpart, Colin Powell, including on the British detainees in Guantanamo Bay. This dialogue will continue with the new US Secretary of State, Ms Condoleezza Rice, once she is confirmed in her position by the US Congress.

Haiti

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government is taking to ensure that the UN peace-keeping mission in Haiti reaches its full complement of 6,000 troops as soon as possible. [199749]

Mr. Rammell: The Government work to support an effective UN mission in Haiti and continues to take an active part in Security Council discussions on Haiti to ensure deployment of sufficient personnel and the best use of resources. There has been considerable progress since the establishment of the mission—particularly with recent troop deployments I refer my hon. Friend to the UN Secretary-General Report S2004/908 of 18 November, available on the UN website: www.un.org. There are currently 4,732 total uniformed personnel serving in the UN Mission in Haiti, including 3,769 troops and 963 civilian police, supported by 258 international civilian personnel and about 300 local civilian staff.

The Government place great importance on ensuring the placement of qualified and trained personnel in the UN Mission in Haiti. In September 2004, representatives of the Metropolitan Police Service provided training assistance to policemen from the Chinese Republic for their deployment in Haiti. The trainers focussed specifically on understanding and practical application of the Rules of Engagement to ensure that the Chinese contingent would have the requisite skills for effective work on the ground. Ninety-five Chinese riot police were deployed on 17 October, representing their first ever police deployment abroad.

The UK also works to support deployment of trained personnel to all UN missions. We currently have 447 military personnel and 115 civilian police officers deployed to UN operations. In addition we support capacity building of the UN through the Government's WUN Strategy*, an £8 million programme under the joint DFID/MOD/FCO Global Conflict Prevention Pool to enable the UK to run training courses to develop the skills of trainers and to support specific training exercises for countries that provide or are seeking to provide peacekeepers for UN missions.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made in the UN to ensure that disarmament in Haiti takes place effectively and involves all communities. [199750]

Mr. Rammell: The Government place great importance on Disarmament, Demobilisation and Reintegration (DDK) in all peace support operations. We worked to ensure that the mandate establishing the United Nations Stabilisation Mission in Haiti (MINUSTAH) focused on DDK. Resolution 1542 (30 April 2004) tasked MINUSTAH to 'assist the Transitional Government, particularly the Haitian National Police with comprehensive and sustainable DDR programmes for all armed groups, including women and children associated with such groups, as well as weapons control and public security measures.'

This emphasis on DDR continues to be crucial. The Government are currently involved in consultations concerning the recent UN Secretary-General's report S/2004/908 of 18 November, available on the UN website: www.un.org and the mandate renewal for MINUSTAH. In these discussions, we continue to emphasise the importance of effective DDR, including the urgency of establishing a National Commission.

The Government also support UN capacity building on DDR. This year the Government are providing over £150,000 for a project which aims to develop a comprehensive set of common and integrated policies, guidelines and Standard Operating Procedures, as well as Headquarter and field planning mechanisms and tools for the planning and conduct of DDR in a peacekeeping context.

Iraq

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what definitions he uses of (a) terrorists and (b) insurgents in relation to Iraq; what his latest estimate is of the number of (i) terrorists and (ii) insurgents operating in Iraq; how many of those (A) terrorists and (B) insurgents operating in Iraq he estimates are (1) not Iraqi citizens and (2) from a foreign country; how many (x) terrorists and (y) insurgents have been (X) killed and (Y) captured in Iraq since major combat operations ended on 1 June 2003; and if he will make a statement. [200495]

Mr. Rammell: There is a definition of terrorism in the Terrorism Act 2000 and there are also widely accepted definitions of insurgency. A large number of different groups involved in violence in Iraq fit into both categories or move between the two. It is impossible to come to a precise figure for the number of terrorists and insurgents currently operating in Iraq. We continue to believe that a sizeable number come from foreign countries. The Ministry of Defence report that in the region of 6,500 individuals have been detained by the UK since March 2003. They were either detained as a prisoner or interned war or for imperative reasons of security. There are no reliable figures for the number of terrorists and insurgents killed in Iraq since the end of major combat operations on 1 May 2003.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons the requirement that information received from allied intelligence and security agencies should not be disseminated further without the consent of the originator was not applied to the Butler Review with regard to the sharing of the intelligence on the claim that Iraq sought to procure uranium from Africa. [201259]

Mr. Straw: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave her on 17 November 2004, Official Report, column 1552W.

Ivory Coast

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with European Union counterparts regarding the conflict in Ivory Coast; and if he will make a statement. [199499]

Mr. Mullin: During a UK-France summit on 18 November, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary expressed solidarity with France's position and thanked Foreign Minister Barnier for French assistance in the evacuation of British citizens. Both agreed that it was important to return to the Linas-Marcoussis agreement, and that the situation in Côte d'Ivoire was of great importance for regional stability.

UK officials have been in regular contact with their European colleagues, including the Dutch, German and Portuguese, about the evacuation of their citizens and the wider conflict in Côte d'Ivoire.

Namibia

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the presidential and parliamentary elections held in Namibia in November; and if he will make a statement. [199500]

Mr. Mullin: In August 2004, the Southern African Development Community agreed a set of principles by which free and fair elections in the region would be judged. We believe the General and Presidential elections held in Namibia on 15/16 November accorded well with those principles.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the land reform policy in Namibia; what recent discussions the Government have had with (a) the Namibian Government and (b) white farmers' groups regarding land reform; and if he will make a statement. [199501]

Mr. Mullin: We support the need for land reform in Namibia, but any programme must be transparent, equitable and within the rule of law. Our High Commissioner in Windhoek discusses the issue regularly with the Namibian Government, the Namibian Agricultural Union and other interested parties.

Palestinian Elections

Mr. Lyons: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what discussions are planned with the Palestinian Authority on elections; [200128]

(2) if his Department will allocate funds to assist the Palestinian election in January 2005. [200130]

Mr. Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed elections with both the Israeli Government and Palestinian Authority (PA) during his visit to the region on 24 and 25 November. Abu Mazen, President of the Palestine Liberation Organisation, said that the PA had announced local elections to begin on 23 December and Presidential elections to be held on 9 January. The PA expect to be able to hold Palestinian Legislative Council elections in mid-May.

The Foreign Secretary offered full UK support to the PA's efforts. As a member of the Electoral Reform Support Group in the Occupied Territories, the UK is involved in regular consultation with the PA in order to support the conduct of elections.

We have already allocated funds to assist the Palestinian elections in January 2005. We are providing £750,000 funding in support of the Palestinian Authority's efforts to establish a Central Intervention Force whose first role will be to contribute towards election security. We are also contributing through the European Union. The European Commission has provided €10 million this year to the Central Elections Committee for presidential and legislative elections. The UK contribution accounts for 19 per cent. of EU funding.

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support the United Kingdom is giving to the Palestinian authority for the elections scheduled for 9 January 2005. [200278]

Mr. Rammell: During his visit to the region last month my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary offered full UK support to the Palestinian authority for the presidential elections in January. He also pressed the Israeli Government to do all they can to facilitate the Palestinian electoral process, including freedom of movement and allowing East Jerusalem voters to vote. Israel gave assurances it would co-operate.

We are supporting the Palestinian authority financially, both bilaterally and through the European Union. We are also supporting the elections in practical ways, for example, liaising with organisers of the EU electoral observation mission on sending out British election observers, and encouraging an Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe electoral observation mission.

Saudi Arabia

Mr. Lyons: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list British citizens held and released in Saudi Arabia since 1997. [200126]

Mr. Mullin: Since 1997, 53 British Nationals have been held in Saudi Arabia. I regret that for reasons of consular confidentiality, we are unable to list the names of these British nationals, because disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy under Exemption 12 of Part 2 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information. Other restrictions under Exemption 15 also apply; in this case the Data Protection Act 1998. However we can confirm that all except one of the 53 have been released.

Mr. Lyons: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he next expects to visit Saudi Arabia. [200127]

Mr. Rammell: Foreign engagements for my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and other Ministers are kept under constant review. It is not our practice to announce such visits until they are firm. Because of the unpredictable nature of world events, final decisions on overseas visits are often not possible until very shortly before the day of travel.

The Foreign Secretary visited Saudi Arabia in March and October this year.

Voter Registration

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what extra resources will be made available to embassies and high commissions in their efforts to publicise overseas voter registration, following his meeting on 10 November with the Electoral Commission. [200483]

Mr. Mullin: The Electoral Commission has the lead responsibility for publicising overseas registration. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) supports their efforts. The FCO has not been approached by the Electoral Commission to provide additional assistance. However, we are willing to consider any requests we receive.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what decisions were taken at the meeting between representatives of his Department and the Electoral Commission on 10 November regarding assistance from his Department to the Electoral Commission in its efforts to publicise overseas voter registration. [200484]

Mr. Mullin: At its last meeting with the Electoral Commission on 10 November, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) reiterated its support for the Commission, as lead agency, in its efforts to publicise overseas voter registration.

Although no clear indication of what assistance they require was given by the Electoral Commission, the FCO undertook as in previous years, to make any suitable publicity material produced by the Electoral Commission—such as leaflets and posters—available through its network of overseas Posts. Where possible, the FCO would also assist in local advertising ahead of any visit overseas by an Electoral Commission spokesperson. The Electoral Commission agreed to inform the FCO of any changes required to the overseas voter registration content on the FCO website: www.fco.gov.uk and relevant FCO post websites.

HEALTH

Salt

15. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on his Department's policy on levels of dietary salt intake. [202216]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Government are committed, through the NHS Plan and the recently published White Paper Choosing Health: "Making healthy choices easier", to reducing population average intakes of salt in order to reduce the burden of cardio-vascular disease. The Department of Health and the Food Standards Agency are working with the food industry and others to reduce the salt content of processed foods to reduce population average intakes to 6g per day by 2010.

Funding

16. Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures he is taking to reduce inequalities in NHS funding between health authorities. [202217]

Mr. Hutton: We aim to move PCT funding as quickly as practical to their fair shares. We have already made significant progress in moving in this direction. We intend to accelerate this progress in the next round of PCT allocations.

Allergy Clinics

17. Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, To ask the Secretary of State for Healthif he will make a statement on the availability of NHS allergy clinics. [202218]

Dr. Ladyman: GPs provide an excellent service for people with mild to moderate allergies, and refer patients with more severe problems to an appropriate Consultant in the local hospital. People with complex multiple allergies can be referred to specialist allergy clinics; by their GP or by their Consultant.

MRSA

18. Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the incidence of MRSA in East Sussex hospitals. [202219]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I am advised that both Trusts in the East Sussex area have clear policies and strategies in place for reducing MRSA.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what extra resources have been made available to Medway Maritime NHS Trust to combat the MRSA virus. [202212]

Dr. John Reid: We have made clear that reducing healthcare associated infection is a key priority for all National Health Service organisations.

Between 2003–04 and 2005–06, Medway Primary Care Trust which commissions services from Medway Maritime NHS Trust will receive increases of £61.2 million for health care services, including reducing hospital infections.

Greater Manchester Surgical Unit

20. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions have taken place between the relevant strategic health authority and the Department of Health about the Greater Manchester surgical unit. [202221]

Miss Johnson: Greater Manchester Strategic Health Authority (SHA) has developed the Greater Manchester Surgical Unit in close co-operation with and under the guidance of the Department of Health.

Assessment of local delivery options is for the SHA to make as part of its capacity planning and local delivery planning responsibilities. All SHAs have recently submitted their capacity planning returns, which are currently the subject of discussions between DH and the SHAs.

Care Homes

21. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many residential care home beds have closed since 1997. [202222]

Dr. Ladyman: Information on the number of residential care home places that have closed is not centrally available.

Information on the number of residential care home places in England for adults aged 18 and over, at 31 March for the years 1997 to 2001 is shown in the table.

I understand from the Chair of the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) that figures for later years were collected by the National Care Standards Commission, and now CSCI, but comparable details are not available.

However, the recent edition of the Laing & Buisson Care of Elderly People Market Survey 2004 puts the national bed capacity in care homes from adults with physical disabilities and people over 64 at 456,000 with demand estimated to be around 444,000, leaving UK spare capacity of 12,000. The report shows that although capacity has fallen, occupancy dropped by an identical amount.

Dentists

23. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the impact of the new dentists' contract on dental laboratories in personal dental service pilot sites. [202224]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We commissioned an evaluation of the Personal Dental Service schemes, which was published in 2002 in advance of planning of the new contractual arrangements for NHS dentistry to come into force from October 2005. The report supported the general principles of PDS and identified some changes in activity, including an indication that dentists may prescribe proportionately fewer intricate dental appliances under PDS than dentists working to the current General Dental Services contract. However, the sample was small and it is too early to draw any firm conclusions.

Cialis (Counterfeiting)

Mr. Flook: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he has discussed the counterfeiting of cialis and its discovery in the legitimate supply chain with relevant authorities in (a) the Netherlands and (b) other EU member states. [201686]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has been in contact with counterparts in all European Union countries, including the Netherlands, with regards to the counterfeiting of Cialis and its discovery in the legitimate supply chain. The mechanisms for contact include the recall of counterfeit medicines via the defective medicines reporting centre at the MHRA, and rapid alert notices sent through the EU enforcement network.

Since the discovery, a criminal investigation was instigated by the enforcement group of the MHRA. Senior officers from the MHRA have met with their counterparts from the Netherlands, Belgium, Spain, Ireland, Sweden and Germany. The specific matters discussed are operational and confidential to the enquiry.

Cigarette Sales

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether proposals to raise the minimum age of sale in retail premises from 16 to 18 years for cigarettes are included in the White Paper consultation process. [201724]

Miss Melanie Johnson: There are no plans to increase the minimum age of sales of tobacco from 16 to 18. We are not aware of any evidence that such a change would have a significant impact in reducing smoking rates in children and young people.

However, the Government are concerned about the problem of illegal sales of cigarettes to children and young people and has proposed in the White Paper "Choosing Health", that there be increased sanctions for retailers who repeatedly flout the law on under-age sales. The White Paper proposes higher fines and new powers to prohibit retailers from selling tobacco if they persistently sell to under age children and young people.

Correspondence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his target time is in 2004–05 (a) to reply to letters from hon. Members and (b) for the officials in his Office to reply to letters received directly from members of the public. [200785]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The target for replying to both of the above sorts of letters is that we should answer 90 per cent. within 20 working days of receipt.

Dentistry

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his estimate is of the number of general and personal dental service dentists per head of population in each (a) local authority and (b) health authority area; and if he will make a statement. [199901]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The numbers of general and personal dental service dentists at September 2003 per ten thousand population in each strategic health authority (SHA) area are shown in the table.Information showing the numbers in each local authority (LA) area has been placed in the Library. We are committed to a major expansion of the dental workforce, including the recruitment of the equivalent of 1,000 extra dentists and the funding of an additional 170 undergraduate dental training places by October 2005.

by region. [200546]

Dentists practising in several SNA or LA areas are counted in each area in which they practise.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dental schools have (a) opened and (b) closed since 1984; and if he will make a statement. [199918]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No new dental schools have been opened since 1984. In 1992, the University College London and Edinburgh dental schools were closed with the loss of some 80 training places. We are committed to funding an additional 170 undergraduate training places for dentists by October 2005, an increase of 25 per cent. over the number of home students currently admitted to dental schools in England.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many adults had a full set of dentures (a) in 1984, (b) in 1994 and (c) on the most recent date for which figures are available. [199919]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information is not available in the form requested, but the decennial adult dental health surveys commissioned by the Department show that the percentage of adults with no teeth has fallen from 37 per cent. in 1968 to 12 per cent. in 1998.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of (a) adults and (b) children were registered with a NHS dentist in (i) England, (ii) each strategic health authority and (iii) each primary care trust in each year since 1997. [199927]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Table 1 shows the percentages of adults and children registered with a general dental service (GDS) dentist in England at 30 September in each of the years 1997 to 2004. Table 2 shows the percentage rates for each strategic health authority (SHA). Information showing a breakdown by primary care trust (PCT) has been placed in the Library.

The changes in the registration periods from 1 September 1996 affected the registration numbers from December 1997 onwards, so the 1997 figures are not comparable with the later figures. The registration figures for the later years are affected by dentists switching from the general dentist service to the personal dentist service. Patients may access national health service dental services without being registered.

The population figures for England and the SHAs were issued on 7 October. For the year 2004, population figures for 2003 have been used. Population figures by PCT are available only for the years 2001 and 2002. The 2001 figures have been used to calculate the registration rates for the years to 2001. The 2001 figures have been used to calculate the registration rates for the years 2002–04.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of people in each region with no teeth. [199963]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The available information is for the percentage of adults with no natural teeth in 1995 and is in Table 1. Similar information for the year 2003 will be published by the Office for National Statistics on 16 December 2004.

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the equipment leasing arrangements entered into by his Department in each of the last two years; and what the cost is to public funds in each case. [200781]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not routinely identify all leasing expenditure and cannot provide this confirmation without incurring disproportionate costs.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what creche facilities are provided by his Department; and at what cost. [200784]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not provide creche facilities for its staff.

There is an on site nursery for members of staff at the Department's Leeds office, which is provided at the rate of £24 per day and is shared with members of staff at the Department of Work and Pensions.

For other members of staff, the Department provides childcare allowances towards the cost of nursery and out of school care. It also provides an on-site holiday playscheme subsidised at the rate of £10 per day for children of staff members who are of school age, during the holidays. The budget for the allowances and for running the playscheme last year was £220,000.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of refurbishing each Ministerial Private Office was in the last two years. [200789]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The cost of refurbishing Department's Ministerial Private Offices in the last two years was £15,000 in 2002–03 and £70,000 in 2003–04.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his estimate is of the cost of building refurbishment carried out by his Department in each of the last two years. [200790]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The cost of building refurbishment to the Department of Health's administrative estate was £1,978,000 in 2002–03 and £2,840,000 in 2003–04.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost has been of criminal damage to his Department's buildings in each of the last two years. [200793]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has not incurred any costs in the last two years because of criminal damage.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost to his Department was for accountancy services in each of the last two years. [200795]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department's accounting system does not collect information in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many departmental mobile telephones were used by Ministers, special advisers and officials in his Department in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202157]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 6 December 2004]: Details of numbers and users of central Departmental mobile phones are not kept on an annual basis. Information is, therefore, available only on the current position. There are 1,102 mobile phones currently in use, of which nine are used by Ministers and special advisers and 1,093 by officials.

The costs of the equipment, call charges and line rental in each financial year since 2001–02 are shown in the table. Figures for the years 1997–98 to 2000–01 are not available.

Financial year	Costs (£)
2001–02	270,000

Departmental Pay

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the gender pay gap among staff in his Department. [200782]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department undertook an audit of the pay of staff below senior civil service level in 2003. This revealed no significant areas of concern and concluded that there was no evidence of gender bias in respect of starting salaries. The Department's managers are required to consider equal pay issues when considering both starting salary and awarding any pay flexibilities.

The Department is currently reviewing its pay strategy and will ensure that any future strategy continues to avoid a gender bias.

Doncaster and Bassetlaw Hospital

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding Doncaster and Bassetlaw Hospital has received in each year since the hospitals were merged. [201739]

Miss Melanie Johnson: Income for the Doncaster and Bassetlaw Hospitals NHS Trust from 2001–02 to 2002–03 is shown in the table.

	Income (£)
2001–02	161,938,000
2002–03	178,597,000
2003–04	192,778,000

Note:
NHS trusts do not normally receive funding direct from the Department, but receive income for service provision largely from primary care trusts. Figures above show the total income of the trust, including all income from activities and all other operating income.

Energy Costs

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the impact of recent large wholesale gas prices on the energy costs of the NHS; and what effect this will have on frontline services. [200556]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The price of gas has risen by approximately 57 per cent. between 1 November 2003 and 1 November 2004. This equates to a cost increase of about £41 million per annum, including Value Added Tax, on the national contracts.

Gene Therapy

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will commission research to investigate the results of the gene therapy research referred to in the Gene Therapy Advisory Committee's open letter of 5 November, concerning the development of liver tumours in mice when treated with a lentivial vector. [201136]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Government have recently spent £1 million of funding to support academic research into the safety of gene therapy, which includes looking at the safety of retroviruses of which lentiviruses are a sub-type.

There are no plans to commission additional research to investigate the results of the gene therapy research referred to in the gene therapy advisory committee's open letter of 5 November.

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which research group conducted the gene therapy research referred to in the Gene Therapy Advisory Committee's open letter of 5 November concerning liver tumours in mice treated with a lentivial vector; [201140]

(2) who funded the research referred to in the Gene Therapy Advisory Committee's open letter of 5 November concerning liver tumours in mice. [201141]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The research referred to in the Gene Therapy Advisory Committee's open letter of 5 November 2004 was conducted at Imperial College London at the division of biomedical sciences (cell and molecular biology section). The group is funded by contributions from a variety of sources, such as a Medical Research Council programme grant, the Katherine Dormandy Trust and the United Kingdom based biopharmacetical company Oxford BioMedica.

GP Fundholding

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on differences between practice-based commissioning and GP fundholding. [202225]

Mr. Hutton: Practice Based commissioning lacks Fundholding's inequitable distribution of resources, will involve competition on quality rather than price and any savings from Practice Based Commissioning will be directly invested in patient services.

Health Direct

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the (a) costs of establishing and (b) running costs of Health Direct. [199479]

Miss Melanie Johnson: An announcement concerning the cost of Health Direct will be made in due course.

Health Promotion

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the first pilot on the effectiveness on promoting health and well-being through the workplace, as described in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 25, to be established. [199448]

Miss Melanie Johnson: "Choosing Health—Making healthier choices easier" sets out a range of initiatives to improve activity levels.

The Big Lottery Fund, the British Heart Foundation and Sport England are currently in the process of selecting the first wave of pilots which will commence in 2005. Full details will be published in due course.

Health White Paper

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate he has made of the cost of the Healthy Start communications campaign, as defined in the White Paper, Choosing Health, Cm 6374, paragraph 38; [199464]

(2) what the cost to date has been on publicity campaigns for the Welfare Food Scheme. [199465]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The welfare food scheme has been in existence since 1940 and information campaigns have been run periodically. The most recent communication campaign was to promote the new application process for pregnant women, introduced on 1 October 2004, that provides greater opportunities for healthcare professionals to offer pregnant women advice on diet and nutrition. This campaign, which is the first stage of the reform of the welfare food scheme, cost £78,923, including the distribution of the materials through the waiting room information service.

To support this new application procedure and the implementation of "Healthy Start", we published an infant feeding and child nutrition resource pack on 26 November 2004 that has been distributed to all members of the Royal College of Midwives and the Community Practitioners and Health Visitors Association. We are currently drawing up further plans for a comprehensive communications campaign to promote "Healthy Start" to parents, health professionals and food outlets. The implementation of this and a number of other initiatives announced will be in a delivery plan for the White Paper to be published early in 2005.

Healthy Eating

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will ensure that all primary care trusts work with other relevant bodies to develop a healthy food policy for their area. [201881]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The White Paper "Choosing Health" identifies a healthy diet as one of the priorities for preventing ill health in future as part of our new approach to public health. We aim to publish a delivery plan early in 2005, which will give details on implementing the commitments made in the White Paper, including the particular roles and responsibilities for health improvement of all health organisations. As part of this delivery programme, we will also publish a delivery plan for food and health.

Hospital Infections

Mr. Lyons: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital trusts in England have equipment to identify MRSA on admission to hospital. [200889]

Miss Melanie Johnson: Information on the equipment used in trusts is not collected centrally. All national health service trusts have access to microbiology laboratory facilities that can identify methicillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus by traditional culture methods. Newer rapid screening methods are being developed and may be used in some trusts.

Invoice Payments

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average length of time was between the date of invoices issued to his Department from a supplier and payment by the Department of the invoice in the last 12 months for which figures are available; what percentage of these invoices were paid within 30 days of the date of issue of the invoice; what percentage of these invoices remained unpaid after 90 days; and if he will make a statement on the Department's policy on the payment of invoices issued to it. [200621]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not analyse its records in a way which would readily show the average time taken to pay invoices. 93.29 per cent. of all invoices, in the year November 2003 to October 2004, were paid within 30 days.

Currently 0.14 per cent. of invoices remain unpaid after 90 days.

The Department's policy is that; where there is no contractual provision or other understanding or accepted practice governing the time of payment, the Department should pay within 30 days of receipt of goods and services, or of the presentation of a valid invoice or similar demand for payment, whichever is the later.

Laryngectomy Patients

Mrs. Helen Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which items are available on prescription to laryngectomy patients; [200273]

(2) what mechanisms are in place to inform general practitioners of the availability of items on prescription, with particular reference to laryngectomy patients.[200274]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Part IXA of the drug tariff lists tracheostomy and laryngectomy appliances that are available on prescription to national health service patients.

General practitioners receive a copy of the drug tariff on a monthly basis through their primary care trust.

Making Amends

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he will publish the Government's response to the Making Amends consultation. [203143]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Consultation ended on 17 October 2003. The responses are being used to help further develop detailed policy proposals. An announcement will be made in due course.

Mental Illness (Smoking Cessation)

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people suffering from mental illness have been referred to NHS Smoking Cessation programmes. [203195]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The information requested is not collected centrally.

NHS Plus Services

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the costs of increasing availability of NHS Plus services described in the "Choosing Health" White Paper. [202270]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The services of NHS Plus occupational health departments are provided on a commercial basis. Any surplus funds over and above the cost of supplying services may be used to expand the activities of NHS Plus. NHS Plus is run as an income generation scheme in accordance with the guidance issued in the national health service finance manual, "NHS Trusts—Detailed Guidance" chapter 30. It is not anticipated that increasing the availability of NHS Plus services will be a cost to the Department.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures his Department will take to audit NHS Plus services. [202280]

Ms Rosie Winterton: NHS Plus is the title under which about 100 trusts sell occupational health services to non-national health service employers, largely focused on small and medium sized enterprises. Each of the occupational health departments providing these services audits its own work in accordance with the clinical governance arrangements of the trust. The Department does not collect centrally, audit data from individual trusts.

Obesity

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to publish his Department's response to the Third Report of the Health Select Committee of Session 2003–04, HC23, on Obesity; and for what reason his Department has been unable to supply a response within the six month time limit understood by convention. [202742]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Government's response will be published shortly.

A substantive response could only be published following the completion of the public health White Paper "Choosing Health".

GPs (Recruitment)

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress he is making in recruiting more general practitioners. [202220]

Mr. Hutton: In June 2004 there were 31,215 GPs (excluding retainers, registrars and locums) working for the NHS. This is an increase of 3,169 (11.3 per cent.) since 1997.

Timber

Mrs. Calton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to fund the establishment and maintenance of the central point of expertise on timber. [201260]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department supports the initiative to set up the central point of expertise on timber (CPET). We are committed to purchasing from sustainable sources and we purchase our wooden furniture from companies that meet the highest environmental standards.

However, the Department's requirement for construction timber is minimal and is not likely to increase in the foreseeable near future. We have to concentrate resources on issues that directly relate to health. As the CPET does not meet this criterion, the Department is not able to contribute at the present time.

Mental Health (Wycombe)

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether Wycombe Primary Care Trust intends to discontinue making placements to employment schemes provided by Wycombe Mind; [203085]

(2) what day services previously available to people with mental health problems at Harlow House in High Wycombe have been withdrawn in the last 12 months. [203086]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In line with our policy of "Shifting the Balance of Power", supported by national service frameworks, it is now for primary care trusts (PCTs), in partnership with strategic health authorities and other local stakeholders, to plan, develop and improve services for local people, subject to their assessment of local need.

We recognise that health services are better when management is devolved to the frontline. Within the framework set out in the "NHS Plan" and other policy documents, PCTs, with their specialised knowledge of the local community are effectively able to manage and improve local services.

I therefore suggest that the hon. Member liaises directly with the local national health service.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture and Fisheries Council

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the outcome was of the Agriculture and Fisheries Council on 22 and 23 November; what the Government's stance was on the issues discussed, including its voting record; and if she will make a statement. [199752]

Margaret Beckett: My hon. Friend the Under-Secretary and I represented the United Kingdom at a meeting of the Agriculture and Fisheries Council in Brussels on 22 and 23 November 2004. The Scottish, Welsh and Northern Irish Ministers with responsibility for agriculture and fisheries were also present.

The Council opened on the first day in office of the new Commission. The Council welcomed Commissioners Mariann Fischer-Boel, Markos Kyprianou and Joe Borg to their new posts.

The Presidency secured qualified majority support for a political agreement on a compromise text updating the current rules on the welfare of animals during transport. I supported the proposal, which contains significant improvements to the current rules, including a strengthening of the enforcement rules in Europe, stricter rules for journeys of more than eight hours and new rules for the transport of horses. The proposal also sets out a clear timetable for the review of the new rules together with a commitment to address the issue of journey times, space allowances and rest periods no later than four years after they have come into effect.

The Council had a lengthy exchange of views on reform in the sugar sector, based on the Commission's communication of July 2004. The Commission indicated that it would not make formal proposals until May or June next year when the result of the EU's appeal against a WTO panel ruling on the sugar regime had been received. The Commission would press for political agreement before the WTO Ministerial scheduled for Hong Kong in December 2005. A majority of member states were critical of the Commission's approach thus far and argued for minimal change, principally aimed at maintaining production in all those areas of the EU where it is currently found. I argued that the current regime was unsustainable and that reform was inescapable. The EU needed to honour its external obligations and I welcomed the Commission's commitment to bringing forward a draft action plan for assistance to the ACP countries by the end of the year.

In a brief discussion of the rural development and CAP financing proposals, there was general support for the rural development measures, although concerns were expressed on a number of specific issues such as the proposed structure for the new regulation and the treatment of less favoured areas. I stressed the importance of further transfers to Pillar 2 measures, the case for a more objective allocation of funds and the need for equitable treatment of the non-euro member states. Discussion will continue at official level.

The Presidency drew attention to its initiative for member states to co-operate on agricultural research in order to avoid duplication and to maximise value for money. I supported this initiative and expressed our readiness to co-operate with Luxembourg in taking it forward next year.

Under Other Business, Estonia described its problems relating to a Russian ban on imports of plant material. Spain called for collaboration with Morocco in the field of animal health, Germany asked the Commission to bring forward legislation on the marketing of seeds of plant varieties of conservation importance, and Slovakia requested funding under the natural disasters heading following gales in the High Tatras national park.

The Commission reported progress in the bilateral negotiations on a 2005 fisheries agreement with Norway. Good progress had been made in a first round of negotiations on 15–19 November, including provisional agreement on some of the more contentious issues. My hon. Friend and other member states congratulated the Commission on progress so far while underlining the importance of concluding the negotiations rapidly so that EU fishermen are able to fish in Norway waters from 1 January.

The Council had a first debate on the Commission's proposals for a European Fisheries Fund (to replace the existing fund for structural improvements in the fisheries sector from 2007). My hon. Friend made clear that the proposal from certain other member states that this should provide for subsidies for fleet renewal would mean going back on a key plank of the 2002 reform of the Common Fisheries Policy and was not acceptable. Discussions will continue next year.

The Council reached agreement by qualified majority on a proposal to allocate quotas to deep sea species to certain new member states, based on a presidency compromise tabled at the meeting. Although the compromise went some way towards requests from the United Kingdom and others that new allocations should be on the same basis as allocation to the EU15, the UK abstained in the vote because the proposal had not cleared Parliamentary Scrutiny and because the Government have concerns about the management regime for deep sea species.

The Council held a discussion on management measures for fisheries in the Baltic Sea.

Countryside Access (Consultation)

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she intends to publish the results of her consultation on four-wheel drive vehicles and access to the countryside on by-ways open to all traffic. [202061]

Alun Michael: I intend to publish the response to the consultation on the "Use of mechanically propelled vehicles on rights of way" in January.

Departmental Expenditure

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what budget has been set by her Department for (a) consumption of resources and (b) capital spending for (i) environmental protection, (ii) animal health and welfare, (iii) food, farming and fisheries, (iv) land use and rural affairs, (v) departmental operations, (vi) the Rural Payments Agency and (vii) other executive agencies for (A) 2005–06, (B) 2006–07 and (C) 2007–08. [202039]

Alun Michael: The 2004 departmental report (Cm 6219) shows financial breakdowns for departmental spending up to 2005–06. The information includes how budgets are allocated to deliver the department's functions and objectives. At present, final internal management decisions on budgets for 2006–07 and 2007–08 (plus revisions to 2005–06) are still being made. The next departmental report due to be published in spring 2005, will set out information on budgets up to 2007–08 and reflect any organisational changes which have been made over the last year.

Gangmasters

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Gangmasters (Licensing) Act 2004 is expected to come fully into force. [199441]

Alun Michael: Since the Gangmasters (Licensing) Act received Royal Assent in July 2004, a Commencement Order has been laid before Parliament bringing into effect from 1 December 2004 those provisions in the Act which relate to the establishment of the Gangmasters Licensing Authority. Consultation on the draft Gangmaster Licensing Authority Regulations has been completed and it is anticipated that the regulations will be presented to the House for consideration immediately after Christmas. If the House is content, it should be possible to legally establish the Licensing Authority by 1 April 2005.

Once established, the authority will need to develop and put in place licensing arrangements. This will include work to develop the conditions to be attached to a licence and the associated audit and compliance arrangements. We are working with stakeholders to ensure that the authority will be in a position to make early progress on these issues. We hope that the authority can start dealing with the first round of licence applications in 2005 with a view to completing the process of issuing first licences by mid 2006.

In the mean time, the Code of Practice launched recently by the Ethical Trading Initiative Temporary Labour Working Group, provides an important opportunity for the whole food chain to show its commitment to a reduction in worker exploitation while work on the introduction of the statutory licensing arrangements proceeds in parallel.

Once the first round of licence applications have been dealt with we will bring the offence of operating as a gangmaster without a licence into effect. At this stage all gangmasters will need to be licensed.

Land Reform

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has for reform of land ownership in England. [202060]

Alun Michael: None.

Roadside Lighting

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the reduction in (a) electricity use and (b) carbon dioxide emissions if all roadside lighting in the UK were to switch to LED illuminations. [202069]

Mr. Jamieson: I have been asked to reply.

The light output and efficiency of high intensity light emitting diodes (LEDs) can now equal or better that of incandescent lamps. However, the light output is still significantly less than the gas discharge light sources used for street lighting, for example high pressure sodium. At present both electricity consumption and carbon dioxide emissions would increase if the UK switched to LEDs for street lighting.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the total (a) electricity use and (b) carbon dioxide emissions produced by (i) roadside street lighting and (ii) other public illumination of roadside signage in the last year for which figures are available. [202070]

Mr. Jamieson: I have been asked to reply.

Street lighting in England is the responsibility of local highway authorities in respect of local roads and the Highways Agency in respect of the trunk road network. The electricity supply for public lighting is not normally metered, but is based on notional lamp wattages and hours of use. The actual electricity consumption is therefore unknown. It is for local highway authorities to decide whence to source their electricity supply so, even if the power consumption could be established, calculations about the carbon dioxide emissions produced by street lighting would be impossible without knowing what proportion of authorities have contracted for "green" energy sources.

Rural Funding

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how rural funding under the single farm payment will be implemented. [200418]

Alun Michael: The CAP reform package agreed in June 2003 allows modulated funds to be compulsorily transferred from farming subsidies to agri-environment and other rural development schemes in all EU member states. A 3 per cent. rate of compulsory EU modulation will apply to subsidy payments in 2005 rising to 5 per cent. from 2007. In addition the UK secured agreement to allow an additional voluntary modulation rate to be levied over and above the EU rate.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the implications for rural areas of the new rural funding scheme, with particular reference to North Yorkshire. [200419]

Alun Michael: As part of the Rural Strategy 2004 we announced a simplified funding framework which will be clearly focused on the key targets set out by the Secretary of State, particularly deprivation or social exclusion in rural areas and underperforming rural economies. Delivery will be devolved as much as possible. As a result of our work on the rural database, Defra funding will be better targeted at priorities, with greater regional partnership working and prioritisation. Customers and the public will face a less confusing situation and will receive better information and support in their dealings with our delivery agencies.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which body will be the delivery body for the new rural funding scheme. [200420]

Alun Michael: The new rural funding framework we announced in Rural Strategy 2004 will have three core funds designed to support three departmental priorities. They are: sustainable rural communities; sustainable farming and food; and natural resource protection. Each will have a grant funding and a core (organisational capacity) funding element. In this framework, Regional Development Agencies will take the lead on regeneration and socio-economic funding, support for the rural voluntary and community sector will rest primarily with Rural Community Councils and their partners, supported by Government Offices, while the new Integrated Agency (also announced in Rural Strategy 2004) will deliver natural resource protection and environmental land-management funding.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the implications for parish plans of the streamlining process for rural funding. [200421]

Alun Michael: In Rural Strategy 2004 we announced that we would simplify our funding framework with delivery devolved as much as possible with parish and town councils playing an important role at the local level. The value of parish plans has been enhanced by the attention and support given to the work of parish and town councils by Ministers and officials at ODPM and Defra, not least through the qualification of clerks and the QUALITY Parish and Town Councils scheme. Having been promoted through pilot schemes on our behalf by the Countryside Agency, we are now working to "mainstream" the parish plan approach and to support further development through the future funding framework.

Training Courses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by her Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98. [200392]

Alun Michael: The responses to parts (a), (b) and (c) of this question for the financial years 2000–01 to 2003–04 are contained in the summary table.

These details relate only to the core corporate courses delivered by external training providers.

Defra is fully committed to providing access to training for its staff to enable them to deliver Defra's business and to develop them to their full potential.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200412]

Alun Michael: The total financial penalties paid equates to 1.4 per cent. of the £5,152,982 total spent on core corporate learning and development in Defra during financial years 2000–01 to 2003–04.

	Cost (£)
2000–01	14,577.28

2002–03	727.66
2003–04	11,147.75
Total	72,601.44

[1] The increased penalties paid in financial year 2001–02 can largely be attributed to the disruption to staff caused by the foot and mouth crisis.

TRANSPORT

Age Discrimination

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his Department's policy is towards age discrimination. [202422]

Charlotte Atkins: The Department's commitment not to discriminate unfairly on the grounds of age is set out clearly in its equal opportunities policy.

We are undertaking a study of the implications for the Department of the forthcoming legislation on age discrimination. Following the study we will prepare a programme of diversity/equality training for managers, and guidance addressing age discrimination.

We have taken steps to introduce flexibility around retirement age: members of the Department below the Senior Civil Service now have the option to remain in work until 65.

Bus Shelters

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on the (a) replacement and (b) repair of damaged bus shelters in each of the last three years. [202772]

Charlotte Atkins: The Department for Transport does not collect the information requested. The maintenance of bus shelters is a matter for local transport authorities and their private sector partners.

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many new bus shelters have been built in each year since 1996–97; how many shelters were upgraded in each year; and how many have been removed during that time. [202773]

Charlotte Atkins: The Department for Transport does not collect information of the sort requested. An answer could, therefore, be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Consultants

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total cost to his Department was for the use of external consultants in each of the last two years. [202427]

Charlotte Atkins: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the then Under-Secretary of State on 21 May 2004, Official Report, column 1231W, to the hon. Member for Castle Point (Bob Spink).

Departmental Advertising

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in which Muslim newspapers the Department advertises; and what kinds of advertising the Department places in Muslim newspapers. [201691]

Charlotte Atkins: The Department's main publicity campaign is the THINK! road safety campaign, which is promoted primarily through TV and radio advertising. We have placed very little press advertising to support THINK! since the Department was formed in 2002 and did not target Muslim newspapers specifically.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many departmental mobile telephones were used by Ministers, special advisers and officials in his Department and its predecessors in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202169]

Charlotte Atkins [holding answer 6 December 2004]: The Department for Transport was created on 29 May 2002. It is not possible to provide figures before this date.

The number of mobile phones used by Ministers and special advisers is as follows:

	Ministers	Special advisers
2002	3	2
2003	4	2
2004	4	2

As the Department does not maintain central records of mobile phones it is not possible to provide further information except at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Telephones

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is on the use of telephones in his Department by members of staff for their personal use for (i) domestic calls and (ii) international calls; and if he will make a statement. [201079]

Charlotte Atkins: Staff have guidance setting out their responsibilities not to misuse the telephone, e-mail and internet systems. In order to ensure that the systems are not abused and that the Department's security is not compromised, the Department may monitor, calls from time to time.

Access to all international numbers is only granted to staff who have a business need to make such international calls. Calls to premium cost networks such as premium rate numbers and some foreign mobile networks are barred completely.

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures have been taken to ensure the telephones in his Department are not used by staff for making unauthorised personal calls to international numbers. [201080]

Charlotte Atkins: Access to all international numbers is only granted to staff who have a business need to make such international calls. Daily call logging reports are provided which highlight the longest and highest cost calls. As a result, some staff have been made to refund the cost of high cost personal calls. Calls to premium cost networks, such as premium rate numbers and some foreign mobile networks, are barred completely.

Driving Tests

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average length of time is between receipt of an application for a (a) theory driving test and (b) practical driving test and the date of the test in (i) Southwark, (ii) Greater London and (iii) England; and if he will make a statement. [203392]

Mr. Jamieson: The information is as follows:

(a) Theory Tests

Days

Centre/area	Average time between booking and test (A)	Average time between preferred date and test (B)
Southwark	25	7
London and south east area	20	4
England	18	2

Many candidates prefer to book their theory test some time in advance, as the above data illustrates. Therefore, the average time between booking date and test (shown in column (A)) does not represent the length of time candidates must wait before they may take a test. The average waiting time is more accurately reflected by measuring the number of days between appointment date requested and appointed date allocated (column (B)).

The Driving Standards Agency (DSA) does not analyse data for Greater London as a discrete area. Figures given, therefore, relate to the London and south east area.

(b) Practical Car Tests

Centre/area	Average waiting time (weeks)
Hither Green DTC	10
South Norwood DTC	11
London and south east area	10.4
Great Britain	7.5

There is no practical driving test centre (DTC) at Southwark. The nearest test centres are located at Hither Green and South Norwood. DSA does not analyse data for Greater London as a discrete area. Figures given, therefore, relate to the London and south east area. Data for practical tests is not readily available for England as distinct from other countries in Great Britain. DSA has a target to maintain a national average waiting time for car practical tests of six weeks and is seeking to reduce the current figure to target.

Lifeline Flights

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the areas in the UK that should benefit from public service obligations for lifeline flights. [202683]

Charlotte Atkins: The Government have recently consulted with stakeholders on the interpretation of the criteria outlined in the European Regulation governing Public Service Obligations (PSOs). We aim to publish guidance next year on the interpretation of those criteria in establishing PSOs to London airports.

Motorways

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the (a) lane closure and (b) roadworks on the M62 between junctions 35 and 38 will finish. [201876]

Mr. Jamieson: The roadworks on the M62 between junctions 35 and 38 are currently being carried out using a contraflow system. The westbound carriageway is closed and traffic is being directed onto the eastbound carriageway.

In the week commencing 6 December there will be a lane two and three closure eastbound in place followed by a westbound lane three closure. The roadworks are due for completion on 10 December, subject to weather conditions.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects the first motorway picnic area to be operative under the provisions of clause 40 of the Road Safety Bill. [203081]

Mr. Jamieson: Once the Road Safety Bill has completed its passage through Parliament, the Secretary of State for Transport will have the authority under Clause 40 to establish a motorway rest area. It is expected that this could be by July 2005. The first picnic area could then be operative, subject to obtaining the appropriate planning consents and the availability of funding, by summer 2008.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many motorway services are operating; and what plans the Government has to increase the number. [203075]

Mr. Jamieson: There are currently 69 motorway service areas operating in England. Since 1992 it has been Government policy that the private sector should be responsible for bringing forward proposals for motorway service stations through the planning system. Consequently, any increase in the number of motorway service areas would be through commercial development.

Railways

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what impact the designation of the Grantham to Skegness branch line as a Community Rail Line pilot will have on (a) maintenance funding, (b) service improvement, (c) freight traffic and (d) improving facilities at stations along the line. [202908]

Mr. McNulty: The Grantham to Skegness line is proposed as a pilot scheme under the Government's Community Rail Development Strategy. The objectives of the strategy are to provide a strategic framework for local and rural lines within which they can develop and be put on a sustainable basis for the medium to long term through increasing ridership, freight use and net revenue, managing costs down and greater involvement from the local community. The purpose of the pilot projects is to test the deliverability of these objectives. The scope of each pilot will be determined as the remit for each is developed with the relevant local authorities, Rail Passengers Committee, rail operators and other funding partners.

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what provisions are available to support existing community rail line projects should they fail to secure adequate funding through businesses, charities and Government agencies. [201981]

Mr. McNulty: Support for services on lines proposed for designation as Community Railways is provided through the franchise agreement with the relevant train operator. It is always open to stakeholders along a rail corridor to provide additional support for the further development of the local rail service, such as more services or enhancement projects. One of the aims of the Community Rail Development Strategy is to provide a structure for making use of such resources.

Road Safety

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people have been (a) killed and (b) injured in accidents on the roads where alcohol was a contributory factor in each of the last five years; in what percentage of road traffic accidents alcohol was a contributory factor, in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [202904]

Mr. Jamieson: Estimates of the number of casualties in accidents where at least one driver was over the legal drink drive limit are shown in the following table.

Estimates of casualties in accidents involving illegal alcohol levels: GB 1999–2003[1]

Casualties/accidents/percentages

			Drink drive accidents
	Number killed	Number injured[2]	Drink/drive accidents	All accidents	Drink/drive as percentage of all accidents
1999	460	16,450	11,050	235,048	4.7
2000	530	17,530	11,800	233,729	5.0
2001	530	18,240	12,270	229,014	5.4
2002	550	19,550	13,150	221,751	5.9
2003[1]	560	18,450	12,400	214,030	5.8

[1] Provisional data.

[2] Includes serious and slight casualties.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost was to each police authority of policing accidents in which alcohol was a contributory factor in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [202905]

Mr. Jamieson: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what evidence he has assessed that shows that drivers who use speed assessment equipment detection devices have a worse accident record than those who do not; [202164]

(2) what evidence he has assessed which shows that the provisions of Clause 17 of the Road Safety Bill will enhance road safety. [202165]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 6 December 2004]: Clause 17 gives the Secretary of State the power to prohibit the fitting of, or the use of vehicles carrying, speed assessment equipment detection devices. It defines such devices as a device one or more of whose purposes is to interfere with or detect the operation of equipment used to assess the speed of motor vehicles. The precise subset of the devices which will be prohibited will be identified in regulations.

The Government do not intend to prohibit the use of equipment which usefully gives drivers information on the location of published camera sites and does not detect or interfere with the operation of speed assessment equipment. Thus complementing the measures we took in 2001 to ensure that camera sites are visible and conspicuous to drivers, and so help deter excessive and inappropriate speeds on the roads.

The sole purpose of detection devices to be covered by the proposed law is to tell drivers when they can break speed limits and get away with it. This is unacceptable, prevents the police from carrying out their duties, and is a danger to other law-abiding drivers and road users.

There is overwhelming evidence from both UK and international literature that speeding results in more collisions and more severe casualties. As regards safety cameras, the evidence from the independent review of the safety camera programme by University College London and PA Consulting found that cameras significantly reduced the number of people killed or seriously injured at camera sites. This evidence demonstrates why the provisions of Clause 17 of the Bill would enhance road safety.

Rural Bus Services

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much funding will be provided for rural bus services in each of the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [200294]

Charlotte Atkins: Allocations from this Department to local authorities of Rural Bus Subsidy Grant (RBSG) will total £53 million in 2005–06. We have recently written to local authorities advising them of their individual allocations.

The provisional RBSG totals for 2006–07 and 2007–08 are £54.3 million and £55.6 million respectively.

In addition, expenditure on existing Rural Bus Challenge projects is estimated to total £38 million over the next three years.

Local authorities also support rural bus services using funds from their Revenue Support Grant.

Stations (Crime)

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many crimes have been committed at stations that meet secure station status in each year since the scheme's inception. [202766]

Mr. McNulty: The British Transport Police have provided the following information on crimes recorded at stations in the secure stations scheme, for any given year in the period 2000–04 when a station held accreditation. Data is not readily available for earlier than 2000.

	Crimes recorded at secure stations	Number of secure stations
2000–01	16,351	84
2001–02	22,735	128
2002–03	30,077	167
2003–04	31,815	174
1 April 2004–31 October 2004	17,908	168

In reading the above data, the following factors should be considered:

(i) These figures contain all crimes—this includes both notifiable and non-notifiable crimes. The latter includes byelaw offences, minor disorder etc.

(ii) The statistics represent full year data not data from the time of accreditation.

(iii) The data refers to crimes discovered and reported at the Station (i.e. not actually occurred at the station but in the surrounding area) as well as crimes committed on the station.

(iv) The new crime recording standards were implemented in 2002–03 and will have an adverse impact on crime statistics from that period.

(v) The period of accreditation lasts for two years. A number of listed stations have not applied for re-accreditation and therefore do not now fall under the secure station scheme.

Timber

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the refurbishment projects in his Department's premises that (a) are in progress and (b) will be starting in the next six months; what action is being taken to ensure that these will procure timber from legal and sustainable sources; and whether guidance will be issued to contractors on each of these projects to ensure that the timber used on site during refurbishment also comes from legal and sustainable sources. [201175]

Charlotte Atkins: In the central Department there is only one significant refurbishment project currently under way, or due to begin in the next six months, involving timber products and this is the replacement of furniture, stud partitioning and doors in Great Minster House. For the partitioning and furniture we will be using the call-off contracts managed by OGC which take account of Government polices on sustainable and legal timber. The doors will be modified and re-used.

More generally in the Department purchasers are reminded regularly of the requirement to purchase legal and sustainable timber and are provided with advice to assist them in purchasing sustainable timber, including the Office of Government Commerce Information Notes 9/2002 and 5/2004.

Training Courses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by his Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98. [200391]

Charlotte Atkins: The information is not collected centrally in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200411]

Charlotte Atkins: The Department was formed 29 May 2002, so the information in this answer only relates to the period from that date. We are not aware centrally of any financial penalties borne by the Department as a result of cancellation of work prepared by external suppliers.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental Advertising

Keith Vaz: To ask the Leader of the House in which Muslim newspapers the Department advertises; and what kinds of advertising the Department places in Muslim newspapers. [201707]

Mr. Hain: The Privy Council Office provides administrative support for my Office.

My Office does not have a policy of advertising in either the local or national media.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Leader of the House how many written questions for his Office were unanswered when Parliament prorogued; and how many of the unanswered questions were tabled in each of the previous months of the 2003–04 Session. [201555]

Mr. Hain: Three.

The three questions were tabled in September 2004.

Special Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Leader of the House how many appeals were made by civil servants to the Civil Service Commissioners regarding special advisers in his Office between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004 and when each appeal was lodged. [201376]

Mr. Hain: None.

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Leader of the House (1) if he will list the attributable interviews that his Department's special advisers gave to (a) newspapers, (b) journals, (c) books and (d) other media in their official capacity between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004; [201423]

(2) if he will list the attributable (a) articles and (b) contributions that his Office's special advisers made to (i) newspapers, (ii) journals, (iii) books and (iv) other media in their official capacity between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004. [201448]

Mr. Hain: All special advisers' contacts with the media are conducted in accordance with the requirements of "the Code of Conduct of Special Advisers".

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Age Discrimination

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his Department's policy is towards age discrimination. [200828]

Mr. Charles Clarke: My Department's commitment not to discriminate unfairly on the grounds of age is set out clearly in its equal opportunities policy.

The DfES aspires to be an exemplar equal opportunities employer, creating a workplace that values diversity, is free from any form of unfair discrimination including age, and where all staff have an equal opportunity to meet their aspirations, realise their full potential and improve their life chances.

My Department already allows its staff to remain in employment until the age of 65 and will be reviewing all of its HR policies and practices to take account of the introduction of legislation on age discrimination. My officials monitor the Department's progress to ensure that we are succeeding and will also ensure that all managers and staff are made aware of the new legislation and its implications for the Department.

Building Schools for the Future

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the local authorities which applied for wave (a) 2 and (b) 3 of the Building Schools for the Future programme whose bids were not accepted for prioritisation; and if he will make a statement. [202291]

Mr. Miliband: Building Schools for the Future is our long-term programme to provide 21st-century facilities for all secondary pupils. We invited local authorities to submit proposals for wave 1 of Building Schools for the Future and/or expressions of interest for the rest of the programme, including waves 2 and 3. All local authorities with secondary schools did so.

It is our ambition that, by 2011 and subject to public spending reviews, 60 per cent. of all authorities should have major rebuilding or remodelling projects (at least three schools), and that all the others will have the resources to tackle their secondary schools in greatest need (at least one school). By 2016, our ambition is that major rebuilding or remodelling projects (at least three schools) will have started in every authority. In 15 waves from 2005–06, we aim for every secondary school that needs it to be replaced or upgraded.

The following lists alphabetically local authorities that have expressed interest in being included In Building Schools for the Future and that win be prioritised from wave 4 onwards.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the gender pay gap among staff in his Department. [200829]

Mr. Charles Clarke: My Department's equal pay analysis of 2002 pay identified no statistically significant variations in pay between genders and the minor differences identified were addressed in the three year pay deal 2003–2005.

My Department's gender analysis of the 2003 pay award identified no sign of any bias in the results.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many extra 16 to 18-year-olds he expects to stay in education as a result of the education maintenance allowance in Cambridge. [201267]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Since the start of the academic year, as of 31 October 2004, 1,207 young people in the Cambridgeshire local authority area have received payments under the national EMA scheme. The number is increasing at a steady rate and we expect it to continue to do so. In 2004/05 across England we expect the number of 16 to 18-year-olds participating in education to increase by 35,000 (3.8 percentage points) as a direct result of EMA. By 2006/07, when EMA is available to all eligible 16 to 18-year-olds, an additional 72,000 young people will be in further education. If the same participation increase is applied to the east of England region an additional 7,900 16 to18-year-olds will be participating in further education by 2006/07. Estimates are not available at local authority level.

Education Finance

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills with which companies (a) producing and (b) distributing video games he has held discussions on financing educational facilities. [203119]

Mr. Charles Clarke: I have not held any meetings with companies (a) producing or (b) distributing video games in which we have discussed any specific proposals for financing educational facilities.

My Department maintains a working relationship with representatives from the games industry and is keen to find opportunities for collaboration, and ways of using games technologies to create innovative educational content.

As part of this overall approach, I hosted a discussion on 2 November 2004 for some of those involved in the video games industry, including relevant trade associations.

School Playing Fields

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many school playing fields have been sold in England and Wales in each of the last five years. [201649]

Mr. Stephen Twigg: Section 77 of the School Standards and Framework Act 1998 was introduced in England on 1 October 1998 to stop the indiscriminate sale of school playing fields that occurred in the 1980s and early to mid 1990s. As the legislation only applies to England, we have no records of how many school playing fields have been sold in Wales. The sale of school playing fields in Wales is a matter for the Welsh Assembly.

Applications to sell school playing fields are only approved where it is clear that any proceeds will be used to improve school sports provision or education facilities. All applications made since 16 July 2001 are scrutinised by the independent School Playing Fields Advisory Panel to make sure that they meet our published criteria. The Panel comprises representatives from the National Playing Fields Association, the Central Council of Physical Recreation, Learning through Landscapes, the National Association of Head Teachers and the Local Government Association.

The figures requested are shown in the following table. In 15 of these 109 applications new or replacement sports pitches of the same size or greater were to be bought from the proceeds. A further 41 applications involved land at closed or closing school sites and in 39 of the remaining 53 cases, the proceeds are to be used to improve sports facilities, such as new all-weather pitches, sports halls or improved grass sports pitches. In the remaining 12 cases, the proceeds are to provide better education facilities at schools, such as new classrooms and performing arts facilities.

Calendar year	Sports pitch applications approved
2000	32
2001	22
2002	24
2003	17
2004 (to 26 November)	14

Notes:

1. The table comprises applications from local authorities, foundation, voluntary and former grant-maintained schools to sell school playing fields capable of forming at least a small sports pitch.

2. All sale proceeds are to be used to provide new or improved sports or education facilities at maintained schools.

3. "Sports pitch" means an area of open grassed land which is equal to, or larger than, the Football Association's recommended 2,000m^2 area for games played by under-10s and which has a configuration making it suitable for sports, whether laid out as a sports pitch or not.

Vocational Education/Training

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to expand vocational education and training for adults in Cambridge. [201266]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The responsibility for local education and training provision rests with the Learning and Skills Council. Mark Haysom the Council's Chief Executive will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the Library.

TREASURY

Census

Mr. John Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the dates since 1 January when he and his Ministers discussed with the Department for Constitutional Affairs the change in revenue that might occur if arrangements were not made immediately to approve an 80-year closure period for decennial population censuses for England and Wales; and what estimate he has made of the (a) gross and (b) net revenue in the next decade from the 1911 and 1921 censuses being released online as soon as practicable. [202018]

Mr. Timms: It is government policy that all decennial census returns should remain closed for 100 years. This is in order that public confidence continues to be maintained through the confidentiality assurances that are provided when citizens are required to complete their census forms.

It would be premature to consider what revenue might be raised from making the 1911 and 1921 censuses available online so far in advance of their release dates. There have been no meetings between Treasury and DCA Ministers on this matter and it would not be appropriate to prepare revenue estimates at this time.

Departmental Efficiency Technical Notes

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which of the departmental Efficiency Technical Notes (ETN) required by the report, "Releasing Resources to the Frontline—Independent Review of Public Sector Efficiency", were submitted to (a) the National Audit Office and (b) the Audit Commission for scrutiny; on what date each first draft was submitted for scrutiny; how many submissions of subsequent drafts there were for each ETN, broken down by Department and on what dates each were submitted; on what date each was signed off by the (i) National Audit Office and (ii) Audit Commission; if he will make a statement on the nature of the outstanding concerns of the National Audit Office and the Audit Commission over those ETNs not yet signed off; and when he expects sign-off to be achieved. [203158]

Mr. Timms: The NAO and Audit Commission provided advice to central Government on draft ETNs submitted by Departments in September 2004, against agreed criteria—clarity of savings, measurement methods, data quality, service continuity, and readability. Departments subsequently published their ETNs at the end of October 2004. The NAO and Audit Commission will be asked to provide further scrutiny but have not been asked to sign off the content of ETNs. The scrutiny covered the main Departments of Government, namely Cabinet Office, Crown Prosecution Service, Department for Constitutional Affairs, Department for Culture, Media and Sport, Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, Department for Education and Skills, Department for International Development, Department for Transport, Department of Health, Department of Trade and Industry, Department for Work and Pensions, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, Home Office, HM Revenue and Customs, HM Treasury, Ministry of Defence, Northern Ireland Office and Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (for both main programmes and local government).

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the cost of (a) ministerial cars and drivers and (b) taxis for his Department in each of the last two years. [202489]

Mr. Timms: Information concerning ministerial cars in the financial year 2002–03 was given by the then Minister for the Cabinet Office on 13 November 2003, Official Report, columns 397–98W. The Minister for the Cabinet Office has asked the Chief Executive of the Government Car and Despatch Agency to write to the hon. Member with details of the cost of ministerial vehicles in 2003–04.

Expenditure on taxis is estimated to have been £163,000 in 2002–03 and £151,000 in 2003–04.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on energy costs incurred by his Department in each of the last two years. [202490]

Mr. Timms: Energy costs in 1 Horse Guards Road reduced by 15 per cent. over the last two years.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the (a) annual cost and (b) total value of the empty properties owned by (i) his Department, (ii) agencies and (iii) other public bodies for which he has had responsibility in each of the last two years. [202491]

Mr. Timms: HM Treasury, the Office of Government Commerce, the Royal Mint, the Government Actuary's Department, the Debt Management Office, the Office for National Statistics and National Savings and Investments do not own any empty properties.

Inland Revenue, HM Customs and Excise and the Valuation Office Agency sold their freehold properties to Mapeley on 2 April 2001 as part of the STEPS PFI contract. Mapeley have assumed responsibility for these since then, irrespective of whether the properties are empty or occupied.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what crèche facilities are provided by his Department; and at what cost. [202498]

Mr. Timms: The Treasury does not provide any crèche facilities. The Department is a member of the Westminster Holiday Playscheme, which operates during school holidays and is open to children aged 4 years 9 months to 12. The Treasury has two bespoke playscheme rooms, which can cater for up to 18 children. The cost per child is £30 a day and the Treasury subsidises the costs by 60 per cent. The total subsidy to Treasury parents using the playscheme is £4,100.

The Treasury also supports the child care cost of eligible staff. Staff who work full time receive £40.00 per week per family, part timers receive a pro-rated amount.

85 staff members receive child care vouchers. The total cost of child care vouchers, since the scheme was introduced in January 2004 is £134,000.

Labour Statistics

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people over 65 were in employment in each metropolitan authority and county area in the North East region in each year from 1997 to 2004; [202680]

(2) how many and what percentage of 50 to 65-year-olds were economically inactive in (a) the North East region, and (b) each (i) metropolitan authority and (ii) county area within the North East region in each year from 1997 to 2003. [202681]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Jim Cousins, dated 8 December 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions about employment and economic inactivity. (202680, 202681)

The attached table provides the information requested.

These estimates from the Labour Force Survey are, as with any sample survey, subject to sampling variability.

[1] Economically inactive refers to women aged 50 to 59 and men aged 50 to 64 who are neither employed nor unemployed.

[2] The rates are based on people aged 50 to 64 who are economically inactive as percentage of total population in the relevant age group.

[3] Refers to men aged 65 to 99 women aged 60 to 99.

[4] Estimates not available because sample size is too small.

Note:

Some estimates are based on smaller sample sizes and are therefore subject to a higher degree of sampling variability. They should be treated with caution and, in particular, changes from year to year should not be used in isolation from the figures for a run of years.

ONS Labour Force Survey

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the employment rate is of women in couples where the woman's partner (a) does not work and (b) does work. [203166]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl to Mr. David Willetts, dated 8 December 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about employment. I am replying in his absence. (203166)

Among couples who were both of working age (i.e. men aged 16 to 64 and women aged 16 to 59) the employment rates for the female partners were: (a) 42.3% for those whose male partner was not in employment; and (b) 79.4% for those whose male partner was in employment.

These estimates come from the Labour Force Survey (LFS) and apply to the three months ending May 2004. As with any statistical sample survey the LFS estimates are subject to sampling error.

Inheritance Tax

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the total amount of relief from inheritance tax granted in respect of agricultural land in North Yorkshire was in each of the past five years; [203356]

(2) in how many cases relief from inheritance tax was granted in North Yorkshire in each of the past five years; [203357]

(3) if he will make a statement on the eligibility criteria for the granting of relief from inheritance tax. [203358]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on the number and value of assets relieved of inheritance tax in the UK is published in Table 12.2 of Inland Revenue Statistics 2004 at: www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk/stats/inheritance_tax/table12-2.xls/. A regional breakdown is not available.

The eligibility criteria for inheritance tax reliefs depend on the particular relief. Agricultural property relief is available for land (including qualifying farmhouses and cottages) which has been owned by the transferor, and occupied for farming, for at least seven years, or two years for owner occupiers. Inland Revenue booklet IHT17 gives more information and is available at www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk/leaflets/iht.htm.

International Finance Facility

Tony Baldry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) G7 and (b) G21 countries need to support the International Finance Facility for it to be launched. [202669]

Mr. Timms: The number of donor countries needed depends on the size of the commitment individual countries are willing to make. Clearly, a critical mass of donors is needed to achieve the gains of scale and predictability.

MRSA

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how often the MRSA virus was listed as a cause of death on a death certificate in the most recent period for which figures are available. [201518]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 2 December 2004]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Derek Wyatt, dated 8 December 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how often the MRSA virus was listed as a cause of death on a death certificate in the most recent period for which figures are available. (201518)

The latest year for which figures are available is 2002. The number of deaths in England and Wales in that year where the MRSA bacterium was mentioned anywhere on death certificates was 800. The method used for obtaining this figure was published in a report in Health Statistics Quarterly in spring 2004.[1]

Internationally accepted guidance from the World Health Organisation on the completion of death certificates requires only those conditions that contribute to death to be recorded.

PISA Survey

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) for what reason the Office for National Statistics did not supply sufficient data to the OECD for their 2003 PISA survey; and if he will make a statement; [203174]

(2) which official in his Department was responsible for collating data for the OECD PISA survey 2003. [203176]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Nick Gibb, dated 8 December 2004:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to two of your recent Parliamentary Questions on the 2003 PISA survey. (203174 and 203176)

PISA is a survey co-ordinated by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), which was conducted in 41 countries in 2003. The Office for National Statistics (ONS) conducted the survey in England and Wales on behalf of the Department for Education and Skills (DfES) and in collaboration with the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency in Northern Ireland on behalf of Department of Education, Northern Ireland. The survey in Scotland was conducted by the Scottish Centre for Research in Education on behalf of the Scottish Executive.

The survey involves a two-hour written assessment, as well as completion of a questionnaire by a representative sample of students aged 15. In the UK, PISA depends on the voluntary co-operation of both schools and students. Compared with other surveys conducted through schools, PISA is quite disruptive as it takes a long time to complete and is conducted in the Spring term when schools are preparing for examinations.

Minimum criteria for response rates are set by OECD, and the response rates in the UK, in particular in England, fell short of the required minimum. ONS conducted the survey according to current best practice and, with the DfES, made every effort to persuade schools to participate. In spite of this, the survey response rates fell short of the threshold set by the OECD.

As National Statistician, ultimately I am responsible for all work of the Office for National Statistics.

Special Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether he has been informed of breaches of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers in his Department since its implementation; [201347]

(2) how many appeals were made by civil servants to the Civil Service Commissioners regarding special advisers in his Department between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004; and when each appeal was lodged; [201371]

(3) how many complaints were made by departmental civil servants regarding the conduct of special advisers between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004. [203479]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to him today by the Minister for the Cabinet Office.

Tax Collection

Tim Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost of collection of (a) national insurance, (b) income tax, (c) capital gains tax and (d) inheritance tax has been in each year since 1997. [203213]

Dawn Primarolo: The cost of collection is reported each year in the Inland Revenue's Annual Report. It is calculated by apportioning administrative expenditure between the main taxes and duties.

Tax Credits

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the tax credits computer system can (a) import data from and (b) export data to the income tax computer system. [201576]

Dawn Primarolo: The Inland Revenue is a Data Controller under the Data Protection Act. It holds information for the purposes specified to the Data Protection Commissioner, and may use this information for any of them.

The Inland Revenue receives and uses information about tax credit claimants and tax payers from others, and may give information to others but only as the law permits to:

check the accuracy of information, prevent or detect crime,

or protect public funds.

The Inland Revenue may check information they receive about claimants and taxpayers with what is already in their records. This can include information provided by customers as well as others such as other Government Departments and agencies and overseas tax authorities.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress is being made in removing the administration of tax credits for employers; and when he expects to implement this change. [203167]

Dawn Primarolo: The Inland Revenue is consulting representatives of employers and other interested parties to ensure that the transition from employer payment of working tax credit to direct payment by the Inland Revenue proceeds smoothly for both employers and claimants. Once that consultation is complete, I shall announce the timetable for phasing out the payment of working tax credit by employers.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what total expenditure on the working tax credit was in 2003–04, broken down between (a) the working tax credit itself and (b) the childcare tax credit; [203240]

(2) what total expenditure on the child tax credit was in 2003–04, broken down between (a) the family element, (b) the child element and (c) other elements; [203242]

(3) how much expenditure on (a) child tax credit and (b) working tax credit in 2003–04 was (i) offset for the purposes of public expenditure calculations payments of income tax and (ii) counted as public expenditure. [203268]

Dawn Primarolo: Expenditure on the child and working tax credits in the financial year 2003–04 appears in Note 3 to the Trust Statement in the Inland Revenue Annual Report and Accounts for that year.

On (i), expenditure on WTC includes £490 million paid to the main carer of the children for childcare as part of WTC. The total level of childcare support provided through the childeare element in 2003–04 is estimated to be over £700 million. This includes cases where this element increased the amount of child tax credit (CTC) paid.

On (ii), It is not possible to provide a split of total expenditure on CTC between the component elements. The amount of award payable is reduced for families whose incomes are above the threshold, and this reduction is applied to the total value of all elements taken together.

On (iii), reliable separate splits between CTC and WTC of the negative tax and payments of entitlement components of tax credits expenditure are not available.

John Barrett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people living in the City of Edinburgh local authority area have had payment of their tax credits stopped because they failed to provide the Inland Revenue with updated information by the 30 September deadline. [203378]

Dawn Primarolo: This number is not known, and a reliable estimate could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

John Barrett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average length of time taken to answer calls made to the customer telephone number of the Tax Credit Office customer relations team in Preston is. [203379]

Dawn Primarolo: Tax credit customers phoning with a query or problem about their tax credits should ring the main Tax Credits Helpline on 0845 300 3900 (Great Britain) or 0845 603 2000 (Northern Ireland). These helplines are open seven days a week from 08:00 to 20:00.

The Tax Credit Office's customer relations team deals with formal customer complaints and has a phone number that its customers can ring if they have a query. There are five lines, which are staffed throughout normal office hours and handle around 100 calls a day. The Tax Credit Office does not have information about the average length of time taken to answer calls to the customer relations team's phone number.

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many months' backlog there is for appeals concerning overpayment of (a) working family and (b) child tax credit; [203146]

(2) how many appeals concerning overpayment of working family tax credits have been successful this year. [203147]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 8 December 2004]: The information requested is not available.

John Barrett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the analysis of the household survey data for 2003–04 to provide an estimate of families eligible for but not claiming child tax credit will be concluded. [200233]

Dawn Primarolo: Subject to ensuring the data and methodology are sufficiently robust, we expect the analysis to be completed towards the end of 2005–06.

Workless Households

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many children there were in workless households in each local authority in the Northern Way Initiative area in each year from 1998 to 2004; and what percentage of children these figures represent in each year. [202678]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Jim Cousins, dated 8 December 2004:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about children in workless households. (202678)

Information on each local authority in the Northern Way Initiative area cannot be provided as the geographical borders of this have not been precisely identified.

The attached table gives the estimates of the number and the percentage of children who were living in workless households in the North East, North West and Yorkshire and the Humber regions for the three months ending in May each year from 1998 to 2004.

These estimates from the Labour Force Survey are, as with any sample survey, subject to sampling error.

Children[1] Living in Workless Households[2]—Not seasonally adjusted

World Debt

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has made to (a) the IMF and (b) the World Bank concerning (i) debt write-off and (ii) a donor conference for Angola. [203129]

Mr. Timms: Angola's debt situation has been discussed in the Paris Club, where both the IMF and World Bank are represented. Before the UK Government can support debt relief for Angola, the Government of Angola will need to have an appropriate programme with the IMF. The IMF have been working with the Angolan Government on the steps towards such a programme.

Before we and other donors can consider supporting a donor conference, the Government of Angola also needs to have an effective poverty reduction strategy.

Age Discrimination

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his Department's policy is towards age discrimination. [202499]

Mr. Timms: The Department is committed to the fair treatment of all staff and not to discriminate unfairly on the grounds of age. The Department's policy is set out in its equal opportunities statement and is available for inspection on our public website.

Departmental HR policies take full account of the equal opportunities legislation and best practice and the Department conducts regular internal statistical analyses to monitor representation and appraisal by age in order that specific age issues are identified and addressed.

In anticipation of the ED regulation due to come into force in October 2006 the Department is reviewing its policy around retirement age/maximum employment age and related issues to ensure a fully inclusive workforce.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Advertising

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport in which Muslim newspapers the Department advertises; and what kind of advertising the Department places in Muslim newspapers. [202907]

Mr. Caborn: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport does not regularly advertise in Muslim newspapers. However, some of the Department's public appointments have been advertised in The Nation.

UK Film Industry

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the contributions of black film to the UK film industry; and what support is given by her Department. [203135]

Estelle Morris: The DCMS administers support to the UK film industry through the agency of the UK Film Council, which has as part of its remit the promotion of film making and viewing to people from as diverse a range of backgrounds as possible.

The UK Film Council works extensively to ensure that under-represented groups are supported. Its diversity strategy is committed to helping the industry achieve a more diverse work force in terms of gender, disability and ethnicity both behind and in front of the camera across the film industry value chain.

In terms of UK Film Council awards, its purpose is to facilitate and support any project, organisation or film maker in line with its wide strategic aim of promoting film across the social and cultural spectrum.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Age Discrimination

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what his Department's policy is towards age discrimination. [202462]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's commitment not to discriminate unfairly on the grounds of age is set out in its equal opportunities policy and other relevant sections of its Staff Handbook.

Building Regulations

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) what timate he has made of the cost to small businesses of (a) certification and (b) the regulatory burden of Part of Building Regulations when it comes into effect on January 2005; [202120]

(2) what estimate he has made of the financial impact r local authorities of Part P of the Building egulations from 1 January 2005. [202125]

Phil Hope: I refer the hon. Member to the Part P egulatory Impact Assessment which is available in the ibrary of the House and on the Office Deputy Prime linister's website.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what lvertising and publicity will be employed to ensure that omeowners are informed of the effects of the new uilding regulations. [202121]

Phil Hope: A publicity campaign aimed at ouseholders will be launched very shortly. It is planned part of the campaign to have a free leaflet available om local authorities, electrical contractors and major ectrical wholesalers and retailers and to have display lvertising in national newspapers.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what sessment he has made of the impact on small usinesses of the requirement for electricians to have a escribed level of insurance cover; and if he will make statement. [202122]

Phil Hope: Electricians who are members of a Part P mpetent person scheme are required as a condition of gistration with a scheme to have at least £2 million ublic liability insurance. Those who are not members a scheme do not have such a requirement placed on em.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what dditional funding he will provide to local authorities to eet the costs of Part P of the Building Regulations om 1 January 2005. [202126]

Phil Hope: Such funding is not necessary. Local thority building control services are funded from fees id by those using the service.

Hereford and Worcester Fire Authority

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Deputy Prime linister what the costs were of rebilling residents in the unties of Hereford and Worcester following the pping of the fire authority's funding; and whether this st will have an effect on services. [203110]

Mr. Raynsford: The Government has not measured e cost independently. When its residents were rebilled, ereford and Worcester Fire Authority stated that the st of retailing was 450,000.

In designating Hereford and Worcester Fire uthority for capping in 2004–05, the Government took to account representations made by the authority, cluding the costs of retailing. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is confident that the authority can deliver a good service and carry out all its statutory functions within its revised budget requirement. The authority could have avoided the costs of retailing by not setting an excessive budget increase. It increased its budget requirement by 19.4 per cent. and council tax by 29.4 per cent.

Bathside Bay Container Terminal

Mr. Chope: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister on what date he expects the outcome of the public inquiry into the Bathside Bay container terminal to be announced. [203080]

Keith Hill: The inquiry into the proposed container terminal at Bathside Bay closed on 21 October. The inspector is currently preparing his report, which is expected to be submitted to the First Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for Transport by the end of March. Decisions on the proposals will be issued as soon as the respective Secretaries of State have had sufficient opportunity to consider the inspector's recommendations.

Departmental Advertising

Keith Vaz: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister in which Muslim newspapers the Department advertises; and what kinds of advertising the Department places in Muslim newspapers. [201708]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister routinely uses ethnic press and media as part of its publicity and information campaigns.

Among the titles used are, Asian Eye, Asian Leader, Asian Image, Asian News, Asian Trader, Asian Times, and the Eastern Times.

Although these titles are not predominantly aimed at the Muslim community they do include a considerable Muslim readership.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is also planning a fire safety campaign aimed at the Muslim community for Eid and this will be targeted using the Muslim press.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the cost of (a) new builds, (b) demolition rebuilds and (c) private finance initiative projects in his Department in each of the last two years. [202451]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has not been engaged in any (a) new builds, or (b) demolition rebuilds within the last two years.

The estimated capital cost of local authority led Private Finance Initiatives which the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is supporting was £207.322 million in 2003 and £122.73 million 2004. The whole life cost of these Private Finance Initiative projects is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what crèche facilities are provided by his Department; and at what cost. [202461]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister recognises the benefits of recruiting and retaining the highest calibre staff and allowing parents to make their own choices about where and what type of child care they want for their child.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister introduced a Childcare Voucher scheme on 1 November 2004 to replace the limited number of subsidised places it supported at a central London nursery. Eligible members of staff may claim a voucher valued at £23 per week. Since the scheme was introduced 58 members of staff have been placed on the scheme at an annualised cost of £69K.

The Planning Inspectorate provides five subsidised places at a local off-site crèche at a cost of £10.5K per annum. The Fire Service College provides 17 subsidised places at an on-site crèche at a cost of £39K per annum.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister also participates in the Westminster Holiday Playscheme, which provides holiday care for children of school age. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister currently supports 31 staff for an average of two weeks in school holidays and subsidises 50 per cent. of the daily cost of £30.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the total external spending by his Department was on public-private partnership consultants in each of the last two years; how many full-time equivalent consultants were employed over this period; how many billed consultancy days there were per year; what the implied average cost of each PPP consultant was; how many consultancy firms were used by his Department over this period; and if he will make a statement. [202469]

Phil Hope: The total external spending by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister on public private partnership consultants was £117,239.90 in 2003. There were no costs incurred in 2004. Two consultancy firms were used by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister over this period.

The additional information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Electricians

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what discussions he has had with the Department for Education and Skills to ensure that training courses for electricians are in place in preparation for the commencement of Part P of Building Regulations. [202979]

Phil Hope: None, but officials from the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister have talked to the Learning and Skills Council, Summit Skills, the Institution of Electrical Engineers, the Electrical Contractors Association, the National Inspection Council for Electrical Installation Contracting and others about the provision of training for electricians.

Fuse Boxes

Jon Trickett: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what representations he has received about installing re-set fuse boxes in council-owned properties; and if he will make a statement. [202569]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has not received any representations on installing re-set fuse boxes in council properties.

Grants

Ms Oona King: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many cash incentive scheme grants were made by each local authority in London in 2003–04; and what the total value of these grants was in each authority. [203136]

Keith Hill: The information reported by London Boroughs on the number of cash incentive scheme grants made in 2003–04 and the total value of their grants is as follows:

£ thousand

	Total number of grants	Total expenditure
Barnet	33	854
Brent	32	128
Camden	13	565
Croydon	46	928
Baling	36	1,080
Enfield	37	879
Haringey	28	551
Hillingdon	21	254
Islington	1	24
Kingston upon Thames	8	159
Lewisham	35	649
Merton	6	125
Tower Hamlets	71	1,206
Waltham Forest	9	265
Wandsworth	35	715
Westminster	14	395
London	425	8,777

Housing

Ms Oona King: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the impact of Statutory Instrument No. 986/2003, deregulatory section 129 of the Housing Act 1988. [203138]

Keith Hill: Regular monitoring information shows that both the number and average size of Cash Incentive Scheme grants in 2003–04 were similar to figures before deregulation, which came into effect from 1 April 2003. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has yet to assess the specific impact of deregulation.

Local Government Pensions

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the proposals for changes to the local government pension scheme (a) were in their original form and (b) are in their latest revised form. [202711]

Phil Hope: I refer my hon. Friend to the answers given o him on 14 and 15 September 2004, Official Report, olumns 1527W and 1601W respectively, which set out he Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's proposed mendments to the Local Government Pension Scheme. he relevant statutory consultation and summaries f the proposed amendments are available on the ffice of the Deputy Prime Minister's website t: www.xoq83.dial.pipex.com/availabledoc.htm. The tatutory consultation exercise ended on 30 June, the esponses have been considered and an amended SI is xpected to be laid before Parliament shortly.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether any local government pension scheme has been allowed to capitalise pension fund shortfalls. [202712]

Phil Hope: Since 1 April 2000, 40 local authorities in England have been allowed to treat as capital expenditure the making of lump-sum payments into their pension funds most under a time limited scheme that has now expired. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is about to issue guidance on the circumstances in which we shall be willing to allow such treatment in future. The authorities in question were the following:

Adur District Council
Arun District Council
Babergh District Council
London Borough of Brent
Chelmsford Borough Council
Chichester District Council
Crawley Borough Council
East Devon District Council
East Hertfordshire District Council
Elmbridge Borough Council
Epsom and Ewell Borough Council
Forest Heath District Council
Gateshead Metropolitan Borough Council
Ipswich Borough Council
London Borough of Islington
Kennet District Council
London Borough of Lambeth
Maldon District Council
Malvern Hills District Council
Mid Bedfordshire District Council
Mole Valley District Council
North Devon District Council
Reigate and Banstead Borough Council
Runnymede Borough Council
Salisbury District Council
South Derbyshire District Council
South Hams District Council
Spelthorne Borough Council
St. Edmundsbury Borough Council
Surrey Heath Borough Council
Swindon Borough Council
Three Rivers District Council
Torbay Borough Council
London Borough of Tower Hamlets
Uttlesford District Council
Waverley Borough Council
Welwyn Hatfield Council
Weymouth and Portland Borough Council
Wiltshire County Council
Wyre Forest District Council.

Oil-fired Heating

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what representations he has received from the (a) Environment Agency and (b) Oil Firing Technical Association on improving the training of installers of oil-fired heating equipment. [203410]

Phil Hope: There have been no representations to Ministers on improving the training of installers of oil fired heating equipment. Officials in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister are in discussion with both the Environment Agency and the Oil Firing Technical Association however on improving compliance with the Building Regulations for controlling the risks of oil pollution from domestic oil fuel tanks.

Traveller Caravans

Tom Cox: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many Traveller caravans were on (a) authorised and (b) unauthorised sites in the Greater London area in each of the last three years. [203589]

Keith Hill: The information is as follows:

(a) Figures for caravans on authorised sites in the Greater London area are as follows:

	Number
January 2002	649
July 2002	741
January 2003	621
July 2003	701
January 2004	699
July 2004	638

(b) figures for caravans on unauthorised sites in the Greater London area are as follows:

	Number
January 2002	163
July 2002	90
January 2003	100
July 2003	124
January 2004	170

WALES

Railways Bill

13. Gareth Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with Cabinet and National Assembly for Wales Government colleagues on the impact of the Railways Bill on transport in Wales. [201789]

Mr. Touhig: I have regular discussions with colleagues about railways in Wales. Taken together with the Transport (Wales) Bill, the powers to be included in the Railways Bill will enable the Assembly to take forward its integrated transport strategy.

Rail Services

14. Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he last met the First Secretary of the National Assembly for Wales to discuss the provision of rail services in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [201790]

Mr. Touhig: My right hon. Friend and I have regular discussions with Assembly Secretaries on a number of issues, including rail provision. The Railways Bill will devolve additional responsibilities to the Assembly for the Wales and Borders franchise, and the Assembly will be able to appoint a member to the Rail Passengers Council.

Public Service Broadcasting

15. Kevin Brennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on the future of public service broadcasting in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [201791]

Mr. Hain: I fully recognise the vital role public service broadcasting plays in Wales. I am supportive of the need to maintain a high standard of programming and productions relevant to Wales.

Invoice Payments

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the average length of time was between the date of invoices issued to his Department from a supplier and payment by the Department of the invoice in the last 12 months for which figures are available; what percentage of these invoices were paid within 30 days of the date of issue of the invoice; what percentage of these invoices remained unpaid after 90 days; and if he will make a statement on the Department's policy on the payment of invoices issued to it. [200629]

Mr. Touhig: The Wales Office publishes its policy on the payment of invoices issued to it and performance against the related target yearly in its Annual Report.

The most recent Annual Report (Cm 6228) was published in April 2004 and copies were laid in the parliamentary Libraries.

National Assembly for Wales

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the memoranda of understanding under which responsibilities for specific services have been transferred to the National Assembly for Wales; and if he will put a copy of each memorandum in the Library. [199884]

Mr. Touhig: Responsibility for specific services can only be transferred to the Assembly by primary legislation or by Order under the Government of Wales Act 1998 (the Act).

Section 41 of the Act provides that arrangements may be made between the Assembly and any relevant authority for any functions of one of them to be exercised by, or by the staff of, the other. "Relevant authority" is defined as "any Government Department, any local or public authority or the holder of any public office."

Such agreements do not transfer responsibility; they deal with administrative arrangements as to how it will be exercised.

No central record is kept of such agreements, but I am aware that a number are in force in both directions. The Act does not specify any particular form for these agreements.

Special Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) if he will list the attributable interviews that his Department's special advisers gave to (a) newspapers, (b) journals, (c) books and (d) other media in their official capacity between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004; [201422]

(2) if he will list the attributable (a) articles and (b) contributions that his Department's special advisers made to (i) newspapers, (ii) journals, (iii) books and (iv) other media in their official capacity between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004. [201447]

Mr. Hain: The information is not held in the format requested. All special advisers' contacts with the media are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the code of Conduct of Special Advisers.

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many complaints were made by departmental civil servants regarding the conduct of special advisers between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004. [203475]

Mr. Hain: None.

Post Office

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and Secretaries in the National Assembly for Wales Government on financial support for rural post offices in Wales. [201785]

Mr. Hain: I have regular meetings with Cabinet colleagues and the Assembly First Minister to discuss a range of issues, including the post office network in Wales.

Social Exclusion

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with National Assembly for Wales Secretaries and Cabinet colleagues on the impact of transport on social exclusion in Wales. [201786]

Mr. Touhig: I have regular discussions about matters affecting transport in Wales. This year, the Assembly is providing more than £8.5 million to local authorities under the local transport grant scheme, enabling them to boost the number and range of subsidised bus services, and support community transport projects.

Welsh Development Agency

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the First Secretary on the future of the Welsh Development Agency. [201788]

Mr. Hain: I have regular discussions with the First Minister on a wide variety of subjects, including the work of the Welsh Development Agency.

DEFENCE

Army Training Camp (Fremington)

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the future of the Army training camp at Fremington, North Devon. [199950]

Mr. Caplin: At present we have no plans to change our use of Fremington camp. Should our intentions change in the future, I will ensure that the hon. Member and all the relevant local authorities are informed.

Crèche Facilites

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what crèche facilities are provided by his Department; and at what cost. [200807]

Mr. Caplin: The Ministry of Defence provides 36 crèches (benefiting 700 children) providing occasional care and 70 pre schools (benefiting over 2,000 children) providing education on a sessional basis, primarily for Service families.

Empty Properties

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his estimate is of the (a) annual cost and (b) total value of the empty properties owned by (i) his department, (ii) his agencies and (iii) other public bodies for which he has had responsibility in each of the last two years. [200800]

Mr. Caplin: Estimates of the annual cost and total value of empty freehold properties owned by this Department in each of the last two years, and for which the Ministry of Defence has responsibility, are outlined in the following table:

Serial (a)	As at 31 March each year	Estimated annual cost of empty properties (£ million) (b)	Estimated value of empty properties (£ million) (c)
1	2003	2.3	49.9
2	2004	1.9	46.1

These figures are based on empty Service Families Accommodation. The number of empty freehold properties fluctuates on a daily basis, due to the frequent movements of Service personnel.

Gurkhas

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many ex-Gurkha soldiers fall outside the 1997 Hong Kong Agreement with regards to work rights, residency and citizenship in the United Kingdom. [200049]

Mr. Caplin [holding answer 29 November 2004]: We estimate that there are up to 24,000 former British Army Gurkhas who left between the separation of British Gurkhas from the Indian Army in 1947 and 1 July 1997, and do not qualify under the new HM Forces Immigration Rule. However, any applications received from these ex-Gurkhas will be considered by the Home Office on the basis of their individual merits.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria have been used in deciding the status of Gurkha soldiers who have been refused the right to work, reside and apply for UK citizenship. [200050]

Mr. Caplin [holding answer 29 November 2004]: The implementation and interpretation of immigration rules is a matter for the Home Secretary. Further policy guidance will be published on the Home Office Immigration and Nationality Directorate website shortly.

King's Own Scottish Borderers

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the regimental recruiting area is of the King's Own Scottish Borderers. [201538]

Mr. Caplin: The traditional recruiting area for the King's Own Scottish Borderers is Dumfries and Galloway, Lanarkshire (part of), The Borders (part of) and Berwick upon Tweed.

These areas are not, however, fixed. Individuals expressing an interest in a regiment or corps that did not recruit in their home area would not be refused entry.

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the operational deployments of the King's Own Scottish Borderers have been since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [201539]

Mr. Ingram: The details of the operational deployments for the King's Own Scottish Borderers since 1997 are not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost. I can, however, provide the details from January 2000. Deployments have been defined as unaccompanied battalion level operational tours.

The battalion has twice deployed to Northern Ireland; from June to November 2000 and September 2001 to March 2002; and to Iraq from July to October 2003. The battalion was also deployed intermittently in late 2002 and early 2003 on Operation Fresco firefighting duties.

Royal Regiment of Fusiliers

Glenda Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when recruits to the Royal Regiment of Fusiliers will begin their basic training. [201486]

Mr. Caplin: All potential recruits who pass the selection process are allocated a training place in accordance with the Army Training and Recruiting Agency's Recruit Allocation Plan. The Royal Regiment of Fusiliers, a part of the Queen's Division, is allocated places on training courses at the Infantry Training Centre Catterick every month (except December when no courses are run).

HEALTH

Advertising Approval

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which senior NHS staff approved the advertising feature in NHS Family Choice Magazine promoting Popzone; and what criteria are used to determine from which suppliers advertisements are accepted for inclusion in the magazine. [200432]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not produce NHS Family Choice magazine. It is not responsible for the content of the magazine and does not support or endorse any of the content. A private sector company called Cyworks plc produces the magazine. The Department has repeatedly requested Cyworks to stop using the NHS letters as part of the magazine title. To date all such requests have been ignored.

Age Discrimination

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his Department's policy is towards age discrimination. [200783]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There is no place for unfair discrimination in the Department or national health service (NHS) on the grounds of age. The Department's commitment to its staff not to discriminate unfairly on the grounds of age is set out in its equal opportunities policy. The national service framework for older people made the clear statement that age discrimination would not be tolerated in access to health and social care, and the NHS plan reinforced the value of diversity and commitment to equality of opportunity within the NHS work force.

Ashford Hospital (Middlesex)

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on his Department's negotiations with Capio UK regarding the planned provision of a treatment centre at Ashford hospital (Middlesex). [203141]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 7 December 2004]: Discussions between the national health service sponsors, the Department and Capio continue and, subject to a satisfactory outcome to those discussions, it is expected that the contract will be closed in time for services to commence in April 2005.

Employers' Liability Claims

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many employers' liability claims in the NHS have been recorded by the NHS Litigation Authority in each year since 1997; and if he will estimate the total potential cost to the NHS; [199925]

(2) if he will list the 10 main causes of claims for employers' liability in the NHS in the last period for which figures are available; and what the costs to the NHS were of each. [199926]

Mr. Hutton: The liabilities to third parties scheme (LTPS) is a risk-pooling scheme for national health service trusts, NHS foundation trusts, primary care trusts and special health authorities which provides indemnity for non-clinical risks such as employers' and public liabilities. The scheme was introduced in 1999 and is operated by the NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA).

Table 1 shows information provided by the NHSLA on the number of employers' liability claims that were notified to them since 1999.

Table 1

General Medical Council

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent discussions he has had on the five year limitation for lodging a complaint with the General Medical Council; [201511]

(2) if he will take steps to ensure that complaints submitted to the General Medical Council outside the five year limitation period are investigated if it might have a bearing on a doctor's fitness to practise; [201512]

(3) what discussions took place between his Department and the General Medical Council prior to the introduction of recent changes in the time limit for lodging complaints. [201513]

Mr. Hutton: The recent changes to the General Medical Council's (GMC) fitness to practise procedures were made by amendment of the Medical Act 1983 under The Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002. These changes came into force on 1 November 2004. The Department discussed the changes with the GMC as part of the preparations for the making of the Order, which was subject to a statutory consultation before it was laid in Parliament for approval.

The time limit during which an allegation must be made to the GCMC was changed by the GMC amendment rules in November 2002 (SI 2002/2572). As is usual practice, these rules were discussed with the GMC while they were being drafted. The General Medical Council (Fitness to Practise) Rules Order of Council 2004, which also came into force on 1 November re-enacted this previous change. The rules already provide in rule 4(5) for an allegation made outside the five-year period to be proceeded with if in the exceptional circumstances of the case the registrar considers it is in the public interest to do so.

Health Professions Council

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what purposes the Health Professions Council is advertising on radio; what the cost of radio advertising used by them is in the past 12 months; and what estimate has been made of the cost of planned radio advertising. [202176]

Mr. Hutton: This is a matter for the Health Professions Council (HPC), which is an independent regulator funded by membership subscription. The HPC has a statutory duty under article 3(13) of the HPC order to inform the public about its work.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been allocated to the Health Professions Council (a) in the current financial year and (b) for each of the next three years. [202177]

Mr. Hutton: We have no funding allocated to the Health Professions Council for this year or for future years. The council is an independent regulator funded by membership subscription.

Health Trainers

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the process will be for accrediting NHS health trainers, as defined in the White Paper, "Choosing Health", Cm 6374. [199484]

Mr. Hutton: Health trainers are a new initiative for the national health service and we will be working in consultation with the Health Professions Council and others with an interest to develop processes for accreditation building on the experience gained by piloting the health trainer model in spearhead primary care trusts from 2005. These processes will be based on completion of formal training with built-in standards and quality assurance.

Junior Doctors (Working Time Directive)

Mr. Norman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the strategic health authorities which did not achieve full compliance with the European working time directive for junior doctors in each month since August. [201261]

Mr. Hutton: Compliance with the working time directive (WTD) is a local matter and the Department of Health does not routinely collect validated information on WTD compliance.

From informal discussions with strategic health authorities, we know that the vast majority of trusts achieved compliance across all specialties by 1 August. These discussions also revealed that implementation of the WTD has resulted in a handful of trusts experiencing teething problems in a limited number of specialties.

Mental Health

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the net ingredient cost (a) in total and (b) per head of population was of (i) tranquilisers and (ii) anti-depressants in each strategic health authority in each of the past three years. [202708]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on the net ingredient cost of antidepressants and tranquilisers in total and per head of population in each strategic health authority in the last two years is shown in the tables. It is not possible to provide similar information for 2001, as data is held on the prescribing analysis and cost system for only 36 months.

Notes:

1. This information was obtained from the Prescribing Analysis and Cost (PACT) system, which covers prescriptions prescribed by GP practices in England and dispensed in the community. Prescriptions written within a GP practice but dispensed outside the strategic health authority will be included in the SHA in which the GP practice is based. Prescriptions written in England but dispensed outside England are included. Prescriptions written in hospitals/clinics that are dispensed in the community, prescriptions dispensed in hospitals and private prescriptions are not included in PACT data. It is important to note this as some British National Formulary (BNF) sections have a high proportion of prescriptions written in hospitals that are dispensed in the community. For example, BNF chapter 4, "Central Nervous System" has a fair proportion of items written in mental health clinics that are dispensed in the community—these prescriptions are not included in PACT data.
2. Net ingredient cost (NIC) is the basic cost of a drug. It does not take account of discounts, dispensing costs, fees or prescription charges income.
3. The sum of all SHAs does not equal the total England figure, because the total England figure includes unidentified doctors (not possible for the PPA to allocate to a PCT).
4. Tranquilisers have been defined as all drugs in the British National Formulary section 4.1 "Hypnotics and anxiolytics". Antidepressants have been defined as all drugs in the British National Formulary section 4.3 "Antidepressant drugs"
5. 2002 and 2003 mid-year population estimates based on the 2001 Census have been used to calculate net ingredient cost per head of population.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the (a) fitness for purpose of current information technology used by mental health services trusts and (b) delivery of appropriate modern information systems to those trusts; and if he will make a statement. [201890]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information technology systems used by mental health provider trusts have been evaluated as part of the national programme for information technology (NPfIT).

The NPfIT will procure, develop and implement modern, integrated IT infrastructure and systems for all national health service organisations in England by 2010. There are four key elements: electronic appointment booking, an integrated care records service, electronic prescribing and an underpinning IT infrastructure with sufficient connectivity and broadband capacity to support the critical national applications and local systems.

The NPfIT is an essential element in delivering the NHS Plan, focusing on the key developments that will make a significant difference to improving the patient experience and the delivery of care and services.

MRSA

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of the MRSA virus have been detected at Medway Maritime Hospital since 2001; and how many of these cases were detected on the Trafalgar Ward. [201532]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 2 December 2004]: The only information on the bacterium methicillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSR) available by named trust is the mandatory surveillance system for MRSA blood stream infections. Data are available by trust but not by individual hospital or ward. Information for Medway National Health Service Trust is shown in the table.

MRSA bacteraemia rates by trust category (specialist trust (Medway NHS Trust/Thames Gateway NHS Trust[1]

Period	MRSA per 1,000 bed-days	Number of MRSA bacteraemias
April 2001 to March 2002[1]	0.08	31
April 2002 to March 2003	0.13	29
April 2003 to March 2004	0.22	48

[1] Medway Maritime hospital is part of Medway NHS Trust, but data for 2001–02 was reported for Medway NHS Trust/Thames Gateway NHS Trust.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many times the cause of death at the Medway Maritime Hospital has been recorded as being due to the MRSA virus since 2001. [201533]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 2 December 2004]: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Derek Wyatt, dated 7 December 2004:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many times the cause of death at the Medway Maritime Hospital has been recorded as being due to the MRSA bacterium. I am replying in his absence. (201533)

The latest year for which figures are available is 2002. The figure for Medway Maritime Hospital was provided in a written answer published in Hansard on 22 July 2004, column 471W.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when the last review of NHS laundry guideline HSG (95) 18 took place; and for how long the temperatures recommended by the guideline have remained unchanged; [200333]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of NHS laundry guideline HSG (95) 18 in (a) achieving complete disinfection of laundry and (b) reducing the incidence of MRSA; [200334]

(3) what plans he has to update NHS laundry guideline HSG (95) 18 in relation to tackling MRSA; and if he will make a statement. [200335]

Mr. Hutton: Health Service Guidance (95) 18 provides advice and guidance to national health service organisations on the use of laundry practices to reduce possible risks of infection.

Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus (MRSA) is heat labile and is effectively destroyed at the temperatures advised in HSG (95) 18. There are no plans to update laundry guidance HSG (95) 18 in relation to tackling MRSA. No review of the guidance has been undertaken since it was published in 1995 and the temperature guidelines have remained unchanged since publication of the guidance. The guidance still adequately covers the issue of temperature, disinfection and MRSA.

NHS Walk-in Centres

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what grounds trust hospitals are disallowed from bidding for NHS walk-in centres. [201527]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 2 December 2004]: No organisation or body has been disallowed from submitting an expression of interest for national health service walk-in centres in response to the advertisements on 4 November 2004 and 6 November 2004.

Nurses

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nurses were employed in the NHS on a (a) permanent and (b) temporary basis (i) in total and (ii) broken down by (A) strategic health authority and (B) trust in each year since 1997. [201654]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 December 2004]: Information on the number of nurses employed in the national health service by strategic health authority and by NHS organisation in each year since 1997 has been placed in the Library. A breakdown showing those employed on permanent and temporary contracts is not available.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to his answer of 29 November 2004, Official Report, columns 57–8W, ref 199923, what the whole-time equivalent figure for the period September 2003 to March 2004 was; and what estimates his Department has made of further headcount and whole-time equivalent increases between March 2004 and 2008. [202166]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 December 2004]: As at March 2004, there are an estimated 314,000 whole-time equivalent qualified nurses, including practice nurses, employed in the national health service in England, including an estimated increase of 9,000 since September 2003.

"Delivering the NHS Plan" included an expectation that by 2008, there would be 35,000 more headcount nurses and midwives employed in the NHS than there were in 2001. This expectation has already been met.

We have no further specific targets for increases in the NHS nursing workforce, though we expect that there will be further significant increases.

Commission for Patient and Public Involvement in Health

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what stage the review of the Commission for Patient and Public Involvement in Health has reached; and if he will make a statement. [201719]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 6 December 2004]: No review of the Commission for Patient and Public Involvement in Health (CPPIH) is being carried out. A consultation exercise to inform the future support arrangements for patients' forums, once the CPPIH has been abolished, is currently underway. The closing date for the consultation exercise is 30 January 2005.

AIDS

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much Government money has been spent on research into the prevention and cure of AIDS. [199555]

Miss Melanie Johnson: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

School Nurses

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proposals he has to expand the school nurse service. [203187]

Mr. Hutton: The information requested is available in the White Paper "Choosing Health—Making healthy choices easier" published in November—chapter 3 paragraph 30.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many school nurses have been employed by the NHS in England in each year since 1991; and how many school nurses he expects the NHS will employ in each year until 2011. [199462]

Mr. Hutton: Information is not available on the number of school nurses employed in the national health service since 1991. Reliable information will be available from the September 2004 work force census and we intend to publish the data in February 2005.

By 2010, every primary care trust will be resourced to have at least one full-time, qualified school nurse working with each cluster or group of primary schools and the related secondary school, taking account of health needs and school populations.

Timber

Mrs. Calton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the refurbishment projects that (a) are in progress and (b) will start in the next six months in (i) his Department and (ii) the NHS; what action is being taken to ensure that these will procure timber from legal and sustainable sources; and whether guidance will be issued to contractors on each of these projects to ensure that the timber used on-site during refurbishment also comes from legal and sustainable sources. [201262]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Within the Department's administrative estate, there are three main refurbishment projects that have commenced or will commence in the next six months. It is the Department's policy that any timber used in such projects should be procured from legal and sustainable sources to meet the requirement of the United Kingdom Government's timber procurement policy.

There is no central list of such projects within the national health service. However, the NHS Environment Assessment Tool issued to the NHS requires this policy to be upheld.

Training Courses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by his Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98; [200389]

(2) what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff but which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200409]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is no longer held by the Department and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL

IT Contracts

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Advocate-General what the (a) projected cost at the time of tender and (b) actual cost at the time of completion was for each IT contract commissioned by her office in the last five years. [201618]

The Advocate-General: There have been no IT contracts commissioned by the offices of the Advocate-General within the last five years. The offices' IT systems and support are provided through the Scottish Executive. There are no outsourced IT contracts.

SCOTLAND

Special Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) whether he has been informed of breaches of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers in his Department since its implementation; [201346]

(2) how many appeals were made by civil servants to the Civil Service Commissioners regarding special advisers in his Department between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004 and when each appeal was lodged. [201372]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today by the Minister for the Cabinet Office.

Timber

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the refurbishment projects in his Department's premises that (a) are in progress and (b) will start in the next six months; what action is being taken to ensure that these will procure timber from legal and sustainable sources; and whether guidance will be issued to contractors on each of these projects to ensure that the timber used on site during refurbishment also comes from legal and sustainable sources. [201142]

Mrs. McGuire: There is currently an essential maintenance programme under way. The Scotland Office has no refurbishment projects in progress or scheduled to take place within the next six months.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Court Transcripts

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs if he will make court transcripts available for cases involving hon. Members' constituents to hon. Members free of charge. [203106]

Mr. Leslie: There are currently no plans to make a transcription service available to members of the public free of charge, as the cost to the Department would be prohibitive. Currently transcripts are available for purchase to all parties involved in a case. Those who are not involved can also purchase a transcript if the judge deems the request for wanting one reasonable.

However, the Government do understand that, in some circumstances, victims of crime or their families have a strong desire to review trial proceedings. As a result, my Department is therefore currently funding research into the level of demand for the provision of transcripts to victims. The results of this research will better inform us on development of policy into the issue of provision of transcripts to victims and the benefits this can bring.

This area may also be assisted by longer-term advancements in recording technology. Currently the Department is working up proposals to test digital audio recording in court, which if successful would use voice recognition to enable spontaneous transcripts to be produced at a fraction of the existing cost.

Criminal Defence Service

Ross Cranston: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans he has to ensure that the Criminal Defence Service is re-credited when a publicly-funded defendant is acquitted; and what estimate he has made of the amount involved based on the last year for which figures are available. [201916]

Mr. Lammy: There is no mechanism for re-crediting the Criminal Defence Service when a publicly-funded defendant is acquitted and there are no plans to change this. There are no figures available to make an estimate of the amount involved.

Experts' Fees

Ross Cranston: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) what plans he has to (a) impose a ceiling on fees paid to experts and (b) accredited experts; [201913]

(2) what controls the Legal Services Commission operate in relation to (a) fees paid to experts and (b) approval of experts; and what it spent on disbursements for experts in (i) civil, (ii) family and (iii) criminal cases in 2003–04. [201912]

Mr. Lammy: The Government believe that expert witnesses should be suitably qualified in the subject upon which they assist the court with expert opinion, have achieved a suitable level of specialist knowledge and up to date experience to act as an expert and be recognised by their peers. The recent report "Sudden death in infancy" recommended systems of accreditation and training for experts. Active consideration is being given to this recommendation by all agencies.

As for legally aided cases, the Legal Services Commission published a consultation paper: "The Use of Experts(Quality, Price and Procedures in publicly funded cases" on 26 November 2004.

In relation to fees paid to experts, the paper proposes that rates need to be controlled in the same way as the rates paid to lawyers, and the paper sets out proposed guidance on fee levels in criminal and civil legally aided cases. The guidelines for civil cases are similar to those for legally aided criminal cases, but have a higher maximum and lower minimum.

In relation to the accreditation of experts, the paper proposes that solicitors should be encouraged to use experts and interpreters who are on accredited registers such as: the Council for the Registration of Forensic Practitioners; the National Register of Public Service Interpreters; or the register of the Council for the Advancement of Communication with Deaf People. The long-term aim is that all experts instructed in legally aided cases will be accredited.

The LSC is not able to provide the information on disbursement spend in the requested format. In 2003–04, however, the LSC paid over £200 million for disbursements overall; around £140 million on civil cases and £60 million on criminal. They estimate that experts' fees account for approximately two thirds, (or £130 million) of disbursements.

Freedom of Information Act

Llew Smith: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 25 November 2004, Official Report, column 7WS, on section 45 code of practice of the Freedom of Information Act 2000, whether the Department has received any representations on this announcement; and whether the Department conducted a public consultation prior to making the announcement. [202808]

Mr. Leslie: Further to his written ministerial statement issued on 25 November 2004, I can confirm that my right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs has received one representation regarding the revised Section 45 Code of Practice of the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

In accordance with Section 45(4) of the Freedom of Information Act, the Secretary of State consulted the Information Commissioner on the content of the revised Section 45 Code of Practice. The Department also consulted fully with other Government Departments on the revised Section 45 Code of Practice. There was no public consultation exercise.

Information Commissioner

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what budget has been allocated to the Office of the Information Commissioner in each of the last two years; and how many staff have been employed by the Commissioner in each year. [201900]

Mr. Leslie: For 2002–03 the Department allocated a total grant in aid of £8.2 million to the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) and in 2003–04, this allocation increased to £10.6 million. The ICO has recouped from notification fees £7.7 million in 2002–03 and £8.8 million in 2003–04. This money is returned to Government and effectively offsets the grant in aid. This means that the net expenditure by DCA on the ICO has been £0.5k for 2002–03 and £1.8 million for 2003–04. The number of staff employed by the Information Commissioner has increased from 198 in 2002–03 to 208 by the end of the financial year 2003–04. The Department's grant in aid allocation to the ICO over the course of the last two financial years (2002–03 to 2003–04) has increased by £1.2 million, primarily because ICO have taken on more staff to deal with the case work likely to be generated when the Freedom of Information Act comes into force.

Legal Services Commission

Ross Cranston: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what amount remains outstanding to the Legal Services Commission under the statutory charge at the latest date for which figures are available; and what steps it is taking to recover this. [201914]

Mr. Lammy: At the end of the financial year 2003–04 the value of debt due to the Legal Services Commission (LSC) under the statutory charge was £264 million. This included £50 million of interest that had accrued upon the debt.

The debt is secured by the registration of a statutory charge against property and is not generally collectable immediately. Under existing regulations, the LSC has no discretion to enforce repayment of the debt until the charged property is re-mortgaged, sold or upon the death of the client. When one of these events occurs, the Land Registry notifies the LSC and recovery procedures commence.

In order to keep funded clients informed about their debt, and to facilitate early repayment, the LSC has commenced sending out annual statements to clients setting out amounts owed, including accrued interest and offering clients the opportunity to make payment in full or by instalment of their debt.

Non-departmental Public Bodies

Llew Smith: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs by what methods charters establishing non-departmental public bodies may be revoked. [202786]

Mr. Leslie: Charters may be revoked by Act of Parliament or by Order in council and may also be surrendered.

Office of Public Guardianship

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what budget has been allocated to the Legal Services Commission in each of the last two years; and how many staff have been employed by the Commission in each year. [201899]

Mr. Lammy: The budget allocated to the Legal Services Commission for the current financial year (in resource and cash terms) is as follows:

Resource: £1,935 million

Cash: £2,166 million

The number of staff employed (in terms of full-time equivalents) by the Legal Services Commission, for the last two years, are as follows:

2003–04: 1,663

2002–03: 1,619

Special Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs on how many occasions between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004 departmental special advisers travelled (a) domestically and (b) abroad in an official capacity; what places were visited; and how much each visit cost. [202255]

Mr. Leslie: Between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004, special advisers in the Department for Constitutional Affairs travelled in an official capacity on the following domestic and international visits:

	Visited	Total (£)
11 June 2003	Manchester	959.60
24 October 2003	Norwich	546.50
31 October 2003	Derby	1,035.00
21 November 2003	Lowestoft	342.50
28 November 2003	Cardiff	265.90
19 December 2003	New York/Washington DC	21,278.60
29 January 2004	Birmingham	774.60
12 March 2004	Harrow	106.00

All travel by special advisers was undertaken in accordance with the rules set out in the Ministerial Code, and the Civil Service Management Code.

Televising Trials

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs if he will make it his policy to allow the televising of trials. [203038]

Mr. Leslie: On 15 November we issued a consultation paper on the complex and sensitive question of broadcasting court proceedings. When this consultation is complete, we will be in a position to consider whether allowing trials, or parts of trials, to be televised would be beneficial or detrimental to justice.

Training Courses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the (a) cost to the Department, (b) title and (c) location was of each training course organised by his Department for its staff in each financial year since 1997–98. [200329]

Mr. Lammy: My Department is unable to provide a full reply to this question without incurring disproportionate cost. My Department uses the services of external training providers on occasions when there is a training need that cannot be met by the in-house training function, or when there is a specialist training need for which it would not be cost-effective to develop in-house training.

We are able to provide a single, overall, expenditure figure for each financial year since 1998–99 (my Department's accounting systems changed during 1997–98) for external training organised for my Department (and LCD) staff in the following table. These figures include courses organised by all parts of the Department.

Total expenditure figures for external training[1]

Financial year	Total amount (£)
1998–99	919,389
1999–2000	700,288
2000–01	1,661,185
2001–02	1,595,018
2002–03	2,043,701
2003–04	2,916,160

[1] Taken from the DCA's Operating Cost Statements, showing amounts accounted for, for all external training where VAT has been charged.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Constitutional Affairs what financial penalties were paid in each financial year since 1997–98 to training providers by the Department for training courses prepared for its staff which were subsequently cancelled at the Department's request. [200401]

Mr. Lammy: My Department has paid no fixed penalties to training providers in the period stated.

My Department is committed to providing access to relevant training for all of its staff; that commitment extends to looking for options other than cancellation of training courses should staff be unable to attend.

PRIME MINISTER

Engagements

Norman Lamb: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements over the past six months; who was present at each meeting; what the (a) date and (b) location was of each meeting; what issues were discussed; and what plans he has to establish a public register to disclose such information. [202789]

The Prime Minister: I meet many individuals and organisations and attend many functions relating to Government business and as part of the process of policy development. To provide the detailed information requested would incur disproportionate cost. The daily on-the-record briefing by my Official Spokesman regularly provides details of my public engagements.

Special Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Prime Minister (1) whether he has been informed of breaches of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers in his Office since its implementation; [201274]

(2) how many appeals were made by civil servants to the Civil Service Commissioners regarding special advisers in his Office between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004; and when each appeal was lodged. [201368]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office (Ruth Kelly) today.

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Prime Minister on how many occasions between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004 his special advisers travelled (a) domestically and (b) abroad in an official capacity; what places were visited; and how much each visit cost. [202264]

The Prime Minister: Information on the travel and accommodation for special advisers who accompanied me on overseas visits are included in the list of Overseas Travel by Cabinet Ministers 2003–04, copies of which are available in Libraries of the House.

Further information is not available in the format requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

All travel by special advisers is undertaken in accordance with the rules set out in the Ministerial Code and Civil Service Management Code.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what budget has been allocated to the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate in each of the past two years; and how many staff have been employed by the Inspectorate in each year. [201861]

Mr. Pond: The information is in the table.

	2002–03	2003–04
Benefit Fraud Inspectorate budget allocation (£)	7,108,885	7,710,776
Staff employed by Benefit Fraud Inspectorate (Number)	134	154

Notes:

1. The budget figures for 2002–03 includes £507,675 and 2003–04 includes £494,832 from the H M Treasury Invest to Save Bid.
2. The number of staff in each year is an average across the year.

Benefits

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to publish "Income Related Benefits: Estimates of Take-up in 2002–03". [203173]

Mr. Pond: We expect to release "Income Related Benefits: Estimates of Take-up in 2002–03" in January 2005. The statistics were originally intended for release in December 2004 but have been put back due to delays in the provision of data. A precise date of release will be pre-announced at least two weeks prior to publication in National Statistics Updates—the diary of statistical releases.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when action will be taken concerning the application for child support made by Julie Stephens of Christchurch on 20 June 2003. [202110]

Mr. Pond: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. Christopher Chope, dated 8 December 2004:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, when action will be taken concerning the application for child support made by Julie Stephens of Christchurch on 20 June 2003.

As individual cases are confidential, I will write to you separately about this case. This is in line with paragraph 12, part 2 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will ensure that the money paid to him in error by the Child Support Agency is passed without further delay to Ms Oakes, the constituent of the right hon. Member for Birkenhead. [201720]

Mr. Pond: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to my right hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. Frank Field, dated 8 December 2004:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will ensure that the money paid to him in error by the Child Support Agency is passed without further delay to Ms Oakes the constituent of the honourable Member for Birkenhead.

As individual cases are confidential, I will write to you separately about this case. This is in line with paragraph 12, part 2 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Child Support Agency applications are being dealt with off-computer. [202293]

Mr. Pond: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. Bob Spink, dated 8 December 2004:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many CSA applications are currently being dealt with off computer?

Of the Agency's caseload of 1.3 million, around 7,000 cases are currently being dealt with clerically.

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects all Child Support Agency cases to have migrated to the new payment scheme. [203015]

Mr. Pond: We will make a decision on the transfer of old scheme cases once we are sure that the new arrangements are working well.

Mr. John Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will take steps to improve the performance of the Child Support Agency in the handling of direct approaches in correspondence and by telephone from the constituents of honourable Members. [202019]

Mr. Pond: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. John Taylor, dated 8 December 2004:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will take steps to improve the performance of the Child Support Agency in the handling of direct approaches in correspondence and by telephone from the constituents of honourable Members.

The Child Support Agency is continuing to improve its performance in handling approaches from the constituents of honourable members. We are deploying our staff equitably across the new and old child support schemes to provide the best possible level of service to our clients. Telephone calls are routed direct to a client's caseworker wherever this is possible and our National Helpline continues to provide a back-up service. In addition we offer an e-mail service which is growing in demand and which generally provides a response to a client within 24 hours.

Construction Industry

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of (a) the frequency of health and safety inspection in the construction industry, (b) the sanctions available for enforcement of breaches reported and (c) the criteria used to choose which sanctions are used in a particular case; and if he will make a statement. [201988]

Jane Kennedy: The Health and Safety Executive's Field Operations Directorate (FOD) have made the following number of inspection contacts in the construction industry in the last three years (based on companies identified with a construction Standard Industrial Classification code):

	Number
2001-02	18,089
2002-03	19,881
2003-04	18,694

FOD's Construction Division works with the construction industry and seeks improvements in health and safety standards using a range of methods in addition to inspection and investigation activity and appropriate enforcement action.

The health and safety enforcing authorities have a range of tools at their disposal in seeking to secure compliance with the law and to ensure a proportionate response to criminal offences. These include the provision by an inspector of information and advice. Inspectors may also serve improvement and prohibition notices that require remedial measures to be carried out, or to stop dangerous activities. They may also prosecute (or report to the Procurator Fiscal with a view to prosecution in Scotland).

The health and safety enforcing authorities follow the principles and approach set out in the Health and Safety Commission's Enforcement Policy Statement. This policy statement requires proportionality and consistency in enforcement, in line with the Enforcement Concordat, to make most effective use of enforcing authority resources.

Council Tax Benefit

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what percentage of pensioners in England were in receipt of council tax benefit in (a) 1997 and (b) the most recent year for which figures are available. [202287]

Mr. Pond: The information is in the table.

Council tax benefit (CTB) beneficiaries aged 60 and over in England

	May 1997	May 2003
CTB beneficiaries aged 60+	2,714,000	2,337,000
CTB beneficiaries aged 60+ as percentage of relevant population	27.0	22.5

Notes:

1. Caseload figures are based on a 1 per cent. sample and subject to a degree of sampling variation.
2. Percentages are rounded to one decimal place and caseloads to the nearest thousand.
3. Council tax benefit totals exclude any second adult rebate cases.
4. "Beneficiaries" are all claimants and partners aged 60 or over.

Disability Income Guarantee

Mr. Lyons: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Strathkelvin and Bearsden receive the disability income guarantee. [202541]

Maria Eagle: The disability income guarantee is paid by means of enhanced disability premiums through income support, jobseeker's allowance (income based), housing benefit and council tax benefit.

Housing benefit and council tax benefit information is not available below Government Office Region level.

As at May 2004, there were 300 income support and jobseeker's allowance (income based) claimants with an enhanced disability premium in Strathkelvin and Bearsden parliamentary constituency.

Notes:

1. Figures have been rounded to the nearest hundred.
2. Numbers are based on very few sample cases and are subject to a high degree of sampling variation. These figures should be used as a guide to the current situation only.

New Deal

Mr. Peter Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) Scottish people aged 16 to 24, (b) Scottish people aged 25 or over and (c) Scottish people have entered a period of employment through the New Deal for longer than 13 weeks in each of the last four years; and what each figure is as a percentage of all individuals leaving the New Deal. [202059]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 6 December 2004]: A measure of sustainability is not available for New Deal for Lone Parents and New Deal 50 plus. For these New Deals, information has been provided for numbers entering employment.

The available information is in the tables.

New Deal for Young People and New Deal 25 plus in Scotland up the June 2004

New Deal for Disabled People in Scotland to March 2004

Period	Jobs	Of which, sustained: Number	Of which, sustained: As percentage of all jobs
July 2001 to June 2002	220	160	70.0
July 2002 to June 2003	1,430	840	58.8
July 2003 to March 2004	1,480	880	59.3

Notes:
1. Data is from July 2001 when New Deal for Disabled People (NDDP) was launched nationally.
2. Data is to March 2004 as 13 weeks has to be allowed for jobs to become sustained.
3. For the purposes of New Deal for Disabled People, a job is regarded as sustained when a person, placed into work through a Job Broker, remains in work for 13 out of 39 weeks. Prior to October 2003, an NDDP job was regarded as sustained when a person, placed into work through a Job Broker, remained in work for 26 out of 39 weeks.

Nuclear Industry Inspectorate

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with the Chief Inspector of the Health and Safety Executive with regard to the Nuclear Industry Inspectorate's ability to provide nuclear safety assurances during the dispute with Prospect. [203037]

Jane Kennedy: In my previous answer of 18 October 2004, Official Report, column 477W, I said I had asked the Chief Inspector to keep me informed if he believed that NII's ability to provide the nuclear safety assurance we all require was being put at risk. He does not believe this to be the case at present, but continues to keep the position under review.

Pension Credit

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the reasons were for changing the publication schedule of pension credit uptake levels from monthly to quarterly; and if he will make a statement. [199506]

Malcolm Wicks: Pension credit reporting arrangements were originally designed for a new policy bedding in during its first year. Information on numbers of pension credit recipients will now be reported on a quarterly basis, in line with reporting practices for other Departmental benefits.

Pensioners

Brian Cotter: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what action he is taking to improve the take-up of benefits available to older people to prevent winter deaths caused by fuel poverty. [199767]

Malcolm Wicks: Winter fuel payments are one of several measures in place to help alleviate fuel poverty. The majority of payments are made automatically without the need to claim. People who have not previously received a payment and who do not receive a Social Security benefit other than child benefit, housing benefit or council tax benefit must claim. Every effort is made to try and contact those who are newly eligible. For those people who do need to make a claim an extensive publicity campaign is carried out. This begins three months before the qualifying week in September and continues to the end of March. The campaign includes advertisements in national and local press, a leaflet and poster made available in a variety of venues, a dedicated winter fuel payment helpline and information on the internet.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library the report setting out the basis of his estimates of the range of pension savings required to avoid dependence on means-tested benefits throughout retirement. [200154]

Malcolm Wicks: It is not possible to produce meaningful estimates. The required savings levels are entirely dependent on the assumptions made about the particular circumstances of the individual concerned, and will vary substantially with those assumptions. It would therefore be misleading to publish estimates which could only reflect a limited range of examples.

Tom Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners living in the London borough of Wandsworth have an annual income of less than £6,000 per year; and if he will make a statement. [200310]

Malcolm Wicks: The information requested is not available.

Pensions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the take-up rate of the basic state pension is. [201287]

Malcolm Wicks: People will become entitled to a state pension if they meet the qualifying conditions. However, there is no statutory requirement for them to claim their state pension at state pension age. Some people may choose to defer claiming their state pension.

The latest available figures for Great Britain show that the total number of people of state pension age or over is 10,743,338 of whom 10,420,000 are in receipt of a state pension.

Note:

The number in receipt of a basic state pension is taken from a 5 per cent. sample and is therefore subject to a high degree of sampling variation. The figure is rounded to the nearest hundred.

2. Numbers in receipt of a basic state pension IAD Information Centre, 5 per cent. sample as at 31 March 2004.

Sir Archy Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of women in (a) the Scottish Borders, (b) Scotland and (c) Great Britain are entitled to the full basic state pension in their own right. [202536]

Malcolm Wicks: The percentage of the female population in (a) the Scottish Borders (b) Scotland and (c) Great Britain who get a full Category A basic State Pension in their own right is in the following table:

	Percentage
Scottish Borders	14.6
Scotland	13.8
Great Britain	12.5

Notes:

1. Recipient figures are taken from a 5 per cent. sample and are therefore subject to a high degree of sampling variation.

2. Local authorities are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant Office for National Statistics postcode directory.

3. The relevant female population refers to females aged 60 and over living in the specified areas.

4. A full basic State Pension was £77.45 in 2003–04. The percentages in the answer relate solely to those women who qualified for that amount based on their own national insurance record.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what expenditure on contracted-out rebates went on (a) approved personal pensions, (b) stakeholder pensions, (c) contracted-out money purchase schemes and (d) defined benefit pensions in each year since 1997. [203168]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is in the following table:

£ billion

	Estimated cost of rebates
Tax year	(a) APPS	(b) SHPS	(c) COMPS	(d) DBS	Total
1997–98	2.2		0.5	4.7	7.4
1998–99	2.2		0.6	5.0	7.8
1999–2000	2.4		0.5	5.2	8.2
2000–01	2.7		0.6	5.4	8.7
2001–02	2.8		0.5	5.6	9.0
2002–03	3.5		0.6	6.3	10.5
2003–04	3.2		0.6	6.4	10.2
2004–05	3.4		0.6	6.7	10.7

Notes:

1. Figures do not sum due to rounding (to nearest £100 million) and are consistent with the rebate estimates for the 2004 Pre-Budget Report.

2. Figures are for Great Britain only and are calculated on an accruals' basis where actual data exists and on GAD estimates where it does not (from 2002–03 onwards).

3. Information on rebate expenditure for stakeholder pensions is not separately available and has been included (from 2002–03) with the APR expenditure.

4. The large increase in expenditure for 2002–03 is due to the increase in the level of the rebate which applied from the beginning of that tax-year.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many stakeholder pensions are (a) contracted into and (b) contracted out of the state second pension. [203177]

Malcolm Wicks: Figures from the Association of British Insurers (ABI) show that 2,195,521 stakeholder pensions have been sold up to the end of September 2004. Information on numbers contracted out through stakeholder pensions for the tax years 2001–02 and 2002–03 will be available later this month.

Retirement

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the financial effects arising from the proposed change in the retirement age in the first five years after the change. [202235]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government are considering what to do about employer's retirement ages in response to the Age Matters consultation and other consultations. The assessment of proposals and options on which the Government consulted are in the Age Matters consultation. Costs and benefits are contained in the Regulatory Impact Assessment. Both are available in the Library.

Winter Fuel Payment

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have received winter fuel payments in Bolton, North East. [203361]

Malcolm Wicks: The number of people in Bolton, North East who received a winter fuel payment in winter 2003–04 was 17,575. We would expect the number for winter 2004–05 to be similar.

Notes:

1. Numbers are rounded to the nearest 5.

2. Local authorities and parliamentary constituencies are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.

Source:

IAD Information Centre, 100 per cent. samples.

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have requested application forms for winter fuel payments via e-mail since the facility became available. [203374]

Malcolm Wicks: Up to 5 December 2004 there have been 846 requests for winter fuel payment application forms via e-mail.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of the winter fuel payment advertising and publicity campaign has been in each year since its introduction. [200157]

Malcolm Wicks: We carry out a publicity campaign each year to inform people about winter fuel payments. This usually comprises advertising, production and distribution of an information leaflet together with accompanying posters and mailings to advisers and other third parties, in line with the objectives of each year's campaign.

The table sets out total publicity costs for each winter fuel payments campaign since 2001, the year in which the Department for Work and Pensions was created.

Due to differences in the way winter fuel payments publicity was developed and funded before the Department was set up it is not possible to obtain like-for-like figures prior to 2001 without incurring disproportionate costs.

	Expenditure (£)
2001–02	718,000
2002–03	793,000
2003–04	938,000
2004–05	[1]815,000

[1] Estimated.

These figures are exclusive of VAT.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the assumptions were behind the fall in the projected cost of winter fuel payments in 2006–07 and 2007–08 compared with previous years. [203391]

Malcolm Wicks: The commitments to increase winter fuel payments from £150 to £200 a year and to pay an additional £100 to households with someone aged 80 or over were both made for the lifetime of this Parliament. The projected costs of winter fuel payments in 2006–07 and 2007–08 reflect this.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) people and (b) households in the (i) North Southwark and Bermondsey and (ii) Dulwich and West Norwood constituencies were (A) eligible to receive and (B) received the winter fuel payment in 2003–04. [203395]

Malcolm Wicks: It is not possible to provide an accurate estimate of the number of people in the North Southwark and Bermondsey and Dulwich and West Norwood constituencies who were eligible to receive a winter fuel payment. DWP administrative data does not contain complete information on household circumstances and payments are based on household composition.

The information on payments made is in the table.

Parliamentary constituency	Number of people who received a winter fuel payment in 2003–04	Number of households that received a winter fuel payment in 2003–04
North Southwark and Bermondsey	12,180	9,890
Dulwich and West Norwood	13,060	10,030

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 5.

2. Any residence found to have four or more occupants is not included in these figures as it is assumed to be a residential care or nursing home.

3. Local authorities and parliamentary constituencies are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.

CABINET OFFICE

Correspondence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what her target time is in 2004–05 (a) to reply to letters from hon. Members and (b) for the officials in her Office to reply to letters received directly from members of the public. [202319]

Ruth Kelly: The Cabinet Office target time for replying to letters from hon. Members is 15 working days. The same target time applies to officials replying to letters received directly from members of the public.

Information on the departmental handling of correspondence from Members of Parliament/Peers is published annually by the Cabinet Office. The 2003 annual report is available in the Library.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what the total cost to the Office was for the use of external consultants in each of the last two years. [202326]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North Tayside (Pete Wishart) on 11 November 2004, Official Report, column 855W.

EU Directives

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office if she will list the European Union directives and regulations relating to the Office that have been implemented in each of the last two years, specifying (a) the title and purpose of each, (b) the cost to public funds of each and (c) the cost to businesses of each. [202324]

Ruth Kelly: The Cabinet Office has not implemented any EU directives or regulations in the last two years.

Regulatory Reform Orders

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many Regulatory Reform Orders have been approved by the House in each year since 2001; and what target has been set by the Government for the number of Regulatory Reform Orders to be approved by 2005. [200683]

Ruth Kelly: Since 2001, a total of 20 Regulatory Reform Orders have been made, and a further eight proposals have been laid for parliamentary scrutiny. The number of Regulatory Reform Orders made each year since 2001 is as follows:

	Number
2001	1
2002	7
2003	8
2004	4

In 2002 the Cabinet Office set a Public Service Agreement target to deliver 60 Regulatory Reform Orders by the end of financial year 2005–06.

Special Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office (1) whether she has been informed of breaches of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers in her Department since its implementation; [201342]

(2) how many appeals were made by civil servants to the Civil Service Commissioners regarding special advisers in her Office between 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004; and when each appeal was lodged. [201369]

Ruth Kelly: Paragraph 22 of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers states that any civil servant who believes that the action of a special adviser goes beyond that adviser's authority or breaches the Civil Service Code should raise the matter immediately with the Secretary of the Cabinet or the First Civil Commissioner, directly or through a senior civil servant.

Information relating to complaints made by civil servants to the Civil Service Commissioners is set out in the Civil Service Commissioners' annual report. Copies of reports for the period 1996–97 to 2003–04 are available in the Library and can also be obtained on-line at www.civilservicecommissioners.gov.uk.

Sustainable Timber

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what plans her Department has to fund the (a) establishment and (b) maintenance of the Central Point of Expertise on Timber. [201073]

Ruth Kelly: Cabinet Office has offered to assist with funding for the creation of a Central Point of Expertise on Timber (CPET). It is the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) responsibility to establish whether offers and/or fees and charges would be appropriate for the establishment and maintenance of CPET.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Angola

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid programmes, have been supported in Angola during each of the last five years; at what value; and what programmes his Department is planning for the next three years. [203288]

Hilary Benn: The following areas of work have been supported by DFID during each of the last five financial years:

Peace building
1999–2000	0
2000–01	72,000
2001–02	25,735
2002–03	165,827
2003–04	607,814
2004–05	456,808
Humanitarian assistance
1999–2000	4,005,971
2000–01	2,104,295
2001–02	2,191,312
2002–03	6,835,881

2003–04	3,783,907
2004–05	2,163,084
Economic reform and poverty reduction (including HIV/AIDS)
1999–2000	0
2000–01	0
2001–02	48,275
2002–03	221,891
2003–04	239,011
2004–05	864,293
Other sectors: e.g. education, urban poverty
1999–2000	1,122,885
2000–01	1,638,116
2001–02	1,245,182
2002–03	2,412,262
2003–04	2,990,604
2004–05:	1,915,897

In addition to the figures in the table DFID is also supporting a democratisation programme to the value of £200,000 in the year 2004–05.

DFID's current activities in the above areas of focus (peace-building, humanitarian reform, economic reform and poverty reduction) will continue until the end of 2006. DFID will remain actively involved in supporting Angola's post-conflict transition and is also looking at how we can strengthen our collaboration with the World Bank (WB) and European Commission (EC). We are also looking at what more we can do to include Angola in DFID's support to the wider South African Development Community (SADC).

DFID is also funding programmes in Angola multilaterally, through the EC and the UN. In 2002 (the latest available figures) the UK's attributed share of multilateral expenditure in Angola was as follows:

	£ million
EC	5
UN	1.5

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost of was of (a) in-house canteen and (b) other catering services provided by his Department in each of the last two years. [200863]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The cost of in-house canteen services provided in the UK in each of the last two years were as follows:

2002–03	111,859
2003–04	181,237

The increase, year-on-year, is in part attributable to costs incurred with re-tendering and setting up of the new canteen contract in our East Kilbride office.

There are no other catering services provided by DFID. Costs incurred in our overseas offices are not available centrally and could not be obtained without incurring a disproportionate cost.

Burma

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government are taking to assist humanitarian agencies in overcoming obstruction of the delivery of assistance to displaced persons on the border between Thailand and Burma. [202858]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: Most internally displaced people live in sensitive or conflict-affected areas to which international agencies have limited access. Securing increased access to such areas for development agencies is an important objective of DFID. We are currently working with International organisations such as the UN to encourage the Burmese authorities to do this. DFID is providing £500,000 to support the work of the International Committee of the Red Cross which has been able to gradually increase its access within Burma over the last three years and is now operating in significant areas of Shan and Karen states and Tenassarim division.

The UK Government are doing everything they can to press the Burmese authorities to begin a genuine process of reform involving all political parties and ethnic groups in Burma. Political progress is essential to underpin an end to the conflict that is both a major cause of displacement of people in Burma and a fundamental obstacle to meeting the needs of many poor people in Burma, including internally displaced people.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate the Government have made of the number of people that remain displaced from their homes in the eastern regions of Burma; and if he will make a statement. [202862]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The UK has not made an independent estimate of the number of people displaced from their homes in eastern Burma. However, in October 2004, the Thailand Burma Border Consortium (TBBC) estimated that the number of people displaced from their homes in eastern Burma was at least 526,000. The TBBC estimated that of these people, 365,000 were living in temporary settlements in areas administered by the ethnic minority cease-fire groups; 77,000 were living in designated relocation sites in areas administered by the Burmese authorities; and 84,000 were in hiding in conflict areas.

The situation of these internally displaced people, and that of many other poor people in rural Burma, is extremely vulnerable. Reliable statistics are not available. But access to education and primary health care is limited, and poverty is widespread. DFID is working with the UN, International Committee of the Red Cross and others to help improve access to these populations and to provide protection and assistance to them.

Food Aid (Southern Africa)

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will estimate for each country in southern Africa in the period between now and the next harvest (a) how many people will have insufficient food, (b) what the country's overall food surplus or deficit will be and (c) how much food aid has been pledged by donors. [202851]

Hilary Benn: The UN and the Vulnerability Assessment Committees (VACs) have estimated that around 5.6 million people in southern Africa will be food insecure until June 2005. There is, however, some debate as to how many of these require emergency food relief and how many are part of the caseload of people who are affected by structural, long-term food insecurity outside crisis situations, and for whom short term food aid is an inappropriate and unsustainable response.

Estimates from the Food and Early Warning System Network (FEWS-NET) indicate that the Southern Africa Development Community (SADC) region will have a surplus of 1.9 million tonnes of cereals in the 2004–05 growing season, after allowing for planned imports. The situation varies quite considerably for individual countries both at national, sub national and household levels however, and VAC assessments will remain important in determining the appropriate level of short-term, emergency response.

Donors have already covered 80 per cent of the food aid requirements set out in the current UN Consolidated Appeal for southern Africa, covering the period to December 2004. The WFP plans a Protracted Relief and Recovery Operation to cover January 2005 to December 2007 and has appealed for $404 million of food aid assistance. Most donors are currently considering their response to this latest appeal.

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to promote cash-based and income generating initiatives in place of food aid in southern Africa. [202852]

Hilary Benn: In many southern African countries, significant numbers of poor people are food insecure even when there is no food crisis. Ill health, unemployment, and lack of other means to obtain food (production, welfare payments, or family and non-governmental support) all contribute to a longer-term, structural food insecurity problem.

DFID is increasing its support for income generating initiatives, and is encouraging the development of cash transfer programmes (as part of wider poverty reduction efforts in partnership with Governments), in order to address the long-term vulnerability issue underlying the present food insecurity in the region.

In Zambia, DFID is working with Government to implement cash transfers as part of a wider social protection policy aimed at vulnerable, food insecure groups. In Lesotho, DFID is supporting agricultural income generating programmes as an alternative to food aid provision. DFID is also keen to explore how the Government of Lesotho's plans to pay pensions to senior citizens can be developed to provide cash transfers for a wider group of vulnerable, food insecure people. In Malawi, DFID is supporting the development of Government's new National Food and Nutrition Security Policy. This builds on experience in Ethiopia and Zambia in order to tackle the underlying causes of chronic food insecurity by raising agricultural productivity and providing more efficient safety nets to people who are predictably food insecure.

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government take to ensure that responses to short-term food deficits in southern Africa do not undermine longer-term development. [202853]

Hilary Benn: DFID is very concerned and aims to ensure that short-term responses to food insecurity does not jeopardise longer-term approaches to sustainable development.

In southern Africa, DFID has been important supporters of the Vulnerability Assessment Committees (VAC) at county and regional levels. This support has given us detailed information on the numbers of food insecure people who will require emergency assistance and, equally important, enables us to understand what responses are most appropriate to long-term food insecurity in the region. The VAC reports clearly underline that food aid alone is not an appropriate solution to underlying food insecurity conditions in southern Africa.

DFID's support for these country-owned VACs has stimulated discussions about longer-term responses to vulnerability, moving beyond food aid. DFID country programmes in Malawi, Zambia, and Lesotho are already acting on these recommendations and are incorporating a wider range of responses, including cash transfers, into longer-term poverty plans.

Renewable Natural Resources

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his plans are for archiving each of the programmes in the Renewable Natural Resources Research Strategy in accordance with the Public Records Act 1958. [202286]

Mr. Gareth Thomas: The Public Records Acts apply to records created by or belonging to Crown Departments and certain public bodies. Information held by programmes contracted under DFID's Renewable Natural Resources Research Strategy is the property of the contractors. Results from these programmes are reported to DFID and made publicly available through the Natural Resources Information System: found at www.narsis.org. Work is currently under way in DFID to develop a new knowledge management system that will ensure the continued availability of this information when the programmes end.

Zimbabwe

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what contingency plans are in place to ensure that food aid, if required in Zimbabwe over the next few months, is distributed fairly on the basis of humanitarian needs. [202818]

Hilary Benn: Earlier this year the Government of Zimbabwe announced a bumper maize harvest of 2.4 million metric tonnes and declared that international food aid will not be required in the period up to the next harvest, around April 2005. Several independent surveys have suggested that the actual harvest was considerably less than the Government has claimed. The recently released Zimbabwe Vulnerability Assessment (ZimVAC) indicates that 2.3 million people in the rural areas and 2.5 million people in urban areas will be unable to meet their food requirements in the 'hungry season' preceding the next harvest. Meanwhile, the Government of Zimbabwe appears to be importing substantial amounts of grain. Without accurate information about production or imports, it is difficult to assess food security prospects for the coming months. Donors, UN agencies and others are monitoring the situation closely.

After the last harvest, the Government of Zimbabwe restricted the UN World Food Programme (WFP) to distributing only limited amounts of food aid, mainly through schools and clinics, reaching approximately 600,000 people per month. At this rate, there was a danger that the WFP grain stocks in Zimbabwe carried over from last year's humanitarian operations would spoil before distribution. Faced with the alternative that the WFP would export the grains to other countries in the region where they are needed, the Government of Zimbabwe recently authorised the WFP to undertake a large-scale "one-off" food distribution to 1.8 million of the poorest people in areas experiencing the most severe food shortages, to take place as soon as possible.

This food distribution, likely to be the only donor-funded food distribution at scale during the present season, will be implemented using the same procedures as applied in previous WFP humanitarian operations. Political pressure on agencies implementing relief programmes may increase over the coming months; however, to date such donor-funded programmes have remained relatively free of political interference. DFID Zimbabwe is working closely with the WFP, the UN system and our partner organisations to emphasise adherence to procedures that ensure assistance reaches those in most need. Any incidences of irregularity will be comprehensively reported, investigated and dealt with appropriately, as in previous years.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Accountancy Services

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the total cost to her Department was for accountancy services in each of the last two years. [202369]

Ms Hewitt: Total costs to the DTI for accountancy services are detailed in the following table.

£ million

	1. Accounts Services Provision	2. PFI Agreement	3. System Upgrade	4. Services to Internal Audit
2002–03	2.7	1.4	5	0.4
2003–04	3.2	1.4	3.5	0.4

1. The Department entered into a contract for the provision of accounts services with Amey plc, effective from 1 April 2002. The contract covers a 12 year period with a break option at seven years and covers a number of additional services not provided under the previous contract.
2. The Department entered into a PFI agreement to maintain hardware to support accounts services provision. The PFI agreement continues until September 2008.
3. The Department implemented an updated financial accounting system in September 2003.
4. Internal Audit services to the Department are delivered under a strategic partnership arrangement with Ernst and Young.

British Summer Time

Mr. Dhanda: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will bring forward legislation to make British summer time permanent and end the biannual time change. [201793]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government have no plans to alter the present summer time arrangements, but we shall continue to listen to the arguments for and against change.

Mr. Dhanda: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the (a) economic and (b) safety impact of the biannual time change. [201794]

Mr. Sutcliffe: A European Directive harmonises the dates when summer time begins and ends across EC member states as the last Sundays in March and October respectively, and each member state is obliged to move their clocks by one hour at 1.00 am GMT on that date. The purpose of the Directive is to assist planning by ensuring uniformity in summer time dates across the community, thus removing uncertainty for industry and the public in general about Summer Time dates across EC member states.

Given these arrangements, the Government have not undertaken any research specifically addressing the economic or safety impacts of the biannual time change, other than as part of the consultation document published in June 1989 ("Summer Time—A Consultation Document" (Cm 722), which set out the more important arguments and facts about existing summer time arrangements and proposals for change in terms of their economic and social effects, and which concluded that the issues revolved around the basis of opinion and judgment rather than any balance sheet of gains and losses.

In addition, the Department for Transport has previously commissioned the Transport Research Laboratory to update and refine earlier research on the possible impact of the adoption of Central European time on the number of road accident casualties. The results were published on 14 October 1998.

Business Support

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list spending on (a) business support products and (b) administration by (i) the Small Business Service, (ii) other departmental support for small business and (iii) innovation within the departmental activity of Commercial Best Practice and Enterprise for each year since 1997. [201180]

Nigel Griffiths: The following tables show (a) the total spend on business support products, (b) the total spending on administration by the Small Business Service on all activities, and (c) spending on administration for other departmental support for small business and innovation within the departmental activity of Commercial Best Practice and Enterprise. A detailed analysis of Small Business Service spend by specific products or areas of expenditure cannot be identified other than at disproportionate cost.

Butane Fuel

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate she has made of the proportion of cigarette lighters being used in the UK which have been imported. [203160]

Jacqui Smith: The Office for National Statistics' Prodcom Report PRA 36639 (Product Sales and Trade(Other Manufacturing) identifies no sales of cigarette lighters from UK manufacturers' own production from 2000 to 2003, though some very small scale production may not be covered. The UK market is essentially met by imports.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of butane lighter fuel used in the UK in the last period for which figures are available was produced in the UK. [203161]

Jacqui Smith: Consumption of butane in the UK was 915,000 tonnes in 2003, of which 714,000 tonnes was consumed for non-energy use. About 20 per cent. of these amounts were imported. It is not possible to disaggregate how much butane was used in lighters and what proportion of that was UK produced.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate she has made of the size of the UK market for butane lighter fuel. [203162]

Jacqui Smith: This information is not available

Competitiveness Council

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the outcome was of the Competitiveness Council held 25 and 26 November; what the Government's stance was on the issues discussed, including its voting record; and if she will make a statement. [201338]

Ms Hewitt: I attended the Competitiveness Council on 25 November and my noble Friend Lord Sainsbury of Turville attended on 26 November. Lord Sainsbury also attended the first ever Space Council, a joint meeting of the Council of the European Union and Council of the European Space Agency, on 25 November.

The Council took note of a report from the presidency on the current EU economic situation and welcomed the Commission's Competitiveness Package, consisting of the Commission's Competitiveness Report 2004, the Innovation Scoreboard and the Enterprise Policy Scoreboard. In discussion, Ministers emphasised the need to progress the regulatory reform agenda, particularly in developing more robust competitiveness impact assessment.

Ministers discussed the Council's approach to the Lisbon Mid Term Review and their views on the recent report of the High Level Group chaired by Wim Kok. The Council broadly welcomed this report as a helpful basis for the Mid Term Review and agreed with the recommendation that stressed the need to focus on growth, employment and productivity as preconditions for social cohesion and sustainable development. Ministers also recognised that the Competitiveness Council had a lead role to play in three out of the five priority areas identified in the Kok report (the knowledge society, the business climate, and the internal market) and co-responsibility for the other two (an inclusive labour market and an environmentally sustainable future). Member states agreed the need to take steps at all levels, particularly at member state level, to ensure the Lisbon goals are realised.

The Council adopted conclusions on Better Regulation and simplification of legislation. The UK welcomed the recent Commission progress report on improving impact assessment procedures, including boosting assessment of competitiveness impacts, and stressed again the importance of regulatory reform, with support from a number of member states. The Council also approved a list of 15 simplification priorities, which will now be sent to the Commission for further consideration.

The Council had a policy debate on the draft REACH regulation (Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Restriction of Chemicals), based around a presidency report of discussions so far in the ad hoc Working Group on Chemicals. A number of issues were discussed, including REACH impact assessment, data requirements for low-volume substances and the joint submission of data (including cost sharing). On the latter, the UK presented a paper jointly with Hungary promoting the One Substance, One Registration (OSOR) principle. In conclusion, the Council instructed its preparatory bodies to consider these key issues in greater detail, taking account of competitiveness issues (particularly for SMEs) human health and environmental issues, simplification of administrative processes and efficient use of resources.

The Council had its first discussion on the draft directive establishing a general legal framework for services in the internal market designed to eliminate obstacles to freedom of establishment for service providers and free movement of services between member states. In discussion, Council underlined the political and economic significance of the proposed directive in the context of the Lisbon Strategy and the realisation of an internal market in services. Member states also discussed the country of origin principle, administrative simplification and administrative cooperation. I reiterated the UK's support for the market opening objectives of this proposed directive and our support in principle for the country of origin principle, subject to certain assurances on health and safety issues. The Council will return to this dossier at future meetings.

The Council agreed on a general approach to a directive on cross-border mergers of limited liability companies governed by the laws of different member states. UK voted in favour.

The Council unanimously agreed a proposed regulation on the monitoring of trade in drug precursors between the Community and third countries. UK supported this measure, which regulates trade in chemicals that can be used in the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances.

The Council had an exchange of views on the textiles and clothing industry, taking into account the Commission's communication of the recommendations of the High Level Group for this sector, which looked at improving the industry's competitiveness. Council conclusions were adopted.

The Council discussed developments in international negotiations on the International Thermonuclear Experimental Reactor (ITER) and approved a modification to the Commission's negotiating mandate. This revised mandate should enable the Commission to finalise negotiations with international partners. The modified negotiating directives also confirm European support for Cadarache in France as the preferred site for ITER. The UK agreed with these modifications.

Ministers held a policy debate on future European research policy. The presidency's conclusions emphasised the importance of research policy in the context of the Lisbon Strategy. There was broad agreement on the principles for the next Framework Programme (FP7) and a high degree of support for funding of basic research as part of this programme. Lord Sainsbury emphasised the need for a formal Commission proposal on FP7 as early as possible in 2005 and outlined the UK's vision for FP7, stressing the need to create world-class centres of excellence in Europe to attract the best young researchers. The Commission said that they hoped to present formal proposals on FP7 by April 2005.

Five items were taken under Any Other Business. Commissioner Verheugen gave a progress report on the shipbuilding-related LeaderSHIP 2015 initiative. The presidency gave Council information on the fifth Euro-med Conference on Industry, held at Caserta in October, at which the Euro-Mediterranean Charter for Enterprise and "Caserta declaration" were adopted. Further to discussion at the last Competitiveness Council, the presidency provided information regarding efforts by member states to improve their records on timely transposition of internal market legislation. The presidency provided information on conferences held during the Dutch presidency relating to competitiveness. The Council took note of a UK paper reminding the Commission of March 2004 Council Conclusions that invited the Commission to consider establishing a European Centres of Enterprise award scheme, with a view to the scheme's introduction during 2005. Commissioner Verheugen expressed support for taking the scheme forward.

The first ever Space Council took place (a joint and concomitant meeting of the Council of the European Union and European Space Agency (ESA) at ministerial level). Ministers discussed the development of a European Space Policy and a set of orientations were agreed that set out the general approach and some next steps. These highlighted the strategic importance of space activities to a broad spectrum of European policies and stated that the European Space Programme (ESP) would provide a flexible, common and inclusive framework for EU, ESA and other stakeholders to operate within. UK supported the orientations and the development of a realistic and affordable ESP as a way of coordinating European space activities. Further meetings of the Space Council may take place during 2005.

Consumer Direct (West Midlands)

Ross Cranston: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when she expects to launch Consumer Direct in the West Midlands; and if she will make a statement. [201597]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Under current plans the Consumer Direct service is expected to be launched in the West Midlands region during financial year 2006–07.

Correspondence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what her target time is in 2004–05 (a) to reply to letters from hon. Members and (b) for the officials in her Department to reply to letters received directly from members of the public. [202379]

Ms Hewitt: My Department has a target of 15 days for responding to correspondence from Members of Parliament and Peers and for responding to members of the public in line with Whitehall Standards.

Information on the departmental handling of correspondence from Members of Parliament and Peers is published annually by the Cabinet Office. The 2003 annual report is available in the Library of the House.

Departmental Estate

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what her estimate is of the cost of building refurbishment carried out by her Department in each of the last two years. [202374]

Ms Hewitt: My Department undertakes a wide variety of projects as part of on-going maintenance and improvements of its current stock. The cost of refurbishment projects involving significant works to the building services and fabric of the DTI HQ estate for the last two complete financial years is as follows:

£000

Financial year	Refurbishment
2002/03	1,,680
2003/04	2,300

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the cost has been of criminal damage to her Department's buildings in each of the last two years. [202377]

Ms Hewitt: The Department does not record separately the cost of criminal damage but we are not aware of any significant expenditure over the last two years.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate she has made of the cost of (a) new builds, (b) demolition rebuilds and (c) private finance initiative projects in her Department in each of the last two years. [202370]

Ms Hewitt: My Department has incurred no costs relating to the DTI HQ estate for new builds, demolitions or new private finance initiative building projects over the past two years.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on energy costs incurred by her Department in each of the last two years. [202372]

Ms Hewitt: The Department procures its energy via competitive tender. Expenditure on energy on the DTI HQ estate is £942,144 (2002–03) and £958,719 (2003–04) of which 34 per cent. was from renewable sources (average for the two years).

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the cost was of (a) in-house canteen and (b) other catering services provided by her Department in each of the last two years. [202376]

Ms Hewitt: There have been no costs in the last two years associated with the in house canteen. The cost of other catering services for the London Headquarters estate was approximately £1 million in 2002–03 and £1.2 million in 2003–04.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many departmental mobile telephones were used by Ministers, special advisers and officials in her Department in each year since 1997; at what cost; how many such telephones were lost or stolen in each year since 1997; and what the replacement costs were in each case. [202170]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 6 December 2004]: Responsibility for the provision of mobile telephones for official purposes and for payment of associated call charges was devolved to individual directorates, agencies and NDPBs at the end of March 1993. Since August 1997, the DTI has increasingly made use of the central Mobile Telecommunications contract managed by the Office of Government Commerce. This contract allows DTI users access to mobile telephone services and products at advantageous prices ensuring that the Department obtains good value for money. Due to the devolved responsibility for mobile telephone management the only information that can be provided at non-disproportionate cost is the total expenditure with DTI's main suppliers of mobile telephones and the number of handsets supplied through the central OGC contract since 2002.

1998	90,881
1999	263,123
2000	226,695
2001	342,964
2002	[1]342,881
2003	[2]410,372

[1] 549 mobile telephones on the central contract.
[2] 776 mobile telephones on the central contract.

Cost figures are not available for 1997 due to a change in the Department's accounting system over that period.

Electrical Accidents

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people have been (a) killed and (b) seriously injured due to electrical accidents in their homes; and how many of these took place in (i) bathrooms and (ii) kitchens. [203192]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DTI no longer provides a service on accident statistics. Information on fatalities can be obtained from the Health and Safety Executive: www.hse.gov.uk tel. 0870 154 5500 and the Office for National Statistics: www.statistics.gov.uk tel. 0845 601 3034; or for non-fatalities from The Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents: www.rospa.com tel. 0870 777 2171.

Electricity Generation (Renewables)

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much capital grant aid she is planning to provide to (a) wind, (b) solar, (c) tidal, (d) hydro and (e) thermal generators of electricity in the forthcoming financial year; and if she will make a statement. [203073]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The total for wind, through the Capital Grants for Round 1 offshore wind farms programme is £117 million.

For solar photovoltaic (PV) via the Major PV Demonstration Programme the total budget is £31 million, this includes additional funding of £6 million announced in September 2004. Along with the PV funding there are also grants for solar thermal projects available through the Clear Skies programme (the programme has £12.5 million in funding though this is not specifically earmarked for solar but for all eligible renewables), which includes an extra £2.5 million also announced in September. Both these schemes ran to March 2006.

With regards to wave and tidal in August the Government announced a £50 million Marine Renewables Development Fund that will provide continued support to wave and tidal -stream technologies. The fund will be primarily focused on supporting a number of pre-commercial demonstrations. Options for delivering the fund are currently under consideration and we will undertake an informal consultation on our proposals in the new year.

Some Hydro and Thermal schemes qualify under the Clears Skies programme.

Emissions Trading Scheme

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the potential effects of electricity power generators buying and selling (a) gas and (b) other fuels on future markets on the emissions trading scheme. [202081]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: We expect the EU Emissions Trading Schemes (ETS) to encourage generators to switch from using high carbon fuels (e.g. coal or oil) to lower or zero carbon fuels (e.g. gas or hydro). Such switching will have an effect on forward markets for the different fuels. The extent of this switching will be determined by the price of carbon, as well as the relative fuel prices and other costs associated with power generation from different types of plant. The price of carbon will be determined across the whole of the EU. The differences in behaviour of individual UK market participants are expected to have only a minimal impact on the price of carbon. The potential effect of differing assumptions about the ETS on the generation fuel mix was assessed in the study (Implications of the EU ETS for the Power Sector—Annex C), for DTI, by ILEX in September 2003: http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy/sepn/euets.shtml

EU Social Chapter

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what her estimate is of the administrative costs to UK employers of providing the EU Social Chapter rights; and what methodology she used for calculating the cost; [202138]

(2) what estimate she has made of the cost to UK employers of establishing policies associated with EU Social Chapter rights; and what methodology she used to make that estimate. [202540]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DTI has estimated the administrative cost to UK employers of transposing the Social Chapter Directives in its Regulatory Impact Assessments. The Directives in question concern:

(1) Parental leave (including the 1999 extension to the implementing Regulations)

(2) European Works Councils

(3) Part-time work

(4) Burden of proof in sex discrimination cases

(5) Fixed term employees

(6) Information and consultation.

The total administrative(or implementation(costs to UK employers associated with the provision of these EU Social Chapter rights is £0.68 million a year. Additionally, the DTI identified one-off implementation costs, estimated to be in the region of £3.3 million. It should be noted that the Department's Regulatory Impact Assessments also highlighted significant benefits associated with the Social Chapter Directives.

Faraday Partnerships

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has for future investment in the Faraday Partnerships. [202581]

Ms Hewitt: Under the guidance of the newly appointed Technology Strategy Board, my Department is now preparing a call for Knowledge Transfer Networks in specific technologies. These Networks are a new product based upon the example and success of the 24 Faraday Partnerships and will provide what we believe to be an excellent opportunity for relevant Faraday Partnerships to bid for continuing, or even increased, DTI support.

Fuel Poverty

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many (a) people and (b) households living in fuel poverty there are in (i) Southwark and (ii) Greater London; [203393]

(2) what her estimate is of the number of children living in households in fuel poverty in (a) Southwark and (b) Greater London. [203394]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Gordon (Malcolm Bruce) on 30 November 2004, Official Report, column 78W. This sets out how the fuel poverty figures for England are produced, and highlights the fact that we are unable to provide estimates for sub-regional level.

The latest available data for Government office regions suggest that, in 2001, there were 148,000 households in fuel poverty in the Government office for London area but the national statistics have altered since then and it is likely that the London figures have changed too so this is an unreliable figure as a reflection of the situation in 2004. Similarly, It is not possible to produce estimates for the number of children in the cited areas because of the very small sample sizes involved.

Iran

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the United Kingdom has offered assistance to Iran to (a) build a nuclear power plant and (b) provide nuclear technology for such a plant. [202753]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: No.

IT Graduates

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures she proposes to take to ensure that the number of students who graduate from information technology courses reaches the levels that are need by the IT industry as stated by the e-Skills UK and Gartner Consulting research published on 1 November. [200740]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DTI recognises the need for the UK's training and education in IT skills to meet the needs of industry and is working closely with e-Skills UK, the Sector Skills Council for IT, to produce an industry-led long term strategy to achieve this. e-Skills UK is currently developing a Sector Skills Agreement (SSA) to take forward the issues identified in the IT industry research.

The SSA, which is due to be launched in early 2005, will include an action plan for employers, educators and Government which DTI will be supporting together with DfES, the Devolved Administrations, Regional Development Agencies and other key stakeholders. In addition, as part of the Government's Skills Strategy published in 2003, e-Skills UK is leading a IT user skills cross sector strategy to improve the links between supply and demand for IT education and training.

Ministerial Meetings

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list her official engagements over the last six months; who was present at each meeting; what the (a) date and (b) location was of each meeting; what issues were discussed; and what plans she has to establish a public register of such information. [202403]

Ms Hewitt: Ministers meet many individuals and organisations and attend many functions relating to Government business, and as part of the process of policy development. To provide the detailed information requested would incur disproportionate cost. The daily on the record briefing by the Prime Minister's Official spokesman regularly provides details of Minister's public engagements.

National Minimum Wage

Mr. Keith Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people in the Manchester, Withington constituency have benefited from the national minimum wage since its introduction. [201924]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 6 December 2004]: The latest low pay data from the ONS show that 1.1 million people in the UK stood to benefit from the October 2004 uprating of the national minimum wage. The DTI will provide estimates of national minimum wage beneficiaries by region by early January 2005. It is unlikely that figures will be available for the Withington constituency due to small sample size.

Paternity Leave

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the percentage of new fathers who have taken up the right to paid paternity leave since its introduction. [203359]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We are waiting for the full set of figures on the take up of paternity pay that has been reclaimed by employers before making an assessment. We expect to receive this information from the Inland Revenue in February 2005.

Plutonium Shipment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what liability was agreed by the Office of Civil Nuclear Security in respect of the shipment of plutonium from the United States to France aboard the Pacific Teal and Pacific Pintail. [200715]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None. Liability arrangements for the shipment were a matter for the relevant authorities in the United States and France.

Post Office

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the (i) social and (ii) economic role of (A) urban and (B) rural post offices. [202236]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department has made no such study. But the Government fully recognises the social and economic role of post offices, regarding it as most important that people have good access to postal and Government services, and is committed to doing all it can to ensure a viable Post Office network for the future.

For the rural network the Post Office has made a firm commitment to maintain the network and prevent avoidable closures. The Government has underpinned that with £750 million of funding.

For the urban network the Government is providing up to £180 million available to fund compensation payments to subpostmasters leaving the network under Post Office Ltd's reinvention programme and up to £30 million to fund improvements at offices that remain.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to increase the amount of money available to revitalise the urban post office network; and if she will make a statement. [202237]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department has no plans to increase its funding for the urban post office network. Up to £180 million is available to compensate sub-postmasters leaving the network under Post Office Ltd's urban reinvention programme and up to £30 million to fund improvements to remaining urban post offices. Funds remain available for both purposes.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will encourage banks to enable their customers (a) to access bank accounts and (b) conduct other transactions at post offices; and if she will make a statement. [202238]

Mr. Sutcliffe: More than 20 million current accounts are accessible at post offices and it is Post Office Limited's strategy to build on this. The Government would urge all banks to provide their customers with access to their accounts through post offices but we recognise that the decision to do so is a commercial matter for the individual institutions concerned.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to ask the post office (a) to simplify the post office card account application process and (b) to allow card accounts to be opened at post offices; and if she will make a statement. [202566]

Mr. Sutcliffe: None. The Department of Trade and Industry has no role in the post office card account, which is delivered by Post Office Limited under contract to the Department for Work (DWP) and Pensions, Inland Revenue and the Northern Ireland Social Security Agency. I understand that there is no need to change the process, which is already simple and working well. Independent research commissioned by the DWP shows that more than 80 per cent. of customers found the process of opening a card account to be easy. Over 4 million customers have already opened a Post Office card account.

Power Stations

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps she is taking to encourage the retrofitting of clean-coal technology to UK power stations; and what percentage reduction in carbon emissions from such stations she estimates such action would achieve. [202737]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 6 December 2004]: DTI is developing a Carbon Abatement Technology Strategy to address the future requirements for reducing carbon dioxide emissions from large-scale power generation in the UK using fossil fuels, including coal. The issue of retrofitting of cleaner-coal technology to UK power stations to reduce carbon dioxide emissions is being considered within this strategy which is due to be published in the new year.

In addition, the EU emissions trading scheme comes into effect from 1 January 2005. This scheme will encourage UK power stations to reduce their carbon dioxide emissions. The retrofitting of cleaner coal technologies is one of many options available to power station operators to achieve this.

The actual carbon dioxide emissions reduction from retrofitting of more efficient cleaner coal technologies to UK power stations would depend on the specific design and operating conditions of the technology fitted and that which it was replacing. However, as an indication, savings in the range of 10–20 per cent. of carbon dioxide emissions should be possible with the retrofitting of such technologies to coal power stations.

Radioactive Chocolate

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the storage of chocolate radioactively contaminated following the fire at Windscale in 1957. [200708]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: A fire broke out in Pile 1 on 10 October 1957, and was extinguished on 11 October. Radioactivity was released to the environment. The main public health concern was the contamination of locally produced milk by the short-lived isotope iodine 131. Milk produced within 80 square miles of the site was banned from 12 October, and the ban was extended to 200 square miles on 15 October.

At that time, the chocolate manufacturer Rowntree ran a factory in Egremont, close to the Windscale site. Records in one UKAEA file show that on 8 November 1957 Rowntree wrote to seek compensation for 90 tons of chocolate milk crumb manufactured between 11 and 15 October, which they believed to have been contaminated as a result of the Windscale fire. UKAEA contested this claim on the grounds that "the crumb is completely safe for consumption owing to the short half-life of the radioactive iodine which was the sole source of contamination".

The correspondence continued for some months, culminating in an exchange of letters between the Chairman of Rowntree and Sir Donald Perrott of UKAEA. Rowntree acknowledged

"we fully accept your advice that, as a matter of scientific fact, the 90 tons of crumb do not represent a radioactive hazard", but stated that in the interest of customer relations and commercial prudence, they wished to have the crumb destroyed or disposed of. They sought the UKAEA's help to do so, and offered to meet the costs incurred. UKAEA agreed "to accept responsibility for destroying this material" on Rowntree's behalf.

Science and Technology Select Committee

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will investigate the allegations made by Dr. Robin Lovell-Badge of improper coercion of Task Force members by Professor Colin Blakemore, concerning the Medical Research Council Task Force examining the future of the National Institute for Medical Research, in his evidence to the Science and Technology Select Committee on 1 December; and if she will make a statement. [202185]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 6 December 2004]: The Science and Technology Committee is currently conducting an inquiry into the future of the Medical Research Council's (MRC) National Institute for Medical Research (NIMR). I understand that this will include the process by which MRC reached its decisions. As the allegations regarding improper coercion were made during an oral evidence session for this inquiry, I will wait with interest for the Select Committee's report and recommendations before deciding whether any further action is needed.

Telephone Preference Service

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the powers to (a) issue penalties and (b) take other actions against companies and individuals who do not adhere to the requirements of the Telephone Preference Service. [202090]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) has responsibility for the enforcement of the Telephone Preference Service (TPS) scheme. A company or individual which breaches their enforcement notice commits a criminal offence subject to a fine of up to £5,000 in a magistrates court.

Transport, Telecommunications and Energy Council

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the outcome was of the Transport, Telecommunications and Energy Council held on 29 November; what the Government's stance was on the issues discussed, including its voting record; and if she will make a statement. [201341]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As Minister for Energy and E Commerce, I represented the UK at the EU Energy Council in Brussels on 29 November.

The Council considered several matters of interest to the United Kingdom. Chief among these were the Energy Services Directive and the Security of Electricity Supply Directive.

A general approach on the Security of Electricity Supply Directive was agreed, though the Commission, which seeks a more interventionist regulator-led approach to promote actively new interconnector build and thereby competition, maintained a reserve on Article 7 on interconnector construction.

Council conclusions were agreed on the Commission's Communication on the share of Renewable Energy in the EU.

An orientation debate was held on the proposed Energy End Use Efficiency and Energy Services Directive. Member States expressed a strong preference for indicative not mandatory energy saving targets though views were mixed on whether a uniform target at EU level would be helpful; many delegations preferred individually set targets. There was general recognition that the public sector could play a leading role in promoting energy efficiency but the majority of Member States opposed specific targets for the sector. On the question of the placing of obligations on suppliers there was a clear preference for a broader more flexible approach rather than a focus on one energy efficiency approach—energy services. There was broad agreement that a harmonised approach to measuring energy savings was needed, but there was a split on whether a top down or bottom up approach was best.

The UK noted our support for a uniform, but indicative, six-year target taking account of already captured efficiency gains; a more broadly defined obligation on energy suppliers to actively offer and promote energy efficiency; and agreement with the Presidency proposal for either a top down or a hybrid approach to measuring efficiency gains.

The Commission's preference for a mandatory target reflected what they saw as the poor record of achievement against indicative targets and they suggested that flexible mandatory targets might be the way forward. The Presidency concluded by proposing an annual debate on progress towards achieving indicative national targets, the first of which would fall to the UK Presidency, and looked forward to concluding the dossier in the Luxembourg Presidency.

The Commission reported progress on the negotiations of the Energy Community for South East Europe Treaty, which it hoped would be a model for other sectors. Signature was foreseen for 2005. Some Member States had substantive comments on the language regime, others on the distinction between participating and observing Member States. The next negotiation meeting on 13 December will be an opportunity to discuss outstanding matters.

The Commission reported on its communication on progress on the EU/Russia energy dialogue 2000–04, claiming it showed positive outcomes across a range of fields. More progress in Russia was needed on the reform process, energy efficiency and Kyoto implementation, promoting and protecting investment and positive developments in the gas and oil markets. The Commission undertook fully to involve Member States.

The Presidency concluded by noting, in the context of the recent "Energy in Motion" conference aimed at improving cleaner road traffic, that transport accounted for a third of energy consumption. The conference conclusions would be discussed at the next Transport and Environment Councils and the Commission were urged to take account of them.

Luxembourg finished by saying they would take forward the Dutch Presidency approaches and singled out Energy TENS as a priority dossier.

Eurofighter Typhoon

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations her Department has made to the Greek Government on the export of the Typhoon aircraft. [202988]

Jacqui Smith: The proposal to export Typhoon aircraft to Greece is being led by Germany, and the UK is playing a full part in supporting it as a Typhoon partner nation. The Defence Export Services Organisation leads on this for the UK.

Wind Farms

Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of applications to build wind farms (a) were accepted, (b) were rejected and (c) are ongoing in the last full year for which figures are available. [201327]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My Department is responsible for considering applications for consent under the Electricity Act 1989 for wind farm projects of more than 50MW in England and Wales and more than 1MW offshore of those countries. My Department also considers applications for Orders for wind farm developments in England under the Transport and Works Act 1992.

In 2003 which is the last full year for which figures are available, the DTI received consent applications for offshore wind farms and three onshore wind farms, each of which is still under consideration.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Burma

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which EU-Burmese joint ventures have been affected by Annex II of the Council Common Position on Burma 2004/730/CFSP and Annex IV of Council Regulation (EC) 798/2004. [202845]

Mr. Straw: I refer the right hon. and learned Gentleman to the reply I gave him on 18 November 2004, Official Report, column 1778W.

We are aware that one EU company has claimed that they have been erroneously implicated through the listings of state owned enterprises in Annex II of the Common Position on Burma 2004/730/CFSP and Annex IV of Council Regulation 798/2004.

We are not aware at present that any other EU-Burmese joint ventures have been affected.

China

Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Governor of Guangdong Province in China during his recent visit to the UK; what assessment he has made of the implications for the UK's bilateral relations with China of the economic growth of Guangdong Province; and if he will make a statement. [200684]

Mr. Rammell: The Governor of Guangdong, Huang Huahua, visited London from 24 to 27 October to promote business opportunities. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary was unable to meet the Governor. My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister met the Governor at a major business conference held at the Queen Elizabeth Conference Centre attended by 1,300 British, Chinese and European representatives. This event saw around £2 billion worth of contracts signed, underlining the success of commercial contracts between the UK and various Guangdong businesses. Economic growth in China and Guangdong Province offers great opportunities for UK business. The Government are working hard with business to realise this potential.

Correspondence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his target time is in 2004–05 (a) to reply to letters from hon. Members and (b) for the officials in his Office to reply to letters received directly from members of the public. [200846]

Mr. Straw: The information is as follows:

(a) 20 working days

(b) 20 working days

Cyprus

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it a condition of the United Kingdom's support for opening sea ports in northern Cyprus to EU trade that such ports adhere to (a) existing and future European ports directives and (b) health and safety requirements; and how he expects such rules will be enforced. [202785]

Mr. MacShane: The UK supports the EU's efforts to pass a regulation to enable preferential direct trade between the north of Cyprus and the EU as a way to fulfil the mandate by the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 26 April to end the isolation of the Turkish Cypriot community. The draft regulation has not, however, been passed nor has its substance been discussed in detail. When this happens, the Government will want to ensure that the UK's and EU's legitimate interests are protected.

Departmental Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total cost to his Department was for accountancy services in each of the last two years. [200836]

Mr. Rammell: The total cost to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office for accountancy services in each of the last two years was:

2002–03	1,772,000
2003–04:	718,000

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost has been of criminal damage to his Department's buildings in each of the last two years. [200838]

Mr. Rammell: The UK Buildings of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office have suffered criminal damage on one occasion within the past two years: in November 2004. The cost of this damage was £2,135.25, excluding VAT.

Data regarding the cost of criminal damage to the overseas estate could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on energy costs incurred by his Department in each of the last two years. [200839]

Mr. Rammell: The recorded energy costs incurred by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in each of the last two years are:

	UK	Overseas
2002–03	1,407,600	10,705,423
2003–04	2,264,018	10,422,585

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his estimate is of the cost of building refurbishment carried out by his Department in each of the last two years. [200841]

Mr. Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) spent £338,159 in 2002–03, and £745,975 in 2003–04, on refurbishment work in the FCO's properties in the UK.

In 2002–03 we spent £2,380,000 on overseas refurbishment projects exceeding £250,000 in value. In 2003–04 there were no overseas refurbishment projects valued at more than £250,000. Responsibility for refurbishment projects overseas valued at less than £250,000 is devolved to overseas posts, and totals could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost of refurbishing each Ministerial Private Office was in the last two years. [200842]

Mr. Rammell: The cost of refurbishing Ministerial Private Offices in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office during the past two years has been:

2002–03: Nil

2003–04: £17,047

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total external spend by his Department was on private finance initiative (PFI) consultants in each of the last two years; how many full-time equivalent consultants were employed over this period; how many billed consultancy days there were per year; what the implied average cost of each PFI consultant was; how many consultancy firms were used by his Department over this period; and if he will make a statement. [200854]

Mr. Rammell: The information requested is as follows.

	2002–03	2003–04
Total external spend	£106,459	£180,073
Full-time equivalent consultants	0	1
Number of billed consultancy days	80	264
Implied average cost	£1,342 per day	£682 per day
Number of consultancy firms	3 in period

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has two Private Finance Initiative arrangements in place, details of which I gave in my reply to the hon. Member for Tatton (Mr. Osborne) on 28 October 2004, Official Report, column 1388W.

European Union

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the European Union directives and regulations relating to his Department that have been implemented in each of the last two years, specifying (a) the title and purpose of each, (b) the cost to public funds of each and (c) the cost to businesses of each. [200851]

Mr. MacShane: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) is responsible for the UK's general policy on the EU, and accordingly has an interest in the implementation of all EU measures in the UK. Indeed the hon. Member will have noted the joint measures announced by my right hon. Friends the Foreign Secretary and the Chancellor of the Exchequer in the pre-Budget report for ensuring that businesses do not face unnecessary burdens from European law, including though effective transposition. However, there have been no directives or regulations in the past two years which the FCO has had the responsibility of implementing in the UK.
